"That's all right, son," said the senator. "But let me give you a piece of advice about going through doors like these. Always go through on the right side and turn to the right. Then if you meet anybody coming through and bump into him you needn't apologize. He'll be a durned fool, and it won't be necessary. Good morning."—Saturday Evening Post.

Greatly Underestimated.

"Bobby," asked his Sunday school teacher, "do you know how many disciples there were?" The little boy promptly said that he did and answered, "Twelve." Then he went on, "And I know how many Pharisees there were too."

"Indeed!"

"Yes'm. There was just one less than there was disciples."

"Why, how do you know that? It is nowhere stated how many Pharisees there were."

"I thought everybody knew it," said Bobby. "The Bible says, 'Beware of the leven of the Pharisees,' doesn't it?"—Youth's Companion.

The Grandest.

"What is the grandest thing in the universe?" asks Victor Hugo. "A storm at sea," he answers and continues, "And what is grander than a storm at sea?" "The unclouded heavens on a starry, moonless night." "And what is grander than these midnight skies?" "The soul of man"—a spectacular climax such as Hugo loved and still, with all its dramatic effects, the picturesque statement of a vast and sublime and mighty truth.

Crazy.

Wigwag—I believe there's a tinge of insanity in all religious enthusiasts. Henpeckke—Yes; take the Mormons, for instance. Any man that wants more than one wife is plumb crazy.—Philadelphia Record.

The Spoor.

"I'm gunning for railroads," announced the trust buster.

"Then come with me," whispered the near humorist. "I can show you some of their tracks."—Southwestern's Book.

Beware of the man who does not return your blow; he neither forgives you nor allows you to forgive yourself.—George Bernard Shaw.

Kicked by a Horse

Yesterday morning Mr. W. H. Eastman, blacksmith, on Hunter street East, was kicked by a horse. The horse was a very ferocious beast, and while shoeing in Mr. Eastman was kicked on the side of the head, being badly cut. He was removed to his home on Burnham street in the ambulance.

Port Hope Consulate Closed

The U.S. Consular office, Port Hope, closed to-day and the Consular agent, Jas. H. P. Dill, is transferred to the Consulate at Orillia. The Peterborough Consular agency, Jas. Frank Hall, agent, is now included in the Toronto district.

London in 1784.

In 1784 M. La Combe published a book entitled "A Picture of London," in which, inter alia, he says, "The highroads thirty or forty miles round London are filled with armed highwaymen and footpads." This was then pretty true, though the expression "filled" is somewhat of an exaggeration. The medical student of fifty or more years ago seems to have been anticipated in 1784, for M. La Combe tells us that "the brass knockers of doors, which cost from 12 shillings to 15 shillings, are stolen at night if the maid forgets to unscrew them," a precaution which seems to have gone out of fashion.

M. La Combe in another part of his book exclaims: "How are you changed, Londoners! Your women are become bold, imperious and expensive. Bankrupts and beggars, coiners, spies and informers, robbers and pickpockets abound. The baker mixes alum in his bread. The brewer puts opium and copper filing in his beer. The milkwoman spoils her milk with snails."

The Blood Red Banner.

Royal and national colors vary with nations and times, but since Cain slew Abel blood red has been the sign of revolt. In the earliest revolt known to history, when the Persians rose against their king 4,000 years ago, they were led by a blood red banner, and during the riots which took place in Paris the men in the blood red caps were followed by the mob. A blood red flag waved over Bunker Hill when the Americans fought for liberty, and it was the emblem of the German peasants in their great uprisings in 1424, 1492 and 1525. Blood red was the color of the trades union flags during the middle ages, and it framed the background of the emblem of the Swiss confederacy in 1315. Through the whole of French and every other national history those striking in their own ways for liberty have worn the blood red cap and hailed the blood red banner as their leader. It is a curious fact that never has a monarch chosen it as his color.—London Answers.

Naive Lying.

"The man lied too naively in defense of his innocence. He was like a carpenter employed by a newspaper friend of mine. My newspaper friend writes a good deal at home, and, his study being next to the nursery, the children's noise disturbed him, and he employed a carpenter to make the wall sound proof between the two rooms. 'I'll fix it all right,' said the carpenter confidently. 'The best thing to do will be to line it with shavings.' He completed his job, then he called the literary man in. 'She's sound proof all right now,' he said. 'We'll test her,' said the literary man. 'You stay here.' And, going into the nursery, he called to the carpenter in the study. 'Can you hear me?' 'No, sir; I can't,' was the prompt reply."—New York Tribune.

Was Entitled to Trouble.

Lord Palmerston and Sir J. Paget, who told the story, were walking down Bond street. A man came up and saluted the statesman.

"How do you do, Lord Palmerston?"

"Ah, how do? Glad to see you. How's the old complaint?"

The stranger's face clouded over, and he shook his head. "No better."

"Dear me! So sorry! Glad to have met you. Goodby."

"Who's your friend?" asked Sir James when the stranger had gone.

"No idea."

"Why, you asked him about his old complaint."

"Pooh, pooh!" replied the other unconcernedly. "The old fellow's well over sixty; bound to have something the matter with him."—London Globe.

The Archbishop Won.

Dr. Whately, some time archbishop of Dublin, once had an encounter with a young aid-de-camp, and the primate emerged victor. At dinner the soldier asked this singular question. "Does your grace know the difference between an archbishop and an ass?" "Sir, I do not," answered Dr. Whately. "One wears the cross on his mitre and the other wears it on his back!" explained the tactless officer. "Do you know the difference between an aid-de-camp and an ass?" asked the archbishop calmly in return. "No, your grace, I do not," was the reply. "Neither do I!" said his grace.—Liverpool Mercury.

Greeley's Writing.

During the early part of the nineteenth century the bad writing of great men became almost a byword. In fact, poor writing was considered by some people as almost a sign of genius. Horace Greeley was such a poor writer that his correspondents were sometimes obliged to guess at his meaning. It is related that a reporter on the New York Tribune who received a letter from Greeley discharging him presented it as a letter of recommendation to the editor of another paper.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

Reserve may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of the homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father or mother.

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the agent for the district of such intention.

Six months notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

A Trying Moment.

Professor Leopold Schmetter was asked to see the Crown Prince Frederick in 1887 before Sir Morell Mackenzie had reached San Remo. The prince, evidently not putting the worst construction to Schmetter after the examination said, "I request the truth as to my ailment." Schmetter hesitated, made an effort to direct the conversation in another direction, but Frederick insisted. "I am a soldier," he said "and can look death in the face. I ask you now plainly, is the nature of my complaint cancer?" Schmetter could not, controlling himself, years after the scene when he related it he spoke of it as the most terrible in his life. He consulted the other physicians present and asked him to speak. "Then be good enough to tell me," said Frederick, "are you suffering from cancer?" "Your Imperial Highness, we are suffering from cancer, and it is possible that it may be of the epithelial variety, but that cannot be determined positively at this moment." Frederick became deadly pale, but never for a moment lost his self control and smiled grimly when he thanked the physician for his honesty.

Coming to an Understanding.

In the quaint way of villagers they were discussing the matrimonial affairs of a couple who, though recently wed, had begun to find the yoke of Hymen a burden.

"'Tis all along of these hasty marriages," opined one caustic old gentleman, who had been much to the fore in the discussion. "They did not understand each other. They'd nobbut knowed each other for a matter o' seven year."

"Well, that seems long enough," said an interested lady listener.

"Long, eh?" Bah! You're wrong! When a body's courtin' he canna be too careful. Why, my courtship lasted a matter of nineteen year!"

"You certainly were careful," agreed the lady listener. "And did you find your plan successful when you married?"

"Ye jump to conclusions," said the old man impatiently. "I understood her then, so I didna marry her!"—St. James' Gazette.

Poor Comfort.

Apropos of the professions of those who might be counted, as in society, Mrs. Bloomfield Moore in her book on "Sensible Etiquette" tells the following story:

A snobbish young man and his sister after their return home from an evening party were criticising the company quite unaware that their sensible old uncle was listening to his chamber and could hear every word from where they stood in the corridor.

"Why, even the Grinders were there and you know their father was a grocer. I was never in such a mixed company," said the sister.

"And we will never be again if I can help it," answered the brother.

The uncle called out, "Children, what do you think your grandfather was? He was a bootmaker, and some people say not a very honest one either. Now go to bed."

Cramp Rings.

Formerly it was customary for kings of England on Good Friday to hallow certain rings, the wearing of which prevented cramp or epilepsy. They were made from the metal of decayed coffins and consecrated with an elaborate ceremony, some details of which are still preserved. They were "highly recommended by the medical profession" about 1557, for Andrew Boorde in his "Brevinry of Health," speaking of cramp says, "The kynge's majeste hath a gyent helpe in this matter in hallowing crampe rynges without money or petition." Occasionally cramp rings played a persuasive part in diplomacy. Lord Berners, our ambassador at the court of Charles V., wrote in 1508 "to my lorde cardinall's grace" for some "crampe ryngs," with trust to "bestowe them well, by God's grace."—Westminster Gazette.

Persian Burials.

In Persia two sticks a foot long are placed in the coffin to prop up the arms of the corpse when it rises from the grave and is being questioned by the angel Gabriel. After it has satisfied the angel that it is the body of a true Mussulman it will receive strength to stand alone. A glance from a dog is necessary to drive away the spirit of defilement, and for this purpose a street cur is brought into the room of death and its eyes led to the corpse by a tempting bit of bread laid on the still breast.

Restlessness.

Mere restlessness is not a matter for which physicians are often consulted. It is on the face of it an unimportant malady, but when it exists in sufficient intensity to form the subject of complaint and to induce the sufferer to seek advice it is usually found to be the superficial indications of a grave underlying condition.—Hospital.

Change of Heart.

Parson Primrose—Why do you think it was out of place for your father to say grace? Freddie—Because it was only a few minutes afterward that he was swearing over having to carve the turkey.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Heart Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in fact, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the heart cannot continue to full, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing Hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, smothering heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is so to directed to these vital and vitalizing nerve centers. It tones, Strengthens; it offers real, genuine heart help. If you would have strong Hearts, strong, healthy, steadfast Hearts, these nerves—Nerves of the heart—must be watched with

"ALL DEALERS"

The Mule's Defenses.

The pack mule is quite as much an institution as the team mule, and is absolutely indispensable in the mountains. Mule packing is a fine art, and with a well trained animal and a skillful packer you can safely transport anything from a piano to a bag of coals. When the packer has finished his job in an artistic manner, the animal may buck or bawk, kick or rear or roll, but he cannot rid himself of his burden, and he finally gives it up in despair. After two or three experiences he will submit to his destiny and fall into line with the rest of the train every morning to receive his load from the packer. A well trained pack mule is always proud of his load, and if by any means it gets loose he will step quickly out of line and wait until the packmaster comes along to tighten it.

The most serious objection to the mule, which just sometimes find human beings also, is the delusion that he can sing. One who has never heard a mule sing cannot appreciate the extent of his mistake; but, like everything else about a mule, his song is strictly original. It belongs to no other animal. No one can describe and no one can imitate it.—New York Mail.

Mixed Pickles.

Bishop Knox once explained that "Mr. McKenna's sword was an overloaded pistol which, being brought in a tight corner lest it should burst, pretended to be dead until it got upstairs and hid home on the friendly back of the bishop of St. Asaph." Both in its political debuts, especially in the House of Commons, that the mixed metaphor flourishes most luxuriantly. "The dead-gates of irreligion and intemperance are stalking arm in arm throughout the land." "This bill affects such a change that the last leap in the dark was a mere fun bike." "That is the marrow of the educational act, and it will not be taken out by Dr. Clifford or anybody else. It is founded on a rock, its foundation and speaks in a voice not to be drowned in sectarian clamor." "The question of intemperance is a thorny subject and has long been a bone of contention."—Manchester Guardian.

Tally One.

"What makes this vegetable soup taste so different?" asked the genial husband of the pretty bride.

"Only the taste you sent home," replied the bride. "You remember you said you were going to order lobster."

"I didn't order any lobster," groaned the husband, but he finished his bowl of soup rather than disappoint her.

That afternoon he stopped at the grocery store.

"How did you come to send lobsters to my house this morning?" he demanded. "I didn't order them."

"Sure, we ate them."

"Oh, for land's sake. They were Mrs. Jackson's tally lobsters. She left them on the counter, and they got into your basket by mistake."—Detroit Free Press.

A Queer Practice.

A queer practice which is general throughout all the tribes of Australia is the rubbing of the skin. When little children are still young long cuttings are made across the chest, down the top per arm and leg and even across the back and ribs. While the wound is quite fresh the cut is opened and a mixture of mud is gratified in, the skin being pulled as far as possible over it. The skin eventually grows completely round the mud filling and forms ridges varying in length and width from an ordinary lead pencil to the thickness of a man's little finger and extending from armpit to armpit. I am informed that while the healing process is going on the pain is exquisite, but the result seems to satisfy all parties concerned.—London Standard.

The Brave Butterfly.

Here is an unorthodox story of King Solomon: One day a butterfly entered the king's temple and boasted to his wife. "If I chose I could lift my wing and shiver this building to the ground," he swaggered. Solomon, overhearing, sent for the boaster. "How dare you?" he thundered. The butterfly grovelled. "I did it to impress my wife," he pleaded. The great monarch unfeelingly appeared and let him go. "What did Solomon say to you?" gasped a quivering wife five minutes later. "Oh, he begged me not to do it," said the butterfly airily. And Solomon, again overhearing, smiled.—Chicago News.

Wifely Curiosity.

"Henry, dear, I tried on a suit of your clothes the other day, and it fitted me to perfection."

"May I ask your object in telling such a liberty with my garments?"

"Why, Belle Greene said she heard Tommy Tolliver say that you wasn't much bigger than a shrimp, and I was just wondering how big a shrimp is."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Alike in One Way.

"He's quite wealthy and prominent now," said Mrs. Starvem, "and they say he runs practically from nothing."

"Well, well!" remarked Mr. Barker. "That's just what I runs from—dishes breakfast table this morning."—London Answers.

Three Amiable Creatures.

Maud—This is my engagement ring. Isn't it lovely? Edith—Perfectly readable! How generous Fred was to give you such a valuable one! And to think that folks say that your father paid for it!—Boston Transcript.

Inquiring Boy—Sir, what did the apostles eat before Adam and Eve were created?—Ecclesiastic.

"What made you kick Jimpson?"

"He called me an ass."

"Oh, well, kicking is a characteristic of asses, but I shouldn't think you'd want to confirm Jimpson's statement so quickly."—London Telegraph.

A RAISE IN MINING STOCK

ALLOTMENT SUBSCRIBED.

The requisite amount of stock has been subscribed and paid in full to enable the Company to proceed to allotment and commence business.

RAISE OF MINING STOCK.

THE GREAT NORTHERN LARDER LAKE MINING CO., Limited, proposes to advance price of their treasury stock to Twenty-five (25c) cents on June 23rd. Last chance to buy at ten cents a share, par value One Dollar, fully paid up and non-assessable.

The foreman, Mr. David Foster, of Cobalt, has started to work on the Company's property with a gang of men to develop veins already discovered, also to continue striping in search of new gold veins.

We are erecting boarding houses and dining-rooms for our men.

READ COPY OF CERTIFICATE AND STATUTORY DECLARATION CONFIRMING SAME.

Toronto, March 18th, 1908.

To the Great Northern Larder Lake Mining Company, Limited:—

Gentlemen,—

I beg to confirm my previous report to you that in my judgment the surface showings on the 14 mining claims which the Company has acquired, being Nos. H.R. 221 to H. R. 234, both inclusive indicate the probability of the existence of large bodies of both high grade and low grade free-milling ore, sufficient to pay dividends for an indefinite period.

I have personally examined a number of veins and reefs on said property (consisting of about 640 acres) and had some assays made and from such examinations and assays I make this report.

The statement on pages nine and ten of the Prospectus giving the short history of the Company are correct. I insisted on retaining a large interest in the Company rather than sell for any price that seemed reasonable to the purchasers.

10 PER SHARE.

Par Value One Dollar fully paid Up and Nonassessable.

DAVID A. FOSTER,
Haileybury.

IN THE MATTER OF THE GREAT NORTHERN LARDER LAKE MINING CO., LTD.

Statutory Declaration.
DOMINION OF CANADA
County of York
TO WIT:

I, David Foster, of the town of Haileybury, in the district of Nipissing, miner, do solemnly declare that the statements in the annexed certificate are true. I have personally inspected all of the fourteen claims now transferred to the Great Northern Larder Lake Mining Company, Limited. I have taken samples containing gold values from said property, and from my personal examination, and from assays made, I believe the Company's property when developed, will prove very valuable. I have full confidence in the success of the said Company, and on this account, with the exception of $600 already received, I have agreed to accept stock in said Company, and a note which I believe will not be of much value should the actual development work not prove the said claims to contain gold in paying quantities as it is not payable for one year from this date or until after the Company shall have done the necessary development work on said claims. And I make this solemn declaration conscientiously believing it to be true and knowing that it is of the same force and effect as if made under oath, and by virtue of "The Canada Evidence Act."

DAVID A. FOSTER.

Declared before me at Toronto, in the County of York, this 31st day of March, 1908. J. T. LOFTUS, A. Commissioner in H. C. J.

PROPERTIES TRANSFERED.

Since the prospectus was printed, the sale of the 14 mining claims to the Company has been completed and the transfers to the Company are registered in the Recorder's Office at Larder City. There is no mortgage or other encumbrance against said claims.

1 CENT A 2 SHARE

Send us your name as a member in this new company, with your remittance for as many thousand shares as you can use at $5 per thousand.

This is a short-time offer on a hurry-up proposition. Our vice president is up at Rawhide now putting the miners at work. We want to raise the necessary funds for development as quickly as possible. Therefore, we offer the first block of stock at $5 a thousand shares. This subscription must be all cash. We want the money in hand. We mean to work without let-up, and we have made it an ironclad rule not to run in debt. Cash counts now.

Our prospectuses are out. Send for one.

Make reservation of stock. If you do no more. But, remember, this present offer of stock at Half a Cent a Share is now up n, and will be closed as soon as enough cash subscriptions are in hand. Don't wait, or you will get left.

The gold mining property owned outright by the company consists of 7 claims, 6 in the Rawhide district of Nevada, and 4 in the Dulzura district of Southern California.

The Rawhide district to-day is more famous than Goldfield, Tonapah, Bullfrog, or Searchlight were at the same stage of exploration and development. The Dulzura discovery is one of the most sensational in the history of California.

Ten samples of ore which were among the first assayed, run as high as $7,461.37 to the ton, and all ten averaged over $1,500 a ton.

In both camps we located early, and our locations are choice. Our own officers will superintend the mining.

HOUSEHOLD NOTES.

When a finger has been pinched, if it is at once immersed in boiling water the inflammation will be quickly allayed.

When a child is restless from teething it can often be quieted by giving it a warm bath. The water should be as hot as can be endured without burning. Do not allow the child to stay in the bath long or weakness will follow.

Tears have their use, apart from the crying aspect, inasmuch as they refresh and wash the eyes of animals and birds that live exposed to the dust. The eye requires to be kept clear and clean, and tears perform this duty. A striking example of this is shown when the eye is hurt. It at once commences to water, and often this natural method of cleansing relieves the pain and removes the cause of the discomfort.

The Toilet Table.

It is mortifying to pass from a dim bedroom to a well lighted theater or a friend's house and to discover small wisps of straying hair and errors about one's attire which entirely escaped attention in the semidarkness at home.

A clever woman has her bedroom most cunningly lighted so that by means of another mirror opposite that on her dressing table she can see herself in every position.

This is one reason why she is rarely seen with "yawnings" between bodice and skirt, glimpses at petticoats through plackets and the back of collar badly adjusted.

Summer Candle Shades.

Nothing is daintier for the dining table, especially in the summer, if artificial light be needed, than the candle. It is a simple matter to make pretty shades at a small cost.

Buy the wire frames and make close fitting covers of linen colored pongee, stencilling on the four sides conventional designs.

Another pretty affair is a shade of white linen, also fitted to the wire frame and finished at the bottom with a frill of narrow valenciennes lace. To make the linen shades more elaborate a little hand embroidery may be added.

Shades made along these general lines have the added value of being easily laundered.

New Grand Trunk Equipment

The Grand Trunk Railway System are now putting into service 15 new coaches of 25 that have been ordered for management to trains on international runs, viz., between Chicago and New York via Niagara Falls, Chicago and Montreal, Montreal and Portland, and Toronto and Buffalo. The cars are known as first-class day coaches, and are of the standard pattern which the Grand Trunk operate on all their through trains. Length of cars over all 75 feet 6 inches, weight of each car 160,000 pounds. They are mounted on six-wheel trucks, are wide vestibule with steel platforms, and are equipped with high-speed, quick-action air brakes. The inside of the cars are beautifully finished in polished mahogany, and are constructed with the Empire style of roof. Seats are Grand Trunk standard with high backs; the car, seating 60 people is upholstered in green plush, while the smoking room is large and roomy and upholstered in leather. All modern conveniences have been installed for the comfort of passengers. The body of the car is carpeted, and the passageways and smoking room covered with linoleum.

To Canadian Investors

The undersigned has received an allotment of unsold portion of $100,000 of

7 Per Cent. First Mortgage Five-Year Gold Bonds

dated January 11, 1908, and maturing January 11, 1913. These Bonds are offered at par and accrued interest by Metropolitan Trust & Savings Bank, Chicago, Trustees.

SECURITY—The Entire Property and Improvements Owned THE URES CONSOLIDATED MINING COMPANY in the District of Ures, State of Sonora Mexico, Free from Mortgage or Bonded Indebtedness except this present Bond Issue.

An Unusual Opportunity for Investment in Sound Security

The Ures Consolidated Mining Company offers $100,000.00 of First Mortgage Gold Bonds. This issue of bonds is the only mortgage or bonded indebtedness ever placed on the company's properties.

These bonds are in the denomination of $100.00, and bear interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, July and January, and are redeemable on or before five years from date at the company's option at $110.00 and accrued interest.

With each bond issued there will be given $100.00 par value of the capital stock of the company as a bonus, and in addition thereto there will be placed in escrow with the Trustee additional stock which will be available to the bondholders at their option any time within a period of three years, the bondholder being entitled to surrender his bond any time within said period and receive in lieu thereof stock for every dollar of indebtedness to him on account of said bonds.

The Security Back of these Bonds

The company owns twelve claims situated in the district of Ures, State of Sonora, Mexico, free from mortgage or bonded indebtedness, except the present bond issue.

On one of these properties (The Ramona Mine) 5,000 feet of underground development work has been done, consisting of an inclined shaft to the depth of 400 feet with drifts in three levels to the North and South of the shaft.

An average value of ore worth $11.47 per ton is exposed throughout the mine, from the collar of the shaft to the extreme parts in the drifts, all of which is above water level.

The company has made surface improvements and mine improvements to the extent of $60,000.00 in the way of machinery, skids, trams, steam hoists, mill and nearly everything necessary to make the mining camp complete.

In addition to the absolute ownership of these twelve valuable claims, the company has a lease on the San Jose Mine, adjoining its property, in which the company has been operating in high grade ore.

During the past sixty days the company has extracted and delivered to ore buyers and the bank at Hermosillo, $5,000.00 worth of ore and bullion, the ore having been reduced to bullion through the company's mill, with the exception of 1,400 pounds, which was sold to an ore buyer for $600.00.

The Money Derived from the Sale of These Bonds

This issue of bonds is made for the purpose of securing money at once in order to extend the development work more quickly than the company's present means will permit.

With the high grade ore in sight to the distance of 30 feet to the South of the shaft, the management is assured that within six months from date of making the improvements now necessary the company's properties will be on a self-sustaining and dividend-paying basis.

The Stock which is Given with these Bonds will be as valuable as the Bonds when the Company has the ready capital to push operations

Men who invest in these bonds will have no cause or reason to regret their action, for the bonds afford an investment in a security which is absolutely safe—much better than ordinary city or country real estate, which is considered perfectly safe if the property put up to secure a mortgage is double the face of the loan. The security given on these bonds is better than 7 to 1, for the Ures Consolidated Mining Company has refused an offer of $700,000.00 for the property upon which this $100,000.00 worth of bonds is issued.

These bonds are an investment with all speculative risk eliminated—an investment with absolute security.

Make your reservation at once. This is small and promises to be quickly sold.

Banco de Sonora,
Hermosillo, Mex.,
Feb. 11th, 1908.

To whom it may concern:—

We hereby beg to state that The Ures Consolidated Mining Company has during the past five years made several deliveries of bullion to this bank, and it is the opinion of leading men here that they have the making of a fair mine, and further, that the properties owned and controlled by them bid promise of becoming paying properties.

From our knowledge of the men connected, we believe they are doing all in their power to bring about the results above mentioned.

Respectfully,
BANCO DE SONORA,

Thousands of Domestics Needed for Manitoba

Toronto, July 3.—Over 4,000 more harvest hands will be required in Manitoba this year than were employed last season, according to Mr. James Hartney, the Manitoba immigration agent, who has received his final estimates from the Government.

In all over 24,000 hands will be called for, the majority from the East.

The acute demand, however, is for female help as domestics.

"There is an insistent call from all parts of the Province," said Mr Hartney, "both rural and urban, for domestics. Wages ranging from $18 to $20 a month with board and washing are offered for domestics. Several thousand are wanted throughout Manitoba."

Mr. Hartney says that the railway arrangements for the transportation of the harvest hands are not yet completed as to dates. The condition of the crops is being closely watched with a view to landing the harvesters just when they are needed as many of them cannot afford to await the time of employment after their arrival.

"There is," he told a reporter, "a demand now for experienced farm hands, but for those without experience there is no call till harvesting operations commence."

Loved all Three So He Died for Each of Them

Chicago, July 3.—A despatch to the Record-Herald from Hazelburn, Miss., says:

Unable to decide which of three women he really wanted to marry, Eli Mood, 17 years old, a boarder at the farm house of Eli Graves, eight miles from Hazelhurst, yesterday decided that the best way out of the difficulty was to commit suicide, in such a way that each of the women would know that he had killed himself for her.

For Miss Carrie Nelson, 18 years old, he swallowed 60 grains of morphine; for Miss Eva Spillman, aged 25, he drank four ounces of laudanum; and for Miss Henrietta McDonald, aged 16, he put the muzzle of a shotgun in his mouth and pulled the trigger with his toe.

Beside his body was found on a table a paper wrapper that contained the morphine. On it was scrawled, "For Carrie." The empty laudanum bottle stood on a slip of paper on which was written, "For Eva." An empty envelope on which a picture of a shot gun had been drawn was inscribed, "Henrietta."

Except that he had been acting queerly, and that he had become despondent, Graves said he saw nothing in Hood's behavior that indicated that he contemplated self-destruction.

Men Applied with Recommendations from the King

Chief Howard had a hard time to select the new brigade. Some men had recommendations from King Edward, some had been sailors in the British navy and would have made excellent ladder climbers, but he preferred those who knew where the location of a fire was when the alarm was sent in.

Lindsay, July 3.—George Stevens, manager of the bowling alley here has sent a challenge to the management of the "pool" tournament at Port Hope, to have the winners of the contests meet. Stacey and Hoagland, will, of course, be the men brought together. No word has yet been received from Port Hope regarding the defi.

A Fire Horror in a Cleveland Store

Cleveland, O., July 3.—An explosion of fireworks in the five-and-ten-cent store of Kresge and Company this morning was immediately followed by flames bursting from the windows of the building.

Ten or twelve girls employed in the place jumped from upper windows. At least four were seriously injured. The others jumped into life nets held by firemen and escaped injury.

A large number of customers were in the store when the explosion occurred. Whether any of them were caught by the flames has not yet been ascertained.

The fire is now under control.

PULLED THROUGH WINDOWS

Henry Miller, an employe of the store, as soon as he discovered the fire ran hastily to the top floor and then went down the fire escape in the rear. At each floor Miller stopped and opened the windows, calling on the girl clerks to come out. He pulled many of them through the windows to the fire escapes.

At least seventy-five, he says, got out.

FINDING THE BODIES

Later—At 12.40 p.m. firemen removed the bodies of six women who had been been smothered in the basement. A seventh woman found in the basement was still alive. She was rushed to a hospital, but it is believed she will die.

POLICE

D. Florence appeared before Police Magistrate Dumble for buying copper from two boys under 18 years of age.

Percy Holland was called. He was 16 years of age. He did not sell any wire to Florence last Monday. He was with Dick Graham who did sell him some. They got their wire near the Cereal dam. It was brass and copper.

P. C. Newhall said that he received a telephone message that some boys had been trying to sell wire at Florence's shop. He went down there with P. C. McGinty. Florence, at first denied that he bought any, but after some questioning, admitted it, producing a small bag. The officer said that he did not think that was the bag. He persisted in saying that it was, but his little son came in and said, "No, dad, here is the bag." Florence had not entered the purchase in his book.

His Worship thought that Graham could be taken for 18 years, and gave Florence the benefit of the doubt, dismissing the case.

Mr. and Mrs. Price of Patterson street, were yesterday morning charged with raising a disturbance, Dominion Day. C. N. Gordon appeared for accused and pleaded not guilty.

Mr Angus McPherson, sr., was the first witness called. He said that he lived on Patterson street near Rutherford avenue. There was considerable disturbance going on in Price's home. They could be heard all around.

Mrs. Howell went into the witness box. She said that she lived next door to Mrs Price. She heard the screaming and Mrs. Price was making charges against witness' character.

Mr. Price denied that there was any row. He said that he had been out looking for a house all morning and when he returned at noon there was trouble going on. P. C. Newhall was sent for and everybody talking at once tried to explain matters.

Other witnesses gave evidence including Mrs. Price and Mr. Howell, but after hearing it all, his worship dismissed the case.

ONTARIO GOVERNMENT MAY WIDEN ST. TO NORMAL SCHOOL

Deputation Waited on Dr. Reaume Yesterday Morning and as a Result He will Visit This City in the Near Future

A deputation from this city headed by Messrs. T. E. Bradburn, our local representative, Jas. Thompson, M.P.P., East Peterborough, and Mayor Rush waited on Minister of Public Works yesterday. The Toronto Star of last evening refers to the deputation as follows:

"Peterborough has a new Normal School. Peterborough wants the Government to widen the street to it. Peterborough wants the Government to build a sidewalk on the highway. Peterborough wants the tenders for supplies. There are some of these things which Peterborough will not get.

"A deputation tried to impress on Dr. Reaume this morning the desirability of buying a long strip of land on Benson avenue, to widen the street ten feet. Dr. Reaume said he would go to Peterborough, and let them show him. He will also view the landscape o'er with reference to the walk.

"They asked him about the fixtures at the new school. He said they would be bought by tender.

"They asked him about the coal. He said that would be a matter for tender too.

They hinted that Peterborough could well supply the requirements, and that there were other ways besides tender. Dr Reaume intimated with all courtesy that these other ways afforded a splendid opportunity for the Government to get soaked.

The deputation was introduced by Messrs. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., and James Thompson, M.P.P. Mayor Rush and other Peterborough representatives added their plea.

"The street widening they may get, as the earth could be used to terrace the school grounds. The sidewalk they will probably have to build themselves."

Another Big Industry for Peterboro--Will Manufacture Automatic Grease Cup

At a meeting of the promoters of the Peterborough Lubricating Company, held Monday evening in the office of the R. A. Elliott & Co., real estate agents, the company was formed with an authorized capital of $100,000.

The following gentlemen were appointed directors:—Wm. Hextone, president; J. J. Lewis, vice-president; W. H. Dobbin, A. A. Hollingshead, J. H. Lamontagne, R. A. Elliott, W. H. Boreime, managing director; R. A. Elliott, secretary-treasurer. The company's bankers will be the Bank of Ottawa.

This company has been incorporated to manufacture the "Automatic Grease Cup," invented by Mr. J. T. Lewis, vice-president. The company's product is in great demand, having enough orders on hand to keep them busy for five months, and have orders to the amount of 4000 cups in the city of Peterborough. Knowing that the manufacturers of Peterborough have not been long in grasping the idea of a money and labor saving device. The company have received orders from such firms as the Canadian Fairbanks Scale Co., the Canada Foundry, and the Canadian General Electric Company.

Peterborough as a manufacturing city, has made a name for itself all over the continent. The Lubricator Company was recommended to situate in the city by the Electric Co., Schenectady, N.Y., because of its being one of the best manufacturing cities in the Dominion.

Mr. Boreime, managing director of the company, has been in the city for the past seven weeks, and also well taken up with it that he intends moving his parents here and taking up residence. Mr. Boreime came here from Youngstown, Ohio. He has been one of the busiest men in the Province since his arrival here looking after the interests of the firm, and has met with every success and has made a host of friends.

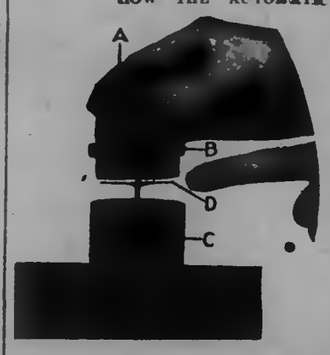
The premises of the Peterborough Furniture Co., on Hunter street East, expect to be secured by Mr. Elliott has so increased his business that the present premises are too small, so they intend to build a new factory a little west of the present site, and employ 40 hands, instead of 15 as at present employed. The new building will be 40x10, and two stories in height.

The new Lubricating Co. will secure all the present parts of cup from the American Co., until such a time as a plant can be installed in the local department, which are made special. Mr. Lewis, the inventor of the cup, will be in the city in a few days to give the new company all assistance the directors require.

The office of the managing director, Mr. Boreime, will be for the present in the building occupied by the R. A. Elliott Real Estate agents, Water street.

With the directors that have been appointed nothing else but success is assured.

HOW THE AUTOMATIC GREASE CUP WORKS.



Screw the cup into place before filling, making sure that it is tightly screwed down, particularly on crank pins or where there is unusual shaking.

Unscrew and remove "A," fill "C" even full with grease. There should be no grease at all in part "A."

Hold cup "A" as per Fig 1, (with locknut "B" and disc "D" in position shown), screw it into "C" to the position illustrated in Fig. 2; or not to exceed one quarter of its length.

IMPORTANT.—The disc "D" must hang below the edge of "A" as shown before the latter is screwed into the cup full of grease. This disc "D" is so connected that it moves freely without friction, turns with "A," and keeps the grease level in the cup without exerting any pressure thereon other than its own weight which is comparatively insignificant.

Figure 2 shows cup filled with grease, upper part screwed into place as directed in Fig. 1; and constitutes the first "set." This will suffice for a run of from one week to a month, depending upon the nature of the place and the condition of the journal. Thereafter one turn of "A" every day or two, or three or four turns once a week will be sufficient, and and in either case the results will be the same.

Fill the cup when most convenient and at once set part "A" as directed. When the machinery starts (whether right after filling or several days thereafter) the cup will at once commence feeding without further attention. The reason is that whether the grease be under the air compression one hour or one week, it is not affected or changed a particle, and responds to the call of journal as needed. This cannot be said for any spring cup ever made.

First.—It draws the grease by an easy incline to the center, a point exactly appreciated by cup users.

Second.—After the part "A" has been screwed down its full length (See Fig. 3) the disc "D" rests against this funnel. The grease then to be fed out by pressure is that around the funnel (reaching the central outlet through small holes near bottom of funnel), while within the funnel is a surplus of grease that cannot be fed out by pressure, but must be drawn out either by gravity or heat, or a combination of both, the object being that if from any cause the cup cannot be refilled, the surplus grease in the funnel will be amply sufficient to properly lubricate the journal until refilling is done.

The Peterborough Baseball Club have two fast games for Wednesday and Tuesday, with Whitby and Port Hope. The Whitby game will take place Tuesday and the Port Hope one on Wednesday.

That our American forests abound in plants which possess the most valuable medicinal virtues is abundantly attested by scores of the most eminent medical writers and teachers. Even the untutored Indians had discovered the usefulness of many native plants before the advent of the white race. This information, imparted freely to the whites, led the latter to continue investigations until to-day we have a rich assortment of most valuable American medicinal roots.

Dr. Pierce believes that our American forests afford in most valuable medicinal roots for the cure of most obstinate and fatal diseases, if we would properly investigate them; and in confirmation of this conviction, he points with pride to the almost marvelous cures effected by his "Golden Medical Discovery," which has proven itself to be the most efficient stomach tonic, liver invigorator, heart tonic and regulator, and blood cleanser known to medical science. Dyspepsia, or indigestion, torpid liver, functional and even valvular and other affections of the heart yield to its curative action. The reason why it cures these and many other affections, is clearly shown in a little book of extracts from the standard medical works which is mailed free to any address by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., to all sending request for the same.

Not less marvelous, in the unparalleled cures it is constantly making of woman's many peculiar affections, weaknesses and disagreeing derangements, is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, as is amply attested by thousands of unsolicited testimonials contributed by grateful patients who have been cured by it of catarrhal gastric drains, painful periods, irregularities, prolapsus and other displacements, excessive weaknesses, ulceration of uterus and kindred affections, even after many other advertised medicines and physicians had failed.

Both the above mentioned medicines are wholly made up from the glycerine extracts of native medicinal roots. The processes employed in their manufacture were original with Dr. Pierce, and they are carried on by skilled chemists and pharmacists with the aid of apparatus and appliances specially designed and built for this purpose. Both medicines are entirely free from alcohol and all other harmful, habit-forming drugs. A full list of their ingredients is printed on each bottle-wrapper.

Rowland Boswell Did Not Sail for Europe

Montreal, July 3.—If, as was stated in a Peterborough despatch, Rowland Boswell, the Elora man, who disappeared on the eve of his wedding to Miss Cummings of West Toronto, has come to Montreal, he is still in the city. If was to have taken either the Empress of Britain or the Virginian for Liverpool with his bride. The passengers on board of the two steamers, which sailed this morning, did not include Boswell, though the Cuthbert party, with whom the young couple were to have sailed, are on the passenger list of the Virginian, second cabin.

Lifeless Form of Mrs. Northcote Found in Arm-Chair

Mrs. Mary Northcott of 199 Charlotte street, was found dead in an arm chair, yesterday morning. She was found dead by her stepson Charles in the early morning. She was 73 years of age and came from England about two years ago.

Besides Mrs. Northcott's stepson Charles, and her grandson, Wm. Ford, who is deputy bandmaster of the Salvation Army Band, she is survived by two sons, Arthur and Walter, living in Peterborough, and a stepson, Robert, on Rubidge street. Walter was spending a few holidays at Camp Bedford and has been called home.

The funeral will be held this afternoon at 4 o'clock from the residence, 199 Charlotte street, to Little Lake Cemetery. The Salvation Army band will be in attendance.

Two Hundred Entombed Rescuers Were Suffocated

Fire Adds to Horror of Russian Mine Disaster---160 Bodies Recovered

Troops Quell Excitement

Yusovo, European Russia, July 3.—Fire broke out today in the Rikovsky mine, which yesterday was the scene of an explosion of gas that resulted in a very heavy loss of life. The work of rescue and fighting the fire is being conducted under the greatest difficulties. Over 200 men remain down in the mine, shut in by falling earth, while 160 bodies already have been brought out. Seventy-five wounded were removed to hospitals, and, of these, ten are now dead, and many more are dying. It is believed that the present number of dead will be increased by 75. The explosion occurred just after the night shift entered the mine. The last twenty men of the shift were still in the cage at the bottom of the shaft, and they were drawn to the surface unharmed. Rescue parties were at once organized, and commenced to go down. Six of the rescuers were suffocated. The others bravely continued at work.

In the meanwhile the five thousand miners who had gathered at the head of the shaft became so excited that troops had to be summoned. They cleared the ground, and to-day allow only members of the families of the victims to come within their cordon. Heartrending scenes are witnessed as the mangled bodies of the dead men are brought to the surface and given over to the bereaved women. Many of the wounded are quite mad from shock. The cause of the explosion is not known.

The annual excursion of the St. Paul's Sunday school, was held yesterday to Burleigh Falls. There were nearly 500 people on the trip, and a good list of sports were run off.

Heat prostrates the nerves. In the summer one needs a tonic to offset the customary "hot weather Nerve and Strength depression. You will feel better within 48 hours after beginning to take such a remedy as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Its prompt action in restoring the weakened nerves is surprising. Of course, you won't get entirely strong in a few but each day you can actually feel the improvement. That tired, lifeless, spiritless, feeling will quickly depart when using the Restorative. Dr. Shoop's Restorative will sharpen a failing appetite; it aids digestion; it will strengthen the weakened Kidneys and Heart by amply rebuilding the worn-out nerves that these organs depend upon. Test it a few days and be convinced. Sold by all dealers.

NEW WOMAN OF INDIA.

As a result of the propaganda work that is now being carried on by the East Indians in behalf of women, womanhood all over Hindostan is becoming awakened. The members of the "weaker" sex are beginning to insist upon being allowed to come into their own. In many parts of Hindostan women are no longer confined in their houses and early marriage has entirely been done away with in educated circles. The people have commenced to realize that if a boy is educated, just one man is educated; but, on the contrary, if a girl is enlightened it means the uplift of the whole family. India has begun to feel that the East Indian women are the country's best asset. They mold and fashion the destiny of the nation and fix its character.

The present generation has produced women of whom India is proud. Into the learned professions Hindostan has sent her daughters. As doctors of religion, law, literature, medicine, philosophy, music and art, there are East Indian women who can hold their own not only with the women but also with the men of other countries of the world. True they are few numerically, but they are like the yeast which, though proportionately very small in amount, leavens the whole mass. The masses are still backward and much remains to be done; but a beginning his been made. Once proper provision is made for her education her evolution will proceed apace. The East Indian woman, no matter how illiterate she may be, is usually able to recite from memory scores of pages of religious and epic poems, not merely like a parrot, but with understanding. The woman of Hindostan is quick in intelligence and perception and the metaphysical and religious training she has had for generations make her an apt and willing student.

DEAF AND DUMB ACTORS.

Extraordinary Scene In London Theatre Where Deaf Mutes Acted.

To demonstrate their remarkable facility of communication, the deaf and dumb people in London arranged an entertainment recently at the St. Saviour's Social Club, Oxford street. A one-act play was staged in which actors, scene sifters and stage manager were all deaf and dumb, as were the audience who witnessed the performance. Sir Arthur H. Fairburn, the deaf and dumb baronet, who was one of the spectators, had interested himself greatly in the project.

The scene was an extraordinary one. Not a sound broke the stillness of the hall during the whole time the play was on, both action and dialogue being accomplished in silence. The actors, with mobile faces, gesticulated quaintly under the limelight, reeling off their parts upon fingers which moved with a lightning-like rapidity.

But the audience was the more interesting study. Looking forward in their seates, they were engrossed in the unfolding of the plot, following every movement of the players on the stage. But they watched the actors' fingers instead of their faces, and turned quickly to each other, now and again, to exchange a smiling gesture of comprehension.

When an important point in the dialogue arose, the actor who happened to be "speaking" faced his audience directly, and moderated the speed at which his fingers moved. Then, pausing a moment, he waited until the emphatic nods of his "auditors" told him that his observation had been understood.

The Pirates of Hong Kong.

The fact that several cases of piracy in British waters and in the immediate vicinity of Hong Kong have been reported is causing quite a stir in the city. It is to our credit that we remember the tremendous fuss we have made about the depredations of pirates in the Chinese waters of the Canton river—we could hardly find language strong enough to denounce the apathy or the weakness or the faulty administration of the Chinese Government in allowing such outrages to take place—and now, behold! the pirates—perhaps the same men who were driven ont of the Canton river by British gunboats—are at their work on our own shores right under our eyes. We must sweep our waters clear of these evil-doers, or make up our minds to become the laughing-stock of South China. Shau-ki-wan, where the acts of piracy are reported, was once a favorite haunt and centre of operations for some of the most desperate of the gangs of sea robbers which used to infest the coast of Southern China.

Queen's "Cushion Taking."

Queen Victoria of Spain recently held at Madrid a curious court ceremony. This is called "cushion taking." The ceremony used to be held by the Queen alone, but King Alfonso has taken lately to putting in an appearance at the gathering. As the women enter the presence chamber each is presented with a highly ornamented cushion. All then stand in a row while, in turn, every Lady advances to the throne on which her Majesty is sitting and, placing the cushion at the Queen's feet, proceeds to sit upon it. The Queen enters into a brief conversation with each debutante in Spanish, after which the lady retires, carrying her cushion with her. This is a trying ceremony for the debutantes because, save the one who is in conversation with the Queen, all the others have to remain standing right through.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

IN SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

How Unfortunate Children Are Cared For There.

In South Australia there is a state children's department, which is managed by a board nominated by the Government, and supervised by a permanent secretary. This department does most useful work. Like all young countries, it recognized long ago that children—especially healthy, intelligent children—were of the greatest value to it, says its Premier. From their birth upward, however, they need to be cared for, whether the offspring of poor or worthless parents, or other unfortunate little ones.

The state children's council, therefore, decided to become the foster parents of all those children who might otherwise have died in infancy. The children are brought up by registered foster mothers.

Other children who, for any reason, are taken in hand by the authorities are, if under the age of 18, dealt with by a children's court. By this means they are not brought into contact with all the necessarily degrading influence of the ordinary police tribunal. In a semi-private room they are questioned by a magistrate or justice of the peace. If adjudged vicious, they are sent to a reformatory; if merely destitute, they become for a few weeks inmates of an industrial school. The authorities have powers to take children from worthless parents and bring them up, of course at the parents' expense. If the father and mother can show later on that they have become respectable and responsible citizens, the children are restore to them.

After a period at an industrial school, destitute or neglected children are boarded at the state's expense with decent families all over the country, sometimes as many as three going to one house. Here they are brought up as if they were the real children of their foster parents. Indeed, in many cases, even the neighbors do not know the truth. They attend church and school, and there is not the workhouse taint to follow them through life. To see that they are fairly treated there are visiting inspectors who from time to time report to the head office.

Crime In Rangoon.

Nowhere, perhaps, in the world are the methods of the criminal more subtle, and the difficulties in the way of bringing him to justice more numerous, than in Burma. People who really could throw light upon the commission of a crime are apt to keep their mouths shut, and the witnesses who come forward are often enemies of the accused man, who are prepared to commit the worst kind of perjury to get him hanged or imprisoned. These witnesses manufacture the most extraordinary stories, and tell them wonderfully well, so well that only an experienced judge can detect the false ring in them. Quite recently one Manackji has been tried for the murder of one Mancheji, who died four years ago. Two men, who said they were eye-witnesses of the crime, came forward. One of them, Maung Tha Maung, related how he heard cries in Manackji's house, and, looking through a hole in a window or a door, watched Manackji during twenty minutes, whilst he beat Mancheji to death. The other witness, Sultan, was Manackji's cook; he said he was inside the house, and, stooping down to look through a hole in a partition, saw the murder committed by two men. He gave most elaborate details of the crime; Manackji and an accomplice took it in turns to beat Mancheji; they murdered him slowly, first one man and then the other taking a spell at the thrashing. The wretched victim's screams, loud at first, grew gradually fainter and more faint, until, at the end of four awful hours, he died. Sultan wanted the court to believe that he stood in a cramped position, with an eye glued to the hole in the partition during the whole of that time. The court was incredulous, however, and the prisoner was acquitted.

Real Lordly Chauffeurs.

Since it has become usual for younger sons of the English aristocracy to engage in the automobile business, it is extremely difficult for the ordinary purchaser to distinguish between the professional chauffeur and the aristocratic driver who occasionally exhibits a car to a client. There are at least thirty young Englishmen of noble families studying the fine points of motoring and taking customers for trial runs with the result that some amusing mistakes are made.

Recently a young cousin of the Duke of Beaufort was instructed by his employer to exhibit a car to one of the London newly rich, the wife of a retired tradesman. The young man made himself agreeable, and when the car returned to the big house in Belgravia, the customer alighted and, pressing a half-crown upon the chauffeur, said:

"There my lad! and take care not to spend it foolishly!"

The young man drove back to his employer, a son of Lord Llangattock, and indignantly recounted his experience.

"Well, you can consider yourself jolly lucky," was the consoling rejoinder. "The last time I saw the lady she gave me only a shilling."

Under British Rule.

Sir Percy Girouard, High Commissioner for Northern Nigeria, who has just arrived in England, stated in a recent interview that what most appealed to him in the Protectorate was the wonderful agricultural development, more particularly of the northern provinces which he visited. Within sixteen miles of Kano there are over one million acres under crop.

Sir Percy made extensive tours of the Protectorate, and was greatly impressed with the peaceful conditions prevailing, happy symptom of which was the fact that the agricultural population now resides in the open country, while formerly it was necessary to live within walled towns as protection against raids.

A general feeling of security has replaced the old conditions of continuous warfare, and the walls of the towns are being permitted to fall into complete disrepair.

HYDROPHOBIA MYTHS.

Owing to the rarity of hydrophobia many myths have grown up around it. Indeed, what passes for common knowledge of it is almost all false. The "mad" dog does not froth at the mouth, he does not hate water, he is no more a product of summer heat than of winter cold, and he has no inclination to bite except in blind resentment of any interference with the motionless hebetude which characterizes one phase of the malady or with the impulse to constant and purposeless flight which marks the alternative manifestation. The dog that acts as rabid dogs are popularly supposed to act can confidently be held to be suffering from some other and more common disease. The symptom that should most quickly excite suspicion is a notable and otherwise unexplained change in the animal's disposition, a calm dog becoming excitable or a lively one dull. In neither case is rabies proved, but in both the dog should be carefully confined and watched, and expert advice should be secured.

There is much misapprehension, too, as to the cause of hydrophobia in dogs. There is but one—infection of the blood through a wound inflicted by a dog suffering from the disease. Whether a dog is fed well or ill, too much or too little, has nothing to do with the matter directly; neither has abuse or lack of a home. The stray starveling is more dangerous than the valued canine friend only because he is more in the way of infection and because the early stages of his illness receive no attention. This, however, is quite reason enough to warrant the destruction of all ownerless and uncontrolled dogs, for it will be noticed that every outbreak of hydrophobia about the beginning of which anything is known starts with the biting of one or more dogs by a dog from nobodys know where—by precisely the dog, that is, with which the dogs of a neighborhood are sure to pick quarrels.

As for muzzles, they are effectual in exterminating rabies when they are worn for a long time by every dog in a definitely limited region, but all except the very best of them are torture to the wearers and their use in a district subject to constant invasion is almost useless

England's Birth Rate Falling.

Not only is the birth rate in London dropping, but the custom of marriage seems to be gradually sinking into disuse, according to figures gleaned from the annual summary of vital statistics for England and Wales, just issued.

The birth rate in England and Wales last year was the lowest on record. It was 917,636, or 26.3 per thousand of the population, 0.8 below the rate in 1906 and 2.1 below the average for the preceding ten years.

A curious feature of the death rate was that, owing to the cool summer, far fewer children under one year old died. At the same time the death rate of persons over 60 was 1.4 above the average for the preceding ten years.

The birth rate in London was even lower than that for the whole country, being only 25.6 per thousand. But in the other seventy-six great cities it was 27, while in rural England it was only 25.6.

London is, indeed, threatened with becoming a city of bachelors and spinsters. Here are some startling figures taken from the report:

In 1871 there were 386 bachelors to every 1,000 males over fifteen years of age. Now there are 421 to every 1,000.

In 1871 there were 380 spinsters to every 1,000 women over fifteen years of age. Now there are 423.

Making the Old Young.

Men are paying more attention to health conditions to-day than ever before and numerous societies exist, of which the study and care of the body are the principal object. In Switzerland there is a native colony, whose devotees have eschewed the comforts of civilization, in the accepted sense, and live in huts and go barefooted and as naked as the law will permit. Kneipp curists, who profess to find increased healthfulness in walking barefooted through wet grass, are thickly scattered over Europe, and vegetarians, beyond count, who associate disease with meat consumption, can be found the most inclement weather, is a fad cultivated by not a few; but it remains for Scotland to advance the first regular Health Congress, whose main purpose is a plunge into the sea every day in the year. This congress exists in the town of Arbroath, in Forfarshire, whose coast line is washed by the cold waters of the North sea. It has a membership of 220 men and boys, ranging in age from 15 to 70 years, and every morning at 6.30 o'clock the year round they are obliged by the laws of their society to bathe in the sea. This practice has been kept up for five years to the great physical advantage of the members, some of whom have built up shattered constitutions under the treatment.

Glasgow's Penny Saving Banks.

There are now 254 penny savings banks in operation in Glasgow and the west of Scotland which acknowledge the Glasgow Savings Bank as the parent institution. The value of these minor banks is very great not only in inculcating the virtue of thrift in childhood but in their actual result. There were 1,230,336 transactions, but at the end of the financial year the depositors had £31,754 to their credit in the Glasgow Savings Bank. The amount deposited during the year was £21,653.

Weighing the Anchor.

Miss Freshly—What are those men working so hard at, papa?

Mr. F—They are weighing the anchor, my dear.

"Goodness, how absurd! If the captain wants to know the weight of his old anchor, why doesn't he have it weighed beforehand and not keep us waiting for the men to weigh it when we are all ready to go?"

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the Northwest Provinces, excepting 8 and 26 reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father or mother.

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line (exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement).

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

N. B.—Unauthorized publication of this advertisement will not be paid for.

The U.S. Consular office, Port Hope, closed to-day and the Consular agent, Mr. H P Dill, is transferred to the Consulate at Orillia. The Peterborough Consular agency, Mr. Frank Bell, agent, is now included in the Toronto district.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential. Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local. Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional.

The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments.

The "Night Cure", as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, eases nerve excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

"ALL DEALERS"

THE HUMAN TONGUE.

It Is Very Inquisitive, With a Strong Will of Its Own.

The curiosity of the tongue does not cause the human being so much trouble as the curiosity of the eye, but the tongue, within its limits, is the most curious of all.

Let the dentist make a change in the mouth, let him remove a tooth or replace with his admirable artifice one that has long been absent, let him change the form of a tooth by rounding off a corner or building up a cavity, and see what the tongue will do. It will search out that place, taking careful and minute account of the change. Then it will linger near the place. If it is called to other duties, it comes back as soon as they are discharged and feels the changed place all over again, as if it had not explored and rummaged there already.

It makes no difference that these repeated investigations presently cause annoyance to its supposed master, the man. The tongue is nothing more than in this matter proves that it is an unruly member and will not be controlled.

It seems to have an original will and consciousness of it own, and nothing will serve it except the fullest satisfaction of its curiosity. It will wear itself out, perhaps, but it will find out all about the strange change.

CANES IN SPAIN.

Every Spaniard has a stick, the well to do own several, and the "gilded youth" often have a small arsenal of them. The term arsenal in this case is used positively and not figuratively as the Porto Ricans, like the Spaniards, have quite a craze for sword canes and dagger canes and they make these with remarkable [illegible].

The blades of the finer specimens come from famous [illegible] in Toledo and other Spanish cities and are forged from the finest steel. Some are damascened and others are inlaid with silver and gold, some have worked upon them the name of the owner and others the name of a patron saint. The assortment of walking sticks in the shops in the larger towns is very varied.

They have fashions in sticks and canes suited to different ages and professions. There are ebony mahogany ebony and rosewood sticks for clergymen and plain [illegible] and forceful bamboos with [illegible] inside for men about town. There are rough oaken sticks for the Spanish Anglomaniacs and sunny side staves for those who ape the sticks of the boulevard. For travelers there are coffee sticks, thorns, tea sticks, leopard wood canes and orange sticks.—London Chronicle.

Funerals in Peru.

According to social usage, women in Peru cannot attend funerals, and they do not appear at weddings unless they are very intimate friends. When a funeral procession passes through the streets the coffin is carried upon the shoulders of the pallbearers, who are followed by an empty hearse drawn by two, four or six horses, according to the means of the mourners and their desire for display. All the male members of the family and friends of the deceased follow on foot, with a line of empty carriages behind them. As long as they are in the presence of the dead it is considered a proper and necessary evidence of respect to walk. After the body has been committed to the grave those who attend the funeral are brought home in carriages.

He Followed the Water.

"Could you do something for a poor old sailor?" asked a wanderer at the rear door of a suburban house one morning recently.

"Poor old sailor!" echoed the housewife, who had opened the door.

"Yes'm. I followed the water for twenty years."

"Well," said the lady as she slammed the door in the face of her unwelcome visitor, "all I've got to say is you certainly don't look as though you had ever caught it."—London Answers.

NEW RULER OF AFGHANISTAN.

An Interesting Man Almost as Versatile as the Kaiser.

A short, stout man, who wears a gray frock coat when visiting, likes afternoon tea, plays a remarkably good game of bridge, does not hesitate to sit down at the piano and sing a song for the entertainment of a party, and after dinner has been known to speed the parting friend with a long and animated conversation on the doorstep—this is one side of the character of Habib Ullah Khan, ruler of the Afghans, Amir of Kabul, seeker after God's health and lamp of the congregation and the faith. He did all these things when visiting India in the early part of last year, says a writer in The London Daily Mail. In some minds he created the impression that he was the Asiatic counterpart of the German Emperor.

He told various people whom he met that he was the best smith in Afghanistan, the best carpenter, the best drill sergeant. Then he claimed to be able to preach a better sermon than any mullah, and as a matter of fact led 700,000 people in prayer at Delhi—surely the largest prayer meeting on record. He speaks seven or eight languages; he plays cricket; he has acquired a liking for the motor car and he seems to think very highly of his own powers as a doctor.

Then, too, he apparently knows how to enjoy himself at a race meeting, and when he makes a bet, he pays on the spot if he loses. When he was in India an attendant stalked solemnly behind him, carrying a vast cashbox full of money, from which disbursements were made, when necessary. He is said to be a good sportsman, but when he plays cricket with his attendants the Amir apparently always wins. It might perhaps be risky for opponents to make a better showing.

The Amir is the son of one who was a slave girl before she became one of the Queens of Afghanistan.

His harem in Kabul is not so large as that maintained by his father. Angus Hamilton says that when the Amir came to the throne three wives were divorced in order to keep the spirit of the Koran law, which forbids the maintenance of more than four wives.

Many slaves of prepossessing charms, we are told, are taken into the harem from time to time and added to the number of his concubines. But the queens appear to exercise a strict censorship in regard to the type of slave. The hapless woman who becomes a favorite and excites the admiration of the Amir "is generally removed."

One queen, it is recorded, "has killed with her own hands three of her slaves and personally chastises her erring handmaidens, purposely disfiguring any whose physical attractiveness might charm the Amir."

The four wives of the Amir "occupy positions which are graduated to a recognised scale. The first wife draws an allowance of one lakh of rupees annually; the second wife receives 60,000 rupees, the third wife 40,000 rupees, the fourth wife 20,000 rupees a year."

One rather gathers that the domestic life of the Amir is not untroubled and that the influence of his wives is not cast on the side of peace and quietness.

An Island of Massacres.

Hayti, the West Indian island, to which public attention has just recently been directed, has been the scene of more massacres than any other place on earth.

They began with the coming of Columbus and the rubble rout that followed him. In a few years its 3,000,000 of gentle, brown-skinned inhabitants had perished utterly, exterminated by fire and sword and by forced labor in the mines.

Next the buccaneers seized the unhappy island and wreaked vengeance on the Spaniards. Presently came the French, and for a brief space there was some semblance of peace. But in 1793 the negroes revolted and murdered practically all the whites.

On account of these atrocities, frightful reprisals took place when France, in due course, reconquered the island. But the negroes bided their time and presently rose again under a ruffian named Dessalines. This time they did the thing thoroughly. Not only were all the Europeans put to death, but all having any admixture of white blood in their veins suffered a like fate. In all it is computed that 5,000,000 men, women and children have met with violent deaths on this island of massacres since the intruding white man first set foot on its palm-fringed strand.

Against the King.

Many people blissfully imagine that lese majesty—that is, insulting royalty—is a crime peculiar to foreign countries and unknown in free and happy Britain. That, however, is where they make a mistake.

It is, for instance, technically a punishable offence to stick a penny stamp on a letter upside down. Doing so is to insult the King through his effigy, and a few centuries ago—supposing penny stamps to have been then invented—might easily have landed the offender in prison on a charge of seeking to bring ridicule on the sovereign or to express contempt for his authority by causing his picture to stand on its head. Also, it is a punishable offence to deface a coin of the realm bearing the royal image and then deliberately put it into circulation again.

To strike the King would, according to the strict letter of the law, render the assailant liable to the death penalty, no matter how trifling the blow was in reality.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Age of the Human Race.

The highest authorities place the total number of years elapsed since, in the light of the best geological evidences, men first appeared upon the earth at 278,000. Of this, 78,000 belongs to the preglacial epoch, 100,000 years to the glacial, 44,000 years to the interval between the glacial epoch and the prolohistoric and neolithic, 10,000 years to the last named epochs, and 6,000 years to the time elapsed since the beginning of the historic period in Egypt.

"What made you kick Jimpson?"

"Oh, well, kicking is a characteristic of asses, but I shouldn't think you'd want to confirm Jimpson's statement so quickly."—London Telegraph.

A RAISE IN MINING STOCK

ALLOTMENT SUBSCRIBED.

The requisite amount of stock has been subscribed and paid in full to enable the Company to proceed to allotment and commence business.

RAISE OF MINING STOCK.

THE GREAT NORTHERN LARDER LAKE MINING CO., Limited, proposes to advance price of their treasury stock to Twenty-five (25c) cents on June 22nd. Last chance to buy at ten cents a share, par value One Dollar, fully paid up and non-assessable.

The foreman, Mr. David Foster, of Cobalt, has started to work on the Company's property with a gang of men to develop veins already discovered also to continue striping in search of new gold veins.

We are erecting boarding houses and dining-rooms for our men.

READ COPY OF CERTIFICATE AND STATUTORY DECLARATION CONFIRMING SAME.

Toronto, March 30th, 1908.

To the Great Northern Larder Lake Mining Company, Limited:—

Gentlemen,—

I beg to confirm my previous report to you that in my judgment the surface showings on the 14 mining claims which the Company has acquired, being Nos. H.S. 221 to H. S. 234, both inclusive indicate the probability of the existence of large bodies of both high grade and low grade free-milling ore, sufficient to pay dividends for an indefinite period.

I have personally examined a number of veins and reefs on said property (consisting of about 640 acres) and had some assays made and from such examinations and assays I make this report.

The statement on pages nine and ten of the Prospectus giving the short history of the Company are correct. I insisted on retaining a large interest in the Company rather than sell for any price that seemed reasonable to the purchasers.

DAVID A. FOSTER,
Haileybury.

10 PER SHARE.

Par Value One Dollar fully paid Up and Nonassessable.

IN THE MATTER OF THE GREAT NORTHERN LARDER LAKE MINING CO., LTD.

Statutory Declaration.

DOMINION OF CANADA
County of York
TO WIT:

I, David Foster, of the town of Haileybury, in the district of Nipissing, miner, do solemnly declare that the statements in the annexed certificate are true. I have personally inspected all of the fourteen claims now transferred to the Great Northern Larder Lake Mining Company, Limited. I have taken samples containing gold values from said property, and from my personal examination, and from assays made, I believe the Company's property when developed, will prove very valuable. I have full confidence in the success of the said Company, and on this account, with the exception of $40 already received, I have agreed to accept stock in said Company, and a note which I believe will not be of much value should the actual development work not prove the said claims to contain gold in paying quantities as it is not payable for one year from this date or until after the Company shall have done the necessary development work on said claims. And I make this solemn declaration conscientiously believing it to be true and knowing that it is of the same force and effect as if made under oath, and by virtue of "The Canada Evidence Act."

DAVID A. FOSTER.

Declared before me at Toronto, in the County of York, this 31st day of March, 1908. J. T. LOFTUS, A. Commissioner in H. C. J.

PROPERTIES TRANSFERED.

Since the prospectus was printed, the sale of the 14 mining claims to the Company has been completed and the transfers to the Company are registered in the Recorder's Office at Larder City. There is no mortgage or other encumbrance against said claims.

RAWHIDE-DULZURA

1 CENT A 2 SHARE

Send us your name as a member in this new company, with your remittance for as many thousand shares as you can take at $5 per thousand.

This is a short-time offer on a hurry-up proposition. Our vice president is up at Rawhide now putting the miners at work. We want to raise the necessary funds for development as quickly as possible. Therefore, we offer the first block of stock at $5 a thousand shares. This subscription must be all cash. We want the money in hand. We mean to work without let-up, and we have made it an ironclad rule not to run in debt. Cash counts now.

Our prospectuses are out. Send for one.

Make reservation of stock. If you do no more. But, remember, this present offer of stock at Half a Cent a Share is now open, and will be closed as soon as enough cash subscriptions are in hand. Don't wait, or you will get left.

The gold mining property owned outright by the company consists of 7 claims, 5 in the Rawhide district of Nevada, and 2 in the Dulzura district of Southern California.

The Rawhide district to-day is more famous than Goldfield, Tonapah, Bullfrog, or Searchlight were at the same stage of exploration and development. The Dulzura discovery is one of the most sensational in the history of California.

Ten samples of ore which were among the first assayed, run as high as $7,403.87 to the ton, and all ten averaged over $1,640 a ton.

In both camps we located early, and our locations are choice. Our own officers will superintend the mining.

Weary, Worn-out, Tired

If You Feel Poorly This Spring this Article is worth Considering

Nothing in life keeps people from advancement like poor health. If the nerves are weak, if the stomach, liver, bowels or kidneys, fail to work properly, health surely suffers. Spring is the hardest time on health—the season when the system calls for active cleansing medicine.

The best plan is to entrust your condition to a physician of reputation like Dr. Hamilton, who has had years of experience in compounding tonics. For the life and tired feeling of spring Dr. Hamilton says nothing is better than Mandrake and Butternut Pills, and this is well proved in the case of James Burton, of Lawistown. "I had grip and it left me very weak. The disease settled in my back and side, which ached day and night. I had a nagging cough. My appetite was all gone. My nerves unstrung. I could not sleep well. I struggled against growing pale, thin and weak—but it was not good. Spring brought depression, overpowering weakness and bad headaches. But my life as regbad headaches. But my life was spared, simply because I learned of the wonderful merit in Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. The result was marvelous. I gained rapidly, became strong, ruddy, vigorous, perfectly well. I urge every man and woman to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly.

You'll brighten up, have cleaner blood stronger nerves, better spirits after using Dr. Hamilton's Pills. 25c at all dealers. Guaranteed safe, sure, helpful for old and young.

CHRONIC CATARRH RELIEVED BY PE-RU-NA.

MRS. F. CARR.

MRS. F. CARR, Vineland, Ont., Can., writes:

"For several years I was afflicted with catarrh, which made life a burden. The coughing and hacking which accompanied the disease was terrible.

"The complaint finally extended to the stomach and I was in a wretched condition.

"I tried different remedies and the best professional treatment all in vain.

"Finally, as a last resort, I tried Peruna upon the recommendation of my sister in Hamilton.

"I could see steady improvement and after using four bottles of that precious medicine I was feeling well again, my old trouble being completely a thing of the past.

"To-day I would not take one thousand dollars for what this grand medicine has done for me."

Peruna is a universally recognized catarrh remedy. It will relieve catarrh in its most obstinate form.

The undersigned has received an allotment of unsold portion of $150,000 of

7 Per Cent. First Mortgage Five-Year Gold Bonds

dated January 11, 1908, and maturing January 11, 1913. These Bonds are offered at par and accrued interest by Metropolitan Trust & Savings Bank, Chicago, trustees.

SECURITY—The Entire Property and Improvements Owned THE URES CONSOLIDATED MINING COMPANY in the District of Ures, State of Sonora Mexico. Free from Mortgage or Bonded Indebtedness except this present Bond issue.

An Unusual Opportunity for Investment in Sound Security

The Ures Consolidated Mining Company offers $100,000.00 of First Mortgage Gold Bonds. This issue of bonds is the only mortgage or bonded indebtedness ever placed on the company's properties.

These bonds are in the denomination of $100.00, and bear interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, July and January, and are redeemable on or before five years from date at the company's option at $110.00 and accrued interest.

With each bond issued there will be given $100.00 par value of the capital stock of the company as a bonus, and in addition thereto there will be placed in escrow with the Trustee additional stock which will be available to the bondholders at their option any time within a period of three years, the bondholder being entitled to surrender his bond any time within said period and receive in lieu thereof stock for every dollar of indebtedness to him on account of said bonds.

The Security Back of these Bonds

The company owns twelve claims situated in the district of Ures, State of Sonora, Mexico, free from mortgage or bonded indebtedness, except the present bond issue.

On one of these properties (The Hamona Mine) 5,000 feet of underground development work has been done, consisting of an inclined shaft to the depth of 600 feet with drifts in three levels to the North and South of the shaft.

An average value of ore worth $11.47 per ton is exposed throughout the mine, from the collar of the shaft to the extreme parts in the drifts, all of which is above water level.

The company has made surface improvements and mine improvements to the extent of $60,000.00 in the way of machinery, skids, frame, steam hoists, mill and nearly everything necessary to make the mining camp complete.

In addition to the absolute ownership of these twelve valuable claims, the company has a lease on the San Jose Mine, adjoining its property, in which the company has been operating in high grade ore.

During the past sixty days the company has extracted and delivered to ore buyers and the bank at Hermosillo, $2,000.00 worth of ore and bullion, the ore having been reduced to bullion through the company's mill, with the exception of 1,456 pounds, which was sold to an ore buyer for $562.50.

This issue of bonds is made for the purpose of securing money at once in order to extend the development work more quickly than the company's present means will permit.

With the high grade ore in sight to the distance of 80 feet to the South of the shaft, the management is assured that within six months from date of making the improvements now necessary the company's properties will be on a self-sustaining and dividend-paying basis.

The Stock which is Given with these bonds will be as valuable as the bonds when the Company has the ready capital to push operations

Men who invest in these bonds will have no cause or reason to regret their action, for the bonds afford an investment in a security which is absolutely safe—much better than ordinary city or country real estate, which is considered perfectly safe if the property put up to secure a mortgage is double the face of the loan. The security given on these bonds is better than 7 to 1, for the Ures Consolidated Mining Company has refused an offer of $750,000.00 for the property upon which this $100,000.00 worth of bonds is issued.

These bonds are an investment with all speculative risk eliminated—an investment with absolute security.

Make your reservation at once. This is small and promises to be quickly sold.

Feb. 11th, 1908.

To whom it may concern:—

We hereby beg to state that The Ures Consolidated Mining Company has during the past five years made several deliveries of bullion to this bank, and it is the opinion of mining men here that they have the making of a fair mine, and further, that the properties owned and controlled by them bid promise of becoming paying properties.

From our knowledge of the men connected, we believe they are doing all in their power to bring about the results above mentioned.

Respectfully,
BANCO DE SONORA,

Women Cured At HOme

Women's disorders always yield, from the very beginning of the treatment to the mild but effective action of Orange Lily.

Within two or three days after commencing its use the improvement becomes noticeable, and this improvement continues until the patient is completely cured. Orange Lily is an applied or local treatment, and acts directly on womanly organs, removing the congestion, toning and strengthening the nerves, and restoring perfect circulation in the diseased parts.

In order to convince all suffering women of the value of this remedy I will send a 25-cent box enough for ten days' treatment, absolutely FREE to each lady sending me her address.

Twenty-Six Smallpox Cases Near Fenelon Falls

Fenelon Falls, July 4.—Twenty six persons are down with smallpox at Union Creek, Peterborough County.

The disease is of a mild type and was brought in, it is thought, by the school teacher who taught for some time after her illness appeared before she realized the nature of the disease.

The outbreak is well under control. Every precaution is being taken to prevent a spread of the disease.

Negroes in the United States are Rapidly on the Increase

Will Either Drag Down Republic's Civilization or Help to Upbuild It

10,000,000 Negroes in U.S.

Cleveland, July 4.—At the only general session of the National Education Association convention held here this week, Booker T. Washington talked on negro education and the nation. He made a strong plea for the support of institutions in which members of his race may be educated, saying, in part;

"The negro race of America now numbers not far from 10,000,000. Within a few years, perhaps in this generation, the race will have increased to 15,000,000. These millions of my race can be made useless or useful. They can be made to help or to hinder. They can be made to become criminals or law-abiding citizens. They can be made potent factors in the intelligence of our country, or they can become a load of ignorance, dragging down our civilization. Which shall it be?

"Some people are fond of asserting that education as a force to uplift the negro is a failure. Education has never been tried among the rank and file of our people on a scale large enough to warrant any such judgment. What is the one great need of the race of today? In my opinion, it is strong, unselfish, intelligent negro leaders and workers, and by this I mean teachers such as we are trying to send out from Hampton, from Fisk, from Tuskegee and Tuskegee, and a score of other educational centres in the south."

A movement has been started among the educators to have the United States government take a more active part in educational matters. They desire that the bureau of education be extended so as to take in much of the work that now is done by the association. Congress will be appealed to to enlarge the appropriations for the bureau of education that this may be done. All the association asks is that it be placed upon a basis similar to the agriculture department.

Beat prostrates the nerves. In the summer one needs a tonic to offset the customary hot weather Nerve and Strength depression. You will feel better within 48 hours after beginning to take such a remedy as Dr. Sheop's Restorative. Its prompt action in restoring the weakened nerves is surprising. Of course, you won't get entirely strong in a few but each day you can actually feel the improvement. That tired, lifeless, spiritless, feeling will quickly depart when using the Restorative. Dr. Sheop's Restorative will sharpen a fading appetite; it aids digestion; it will strengthen the weakened Kidneys and Heart by amply rebuilding the worn-out nerves that those organs depend upon. Test it a few days and its cost moved. Sold by all dealers.

Blake Wants to Walk Jimmy Reynolds

J. E. Blake, the colored pedestrian, who was second to Hoagland in the big walk here in April, in after Jimmy Reynold's scalp, and writes as follows;

Dear Sir,—I wish you would state for me through your paper that I will walk any pedestrian in the world from 100 to 300 miles for a side bet of from $200 to $1,000, the race to take place next autumn. I would like to take on Jimmy Reynolds first because he thinks he has a chance. I hope he will fall on this soft spot.

Yours, etc.

J. E. BLAKE.

A New Jersey paper has the following to say of Blake;

J. E. Blake, champion walker, was in town yesterday. He is at training nearby and frequently will visit this city during the summer. Rumson road is his favorite place for exercise, and daily he can be seen there speeding up for short stretches in order to improve his stride. Last winter, after Blake had been in training on the famous drive, he entered a number of contests throughout the country and in Canada and took a number of honors. This year he will go to England and later will return and appear in Canada in competition with the best American pedestrians.

Punish Officers for Private's Act

Seoul, July 3.—A Japanese soldier ran amuck yesterday through the American Methodist premises at Ping Yang, and assaulted a Korean caretaker with a bayonet, chasing him through the missionary residence section.

The American Consul, when informed of the affair, called it to the attention of the Japanese Embassy, and demanded punishment of the soldier. By order of Prince Ito, Resident General, the soldier was arrested and immediately sentenced to two months' hard labor. The colonel, major, captains and lieutenants of the regiment to which the soldier belonged will all be disciplined by a confinement of from three to seven days.

The prompt action of Prince Ito is significant of the determination of Japan's statesmen that the soldiers maintain proper attitude toward foreigners.

The charge against the soldier was the violation of an American home, and the disciplining of the officers was due to the fact that soldiers of the same regiment recently participated in the damaging of an American Presbyterian mission school building in Wiju.

In that case all damage was repaired by the Resident General.

LITTLE FREDDIE McWILLIAMS DROWNED IN THE OTONABEE

Went Down to the River to Bathe on Saturday Evening and was Drowned---Body Recovered Yesterday Morning

Saturday evening the Otonabee river claimed its second victim this season when Fred Webb, the adopted son of James McWilliams, was drowned while in bathing. The little fellow was only seven years of age, and has lived with Mr. McWilliams for the past four years.

He left his home after having his tea at 5 o'clock, saying that he was going to play with the boys. His guardian told him not to go as he was to retire early as a trip to the country was anticipated for Sunday. After being away till nearly eight o'clock, his foster parents became anxious and began to make inquiries but no information could be got as to his whereabouts, as his playmates had not seen him.

Mr. McWilliams then left for Jackson Park, and then search'd for him, thinking he might have wandered up there and fell asleep while watching the pictures, but he could not be seen. He then went to Ashburnham, but still no trace. Mr. McWilliams then went to the river and searched along the shore, thinking that perhaps he had gone in for a swim and got beyond his depth. After a diligent search his clothing was found behind a tree at the head of the river near the corner of Harvey and Antrim streets.

A boat was then secured and the river dragged all night until about five o'clock Sunday morning, when the body was found about four feet from his clothing in about five feet of water. The poor little fellow had got beyond his depth and went down.

Mr. McWilliam warned the little lad never to go near the river and only knew him to go there but once before when he warned him of the danger.

Freddie was adopted by Mr. McWilliams from Mrs. Webb who lived then on Elora but who now lives at 970 Water street. He was a clever little fellow and started to school at Christmas, being in Miss Morrow's room at Queen Alexandra school. He leaves to mourn his loss his mother and a brother Willie aged 13, besides his foster parents who are much grieved over their sad loss.

After the body was found about five o'clock, Coroner Grey was summoned and decided that an inquest should be held. A jury was summoned and met at the residence of Mr McWilliams at two o'clock when the warrant for an inquest was withdrawn.

It is understood that an automobile line will be run between Cobourg and Gore's Landing. The business between these two places has increased greatly in the last few years, and a line is sorely needed. If one is established it will undoubtedly meet with success.

Orangemen at at Springville

Yesterday morning the Orangemen in the vicinity of Springville attended the service by Rev. Dr Marsh, at the Presbyterian church. There was a large congregation which completely filled the church and many were turned away. Rev. Dr. Marsh took his text from Exodus 14.30, using the following words; "Thus the Lord delivered Israel out of the hands of the Egyptians." Mr. Staples of Toronto University sang two solos with much effect. The church was decorated with flowers by the Ladies' Aid Society, and looked very pretty. Orangemen of the vicinity of Bethany, will attend the church there on the 12th, next Sunday, Rev. Dr. Marsh officiating.

Womanly Troubles

Should Not Be Allowed to Undermine Health.

It is impossible to go into details on this subject but the experience of many a poor woman who is crippled for life, just because she didn't use a good remedy in time, should be a warning to others.

When the first stages of womanhood appear in a young girl, a great deal depends in getting her over the critical stage, so that in years to come she will not develop green sickness or consumption.

When she complains of flushed face, headache bearing down feelings, give her a course of Ferrozone which will carry her past the crisis.

In the adult woman if any irregularities occur, Ferrozone will be found a remedy of remarkable potency and power.

Ferrozone is the ideal regulator and causes all organs of the body to perform their work properly.

It purifies the blood, tones up the nerves and vital energies. The stomach is strengthened and digestive and assimilative processes are improved by the good work of Ferrozone. It regulates the bowels, cures constipation and piles, and replaces disease and decay by health and strength.

There is nothing better for the complexion than Ferrozone. It removes the dark circles from under the eyes, removes and cures all manner of skin eruptions, gives brightness and brilliancy to the eyes, a rosy tint to the cheeks, whitens the teeth and develops a well rounded, plump and handsome form.

Ferrozone is the ladies' favorite and should find a place in every household. It is prepared in the form of a chocolate coated tablet, convenient and pleasant to take. Price per box, 50c or three boxes for $1.25. Sold by all druggists.

Unique Series of New Postage Stamps Issued

Ottawa, July 4.—The special postage stamps to be issued in commemoration of the Tercentenary celebration at Quebec are now ready, and will be placed on sale next week. The stamps are of most artistic design, and are larger than the ordinary size, to allow of adequate representation of historic scenes, portraits, etc.

Half-cent, grey, picture of the Prince and Princess of Wales.

CARTIER'S ARRIVAL.

One stamp shows Cartier's arrival before Quebec. On the calm waters of the mighty St. Lawrence stand in bold relief three ships of the discoverer of Canada, flying the fleur-de-lys.

As a sequel to the above is a very picturesque tableau. In Champlain's narrative of his third voyage to Canada we found the following:

"With our canoes laden with provision, our arms, and some merchandise to be given as presents to the Indians, I started on Monday, May 27, from the Isle of Sainte Helaine, accompanied by four Frenchmen and one Indian. A salute was given in my honor from some small pieces of artillery."

The artist, under the inspiration of these few lines, has depicted Champlain's departure for the west. There stand two canoes in one Champlain's companions have already taken their places, paddle in hand, whilst the great explorer is still on shore, bidding good-bye to a few friends. This picture is full of life. The legend underneath reads as follows; "Partement de Champlain pour L'ouest." The word "partement," now obsolete, is the one used by Champlain for the modern one "depart."

The same note of old France is used in connection with a view of the first house in Quebec, indeed, in Canada. Champlain's habitation, which is called in his narrative "Habitation de Quebec." This stamp is a clear reproduction of a cut from Champlain's work.

Quebec, as it was in 1707, is the next view; copied from Racqueville de la Potherie's Histoire de la Nouvelle France. Next is a quaint picture of the old city, showing steeples here and there, the fort on the river front, and in faint lines the Laurentide Mountains in the background.

WORKING IN FRENCH.

All stamps bear with the words "Canada postage" the line, "Ill contenmaire de Quebec."

The Postmaster-General has given special attention to the selection of portraits and historical scenes to be represented. His choice has been an excellent one.

The carrying out of the engraving of the plan has been entrusted to Mr. Machado, of the American Bank Note Co., who, with keen artistic sense, has performed his part of the work with great success.

Hoagland Won the Port Hope Walk--Harrison 2nd

The finish of the great walking match at Port Hope, took place at 11 o'clock Saturday night, with Hoagland the champion heel and toe walker of the world, ahead. He walked a great race all the way through equal to that here last April, next to him came Peterborough's leading walker, Jimmy Harrison. Harrison has greatly improved since last April and is now as good a walker as in the past. Tom Slater the other American crack came third. He was not fresh a couple of times for running but still he did good. Joe Guerin, another Peterborough boy, was fourth. This is his second race and looks good for a comer.

The standing was;

Hoagland.
Harrison.
Slater.
Guerin.
Woodcock.

Employee of Cordage Works Had a Narrow Escape from Death

Young Lady Had Her Clothing Caught in a Spinning Machine

Machinery was Stopped

What might have proved to be a fatal accident, occurred Saturday morning at the Cordage Works, when a young lady, an employe of that concern, in some manner had her clothing caught in a spinning machine. Had it not been for the prompt action of some of the employes, in stopping the machinery, she would have been mangled to death. Her clothing was completely torn off her, and she is suffering somewhat from the shock, otherwise she was not seriously injured.

Many Orangemen from Lakeside Towns

The local committee of Orangemen reported Saturday that Cobourg and Brighton will be represented here on the 13th by several thousand people. A special train will be run. The tickets for the excursion are already being sold. From reports around there will be one of the largest crowds in the history of the city here. The local orangemen have everything ready and things are expected to run smoothly.

Favorable Outlook for Crops in Ontario

Toronto, July 4.—According to the crop statistics compiled by Superintendent Osborne of the C.P.R., prospects in Ontario are not behind the optimistic reports sent in from the West.

From 80 per cent. of the districts of Ontario, the indications are that the yield of grain, roots, and fruit, will at least equal, and in many cases surpass, that of last year.

Milton, Woodstock, London, Ingersoll, St. Thomas, Glencoe, reports show that the grain and roof crops are good.

In the Toronto region, increase in the grain yield is predicted by the reports from Streetsville and Weston.

From the East, Lindsay and Peterborough, keep up the standard of last year in grain and roots.

Wroxeter, Lorne Road, Burkton Jct., show 30 per cent. increase; North Thamesville has 20 per cent. increase.

Myrtle is the only place showing a decrease—which is estimated at about 33 per cent., compared with last year.

Burwash, Barnesdale, Parry Sound, and Point au Baril report a total failure of crops.

The acreage on the whole is about the same as last year, with slight increase at Lorne Road, Drumbo, and other points west.

Charlie Stevens Gets 2nd Place in the Lindsay Walk

The walk in Lindsay for this past few days under the management of Mr. George Stevens, was a great success. Stacey, the winner, walked a great race, and will make Hoagland go for the championship of the world. Charlie Stevens, son of Mr Geo. Stevens, is certainly a wonder. he was game till the last and walks a great race. He is living up to his reputation as the "Boy Wonder." The Spencley brothers of Peterborough, are new to the game, but are likely to make some of the fast ones go a few now they are started.

Big Factory was Blown to Pieces

Bridgeport, Conn., July 3.—A building on Steeplechase Island, used as a factory for making fireworks, was blown to pieces tonight by the explosion of the materials used in their manufacture. There was no one in the building at the time of the explosion.

EXPLOSION AT BROCKPORT.

Rochester, N.Y., July 3.—With an explosion that could be heard for blocks the large assortment of fireworks which Frank G. Curvin had on hand in his news store on Main street went up in smoke shortly before 1 o'clock this afternoon. In a minute the interior of the store was in flames, and before fire was extinguished damage estimated at $4,000 had been done.

Cleveland, O., July 3.—An explosion of fireworks in the five-and-ten-cent store of Kresge & Company this morning caused a fire in which six young women and a five-year-old boy lost their lives. A panic among the hundreds of clerks and customers in the store followed the explosion. It was not known until nearly two hours after the fire was out, when the firemen began searching the building, that any lives were lost. The fire was started when one of the clerks was demonstrating with one of the pieces of fire-works, a spark from which ignited the others.

The dead were evidently smothered in the basement, as their bodies were not badly burned. A seventh woman was found in the building alive and was rushed to a hospital, but it is believed she will die. The body of the boy was identified as that of James Parker, who was in the store shopping with his mother. The other bodies have not been identified.

Public Abattoir be Discussed Tonight

The Property Committee of the City Council held a meeting Friday afternoon. Those present were; Aldermen Bradburn, Gillespie and Morgan. Mr. W. A. McIlmoyle was present, and requested that a rebate be made on the amount he paid for the market tolls last year. No action was taken.

It was moved by Ald. Gillespie and Morgan that the question of the establishment of a public abattoir be referred to a Committee of the Whole Council.—Carried.

The Legal Committee met in the evening when a letter was read from Mr. R. F. McWilliams, in regard to an accident to Lillian Reid. The matter was referred to the city solicitor.

At Charlotte St Church

Last night the Rev. G. W. Henderson, the pastor at Charlotte street church, occupied the pulpit for the first time in that place of worship. He had no text but had a heart to heart talk with his new congregation. He said he did not want any ushers in his church, that he intended to visit every family of the congregation as soon as possible, and get acquainted with them, and wanted all his flock to be kind and Christlike, and as soon as possible get acquainted with the pastor.

POLICE

Three boys were arrested by P. C. Newhall and P.C. McGinty, for swimming on Sunday. They were caught near Smith street bridge, and will appear Tuesday morning before Magistrate Dumble.

Wife Won

Husband Finally Convinced

Some men are wise enough to try new foods and beverages and then generous enough to give others the benefit of their experience.

A very "conservative" Ills. man, however, let his good wife find out for herself what a blessing Postum is to those who are distressed in many ways by drinking coffee. The wife writes;

"No slave in chains, it seemed to me, was more helpless than I, a coffee captive. Yet there were innumerable warnings—waking from a troubled sleep with a feeling of suffocation, at times dizzy and out of breath, attacks of palpitation of the heart that frightened me.

"Common sense, reason, and my better judgment told me that coffee drinking was the trouble. At last my nervous system was so disarranged that my physician ordered "no more coffee."

"He knew he was right and he knew I knew it, too. I capitulated. Prior to this our family had tried Postum but disliked it, because, as we learned later, it was not made right.

"Determined this time to give Postum a fair trial, I prepared it according to directions on the pkg.—that is, boiled it 15 minutes after boiling commenced, obtaining a dark brown liquid with a rich snappy flavor similar to coffee. When cream and sugar were added, it was not only good but delicious.

"Not eg its beneficial effects in me the rest of the family adopted it—all except my husband, who would not admit that coffee hurt him. Several weeks elapsed during which I drank Postum two or three times a day, when, to my surprise, my husband said 'I have decided to drink Postum. Your improvement is so apparent—you have such fine color—that I propose to give credit where credit is due.' And now we are coffee-slaves no longer."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

The Spanish are among the most charitable people on earth. Without a poor tax Spanish communities of 50,000 self supporters feed a pauper population of 5,000 or more.

The Swordfish.

The swordfish is utterly without fear and will, like a buffalo or rhinoceros, charge anything that offends it, often doing an amount of execution hardly to be believed did not the evidence exist. Combats between swordfish are most interesting and may be compared to a duel between two expert swordsmen.

Children and Fat.

Never press a child to eat fat. Many children have a constitutional loathing of this form of food. This distaste is given them by nature, as they cannot digest it.

Potato Bread.

Potato bread is used by the natives of Thuringia to feed their horses, especially when they are worked hard in very cold weather. The animals thrive on it, and their health and strength are excellent.

Monkeys Fearless.

Until a monkey is beaten he has no fear. He would as soon attack a lion as a gnat, and as long as he can look into your eyes he will not submit. He considers himself the master. Avert the head and he gives in. This is a recognized fact among animal trainers.

Pine Nuts of Korea.

There is a pine nut of Korea which is rich in oil and supposed to be so strengthening that it is given to Korean children who are delicate of constitution.

Amendments to the Constitution.

To the constitution as adopted in 1787 ten amendments were added in December, 1791; an eleventh in January, 1798; a twelfth in September, 1804; the thirteenth amendment was added December, 1865; the fourteenth, July, 1868, and the fifteenth, March, 1870.

Fireproof Paper.

To make paper fireproof nothing more is necessary than to saturate the paper in a strong solution of alum water, and when thoroughly dry it will resist the action of flame.

Alligator.

"Alligator" is merely another form of the Spanish "el lagarto," the lizard. Shakespeare classed the alligator as a fish, to judge from Romeo's description of the contents of the apothecary's shop: "An alligator stuff'd and other skins of ill shaped fishes."

Taliaferro.

Taliaferro is the Spanish equivalent of Smith.

What the Greeks Say.

The Greeks say love is blind, but marriage is clear sighted enough, and they add that after three days the most troublesome things in the world are rain, a guest and a wife.

Queer Eggs.

Perhaps the most curious and bizarre of all fish eggs are those of the oviparous sharks and rays, which are quadrangular horny capsules or cases, two or three inches in length, with long filaments at the corners, which coil about seaweeds and other objects. These horny cases, in the Port Jackson shark of the Pacific, are twisted into a spiral form.

The Parasol Ant.

By the aid of mechanical instruments human beings can do many wonderful things, but to save his life no man could cut such a perfect circle without a pair of compasses as the parasol ant does out of a leaf with nothing but her jaws.

Persian Varnish.

The Persians in 516 B. C. invented a transparent glass varnish, which they laid over sculptured rocks to preserve them from bad weather. This coating has lasted to our day, while the rocks beneath are honeycombed.

Tory.

Tory is an Irish word for a "big runner." It originally applied to the Rapparee outlaws in Ireland and then to all Jacobites prior to Hanoverian [illegible]

SCARED THE ROBBER.

How a Determined Man Prevented a Holdup.

"The fact that a determined stand is all that is needed," continued the western man, "was illustrated a good many years ago by a peculiar little incident which took place on the old stage line running out of Tombstone, A. T. Holdups used to be frequent on that route; but, strange to say, nobody took any precautions against such a contingency. One day the stage was carrying an unusual number of passengers, and while it was going over an extremely desolated section of the road a masked man stepped from behind a rock, leveled a shotgun at the driver and ordered him to pull up.

"He obeyed at once, and the robber began the usual programme by telling everybody to get out and range himself in line with his hands above his head. There were several nervy men on top, but none of them cared to court death by taking the initiative, and it was impossible, moreover, to say how many additional ruffians might be lurking behind the rocks. At any rate, all hands were clambering down when suddenly the door of the stage was flung violently open and out leaped a big, fierce looking man with a cocked revolver in each fist.

"At the sight of him the robber took an involuntary backward step and fell sprawling over a round stone. Both barrels of his gun went off in the air, and in the confusion he picked himself up and ran like a deer for cover. He had a horse on the other side of the rocks, and in less time than it takes to tell it he was in the saddle and 'burning the wind' across the prairie. He got away, and now comes the funny part of the story.

"While the robber was beating his retreat the big man snapped both pistols ineffectually at least half a dozen times and then discovered in blank amazement that neither one of them was loaded. He was glaring dumfounded into the empty cylinders when his wife stuck her head out of the coach and burst into vociferous weeping.

"'Oh, John,' she sobbed, 'I took the cartridges out of them guns this morning and forgot to tell you about it!' As she spoke she held out a handful of brass shells.

"'What the mischief did you do that for?' he roared.

"'I was skeered that they might go off in the coach and shoot the baby—boohoo-hoo!' she replied."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The Cause Was the Cure.

First Flatter—What on earth was that awful shaking in this building last night?

Second Flatter—De Jaggus, who lives on the twenty-ninth floor, came home with the hiccoughs.

First Flatter—Well, but there were only two or three shocks.

Second Flatter—Sure! You see, when things began to shake De Jaggus thought it was an earthquake, and it scared his hiccoughs out of him.—Judge.

RISE OF JOHN BURNS.

Engineer's Apprentice Who Became a Member of Parliament.

Some people are laboring under the belief that England is less democratic than a republic. They should study the rise of John Burns, now president of the local governing board. Thirty-five years ago he was an engineer's apprentice at $2 a week. This position in England is far more menial than in this country, because a lad has little hope of rising to an earning point beyond 6 or 8 shillings a day. But John Burns kept going.

He acquired an education by self study, because the common school system, as we understand the words, does not exist in Great Britain. He developed the ability to talk upon his feet. He stood for parliament, although he hadn't a shilling besides his earnings as an expert workman.

Members of the British parliament are not paid anything for their services. Friends came to Burns' assistance, and he took his seat with nearly forty other representatives of labor. Today he is a member of the government and as privy councilor may, if he chooses, draw $25,000 per year for the rest of his life, whether in or out of office.

Of course it is not considered regular to take the salary when one is out of office, but some cases of the kind are well remembered. Benjamin Disraeli always drew the money. He needed it, he asserted.

But what I started to say is that a workman has as great a chance in England as here if he makes something of himself beyond a drudge. Such successes are more exceptional there than here, if reference be had to the American born workman, because the foreign born laborer does as little work as he can here or elsewhere. His indolence is infectious, and many formerly earnest toilers have become imbued with the continental belief in shirking duty.

Had Burns felt thus he would still be a mechanic and carrying a dinner pail.—Julius Chambers in Brooklyn Eagle.

Pronounce It Loce Ang-el-ees.

Mayor Harper may ask concerted action toward promulgating the official pronunciation of the name Los Angeles. Repeatedly inquiries have come to city officials asking for the true pronunciation, which queries have been usually referred to experts for reply.

The latest, from Horace G. Adams of Fort Smith, was turned over to Librarian Charles F. Lummis, an authority on southwestern words and customs, who sent to Mayor Harper a copy of his reply, with a suggestion that some official action be taken to get the correct pronunciation firmly established. This is Mr. Lummis' answer to Mr. Adams:

"The word is pronounced 'Loce' (to rhyme with dose) Ang-el-ees approximately—the most vital thing is the hard 'g.' There is no jelly sound in Spanish. I take pleasure in answering your query, which is referred to me by his honor A. C. Harper, mayor of this city."—Los Angeles Herald.

First Dining Car.

"Just forty years ago," said T. C. Newton, a Chicago railroad man, "the Chicago and Alton railroad put on the first dining car ever operated on any railway train in the world. This was on the run between Chicago and St. Louis. If that car could be exhibited now it would create universal merriment. It had oilcloth table covers, the seats were screwed to the floor, and its illumination depended on candles.

"Think of the contrast between that primitive affair of 1868 and the modern dining car, finished in solid mahogany, with gorgeous furniture and a menu as elaborate and cooking as dainty as those supplied by any of the foremost hotels of America. Verily we have been 'going some' in the four decades that have gone by since the Alton's first crude experiment."—Baltimore American.

Camera Eye and Index Brain.

What would you say of a gentleman who having looked once into the face of each of those soldiers that made up the grand army which Napoleon took to Russia and being told the soldier's name would know him, name and face, two years, ten years, twenty years later? Think of a gentleman who could thus have called the muster roll of an army of 100,000 men. Such, however, would seem to be the fell power of eye and memory which belongs to Detective William P. Sheridan of Mulberry street, New York, the "man with the camera eyes," and a low estimate declares that he has filed away in his brain, each tagged with the proper name, the pictures of no fewer than 100,000 men.—Broadway Magazine.

Wrecking Windmills a New Industry.

The passing of the windmill in England, antiquated by such recent power producers as the gas engine and electric motor, has given life to a new industry—windmill wrecking. The old windmill builders understood their business and meant their handiwork to last, and so the demolishing of such structures is no simple task. Many of the old mills stood 100 feet high and had eight or nine floors fitted with four runs of stones and contained tons upon tons of brick. Often these huge mills stand close to other buildings, and accidents would be inevitable if the wreckers did not have experience in their tasks.—Popular Mechanics.

Pain will depart in exactly twenty minutes if one of Dr. Shoop's Pink Pain Tablets is taken. Pain anywhere. Remember! Pain always means congestion, blood pressure — nothing else. Headache is blood pressure, toothache is blood pressure on the sensitive nerve. Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets—also called Pink Pain Tablets—quickly and safely coax this blood pressure away from pain centers. Painful periods with women get instant relief. 20 Tablets 25c. SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the Northwest Provinces, excepting 8 and 26 reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each on and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father or mother.

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

N. B.—Unauthorized publication of this advertisement will not be paid for.

The U.F. Consular office, Port Hope, closes to-day and the Consular agent, Mr. E P Dill, is transferred to the Consulate at Orillia. The Peterborough Consular agency, Mr. Frank Bell, agent, is now included in the Toronto district.

PAIN

Pain in the head—pain anywhere, has its cause. Pain is congestion, pain is blood pressure—nothing else usually. At least, so says Dr. Shoop, and he proves it he has created a little pink tablet. That tablet—called Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablet—relieves blood pressure away from pain centers. Its effect is charming, pleasingly delightful. Gently, though safely, it surely equalizes the blood circulation.

If you have a headache, it's blood pressure.

If you are sleepless, restless, nervous, it's blood congestion—blood pressure. That surely is a certainty, for Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets stop it in 20 minutes, and the tablets simply distribute the unnatural blood pressure.

Bruise your finger, and doesn't it get red, and swell, and pain you? Of course it does. It's congestion, blood pressure. You'll find it where pain is—always. It's simply Common Sense.

We sell at 25 cents, and cheerfully recommend

Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets

"ALL DEALERS"

AN ISLAND OF QUIET.

Yet Going Downtown in Madeira Is an Exciting Event.

Madeira is populated, yet is one of the quietest as well as one of the most beautiful places in the world. Although the roads are paved with round beach stones, there is nothing to remind one of the fact, because, as David G. Fairchild, agricultural explorer of the department of agriculture, explains in the National Geographic Magazine, there are no horses or jolting wheels.

All vehicles in Madeira are of runners. If you go calling it is in a bullock sledge with canopy top and comfortable seats. If you move a bank safe or a steam boiler it is carried on a "stone boat," or sledge of poles, and you may have to get forty oxen to pull it. If you are in a villa on the hillside and want to get downtown you take a running car and slide down over the cobblestones.

Two strong men, each holding a guide rope, pull your car over a bag of grease to grease the runners and then give you a running shove and jump each on a runner behind as the car shoots down at a breakneck pace over the cobblestones.

The men yell, hens and dogs scamper, foot passengers cling close to the wall of the narrow street, the runners get hot and fill the air with odor of burning wood as you shoot round sharp corners, down the busy thoroughfare past gorgeous masses of flowering creepers which hang over the walls of the private villas that border your road.

But, oh, the change when you get to the bottom! You are obliged either to walk or take a carro drawn by slow moving bullocks squeaking and slipping over the stones.

ORIGIN OF THE HORSE.

The Modern Animal a Cross Between Two Ancient Breeds.

In Wissen for Age Professor Koenig discusses in some detail the origin of the horse of today. He finds that the horse of neolithic times was not specifically distinct from the horse of the present. While there is no doubt that the horse of that period was used by man for food there seems to be no conclusive evidence as to whether it was domesticated or not. His own opinion, however, is that it was probably domesticated.

The horse of that time was closely allied to the tarpan or steppwild horse that lived in southern Russia up to a century ago. This was a "hog maned," short legged, large headed beast. It seems probable that the domesticated horses of the Germans of Caesar's time were derived from this breed.

The Egyptians had horses as early as 1500 B. C. These were long maned, more like the Arab horses, and came from Assyria. Where the Assyrians obtained them is unknown but it was probably from southern Asia. Since this long maned breed has been developed in all probability as the result of long continued domestication. The modern horse is a cross between these two breeds, with a further mixture of the Arab horse. This Arab horse, too, was itself a descendant of the earlier long maned horse.

The origin of the long maned horse is a matter of doubt, but Professor Koenig thinks it may have been from an extinct Indian species.

Women Who Marry at Thirty-five.

A German doctor lays it down as a well established fact based on close observation that women who do not marry until thirty-five or thereabout invariably achieve matrimonial success. Why women of this particular age should make more successful marriages than those who fall victims to love's young dream is fairly obvious. When a young woman marries between thirty and forty she either does so for companionship, choosing her mate accordingly, or from need, in which case she also chooses with a certain amount of care. She has no wild dreams of unalloyed bliss.—London Lady's Pictorial.

A Freak of the Lightning.

A curious case of lightning destruction took place some years ago at Gatchina, an imperial summer residence not far from St. Petersburg, where stood a stone column fifty feet high, held together by iron angles. When rain fell more or less water penetrated the stones in the interior of the monument. One day it was struck by lightning, and instantly the column disappeared from view, filling a lone sentry on guard. The only explanation is that the heat of the lightning instantly generated steam on coming in contact with some of the water and the terrific explosion followed.

The Change of a Comma.

"Whenever she asks me to do anything," soliloquized Mr. Meeker pensively, "I always promptly do it, Mamie feel."

"Yes," said Mrs. Meeker, who happened along in time to overhear him. "Whenever I ask you to do anything you always procrastinate for days a week."

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

A DRAMA OF VILLAINY.

Just Suppose That Johann Hoch and Mrs. Guinness Had Met.

"If the paths of Johann Hoch and Mrs. Belle Guinness had crossed and each had conspired to take the life and worldly possessions of the other, each ignorant of the other's plot, the psychological developments and result would have interested criminologists."

The above statement is the substance of a hypothetical proposition originated by Chief Deputy Sheriff Charles Peters, who finds what he considers striking parallelisms in the lives and records of these two persons.

"It would have been interesting," he said, "from a criminological viewpoint to watch a contest between Mrs. Guinness and Hoch had they met as a result of a matrimonial advertisement of the woman and their schemes had crossed wires.

"She was a female Hoch, and he was a male Guinness. He watched the death notices of men and found out who of them were insured and married the widows whenever he could, putting them out of the way to get the insurance money.

"Mrs. Guinness, according to the reports, advertised for well to do husbands, stating that she was comely and possessed of a fortune, and after getting one would put him out of the way for his money.

"Suppose, now, that Hoch had seen one of her advertisements, answered it and a meeting had been arranged. She would have had in her mind Hoch's money, and Hoch would have had in his mind her money. Then would have come the contest, each plotting, scheming with all of his or her cleverness to get the better of the other.

"It would have beaten, I believe, any drama of villainy ever produced on the stage. Who would have done the other? Which of them would now be under the ground, a victim of the other's treachery, and which enjoying the money of the other?"—Chicago News.

A Grotesque Ruler.

Possibly somewhere in the jungles of Africa or perhaps in the mystic east or on the planet Mars there is a president, potentate, shah, rajah, sultan or some other sort of ruler who is as strange and grotesquely impossible as President Nord Alexis of Haiti, but certainly there is none to compare with him in this hemisphere. Castro of Venezuela comes close perhaps, but Castro's style differs, and, while he defied the great powers of the earth, he does not approach in pure picturesqueness the venerable man who sits in the presidential palace at Port au Prince and runs the little black republic to suit himself. Imagine a typical Ethiopian between ninety and a hundred years of age, bloodthirsty and apparently only half civilized, a dealer of death to political enemies, a believer in voodooism, and you have a faint idea of what he is. For anything more one must go to Haiti and see for himself.—Argonaut.

Frozen In For Half a Century.

The old wooden English warship Investigator, which has been frozen in at Mercy bay, Boring island, since Sept. 24, 1851, has at last been freed from the ice. It seems almost incredible that the ice in Mercy bay has never melted before in the course of half a century, but nevertheless that is the truth. Last summer was, however, a mild one, and the ship was liberated, while, the winter having been open, the vessel still remains free. There will be a general desire to have the ship brought to England, and this will be easy, for it appears she is in sound condition. Sir Robert McClure was commander of the investigator during the search for the Franklin expedition. The vessel had to be abandoned, and it has been frozen in ever since.—London Mail.

Automatic Coin Assorter.

A recent issue of an Austrian journal gives an account of an automatic money assorter that will assort metal coins which have been thrown together regardless of their denominations, placing each denomination in a separate basket. The various coins are thrown indiscriminately into a funnel at the top of the machine, and from the funnel they slide downward, slighting on a spiral track. This track has a protecting edge or raised border containing slits corresponding to the various sizes of the coins. As the coins of various denominations glide downward on to the track through some peculiar mechanism of the machine they pass through the slits corresponding to their various sizes, entering their respective baskets at the bottom of the machine.

The Circus.

"The circus used to be an American institution," remarked an old time circus man the other day. "But things have changed. I went into the dressing room of a big show recently, and nearly all of the performers are foreigners. There are few good American circus performers any more. Old Bob Stickney was there. He does a 'manage act' with a team of horses, even though he's sixty-two years old now. He used to be the best bareback rider on the road outside of Jimmy Robinson. But there are mighty few of the old timers left, and there never will be any as good."

Three Strong Ones.

"With Mr. Onion running for congress in Texas and Mr. Leake already there, we only need Mr. Garlic to complete the trio," says the Augusta Herald. All right; here he is. Mr. Garlick is a candidate in Louisiana.—Washington Herald.

They should come in bunches—three never scent.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Since election day they will all be in the soup.—Judge.

Jones—Tut; our household now represents the United Kingdom. Smith—How's that? Jones—Why, you see, I am English, my wife is Irish, the nurse is Scotch, and the baby wails.—London Express.

Changed.

"Do you believe that man and woman should have equal rights?"

"Well, I used to, before I've been married. I don't dare to say so."—Cleveland Leader.

ALLOTMENT SUBSCRIBED.

The requisite amount of stock has been subscribed and paid in full to enable the Company to proceed to allotment and commence business.

RAISE OF MINING STOCK.

THE GREAT NORTHERN LARDER LAKE MINING CO., Limited, purposes to advance price of their treasury stock to Twenty-five (25c) cents on June 22nd. Last chance to buy at ten cents a share, par value One Dollar, fully paid up and non-assessable.

The foreman, Mr. David Foster, of Cobalt, has started to work on the Company's property with a gang of men to develop veins already discovered, also to continue striping in search of new gold veins.

We are erecting boarding houses and dining-rooms for our men.

READ COPY OF CERTIFICATE AND STATUTORY DECLARATION CONFIRMING SAME.

Toronto, March 20th, 1908.

To the Great Northern Larder Lake Mining Company, Limited:—

Gentlemen,—

I beg to confirm my previous report to you that in my judgment the surface showings on the 14 mining claims which the Company has acquired, being Nos. H.R. 231 to H. R. 234, both inclusive indicate the probability of the existence of large bodies of both high grade and low grade free-milling ore, sufficient to pay dividends for an indefinite period.

I have personally examined a number of veins and reefs on said property (consisting of about 640 acres) and had some assays made and from such examinations and assays I make this report.

The statement on pages nine and ten of the Prospectus giving the short history of the Company are correct. I insisted on retaining a large interest in the Company rather than sell for any price that seemed reasonable to the purchasers.

DAVID A. FOSTER,

IN THE MATTER OF THE GREAT NORTHERN LARDER LAKE MINING CO., LTD.

Statutory Declaration.

DOMINION OF CANADA
County of York
TO WIT:

I, David Foster, of the town of Haileybury, in the district of Nipissing, miner, do solemnly declare that the statements in the annexed certificate are true. I have personally inspected all of the fourteen claims now transferred to the Great Northern Larder Lake Mining Company, Limited. I have taken samples containing gold values from said property, and from my personal examination, and from assays made, I believe the Company's property when developed, will prove very valuable. I have full confidence in the success of the said Company, and on this account, with the exception of $100 already received, I have agreed to accept stock in said Company, and a note which I believe will not be of much value should the actual development work not prove the said claims to contain gold in paying quantities as it is not payable for one year from this date or until after the Company shall have done the necessary development work on said claims. And I make this solemn declaration conscientiously believing it to be true and knowing that it is of the same force and effect as if made under oath, and by virtue of "The Canada Evidence Act."

DAVID A. FOSTER.

Declared before me at Toronto, in the County of York, this 31st day of March, 1908. J. T. LOFTUS, A. Commissioner in H. C. J.

PROPERTIES TRANSFERRED.

Since the prospectus was printed, the sale of the 14 mining claims to the Company has been completed and the transfers to the Company are registered in the Recorder's Office at Larder City. There is no mortgage or other encumbrance against said claims.

RAWHIDE-DULZURA

1 CENT A 2 SHARE

Send us your name as a member in this new company, with your remittance for as many thousand shares as you can take at $5 per thousand.

This is a short-time offer on a hurry-up proposition. Our vice president is up at Rawhide now putting the miners at work. We want to raise the necessary funds for development as quickly as possible. Therefore, we offer the first block of stock at $5 a thousand shares. This subscription must be all cash. We want the money in hand. We mean to work without letup, and we have made it an ironclad rule not to run in debt. Cash counts now.

Our prospectuses are out. Send for one.

Make reservation of stock. If you do so more. But, remember, this present offer of stock at Half a Cent a Share is now open, and will be closed as soon as enough cash subscriptions are in hand. Don't wait, or you will get left.

The gold mining property owned outright by the company consists of 7 claims, 5 in the Rawhide district of Nevada, and 2 in the Dulzura district of Southern California.

The Rawhide district to-day is more famous than Goldfield, Tonapah, Bullfrog, or Shoshone ever were at the same stage of exploration and development. The Dulzura discovery is one of the most sensational in the history of California.

Ten samples of ore which were among the first assayed, run as high as $7,461.87 to the ton, and all ten averaged over $2,500 a ton.

In both camps we located early, and our locations are choice. Our own officers will superintend the mining.

LEARNING TO SWIM.

The Fat Man Who Was a Model of Patience and Perseverance.

Persistence in undertaking is a laudable virtue, but it can be a bit overdone sometimes, as in a case described by Y. L. Molloy in "Our Autumn Holiday on French Rivers." Mr. Molloy and his friends, longing for a good dive, went to a swimming school on an island in the Seine. They donned their rented costumes and were preparing for the plunge when a man with ropes came along and insisted on tying them about their waists. It was according to police regulations, and, although they made an indignant protest, they were obliged to submit.

While we were dressing, says Mr. Molloy, we asked the two swimming masters for an extra towel.

"Pardon," they replied, "we must attend to our monsieur."

Then we saw that there had come upon the platform a short and absurdly fat man dressed in bathing costume, swimming sandals and oiled cap.

"Let's see him go in," said we. "What a splash he'll make!"

The swimming masters received the new arrival at the middle of the platform. There he balanced himself on his stomach on a wooden stump two feet high. The masters seized him by his hands and feet and with slow and deliberate movements made him strike out with the action of swimming. They kept this up for a quarter of an hour, and the perspiration rolled off him in great drops.

"He'll be awfully hot to go into the water after that," said I.

But he did not go into the water. The swimming lesson over, he moved toward the dressing room, saying:

"I have done better today."

The fat man beamed with complaisance and went in to dress.

I called the swimming masters aside.

"Does 'our monsieur' practice often like that? He must have great perseverance."

"Perseverance! He has worked like this for five years, and he has never been in the water!"

SIGN OF A BEATEN MAN.

Runner Who Looks Behind Almost Sure to Lose the Race.

"There are many more good distance runners now than in my days," said an old time champion after watching a three mile scratch race at the New York Athletic club games. "But the habits of the runners have not changed any, for I noticed one little trick in the race that bore the significance that used to attach to it.

"To the casual onlooker there was nothing to choose between the two leaders when they were beginning the last quarter of a mile. Right from the crack of the pistol they were running almost stride for stride with the low, graceful, easy action of the real long distance runner.

"Neither had called into use the reserve power which must be utilized in the final sprint for victory when they turned into the stretch for the final lap. Then one of them slightly turned his head to see where the third man was.

"'That man is beaten,' was the thought which occurred to me at once, and it proved true, as always, for when the dash for the finish began he allowed his rival to get a lead of five yards before going after him in earnest pursuit.

"From that point to the finish there was no perceptible difference in the speed of the men, but the man who had turned his head to make sure that he would get second place, instead of bending every energy to win, of course landed where his thoughts placed him."

The Gun Barrels Grew.

In the early days in the northwest, when the Hudson Bay company laid the foundations of great fortunes by trade with the savages and a gun paid for as many beaver skins as would reach to the muzzle of it, the skins packed flat and the gun held upright, it was alleged that the barrel of the weapon grew and grew with each successive year until the Indian, after he had bought it with the peltry, had to borrow a file and cut off a foot of useless metal.

Domestic Bliss.

Wife—I have about made up my mind, John, that when I married you I married a fool. Husband—That reminds me of a remark you made just before we were married. You remember that you said it would be hard to find two people more alike than you and I.

His Glassy Eye.

Doctor—I diagnose all sickness from the patient's eyes. Now, your right eye tells me that your kidneys are affected. Patient—Excuse me, doctor, but my right is a glass eye.—Moody's Magazine.

Simple.

Lawyer (at the theater on the first night)—I can't imagine how the piece can be drawn out into five acts. Author—Oh, that is very simple. In the first act, you see, the hero gets into a lawsuit.

Chance For Imagination.

Newspaper men were to be excluded from a famous trial. "That's good," one of them remarked. "I hate being hampered by facts in writing up a [illegible]."

A CASE IN POINT.

Why the Postmaster Leaned Toward the Sheriff.

There is a town in northern New Hampshire where the families have intermarried to such an extent that it is difficult for an outsider to make the least criticism on one person without the danger of offending some of his family connections. When an unfortunate visitor commented on this fact to Mr. Corbin, the postmaster, Mr. Corbin nodded violently.

"Bill Harmon, that's our sheriff, complained of that no longer ago than last week," said he.

"You see, it took him more'n a fortnight to arrest Nate Giddings because Nate got wind that he was wanted on a little matter o' selling hard cider, and he went on a round o' visits among his relatives—aunts, nephews-in-law and I don't know what all—and 'twasn't till he'd had his fun and went back home to his wife that Bill could make the arrest without seeming to kind o' butt in, as you might say, and spoil the reunions."

"I should think he would make a queer kind of sheriff," said the visitor, "waiting all that time for sentimental reasons and then arresting a man when he went home just because his poor wife wasn't a relation!"

Mr. Corbin drew himself up and assumed a remote expression.

"That's as you look at it," he said in a chilly tone. "I may be a mite prejudiced in Bill's favor, as he married my son-in-law's youngest sister. Anything that concerns him concerns me, you understand."

CONQUERORS CONQUERED.

The Fate of Alexander, Hannibal, Cæsar and Napoleon.

It is a remarkable and instructive fact that the careers of four of the most renowned characters that ever lived closed with violent or mournful deaths.

Alexander, after looking down from the dizzy heights of his ambition upon a conquered world and weeping that there were no more to conquer, died of intoxication in a scene of debauch or, as some suppose, by poison mingled in his wine.

Hannibal, whose name carried terror to the heart of Rome itself, after having crossed the Alps and put to flight the armies of the mistress of the world, was driven from his country and died at last of poison administered by his own hands in a foreign land, unlamented and unwept.

Cæsar, the conquerer of 800 cities and his temples bound with chaplets dipped in the blood of a million of his foes, was miserably assassinated by those he considered his nearest friends.

Bonaparte, whose mandate kings and emperors obeyed, after filling the earth with the terror of his name, closed his days in lonely banishment upon a barren rock in the midst of the Atlantic ocean.

Such the four men who may be considered representatives of all whom the world calls great and such their end—intoxication or poison, suicide, murdered by friends, lonely exile.

Pointed With Scripture.

A bachelor rector of a western church was alone in his study when his housekeeper brought him the card of one of his parishioners, a spinster of means and charm.

When the lady was seated on the opposite side of his study table the rector looked at her inquiringly, expecting to hear something concerning parish work, in which she was active. To his surprise an embarrassed silence ensued, during which he vainly sought for something to say.

"Dr. Blank," began the lady at last in faltering tones, "do you think—can you fancy conditions under which a—a woman is—justified in proposing?"

"Why, yes," said the rector, after some deliberation.

"Thou art the man!" said the lady resolutely.

A Ready Answer.

The captain of a schooner that trades between New York and Savannah is noted for his wit, and on every occasion that offers he loosens his shafts of humor, to the chagrin and embarrassment of its target. Sooner or later the stinger gets stung, and this chronic pun artist is no exception to the rule.

On one occasion when about two days out from New York he approached a group of sailors who were washing the forward deck, and, singling out a big, rawboned Irishman who was experiencing his first taste of sailor's life, he gravely asked, "Can you steer the mainmast down the forecastle stairs?" Quick as a flash came the reply, "Yis, sor; I can if you will stand below and catch it up."

Rough on the Doctor.

One night as a Canadian doctor who lives in eastern Ontario was driving into a village he saw a chap, a little the worse for liquor, amusing a crowd of spectators with the antics of his trick dog. The doctor watched him awhile and said: "Sandy, how do you manage to train your dog? I can't teach mine to do anything."

Sandy, with that simple look in his eyes, said, "Well, you see, doc, you have to know more'n the dog or you can't learn him nothing."

An Ideal Husband.

The Man—And you really think you have an ideal husband, don't you? The Matron—I know I have. Why, he treats me as if he were a candidate for office and I was a voter.

About the poorest kind of a reputation is the kind a man gets for being sarcastic.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

A GHOST STORY.

The Spectral Horseman That Visits Wycollar Hall.

This ghost story is contributed by a correspondent of an English magazine: "Wycollar Hall, near Colne, was long the seat of the Cunliffes of Billington. They were noted persons in their time, but evil days came, and their ancestral estates passed out of their hands. In the days of the commonwealth their loyalty cost them dear, and ultimately they retired to Wycollar with a remnant only of their once extensive property. About 1819 the last of the family passed away, and the hall is now a mass of ruins. Little but the antique fireplace remains entire, and even the room alluded to in the following legend cannot now be identified. Tradition says that once every year a specter horseman visits Wycollar Hall. He is attired in the costume of the early Stuart period, and the trappings of his horse are of a most uncouth description.

"On the evening of his visit the weather is always wild and tempestuous. There is no moon to light the lonely roads, and the residents of the district do not venture out of their cottages. When the wind howls loudest the horseman can be heard dashing up the road at full speed, and, after crossing the narrow bridge, he suddenly stops at the door of the hall. The rider then dismounts and makes his way up the broad oaken stairs into one of the rooms of the house. Dreadful screams, as from a woman, are then heard, which soon subside into groans. The horseman then makes his appearance at the door, at once mounts his steed and gallops off.

"His body can be seen through by those who may chance to be present; his horse appears to be wild with rage, and its nostrils stream with fire. The tradition is that one of the Cunliffes murdered his wife in that room and that the specter horseman is the ghost of the murderer, who is doomed to pay an annual visit to the home of his victim. She is said to have predicted the extinction of the family, which, according to the story, has been literally fulfilled."

THE CRITICS.

These Observers Were Wholly Personal in Their Judgments.

"The critical faculty is rare," said an editor and critic at a Philadelphia art club. "It must be impersonal. But most of us incline to be wholly personal in our criticism. The fact was brought home to me at one of the exhibitions at the Academy of Fine Arts.

"Passing from picture to picture, I overheard many criticisms. Thus a lady in a rich gown said:

"'What a superb portrait of a young girl! It should certainly win the Carnegie prize. It is easy to see that the gown was made by Paquin.'

"A fat, red nosed man in a fur lined overcoat halted before a picture entitled 'The Luncheon.'

"'This still life,' he exclaimed, 'is the most admirable I have ever seen. Terrapin, canvasback, champagne, lobster, even Perigord pie—ah, what a genius.'

"'In this historical painting,' I heard an antiquary say, 'the costumes are accurate in every detail. The painter is a second Raphael.'

"'That horse there,' said a young polo player, 'is exactly like my Podasokus. It's the best picture in the exhibition.'

"'What shoulders! What arms!' he said. 'I bet anything the jury gives this painting the highest award.'

"And half the throng, departing, said: "'The picture in the last room is the best. No, we didn't see it—couldn't get to it, in fact—but it draws far and away the biggest crowd.'"

Mole Superstitions.

According to tradition, if you have a mole on your chin you may expect to be wealthy, while if you have it under your arm it promises you wealth and honor as well. A mole on the ankle indicates courage. On the left temple a mole indicates that you will find friends among the great ones of the earth, but if it be placed on the right temple it warns you of coming distress. A mole on a man's knee means that he may expect to marry a rich woman. A mole on the neck promises wealth. If you have a mole on your nose you are going to be a great traveler. A mole on the throat indicates health and wealth.

The Silent Winners.

Examine our list of presidential candidates and see how few of them made stump speeches.

George Washington made none.

Thomas Jefferson made none.

John Adams, John Quincy Adams, James Madison, James Monroe made none.

A Fortunate Man.

One day a young matron to the market place did go, where she bought an oyster plant, then set it out to grow. Said she, "Next winter we'll have oysters, fresh oysters every day, and what a saving it will be, with not a cent to pay. Oh, but hubby should be thankful it was his lot in life to get such a saving woman for his own little wife."

An Eye Opener.

"Eight o'clock," exclaimed a guest at a hotel, yawning, "and I'm so sleepy I can scarcely open my eyes!"

"Shall I bring your bill, sir?" inquired a waiter.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the Northwest Provinces, excepting 8 and 26 reserved may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father or mother.

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

Cough Caution

Never, positively never poison your lungs. If you cough—even from a simple cold only—you should always heal, soothe, and ease the irritated bronchial tubes. Don't blindly suppress it with a stupefying poison. It's strange how some things finally come about. For twenty years Dr. Shoop has constantly warned people not to take cough mixtures or prescriptions containing Opium, Chloroform, or similar poisons. And now—a little late though—Congress says "Put it on the label if poisons are in your Cough Mixture." (Good) Very good!! Henceforth this very reason mothers, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison marks on Dr. Shoop's labels—and none in the medicine, else it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance then, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and note the difference. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding

Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure

"ALL DEALERS"

CHECKING A BUNDLE.

The Way the Tired Man Saved Himself Labor and Trouble.

One day a man went into a very big store. He had a heavy package with him.

Not in the sense you mean, smarties, but in the real sense.

He had to go two blocks farther down the street and didn't want to carry the package. So he decided that he would leave it in the check room.

He asked a floorwalker who looked like a United States senator, but who was a perfect gentleman, where the check room was. The floorwalker said:

"ThreeninesevendowsatsixandoverattheWabashskie."

He went there, wherever that was, and found he had made a mistake.

He knew it was himself who had made the mistake, for as nice a man as a floorwalker with a Prince Albert on couldn't have made a mistake.

Finally after he had lugged his bundle thirty-two blocks hunting the check room, had found the check room and deposited his bundle he walked six two blocks to the other place and was through for the day.

Then he soliloquized:

"How should I ever have got so much or stood the wear and tear of all long two blocks carrying that under? If it hadn't been for the check room system, what could I have done?"

TIPS IN ENGLAND.

Lord Russell's Fee to the Headsman Who Executed Him.

Mr. George R[illegible] discoursing on tips in the Manchester Guardian, after the manner of his "Collections and Recollections," treats the subject historically under the various names of fees, rates for service, honorarium (as Disraeli preferred to call it) and perquisites.

Ancient usage has a peculiarly corrupting effect on the matter of tips and fees. Horace Walpole records the astonishment of George I when told that he must give sixpence to the servant of the ranger of his park for bringing him a brace of carp out of his own pond.

Apparently everybody in England is at some time or other justified in demanding a fee unless it be the monarch. When Tait became archbishop of Canterbury and met the queen he received a look of relief on at last encountering a person to whom he had not to pay something.

Accordingly to Dr. Lyon Burnet, a man said to have been up to a tip in order to oblige, and he tells the story of Lord Russell when under sentence of death for high treason asking what he owed to the executioner. "I told him I owed him nothing," he said, with a smile, "it was a privilege thing to give a fee to have his head cut off."

For Number Two.

"George, dear, what kind of a woman would you marry if you married again?" asked the amiable wife.

"Er, if I married again"— began the cynical husband.

"Then you acknowledge that you would marry again?"

"I'm not saying one way or the other, but"—

"But you don't give me a definite answer, and that proves"—

"That doesn't prove anything, because"—

"It does too! So what kind of a woman would you marry if you married again?"

"I wouldn't marry again. I could not."

"Of course you have to say that."

"Of course I do, because I was about to say that if I married again it would be the kind of a woman who would not ask me what kind of a woman I would marry if I married again."—Judge.

Singing Pigeons.

The queer Chinese change pigeons into song birds by fastening whistles to their breasts. The wind of their flight then causes a weird and plaintive music that is seldom silenced in the pigeon haunted cities of Pekin and Canton. The Belgians, great pigeon fliers, fasten whistles beneath the wings of valuable racing carriers, claiming that the shrill notes is a sure protection against hawks and other birds of prey. As a similar protection, reeds, emitting an odd wailing sound, are fixed to the tail feathers of the dispatch bearing pigeons of the German army.

What He Was Looking For.

"I do wish, Edward," said the lady of his choice, "that you wouldn't stare at other women so much. It's very rude and is certainly no compliment to me."

"On the contrary, my dear," replied the resourceful beau, "I was looking to see if I could find a prettier face than yours and I confess I really cannot."

Eating Before Sleep.

"Is it safe to eat before going to sleep?" asks Sibyl.

"Oh, yes, much safer than eating afterward, we should say! It is so hard to eat what you can eating when you are asleep, you know."

WHEN FOOD WAS SCARCE.

The following interesting statement of the prices that were paid for food during the siege of 1870 is taken verbally out of the journal of a French officer stationed in Paris at the time:

"Toward the middle of October we had to make up our mind to sacrifice the animals of the zoological garden. The elephants and many other beasts were bought by M. Deboa, the owner of the English meat shop in Av. Friendland. The meat of the elephants was sold from $10 to $12 a kilogram (two pounds), the trunk commanding the highest price, $16 a kilogram. The trunk and feet were both declared delicious by all gormands. In the same shop a pair of young wolves were sold for $2.50 per pound. The meat was soft and without taste. The biggest price was paid for a young live lamb that had been swiped by a 'franctireur' from the enemy. One hundred dollars was paid for it.

Two pounds of horseflesh	$5.00
One ham	24.00
A whole cat	2.00
A rabbit	10.00
One turkey	20.00
One egg	1.00
A rat	.50
A pigeon	4.00
One pound of butter	6.00
A pound of beans	1.50
A pack of carrots	3.00
One cabbage head	3.00
One stick of celery	.50
Wood to burn (100 pounds)	2.00

"Even the rich had to live on the meagerest diet and to take into their menu things that till then only the trapper in the virgin forests was supposed to eat. I leave it to you to imagine what kind of meals were served in the small restaurants and boarding houses.

"Moreover, everybody had to submit to the strictest orders. People stood in file before the butcher and baker shops to wait for their turns. Each household was furnished with a card from the municipality authorizing the bearer to buy a certain amount of meat and bread. The cook, the housewife, the young girl, the little child (men never go shopping in France), were posted for hours before the shops in rain and snow, with wet feet, shivering with cold. The unfortunate ones endured without a murmur these hardships. Women throughout the time of the siege were setting an example of courage and self abnegation not always followed by men.

"It was a sad and touching spectacle, these long files of women, nearly all dressed in black, grouped before the doors of the dealers, watched by the national guard, with whom they at first were laughing and chatting, till the sufferings from the cold had silenced the laugh and sometimes brought forth the tears.

"But in spite of all precautions the stores one by one were exhausted, the provisions, put in too late before the siege, were used up, and, while the babies, deprived of milk, died in great numbers or, fed on sweet wine and bread, pined slowly away, the big people tried to find new resources to prolong their lives."

Generous Mrs. Crewe.

A gambling story is told of Charles James Fox that rather reflects on his honor. He was one of the ardent admirers of Mrs. Crewe, a noted beauty of her day, and it is related that a gentleman lost a considerable sum to this lady at play and, being obliged to leave town suddenly, gave Mr. Fox the money to pay her, begging him to apologize to her for his not having paid the debt of honor in person. Fox lost every shilling of it before morning. Mrs. Crewe often met the supposed debtor afterward and, surprised that he never noticed the circumstances, at length delicately hinted the matter to him.

"Bless me!" said he. "I paid the money to Mr. Fox three months ago."

"Oh, did you, sir?" said Mrs. Crewe good naturedly. "Then probably he paid me, and I forgot it."

Risky Revenge.

Gagnani, the wonderful violinist, had a narrow escape at Ferrara from a violent death. Enraged by some hissing from the pit, he resolved to avenge the insult, and at the close of his programme informed the audience that he would imitate the language of various animals. After having rendered the notes of different birds, the mewing of a cat, and the barking of a dog, he advanced to the footlights, and, saying, "This is for those who hissed!" imitated the braying of an ass. At this the occupants of the pit rose, rushed on to the stage and would probably have killed their calumniator had he not hastily retreated.

Fixing His Status.

A waiter spilled some soup on the clothing of a portly, choleric old gentleman dining with his wife in an uptown lobster palace the other night whereupon the old gentleman jumped to his feet and, calling the manager, burst into a tirade which ended with the somewhat anticlimatic charge that the waiter was "no gentleman."

"This man is not supposed to be a gentleman," said the manager coldly. "He is merely a waiter."

Tommy Spoke.

Minister—If any one present can show cause why this couple should not become man and wife, let him speak now or forever hold his peace. Tommy—I kin, mister. He thinks aunty's only twenty-five, and she's forty.

Economy may be the road to wealth, but nine-tenths of those who are compelled to travel it never reach the goal.—Chicago News.

Towne—Oh, yes, he's quite an enthusiast. He goes in for things in real earnest. Browne—Yes, if some one were to send him on a wild goose chase he'd speak of himself afterward as a sportsman.

Fairies of the Deep.

Mother Pike (to Little Pikey)—What fairy story do you want me to tell you today? Little Pikey—Mother Little Red Herring Head or Cod-From-Its-Hook—Rainbow-Tail Tale.

A RAISE IN MINING STOCK

ALLOTMENT SUBSCRIBED.

The requisite amount of stock has been subscribed and paid in full to enable the Company to proceed to allotment and commence business.

RAISE OF MINING STOCK.

THE GREAT NORTHERN LARDER LAKE MINING CO., Limited, proposes to advance price of their treasury stock to Twenty-five (25c) cents on June 22nd. Last chance to buy at ten cents a share, par value One Dollar, fully paid up and non-assessable.

The foreman, Mr. David Foster, of Cobalt, has started to work on the Company's property with a gang of men to develop veins already discovered, also to continue striping in search of new gold veins.

We are erecting boarding houses and dining-rooms for our men.

Toronto, March 25th, 1908.

To the Great Northern Larder Lake Mining Company, Limited:—

Gentlemen,—

I beg to confirm my previous report to you that in my judgment the surface showings on the 14 mining claims which the Company has acquired, being Nos. H.A. 221 to H. A. 234, both inclusive indicate the probability of the existence of large bodies of both high grade and low grade free-milling ore, sufficient to pay dividends for an indefinite period.

I have personally examined a number of veins and reefs on said property (consisting of about 560 acres) and had some assays made and from such examinations and assays I make this report.

The statement on pages nine and ten of the Prospectus giving the short history of the Company are correct. I insisted on retaining a large interest in the Company rather than sell for any price that seemed reasonable to the purchasers.

DAVID A. FOSTER,
Haileybury.

IN THE MATTER OF THE GREAT NORTHERN LARDER LAKE MINING CO., LTD.

Statutory Declarations.

DOMINION OF CANADA
County of York

TO WIT:

I, David Foster, of the town of Haileybury, in the district of Nipissing, miner, do solemnly declare that the statements in the annexed certificate are true. I have personally inspected all of the fourteen claims now transferred to the Great Northern Larder Lake Mining Company, Limited. I have taken samples containing gold values from said property, and from my personal examination, and from assays made, I believe the Company's property when developed, will prove very valuable. I have full confidence in the success of the said Company, and on this account, with the exception of $400 already received, I have agreed to accept stock in said Company, and a note which I believe will not be of much value should the actual development work not prove the said claims to contain gold in paying quantities as it is not payable for one year from this date or until after the Company shall have done the necessary development work on said claims. And I make this solemn declaration conscientiously believing it to be true and knowing that it is of the same force and effect as if made under oath, and by virtue of "The Canada Evidence Act."

DAVID A. FOSTER.

Declared before me at Toronto, in the County of York, this 31st day of March, 1908. J. T. LOFTUS, A. Commissioner in H. C. J.

PROPERTIES TRANSFERED.

Since the prospectus was printed, the sale of the 14 mining claims to the Company has been completed and the transfers to the Company are registered in the Recorder's Office at Larder City. There is no mortgage or other encumbrance against said claims.

The gold mining property owned outright by the company consists of 7 claims, 5 in the Rawhide district of Nevada, and 2 in the Dulzura district of Southern California.

The Rawhide district to-day is more famous than Goldfield, Tonopah, Bullfrog, or Searchlight were at the same stage of exploration and development. The Dulzura discovery is one of the most sensational in the history of California.

Ten samples of ore which were among the first assayed, run as high as $7,461.97 to the ton, and all ten averaged over $1,500 a ton.

In both camps we located early, and our locations are choice. Our own officers will superintend the mining.

Appetite Gone Nerves Badly Run Down

A Strong Moral Well Exemplified In Mrs. Wilson's Case.

Like thousands of other people at this season of the year Mrs. E. P. Wilson was tired and worn out—winter sorely tried her health and vigor. But now she is robust and well, eats well, sleeps well, feels invigorated and braced. "For some years," writes Mrs. Wilson of Watmore, P.O., "I suffered from systematic weakness, biliousness and depressing headaches. I could take little nourishment and grew thin and pale. If I ate a hearty meal the result was dreadful. Pains started at my chest, and spread all through my body going across my stomach, back and right side. I was discouraged till a friend insisted on me taking Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They made a new woman of me, and for the past eight months my health has been perfect. For a good cleaning, rejuvenating medicine I urge every one to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

There is extraordinary and magic power in Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they bring vigor, tone, health, and spirits—are compounded from the most wonderful and healing juices and essence in vegetable life—are safe for young and old, and guaranteed to kindle renewed activity and strength in every system that is weak, sickly or run down from kidney, liver, stomach or bladder trouble. Typos' Picnic on Civic Holiday

The Printers will hold their annual excursion to Idyl Wyld on Civic Holiday. The steamer Otonabee has been chartered, and a good crowd is expected. A committee has been appointed to look after the program, and the picnic should certainly be a success.

—Mr. C. M. Hall of Cleveland, one of the contractors on the new G.T.P., was in the city on Sunday, visiting Mr. M. Berryman, the manager of the new Lubricating Co. Mr. Hall was very much pleased with the city, and our left luck.

Better Position

And Increased Salary as a Result of Eating Right Food

There is not only comfort in using food that nourishes brain and body but sometimes it helps a lot in increasing one's salary.

A Kans. school teacher tells an interesting experience. Says she:—

"About two years ago I was extremely miserable from a nervous-ness that made me coming o nfor some time. Any sudden noise was actually painful to me and my nights were made miserable by horrible nightmare.

"I was losing flesh all the time and at last was obliged to give up the school I was teaching and go home.

"Mother put me to bed and sent for the doctor. I was so nervous the cotton sheets gave me a chill and they put me in woollens. The medicine I took did me no apparent good. Finally, a neighbor suggested that Grape-Nuts might be good for me to eat. I had never heard of this food but the name sounded good so I decided to try it.

"I began to eat Grape-Nuts and soon found my reserve energy growing so that in a short time I was filling a better position and drawing a large salary than I had ever done before.

"As I am little children playing around me and enter into their games I wonder if I am the same teacher of whom, two years ago, the children spoke as 'ugly old thing.'

"Grape-Nuts food with cream has become a regular part of my diet, and I have not been sick a day in the past two years." "There's a Reason."

Murder Committed in an Opium Den

Montreal, July 7.—A murder was committed in an opium den in the back of a restaurant on Lagauchetiere street, Chinatown, this afternoon. The name of the victim is not known. The restaurant is kept by a Chinaman named Tan Kee. He says two men went into the back room, and a few minutes later a man with his arm in a sling entered and went through to the back room. A minute later he heard a couple of shots fired, and the two men came rushing out. He ran into the back room and found the third man lying on the floor with a bullet through his head.

News From the Old Land

London, July 7.—At a meeting of Portsmouth Hospital Governors, it was announced that an anonymous donor would pay the entire cost of, the new out-patients' department, estimated at £4,000, rather than allow funded stock of the institution to be utilized.

STEAMSHIP COMPANY.

The Murray Steamship Company, Limited, has disposed of the two steamers, Agadir and Arzila, together with the Morocco Wharf, London Dock, and the good-will of the Morocco and Canary Islands line of steamers to the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company.

£1,627 FOR BARBIZON PICTURE.

Some important pictures of the Barbizon school brought high prices at Christie's the other day. The gem of the collection was A. Mauve's "Returning from Work," which realised the remarkable price of 1,550 guineas. C. Troyon's "L. Marche du Printemps" fetched 750 guineas, and a landscape by Corot went for 550 guineas. Six Turner drawings sold for £1,349.

PARADE FINISHED.

After having taken eleven years to construct, the marine drive and promenade at Scarborough, two and a half miles long, is to be formally opened this month by Lord Londesborough. This work was to have been completed within two years, but enormous damage was done to the works by gales. The cost to date is £105,000.

MURDER TRIAL.

The six months' delay which must elapse before the ex-Life Guardsman McGuire can be tried a second time on the charge of murdering Miss Sheriff, is to be made the subject of questions in the House of Lords and house of commons. In the latter house, Mr. Bottomley will suggest that the case should be brought to the Central Criminal court in order that it may be speedily disposed of.

NEW VIEW OF EDUCATION.

William Mitchell, a Lincolnshire farmer, who has already paid over £30 in fines for not sending his children to school, was fined £1 and costs at Lincoln for a similar offence. The father claimed that he had the right to educate his children in his own way, and he was teaching them to become practical agriculturists, which would be of use to them in the future.

Two Men Were Killed in Mad Race of Automobiles

Dieppe, July 7.—The Grand Prix, the blue ribbon of the automobile world, was won today by a German, Lautenschlager, driving a Mercedes car. His time was 6 hours, 53 minutes, 43 4-5 seconds, and his average rate of speed 111.2 kilometres, or 69.05 miles an hour.

Hemery in a Benz was second, and Hanriot, also in a Benz, was third.

TWO MEN KILLED.

There were numerous accidents, and two men were killed outright. Caisac, in a Panhard, and his mechanician, Schaub, were caught under their car and horribly crushed. A tire was torn off on the final round, and the car was thrown out of top of them, mangling them horribly. They died instantly. Harrison, an English driver, was seriously injured, and had to be removed to a hospital.

GERMANS ALL THE WAY.

German cars also captured second and third places, while another German out down the Dieppe track record by one hour and 45 minutes.

A TERRIFIC PACE SET.

The race today was the most exciting since the Grand Prix was inaugurated. A terrific pace was set at the start, and three Frenchmen, Szisz, Thery, and Rabier, and Wagner, an Italian, and Salzer, a German, beat the lap record made last year in the first round. In the second round, Nazzarro, driving a Fiat, forged to the lead, but the strain of the mad speed soon began to tell on the leaders. The trouble then developed, and a strong wind, at times reaching half a gale, that blew straight in the faces of the drivers as they came down the seating of the triangular course, forced a reduction of the pace, and put an end to the hopes entertained earlier in the day that the record of last year would eb broken.

TOOK LEAD IN FOURTH ROUND.

Lautenschlager, in ophis Mercedes, drew steadily, and took the lead in the fourth round, when Nazzarro dropped back owing to a jammed clutch, and the German maintained this position to the finish.

The English drivers never were prominent, and Strang, the American, driving a Thomas car, after finishing the fourth round next to the leader, disappeared. After the fourth round the Italians also dropped out.

FRENCH HUNG ON GAMELY.

The French, however, kept up the struggle, but one by one their crack drivers, like Szisz, in a Renalt, and Duray, in a Lorraine, succumbed, and left only Thery, in a Brasier, to fire the fight out. Thery is the old veteran, who won the Gordon Bennett Cup in 1903. He was closely pursued by Hemery and Hanriot, two other French veterans, driving Benz's German cars. In the fourth and fifth rounds these five cars swept around the course with the regularity of clockwork. In the next round however, Thery had a tire accident, and the last hope of the French witnesses was gone.

HAD SPLINTER IN HIS EYE.

The French found much consolation in the gallant conduct of Hemery, who finished second. When the race was about half over a stone thrown by a flying wheel struck and broke Me gregien, and a piece of glass was driven into his eye. He continued to the tribunes, and there his accident was made known, but he refused to quit. After a surgeon had given him an injection of cocaine to kill the pain, he resumed his wheel, and continued to the end. Hemery, however, drove a German car.

FRENCH CHEERED GERMANS.

The German victory is naturally not very popular with the French, but nevertheless thousands cheered Lautenschlager as he came in a winner. As Lautenschlager was escorted to the presidential box, where he was congratulated by Mr. Mauljan, under secretary of the interior, who represented President Fallieres, the band played "Die Watch Am Rhein."

Baron Von Zuylen, president of the Automobile Club of France, sent a telegram to Emperor William announcing the success of the German drivers.

Woman Mysteriously Murdered in Chicago was a Wingham Girl

Wingham, July 7.—Fanny Gilmore, who was recently murdered in Chicago, lived in this town in her childhood days. She was the youngest girl of a family of five sisters and three brothers; their father, Robert Gilmore, was a British army pensioner, and a somewhat eccentric character, and died here many years ago. The family also resided for a time in Blyth, south of here.

FAMILY SCATTERED.

After Robert Gilmore's death his wife married again, and the family soon scattered. The eldest son joined the Mounted Police, and afterwards settled near Fort MacLeod. The eldest girl joined a circus, and was reported to have met a violent death in Texas. Another sister who married in Canada, subsequently obtained a divorce, and became an actress in New York. Fanny spent some time in Toronto, Montreal, Winnipeg and Detroit, finally bringing up in Chicago, where her career met such a tragic ending. She and her sister, Lily, who was supposed to have been killed in Texas, were both beautiful girls. Mrs. Gilmore soon separated from her second husband, and in a few years died, deserted and alone, in the little frame house on the outskirts of Wingham. The youngest son, Harold G., formerly worked as a telegraph operator here, at Lucknow and Toronto.

A TRIPLE IDENTITY.

A despatch from Chicago, says the theory of Walter C. Gilmore, the dead woman's brother, is that Edward Thompson is one person with Edward Nelson and J. H. Raymond, who registered as her husband at a Michigan avenue rooming house. A score of detectives have been searching the city and suburban towns in the hope of securing his arrest and solving the mystery. Mrs. Francis Thompson was known there as the "women' of diamonds." Her husband was thought to be a chauffeur, on account of his mode of dress.

GAVE HER HOME AS TORONTO.

Despatches from Fargo, N.D., say that when the couple were married there three years and a half ago he gave his home as Clark's Mills, Ont., his full name as Thomas E. Thompson, and his occupation as teacher. The age of Fanny Gilmore was put down as twenty-three, and her home as Toronto.

C.P.R. Will Found Y.M.C.A. Branches

A Montreal despatch says, — The C.P.R. has decided to found Y.M.C.A. branches in connection with the divisional points. Mr. H. B. Vaughan, assistant to the vice-president, left for the opening of two branches of the Y.M.C.A. in connection with that company this afternoon, one at Lapleau and the others at Schreiber—divisional points on the main line north of Lake Superior. The new branches which are the first that have been organized on the C.P.R. eastern lines will be conducted on principles similar to those of the G.T.R. The work in view will not only be religious and social, but largely educational and of a character that will be appreciated by the mechanics and others in the construction and operative departments.

"Davie" Refused to Get Out of Bed

The Lindsay Free Press in the report of the fire that destroyed the sheds of the Grand Union Hotel, says;

When the porter went to Davie Hartley's room he found the famous pedestrian working his lungs overtime. After rapping at the door several times, Davie yelled, "What the dickens do you want?"

"The house is on fire," replied the astonished porter.

"Well, let it burn," came back the angry answer from the tired walker, and Dave went off to slumberland once more.

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

To the chairman and members of the Board of Education;

Gentlemen,—Your Collegiate Institute Building Committee beg leave to report and recommend as following

Your committee have notified Mr. Kennard, clerk of the works, that he would be paid for full time, dating from 1st of May last, your committee advertised for tenders for blinds required for the building and have awarded the contract to Messrs. A. H. Stratton & Co., at $97.65, bids to be of the best quality, and mounted on guaranteed rollers.

Your committee have awarded the contract for installing the stand pipe for fire protection in Collegiate building to Mr. C. A. J. Durranceau, for the sum of $139.80; the amount is to include 200 feet of the best quality cotton hose, brass valves, hose racks, attached to the walls, four sets of brass nozzles, and all complete with pipe decorated, size and quality of pipe to be approved by the chairman of the committee, and the architect.

Your committee advertised for the tables, cupboards, etc., for the chemistry and physical laboratories, but the tenders were indefinite and unsatisfactory, and we have therefore requested the architect to furnish written detailed specifications, and will again advertise for tenders, and would ask that your committee be authorized to award the contract.

Your committee empowered Mr. Dumble, who is a member of the committee, to take charge of the leveling of the grounds and the construction of the walks, etc.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

W. A. MORROW,
Chairman.

PROPERTY COMMITTEE.

To the members of the Board of Education:

Gentlemen.—Your Property Committee beg to recommend the following repairs for the different schools;

EAST CITY SCHOOLS.

1. The walks need repairing.

2. Water connection should be made with the main building, and a basin put in for the benefit of the students.

3. The windows of Miss Covey's room should be fixed so that they may be lowered from the top.

4. Mr. Kelly's room needs reseating. Good desks may be secured from the old Collegiate buildings.

QUEEN ALEXANDRIA SCHOOL.

1. Two or three loads of fine gravel would greatly improve the under path near the rear door of the building.

2. Shelves will have to be put up for the kindergarten supplies.

3. Some of the fire bricks in the heater are misplaced.

4. There is no ample means of heating water in the summer for scrubbing purposes.

5. The hole in the concrete floor of the boys' basement needs repairing.

6. The desks belonging to the King Edward school, will have to be taken away and replaced by those belonging to the school.

SOUTH CENTRAL.

1. There is no walk or platform in front of the building for the children to line up on during fire drill.

2. The whole yard needs a covering of fine gravel, as it is very muddy in the spring and fall, and the children track in so much mud that the caretaker finds it almost impossible to keep the floors clean.

3. A solid partition between the kindergarten room and primary room would deaden the noise and greatly improve matters.

4. The caretaker reported that one of the furnaces was badly in need of repairs.

5. Some small patches of loose plaster needs fixing.

KING EDWARD.

1. The north-west room on the second floor is not properly heated. Something should be done to make this room comfortable in the winter.

2. The sewer drain from the school to the street is not yet prepared.

3. The seats used by the Collegiate students at Queen Alexandra school will have to be brought back and put down.

4. There is no simple means of heating water in this school.

WEST WARD.

1. This school needs a basement and closets and furnaces.

CENTRAL SCHOOL.

1. The stairway leading to the inspector's office needs repairing.

2. There are some bits of plastering to be done.

3. The principal room requires a new set of blinds.

4. A few loads of earth will be required to fill up a depression near the boys' entrance of the old Collegiate building.

5. If the kindergarten class and Miss Carey's class be transferred to the old Collegiate building, some painting should be done to brighten up the classes.

6. If manual training be introduced, the board should definitely decide upon the rooms to be used.

7. The caretaker might improve the desks by giving them a coat of oil.

8. The caretaker wishes the rooms to be lighted with electric light so that he may be able to keep them properly cleaned.

With the exception of suggested improvements of the West Ward school, the others should not involve much of an expenditure.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Yours respectfully,
B. F. ACKERMAN,
Chairman.

"The Blood is The Life."

Science has never gone beyond the above simple statement of scripture. But it has illuminated that statement and given it a meaning ever broadening with the increasing breadth of knowledge. When the blood is "bad" or impure it is not alone the body which suffers through disease. The brain is also clouded, the mind and judgement are affected, and many an evil deed or impure thought can be directly traced to the impurity of the blood. First, impure blood can be made pure by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery," it quickens and purifies the blood, thereby curing, pimples, blotches, eruptions and other cutaneous affections, as eczema, tetter, or salt-rheum, hives and other manifestations of impure blood.

● ● ● ● ● ●

In the cure of scrofulous swellings, enlarged glands, open eating ulcers, or old sores, the "Golden Medical Discovery" has performed the most marvelous cures. In cases of old sores, or open eating ulcers, it is well to apply to the open sores Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve, which possesses wonderful healing potency when used as an application to the sores in conjunction with the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" as a blood cleansing constitutional treatment. If your druggist don't happen to have the "All-Healing Salve" in stock, you can easily procure it by inclosing fifty-four cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, 663 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post. Most druggists keep it as well as the "Golden Medical Discovery."

● ● ● ● ● ●

You can't afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a medicine of KNOWN composition, having a complete list of ingredients in plain English on its bottle-wrapper, the same being attested as correct under oath.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels.

Port Hope Nine will Play the Petes this Afternoon

A big excursion from Port Hope will arrive in the city this morning, accompanied by the ball team of that place, who will meet the Petes at Riverside Park this afternoon.

The Port Hope nine are the sturdy bunch who defeated the Petes at the Lakeside town on July 1st. Will they do it again? The Petes say not, and are confident of victory. They had a good workout with the Whitbyites yesterday, and are in fine form. Seven thousand people witnessed the game at Port Hope on July 1st, and a big crowd is looked for at the game today.

"Gus" Murphy will be back on the coaching line, having returned from Lake Wyld, where he spent the past few days with the Hiawatha Indians, squaring onto a few war whoops. "Gus" will be talking all the time today with his side kick O'Brien. It will be a great fight for supremacy. Henry Smith and Wilson will be the visitors' battery, while Clements and Edmunds will perform for the locals.

Edmunds c.
Clements p.
Lawson 1b.
O'Brien 2b.
Maddock ss.
Hawkins 3b.
Burns rf.
Murphy lf.
Craig cf.

In the Realm of Sport

In the baseball game with Whitby yesterday afternoon, the Petes had little trouble in getting away with the nine of that burg, and the score read at the finish 6—3.

The visitors had an imported battery, Rossiter of the Park Nine of Toronto, doing the twirling, and Andrus of Oshawa the receiving. Rossiter was touched up freely by the locals, allowing 12 hits, while the visitors got four safe ones off Hawkins, who twirled for the Petes.

The locals were never hard pressed and had a good work out for their game with Port Hope today. Maddock was back in the game at short and played a finished game of ball, Jerry Edmunds played his usual brilliant game behind the bat as did Dave Lawson at first. There was little doing for the outfield, Murphy made a long run for a high fly, and Corny Burns took in a sky scraper.

Following are the teams:—

Peterborough—
Burns of.
Murphy lf.
O'Brien 3b.
Maddock ss.
Craig 2b.
Edmunds c.
Hawkins p.
Lawson 1b.

WHITBY—
Smith rf.
Bumbly cf.
Williams 1b
C. Rossiter ss
Jones lf.
H. Rossiter p.
Andrus c
Barton 2b.
Johnston 3b.

Umpire—Rattary.

The protested game between the Y.M.C.A. and Wellingtons, will be played Friday night at Nicholls Oval.

This afternoon the Chieftains champions of the Church League, play the Church League champions of Port Hope, at Nicholls' Oval at 3 o'clock.

Soaked with Liquor and Nearly Drowned

Yesterday afternoon a man giving his name as John Sullivan of Lakefield, was found lying in a mud hole just east of the National Hotel. He was under the influence of liquor, and if P. C. McGinty had not arrived when he did there is no doubt but that the man would have been drowned. He will appear before Magistrate Dumble this morning.

900 Excursionits were Here from Whitby

Yesterday the largest excursion of the season, arrived here from Whitby. There was 925 people on the train which pulled in at the G.T.R. station at 11.30 a.m. The excursion was under the auspices of the Sons of England, the Woodmen of the World, and the 34th Regt. Band of Whitby.

On arrival at the station the band played some selections, and then paraded to the Peterborough House. In the afternoon the band headed the parade to the ball grounds at Riverside Park. The band made a very creditable showing and their music was much enjoyed. The excursionists departed for home at 6.30.

Death of Mrs. Harry Phelan

Passed Away Yesterday Evening at Six O'Clock

The death occurred yesterday evening at six o'clock of Mrs. A. Nagle wife of Ald. Harry Phelan, at the family residence, 335 Rubidge street. The late Mrs. Phelan was 37 years of age, and was the second daughter of the late Richard Nagle, a lumberman of Ottawa.

The deceased had been ailing for the past few months, but not until a week ago did her illness become serious. The deceased was known among a large circle of friends, and was of a kind and lovable nature. She leaves to mourn her loss, two sisters, Mrs. M. J. Brophy of Ottawa, and Mrs. H. J. Grant of Ottawa; one son, Nagle, and a sorrowing husband, who has the sincere sympathy of all in his sad bereavement.

The funeral will take place Thursday morning at 9 o'clock from the family residence, 335 Rubidge street, to St. Peter's cathedral, and then to the Roman Catholic cemetery.

Why Do Women Worry?

First Sign of Failing Health

Worry is a disease—and it's more—it produces other diseases, because it breaks down the nerves and saps the vitality of the body.

What a pity women don't realize that if they were well—if the blood was nutritious—if the nerves were strong—if all the organs were active—then the little things that irritate and prey on the mind wouldn't receive a moment's thought.

The woman who worries has a poor appetite—she sleeps poorly. If it only lasted for a day or two it might be of small consequence—but she grows limp, miserable, unhappy—worse day by day.

She needs Ferrozone which cures worry by curing the conditions that render worry possible. For nervous, weak women, no tonic is so good; thousands it has cured just like Mrs. M. E. Mornington, of Troy, who writes: "I am quite willing to give a public testimonial for Ferrozone, believing it to be a tonic of superior excellence and one that will rapidly build up strength and supply new energy to anyone not feeling well. Last spring I was in a very poor condition of health. I was nervous, felt tired, and completely worn out. No doubt it is quite a common complaint with ladies of my age, but I placed great reliance in Ferrozone, and took it for several weeks. It made me quite strong and in fact I have been in better health ever since. I can heartily recommend Ferrozone."

This is why it gives color, clearness to the skin, buoyancy to the step, brightness to the eyes—because with good digestion and activity of the body in all its parts there's health.

JAPAN'S DEBT AND ITS TROUBLES.

There is little doubt that had Japan been now receiving payment from Russia of the big war indemnity to which it was justly entitled it would have been quite free of all its present troubles, but those who urged Japan to settle the war without receiving any such indemnity probably never think of that. It is the payment now of its war expenses (and which Russia really ought to have paid) that is at the bottom of all the trouble in Japan. Its Government has committed itself to the extraordinary programme of discharging the entire indebtedness in the course of a single generation, and that, without in the meantime contracting any new loans for any purpose whatever. That is truly a herculean task, and many doubt alike the wisdom of undertaking it and Japan's ability to perform it.

At the beginning of the year the Japanese Government resolved to begin at once paying off the loan of fifty million dollars of a war loan, though it did not fall due until about the end of the year. This it was thought would relieve the currency stringency. Instead of calling in bonds by lot it invited bondholders to compete for redemption, by offering their bonds at a practical discount, or, at least, by relinquishing the interest which would be due on them in December next; or if they preferred to receive their bonds they were offered exceptionally favorable terms. Undoubtedly this did not give the relief intended. It caused dissatisfaction. The market price of the bonds sharply declined, and the financial stringency increased. Some persons thought that the offer to redeem was made to induce the bondholders not to seek repayment, and that, practically, it was a confession the Government was unable to redeem all the bonds which might be offered. Others who had no need of ready cash declined to sell at all, preferring to wait until December when a full year's interest would be due. Bankers and capitalists strongly protested against the Government's methods, and, in consequence, it was deemed prudent to abandon the system of bond purchases—though that system had been quite successful at the close of the Chinese war—and to adopt the plan of redeeming by lot.

At present $30,000,000 of war taxes are still retained, and evidently will be continued in the yearly levy. If it so chose the Government could abolish these war taxes, and let the debt run on indefinitely, as other nations have done. Japan, however, does not choose to follow their example, but prefers to retain its war taxes, out of which it will use fifty-five million dollars for service and liquidation of the old debt, which existed before the war with Russia, and which will thus be disposed of in thirty years. It is expected that the margin which is left, together with the surplus of the ordinary budget, will obviate the necessity for any new loans for public works or other purposes.

NIAGARA AND ITS POWER COMPANIES.

A despatch from Niagara Falls to the New York Sun reports that while the power companies' tunnels were closed for inspection and repairs government engineers took observations to determine how much the American falls are damaged by the diversion of water to the power tunnels. Furthermore, it is said that the investigation showed that the water rose less than a tenth of an inch after the shutdown and that the change was so slight as to be practically negligible. This idea appears with emphasis in the added assertion that the test showed, 'according to the engineers, that forty years of time and a dozen years of rapid development have changed the river so little that those familiar with the waterfall fifty years ago could notice no change.'

The announcement is likely to cause considerable surprise, since there has been a very general impression that the withdrawal of the water for power purposes was a decided menace to the falls. People in all parts of Canada and the United States have been interested because it was felt that one of nature's grandest gifts to the country was being sacrificed to private greed. The official report of the engineers will be awaited, therefore, with great interest.

UNIQUE WEDDING GIFT.

Coffee as a wedding gift is peculiar to Brazil. The custom in coffee raising countries is unknown in other parts of the world. When a child is born in the coffee country a sack of the best grain is set aside as part of the inheritance, to be received on attaining its majority. Usually the sack is the gift from some close friend or relative, and it is guarded as sacredly as if it were a gift of gold or bonds. No stress would induce a Brazilian parent to use coffee which was made the birth gift of a child. As a rule, it is sealed with the private seal of the owner and bears a card giving all particulars about the variety of grain, its age on being sacked, the birth of the child to whom it is given and other details which are very interesting when the gift is due. Generally the coffee is opened for the first time when the child marries. The coffee for the reception or marriage feast is made from the legacy, and according to precedent this must be the first time the sack is opened. After the coffee is made for the wedding feast the sack is carefully closed and sent to the new home of the young couple and should keep them in this staple for a year at least. When both bride and bridegroom have the birth gift of coffee they have started life under very hopeful conditions, so far as one necessary is concerned. Few people know that the older the unparched grain of coffee is the better the flavor. Like wine, it grows with age, and that which is over twenty years mellowing under proper conditions will bring from $1.50 to $3 a pound from connoisseurs. The giving of pounds of green coffee is a common practice in the coffee belt. Friends exchange these gifts and compare results. When one cannot afford to give a sack of coffee it frequently is the case that ten pounds of the best grain are packed in a fancy case and bestowed on a newly born child, with directions that it must not be opened until the wedding day.

MISS TRUTH TELLER.

She Should Not Necessarily Tell the Whole Truth.

With so many people seemingly unable to tell the truth, the very title of a new book, "The Girl Who Couldn't Tell a Lie," is refreshing. One wishes to make her acquaintance. She would be a gladsome oasis in many an arid waste of lies.

Have you paused to think how many people fail to connect with the truth? Not that one advises wholesale truth telling. Indeed, it is only common decency to be silent, say, on the subject of hanging when one member of the party has had a relative hanged. A little tact will usually prevent one from saying the rude thing. A very good rule is never to ask a question which in the answering may prove unpleasant and never to make thoughtless remarks which may make somebody unhappy, uncomfortable or downright angry.

In the end the heroine in the story returns to her people, penniless and broken spirited, crushed by the discovery that in this hard and cynical world the uncompromising truth teller must pay the price of her heroic virtue.

Poor Pauline! One feels to whisper to her that it really is unnecessary, even unwise, to tell unpleasant truths. Only a goose girl would tell a fond and rich bachelor uncle her unvarnished opinion of him.

NEEDLEWORK HINTS.

How to finish the collar of a lingerie blouse is a troublesome question for some women. Fine ruching runs into money if one keeps it always fresh and dainty. The lace edge commonly seen is apt to droop over and look untidy. Here is one way a fashionable dressmaker solves the difficulty. She makes a close box plaiting of very narrow lace. It is as snug and keeps its place as well as a soft crepe lisse ruche. There is none of the falling over of the ordinary lace edge. It is a dainty finish in harmony with the blouse, especially if it is lace trimmed, and it is not expensive. If you buy your blouses ready made, just get a bit of very narrow valenciennes, plait it in and see what a dainty, pretty finish it is.

A pretty cord holder is made with a large piece of heavy cardboard, with the three points joined at the top to form a triangle shaped receptacle that will hold a ball of cord. Make a hole in the bottom of the box and draw the end of the cord through. Fasten the sides together with little bows of baby ribbon and tie at the top with baby ribbon.

Next to leather itself, nothing is more useful for covering shirt waist and other utility boxes than burlap. Then, too, if the color selected harmonizes with the color scheme of the room it combines beauty with usefulness. The edges of the box should be finished off with linen braid of the color of the burlap and held in place by button tacks. Both the braid and the tacks may be bought of any upholsterer or in any drapery department of any general furnishing store. Burlap can be used with splendid effect for portieres where an inexpensive yet attractive material is desired. A running stenciled design around the bottom and up the sides would give the needed decoration.

To Rid Walks of Weeds.

To rid the walks of weeds boil two pounds of arsenic and four pounds of salsoda in six gallons of water. To every gallon of the boiling mixture add three gallons of cold water and sprinkle it over the walks while it is warm and when the walks are dry.

A DAINTY WORKBAG.

Useful to the Girl Who Goes on Week End Visits.

For this dainty little workbag one yard of pretty flowered silk ribbon six inches wide, two yards of narrow ribbon to match and four octagonal pieces of cardboard four inches across are required. Cut off sixteen inches of the broad ribbon, join round the two ends, gather round one edge, and one inch below the other edge stitch round a piece of the narrow ribbon to form a case for that which draws in the bag. Cover with the broad ribbon one side each of two pieces of cardboard which have been cut into perfect octagons, and on the covered side of one of the pieces fix across a piece of narrow ribbon and tack it down in the center to form cases for bodkin, ribbon runner, etc. Round the edge of this sew the gathered edge of the bag. Turn the bag inside out and sew on the other piece of cardboard, with the covered side uppermost.

Now cover the third piece of cardboard on both sides. Cut three sides off the fourth piece of cardboard and cover the larger of the two pieces with the broad ribbon. Sew this on the third piece of covered cardboard so as to form a pocket to hold a tiny pair of scissors, and on this pocket attach a couple of small pieces of thin flannel for a needlecase.

One side or edge of this must be sewed to one side of the bottom of the bag. Make a little loop of buttonhole stitch in the center of the side right opposite to this, through which a short glass headed pin can fasten this side also to the bottom of the bag, which when closed looks like an ordinary affair.

There ought to be a small cutting of ribbon over, of which a tiny bag could be made for holding hooks, eyes, buttons, etc., while a further addition to its utility would be a couple of tiny reels of cotton, a tape measure and a thimble. The little pincushion is made of velvet stuffed with wadding.

Black and white glass headed pins are stuck round the edges of the bottom of the bag, which make a nice finish.

A CULINARY NOVELTY.

Surprises to Tempt Palates That Sigh For "Something New."

Olives may be a cultivated taste, but to the trained palate they offer endless novelties when used in clever combinations. The modern cook holds the olive in gentle regard and with its aid prepares many a surprise to tempt palates that sigh for "something new."

Olive sandwiches, which are tiny ovals of thin bread spread with butter, then with equal parts of grated celery and chopped walnut meats put together in pairs, with a stoned olive pressed into the top, are popular at teas.

Russian sandwiches are made by chopping olives fine and just moistening them with mayonnaise. Cut thin slices of bread in narrow strips. Spread the olive upon half the pieces, spreading the others with caviare. Press together in pairs.

Stuffed olives have the stones removed and replaced by any salpicon or forcemeat preferred. A variety is produced by stuffing them with some savory butter, such as lemon butter, apple butter, etc. They are separated from the stone spirally, as one peels an apple. The stoned olive is then folded about the filling, which should be about the size of the stone, until it resumes its original shape.

A Sad Leaning That Way.

At Emerson's dinner table one day there was mention of a woman well known as a lion hunter, and in speaking of her Mrs. Emerson used the word "snob." Mr. Emerson objected; the word was too harsh; he didn't like that ugly class of words beginning with "sn." His wife inquired how he would characterize the lady. "I should say"—very slowly—"she is a person having great sympathy with success."

"Fighting Bob's" Wife.

Mrs. Robley D. Evans, wife of the admiral, is a soft voiced woman of the south with snow white hair waved back from a face untroubled as a child's. A more dovelike mate for the grizzled naval hero could hardly be imagined. The stirring events of his eventful career have left no impression on her countenance of her soul. Her sunny temperament is one of her greatest charms.

Pain will depart in exactly twenty minutes if one of Dr. Sheop's Pink Pain Tablets is taken. Pain anywhere. Remember Pain always means congestion, blood pressure — nothing else. Headache is blood pressure, toothache is blood pressure on the sensitive nerve. Dr. Sheop's Headache Tablets—also called Pink Pain Tablets—quickly and safely coax this blood pressure away from pain centers. Powerful periods with women get instant relief. 20 Tablets 25c. Sold by all druggists.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nerve sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop to the creation of that now very popular ailment Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.

For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend

SOAP BUBBLES.

How Some Pretty and Marvelous Effects May Be Produced.

There are degrees of skill in all pastimes, but one would hardly think that there were specialists in the art of blowing soap bubbles. An article in the Windsor Magazine by Meredith Nugent, however, shows that some very pretty and marvelous effects may be obtained by the exercise of care and patience with soap and water.

The first step is to make a solution by rubbing pure white castile soap into a bowl partly filled with water until a lather has been formed. Then remove very particle of lather, dip a clay pipe into the cleared solution and start to blow a bubble.

If you can blow one six inches in diameter so that it will hang suspended from the pipe and will allow your forefinger covered with the solution to be poked through into the bubble without breaking, then the mixture is ready for use.

Six bubbles may be blown, one inside the other. This is performed by dipping the end of a straw in the soapy water and after resting the wet end upon an inverted plate or sheet of glass, which should have been previously wet with the solution, blow a bubble six inches in diameter.

Then dip the straw into the solution again, carefully thrust it through into the center of this first bubble and blow another. Continue in this manner until all the bubbles are in position. Great care must be taken that the straw is thoroughly wet with solution for fully half its length before each bubble is blown. With practice ten or twelve bubbles may be placed inside of one another.

No Tears Nor Hills.

In the days when Rowley Hill was bishop of the Isle of Man one of his clergymen bearing the name of Tears came to say adieu to his bishop on getting preferment. The parson said: "Goodby, my lord. I hope we may meet again, but if not here in some better place."

The bishop replied, "I fear the latter is unlikely, as there are no Tears in heaven."

"No doubt," with a answered the parson, "you are right that our chance of meeting is small, as one reads of the plains of paradise, but never of any Hills there." London Queen.

Australian Bushmen.

Although the Bushmen of Australia are the very lowest in the scale of ignorance, they possess a rare instinct that equals that of many animals and is in its way as wonderful as man's reason. It is almost impossible for them to be lost. Even if they be led away from their home blindfolded for miles, when released they will unerringly turn in the right direction and make their way to their nest homes, and, though these are all very similar, they never make a mistake.

Fool and Sage.

The fool and his money are parted, not long did they stay in cahoots, but the fool is the cheerful hearted and gladdest of human galoots. His neighbor is better and wiser, six figures might tell what he's worth, but, oh, how folks wish the old miser would fall off the edge of the earth!—Emporia Gazette.

And That's All.

"Mr Jingle's writings show a great deal of imagination, don't you think?"

"Yes, they show that he imagines he can write poetry."

Suzy.

Suzy Ethel Jenkins, she Lives across th' street from me.
Suzy's eyes is awful black;
Sends th' shivers down your back.

Suzy, she knows lots o' things—
Bears an' ghosts an' pirate kings
Rings 'at w'en you only rub
Brings a genie wit a club!

W'en I think of things she's said
I'm jus' scared to go to bed;
Seems like some of Suzy's bears
Was a-growlin' on th' stairs.

Value of Statistics.

"Do you think it is a good idea to give your audience much in the way of statistics?" asked one campaign orator.

For the Umbrella Stand.

The rain it raineth every day
Upon the unjust and unjust fella,
But chiefly on the just, because
The unjust has the just's umbrella.
—Bishop Creighton, Quoted in Public Opinion.

Equipment.

Dashaway—I'm going to a house party. Wonder what I need to take along?

Cleverton—About a quart of five dollar gold pieces to tip the servants with, a flannel shirt, dress suit, pajamas and a half dozen engagement rings.

With Apologies.

What a joy to press the pillow
Of a hop fiend chamber bed
And to listen to the yawning
Of the tenants overhead!

A MODERN MACAULAY.

Wonderful Memory of an Old Time Missouri Lawyer.

One of the most picturesque of the early lawyers of Missouri was Billy Campbell, who came from Virginia in 1820 and opened an office in St. Charles. He was a man of great ability, a classic scholar, an orator and a political writer of unusual power. But he was indolent, careless about collecting and spending money and so lazy that physical exertion of any kind was positively painful to him. He had a most remarkable memory, as proved by the following incident: Campbell, who was a Whig, represented his district in the state senate several years. On one occasion he was lying on a bench in the senate chamber, apparently sleeping, when the Democratic members came in to hold a caucus. They attempted to assume him, but he appeared so soundly asleep that they decided to let him alone. The next day a complete report of the proceedings of the caucus, including a verbatim copy of the resolutions adopted, was published in the St. Louis Republican. A row followed, and the secretary was charged with having been bribed to report the proceedings of the caucus. After the excitement died down somewhat Campbell admitted that he had been awake all the time and that he had done the reportorial work entirely from memory.

A MUFF BED.

Surprise of a Man Who Thought It Had to Do With Sleep.

A man who saw on a sign the words "muff beds" and imagined that a muff bed must be something to sleep in, a brother or cousin or other more or less distant relative of the sleeping bag, such as explorers carry with them, found upon inquiry that his imagination had carried him very far from the truth; that the muff bed is in fact not a bed at all, but in the trade name for the upper part of a muff, the body of the muff—in short, the part you put your hands in.

The muff bed consists of a double walled bag made in cylindrical or other shape, according to the style of muff, and then stuffed with down, the quality and quantity of the down depending on the character of the muff.

The making of muff beds is a business by itself. Some of them are sold to the furriers in the simplest form, just the bed or bag stuffed with down, the furrier putting in the silk or satin lining when he puts on the fur. Others are made with the silk or satin lower lining attached, to be finished up when the fur is put on. There is at least one concern in New York that makes a specialty of muff beds and turns out many thousands of them annually.

Wanted a Rebate.

In a rural community in one of the middle states dwelt a man who made a vow in 1856 that he would wear his hair and beard untrimmed until John C. Fremont should be elected president of the United States. He kept that vow for forty years, at the end of which time he had nearly a half bushel of hair on his head and face. Then, coming to the conclusion, toward which his mind had been gradually working for a long time, that General Fremont's death in the interval had practically absolved him from his vow, he decided to have his hair cut and his beard shaved off clean. On his next visit to the county seat he went to a barber shop and was soon relieved of the bizarre burden he had carried for four decades.

"How much?" he asked.

"Have to charge you half a dollar for that job," said the barber, looking at the mass that lay on the floor.

"Half a dollar!" he gasped. "Don't I get anything for the hair?"

The Actor and the Critic.

One of the near comedians who always affect to be entirely careless of newspaper criticism recently struck from his list of bowing acquaintances a critic noted for his candor. The player met the writer and a friend while crossing a park square and exchanged a few words of greeting and as he passed on heard this conversation:

"Who was that?"

"Oh, that is L., the actor."

"He does not look much like an actor off the stage."

"Still less when he's on the stage," returned the critic.—Argonaut.

On New England Tombstones.

There were several epitaphs which fascinated you for awhile, epitaphs like that of "Helen Tyndall, Killed by a Fall from the Main topmast Yard of the Bark Amazon, in the Harbor of Buenos Aires on March 12, 1850:

"He as a seaman did his duty well,
But his feet slipped, and from aloft he fell—
Fell, but to rise and climb the shrouds on high
And greet his Master with a glad 'Aye, aye!'"

Or that which recorded the fate of "Absalom Peters, Shot in the Crank by the Explosion of his own Gun."

A Scramble.

"All the world's a stage."

"What of it?"

"I was just thinking that the cast is so large that nobody gets much of a chance at the spot-light."

His Weak Point.

The Stage Manager—He can play "drunken parts" better than any man on the stage. The Business Manager—Yes, but he's too fond of rehearsing.

Pastime brings in some beats that are not observed.—Shakespeare.

To prevent raisins or currants in cake from dropping to the bottom of the pan first put a little of the dough into the pan and then put in the cake mixture to which the fruit, well floured, has been added.

Never use soda for washing china that has any gilding on it, for the soda will in time surely remove it all. Instead of soda use a little soap. That has no bad effect.

A RAISE IN MINING STOCK

ALLOTMENT SUBSCRIBED.

The requisite amount of stock has been subscribed and paid in full to enable the Company to proceed to allotment and commence business.

RAISE OF MINING STOCK.

THE GREAT NORTHERN LARDER LAKE MINING CO., Limited, proposes to advance price of their treasury stock to Twenty-five (25c) cents on June 23rd. Last chance to buy at ten cents a share, par value One Dollar, fully paid up and non-assessable.

The foreman, Mr. David Foster, of Cobalt, has started to work on the Company's property with a gang of men to develop veins already discovered, also to continue stripping in search of new gold veins.

We are erecting boarding houses and dining-rooms for our men.

HEAD COPY OF CERTIFICATE AND STATUTORY DECLARATION CONFIRMING SAME.

Toronto, March 20th, 1908.

To the Great Northern Larder Lake Mining Company, Limited—

Gentlemen,—

I beg to confirm my previous report to you that in my judgment the surface showings on the 14 mining claims which the Company has acquired, being Nos. S.A. 218 to 231, inclusive indicate the probability of the existence of large bodies of both high grade and low grade free-milling ore, sufficient to pay dividends for an indefinite period,

I have personally examined a number of veins and reefs on said property (consisting of about 640 acres) and had some assays made and from such examinations and assays I make this report.

The statement on pages nine and ten of the Prospectus giving the short history of the Company are correct. I insisted on retaining a large interest in the Company rather than sell for any price that seemed reasonable to the purchasers.

10 PER SHARE.

Par Value One Dollar fully paid Up and Nonassessable.

DAVID A. FOSTER,
Haileybury.

IN THE MATTER OF THE GREAT NORTHERN LARDER LAKE MINING CO., LTD.

Statutory Declaration.
DOMINION OF CANADA
County of York,
TO WIT:

I, David Foster, of the town of Haileybury, in the district of Nipissing, miner, do solemnly declare that the statements in the annexed certificate are true. I have personally inspected all of the fourteen claims now transferred to the Great Northern Larder Lake Mining Company, Limited. I have taken samples containing gold values from said property, and from my personal examination, and from assays made, I believe the Company's property when developed, will prove very valuable. I have full confidence in the success of the said Company, and on this account, with the exception of $440 already received, I have agreed to accept stock in said Company, and a note which I believe will not be of much value should the actual development work not prove the said claims to contain gold in paying quantities as it is not payable for one year from this date or until after the Company shall have done the necessary development work on said claims. And I make this solemn declaration conscientiously believing it to be true and knowing that it is of the same force and effect as if made under oath, and by virtue of "The Canada Evidence Act."

DAVID A. FOSTER.

Declared before me at Toronto, in the County of York, this 31st day of March, 1908. J. T. LOFTUS, A. Commissioner in H. C. J.

PROPERTIES TRANSFERRED.

Since the prospectus was printed, the sale of the 14 mining claims to the Company has been completed and the transfers to the Company are registered in the Recorder's Office at Larder City. There is no mortgage or other encumbrance against said claims.

The gold mining property owned outright by the company consists of 7 claims, 5 in the Rawhide district of Nevada, and 2 in the Dulzura district of Southern California.

The Rawhide district to-day is more famous than Goldfield, Tonapah, Bullfrog, or Searchlight were at the same stage of exploration and development. The Dulzura discovery is one of the most sensational in the history of California.

Ten samples of ore which were among the first assayed, ran as high as $7,461.87 to the ton, and all ten averaged over $1,600 a ton.

In both camps we located early, and our locations are choice. Our own officers will superintend the mining.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the Northwest Provinces, excepting 8 and 26 reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each on and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father or mother.

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

Says This Medicine Has Mystic Powers

Will Assist Anyone in Weak, Pale, Nervous Condition to Robust, Hearty, Health.

It's in the spring that health gives out—that folks begin to feel draggy, weary, restless,—hate to eat, look pale, feel discouraged.

If you've reached this state, read what J. W. Jerred, well known in Morristown, has to say about the medicine that cured him "Last winter I caught a heavy cold that settled in my back. My kidneys and liver were affected and my health failed. By spring I was in bad shape—couldn't sleep like I used to—felt tired in the morning—ate very little—was terribly depressed, pale and anxious looking. Twinges of rheumatism, frequent neuralgia attacks over the temples, made matters worse. The doctor prescribed three times, but didn't help. Then I heard of Dr. Hamilton's Pills,—They possess mystic power surely, for I gained and improved day by day and now am in perfect health again. I will praise and use Dr. Hamilton's Pills till I die."

The ingredients in Dr. Hamilton's Pills are pure and wholesome—come right from the storehouse of Nature in the form of vegetable juices and extracts,—consequently this gentle invigorating laxative tonic and blood purifier is safe for old and young alike. We assure you of enormous benefit from Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which revitalize delicate glands, search out the seat of hidden disease, flood the body with vigor and health that has caused thousands of broken-down, despairing men and women to join in a mighty song of praise for the beneficient aid that comes from this king of all tonics. Get Dr. Hamilton's Pills today. 25c at all dealers.

To Canadian Investors

The undersigned has received an allotment of unsold portion of $100,000 of

7 Per Cent. First Mortgage Five-Year Gold Bonds

dated January 11, 1908, and maturing January 11, 1913. These Bonds are offered at par and accrued interest by Metropolitan Trust & Savings Bank, Chicago, Trustees.

SECURITY—The Entire Property and Improvements Owned THE URES CONSOLIDATED MINING COMPANY in the District of Ures, State of Sonora Mexico. Free from Mortgage of Bonded Indebtedness except this present Bond Issue.

An Unusual Opportunity for Investment in Sound Security

The Ures Consolidated Mining Company offers $[illegible] of First Mortgage Gold Bonds. This issue of bonds is the only mortgage or bonded indebtedness ever placed on the company's properties.

These bonds are in the denomination of $100.00, and bear interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, July and January, and are redeemable on or before five years from date at the company's option at $110.00 and accrued interest.

With each bond issued there will be given $100.00 par value of the capital stock of the company as a bonus, and in addition thereto there will be placed in escrow with the Trustee additional stock which will be available to the bondholders at their option any time within a period of three years, the bondholder being entitled to surrender his bond any time within said period and receive in lieu thereof stock for every dollar of indebtedness to him on account of said bonds.

The Security Back of these Bonds

The company owns twelve claims situated in the district of Ures, State of Sonora, Mexico, free from mortgage or bonded indebtedness, except the present bond issue."

On one of these properties (The Ramona Mine) 6,000 feet of underground development work has been done, consisting of an inclined shaft to the depth of 400 feet with drifts in three levels to the North and South of the shaft.

An average value of ore worth $11.47 per ton is exposed throughout the mine, from the collar of the shaft to the extreme parts in the drifts, all of which is above water level.

The company has made surface improvements and mine improvements to the extent of $60,000.00 in the way of machinery, skids, trams, steam hoists, mill and nearly everything necessary to make the mining camp complete.

In addition to the absolute ownership of these twelve valuable claims, the company has a lease on the San Jose Mine, adjoining its property, to which the company has been operating in high grade ore.

During the past sixty days the company has extracted and delivered to ore buyers and the bank at Hermosillo, $5,000.00 worth of ore and bullion, the ore having been reduced to bullion through the company's mill, with the exception of 1,464 pounds, which was sold to an ore buyer for $562.50.

This issue of bonds is made for the purpose of securing money at once in order to extend the development work more quickly than the company's present means will permit.

With the high grade ore in sight to the distance of 80 feet to the South of the shaft, the management is assured that within six months from date of making the improvements now necessary the company's properties will be on a self-sustaining and dividend-paying basis.

The Stock which is Given with these bonds will be as valuable as the bonds when the Company has the ready capital to push operations

Men who invest in these bonds will have no cause or reason to regret their action, for the bonds afford an investment in a security which is absolutely safe—much better than ordinary city or country real estate, which is considered perfectly safe if the property put up to secure a mortgage is double the face of the loan. The security given on these bonds is better than 7 to 1, for the Ures Consolidated Mining Company has refused an offer of $750,000.00 for the property upon which this $100,000.00 worth of bonds is issued.

These bonds are an investment with all speculative risk eliminated —an investment with absolute security.

Make your reservation at once. This is small and promises to be quickly sold.

Banco de Sonora, Hermosillo, Mex., Feb. 11th, 1908.

To whom it may concern:—

We hereby beg to state that The Ures Consolidated Mining Company has during the past five years made several deliveries of bullion to this bank, and it is the opinion of mining men here that they have the making of a fair mine, and further, that the properties owned and controlled by them bid promise of becoming paying properties.

From our knowledge of the men connected, we believe they are doing all in their power to bring about the results above mentioned.

$100 DONATED TO QUEBEC BATTLE-FIELD'S PROJECT

Voted by City Council Last Night---$400 for the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition

The city fathers met in special session last evening at five o'clock.

A letter was received from the department saying the Government would not acquiesce in the proposition to make improvements to the locks at Lakefield, and at Young's Point.

$400 were voted to the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition.

The council also made a grant of $100 to the Quebec battlefields project.

The Bank of Toronto, notified the city that its debt at the bank at the end of June was $6192.50.

The reports of several committees the proceedings of which have been published before, were read and adopted.

EXPRESSION OF SYMPATHY.

Moved by Ald. Bradburn, seconded by Ald. Morrow,—That this council express to Alderman Harry Phelan the deep sympathy of the members with him in the sad bereavement he has been called upon to suffer by the death of his wife, which occurred last night, and also their sympathy with his young son, and assure them that they have the sincere sympathy of the whole community in the loss they have sustained of a loving wife and mother, and that this council attend the funeral in a body as a mark of respect for the deceased lady and to show their sympathy with the bereaved family. —Carried.

Father Farrelly Dies After 57 Years in Priesthood

Belleville, July 8.—The death took place here this morning of Right Rev Monsignor Farrelly, one of the oldest priests in Canada, after some weeks' illness. Deceased was born in Cavan County, Ireland, 1827, ordained priest 1851, and created Monsignor, with title of Domestic Prelate, by Pope Leo XIII., a 1880. His first charge was Aspheodel, then Lindsay, then Kingston, and for 34 years he was priest here, resigning three years ago from failing health. He celebrated his golden jubilee in the priesthood here in 1901. He was administrator of the diocese and arch-diocese of Kingston during the absence of his superiors. He had the esteem of all classes in this district, and his death was a great shock to his parishioners.

The body will lie in state at St. Michael's church the funeral being called for Saturday morning, when all the clergy of the district, including Archbishop Gauthier will be here.

Canadian Committee Stands by Longboat

Ottawa, July 8.—Tom Longboat is still quite eligible for the Olympic Marathon, according to the latest information in possession of the Canadian Central Committee.

Members of the committee have been watching with interest the cable despatches from London regarding the Indian's qualifications, and if Longboat is finally disqualified, it will be a big surprise locally.

The Canadian Committee entered Longboat on the strength of the recommendation of the C.A.A.U., and the entry was accepted with the rest. Nothing was heard as regards real objections until Lord Desborough informed the Canadian Association Press that he feared the Americans would withdraw their entries rather than take chances of sacrificing their amateur standing by competing against Longboat.

Mr. Pereira, the secretary, stated today, that as far as the committee knew, Longboat would run. He does not think that the objections of the Americans are well founded, and is of the opinion that the Olympic Committee will request the United States athlete moguls to furnish proof of Longboat's professionalism before dropping his name from the list of Marathon candidates.

The Central Committee members believe the British Committee composed of honest, square sportsmen, who will stand for no bluffing. The United States has gone to an enormous expense in sending over their athletes, and it is not believed that they will, under any circumstances, carry out their threats to drop out of all the events should Longboat be declared eligible.

When the Olympic Committee found Howard, the Canadian trap-shooter, ineligible they notified the Canadian Committee immediately, and this, Mr. Pereira believes is the course they would have followed in the case of Tom Longboat.

You'll Feel Worse Every Day Unless You Brace Up Quick. The Best Treatment is Ferrozone.

"About three years ago" says Mr. Meehan, "I had the Grippe which left me in a very run-down condition that finally developed into Dyspepsia. I was able to eat but a few things and had a craving for acid. I gave up trusting with the doctors because they did not help me and on the advice of a friend used Ferrozone. It not only cured me of Dyspepsia and Biliousness, but has built up my strength to what it was before I had the Grippe. I can recommend Ferrozone as an ideal restorative."

Ferrozone gives you force, energy, vim.

Thousands use Ferrozone—they all improve—get better health—look better—feel better; try it yourself—sold in the 50Cas by all druggists.

Feared That 200 Persons May be Burned to Death

Budapest, July 8.—A serious fire broke out here today as a result of a benzine explosion on the premises of a chemical manufacturing company, and the flames have spread so rapidly that it is feared that many of the two hundred persons employed by the concern will be burned to death.

Four persons already have been killed by jumping from windows. Unsuccessful attempts were made to catch them in nets as they came down.

Canadian Crew in Dire Peril on Lake Ontario

Watertown, N.Y., July 8.—A Canadian schooner, name unknown, was blown ashore near Sackett's Harbor last night in a gale that raged on Lake Ontario, and is rapidly going to pieces.

The life-saving crew from Big Sandy has been summoned.

The stranded schooner is flying its flag at half mast, a sign of distress, and the life-saving crew from Sandy and the life-saving crew from Big Sandy, which was summoned at 9 o'clock, is momentarily expected. The waves are dashing over the craft.

The point where the schooner struck is known as Bull Rock, on the Ellisburg Point shore, about two miles from Sackett's Harbor, and beyond communication.

Dogs Kill Herd of Young Cattle

Mr. Davidson, a well known Smith farmer near Nassau, stated yesterday that in less than two days he had eight head of cattle killed by dogs. Some of the cattle have been choked to death, being caught by the throats by the dogs, others died from the heat and fright.

Tumbled from Punt into the Water

Bewaths, July 8.—Falling from a punt on Rose Lake, in which he was playing, little Cecil Mather, son of Mr. Duncan Mather, almost lost his life a few days ago. He and a companion, Fraser Gray, were out on the boat not far from shore, when he accidentally tumbled out. He sank beneath the surface twice, and it was only the presence of mind of his playmate that saved him. The Gray boy leaned out over the edge and assisted him to get back into the punt again.

In the Realm of Sport

The Petes are travelling in rather hard luck. Maddock has just recovered from his injury, having had his ankle sprained. "Gus." Murphy is out of the game with a wrenched knee, now "Obie" O'Brien, the 3rd sacker, who was hit on the shoulder at Port Hope, had the misfortune to collide with another of Henry Burgis' curves and had the ligaments of the muscle of the same shoulder bruised, and will be out of the game Saturday. Hawkins will replace him on third, while Craig will play left field in Murphy's position.

A fine cut of Harry Burridge, the Youngstown catcher, formerly of the Peterborough Ball Club, appears in the Youngstown Telegram which has the following to say about him; "Harry Burridge is one of the finds of the season. Local fandom has never seen a player develop faster than he has. The stocky little catcher has made good because he is a willing worker and a listener. There isn't a lazy bone in him and he has never failed to pay heed to the advice of an older and more experienced mate. Burridge has the build and nerve of a future great. He bids fair to be one of the league's stars in a couple of seasons.

Yesterday afternoon the Chieftains Baseball Club put it over the Methodist team from Port Hope, by a score of 20—5. Korn, the Chieftain's pitcher, pitched a no hit game, and only allowed one base on balls. The Chieftains are not only the fastest hockey team in the town for their age, but also the best baseball team.

The Petes and the Port Hope nine played an exhibition game at Riverside Park yesterday afternoon before a small crowd of spectators, the locals winning by a score of 9—8. Clements and Hawkins did the twirling for the homesters, with Jerry Edmunds behind the bat. Burpee and Wilson performing for the visitors, while Andrus did the receiving. Murphy was out of the game, Corey Burns playing left field, while "Josh" Craig performed at center. During the game "Fris" O'Brien had the muscles of his shoulder badly injured but pluckily stayed with it to the finish. "Obie" has got his batting eye working again, and used the willow freely, although he had an off day on the stick. Murphy and O'Brien will be out of the game against the Athletics on Saturday, both being on the hospital list.

Umpire—Battary.

The Montreal Star's special correspondent in England, has the following to say of the Olympic team;

London, Eng., July 7.—Among the renewed newspaper reports that Longboat would pass by the disqualified as a professional, I again questioned the Olympic secretary. He replied; "It is simply newspaper talk. So far as we know affairs, everything is all right. If any representations are to be made they must be made in the next few days or it will be too late."

The Canadians are delighted that the King permits the Marathon race to start from the private grounds at Windsor Castle.

Most of the sporting writers agree that only two out of the fifteen competing countries stand a chance of prevailing the victor, namely, Canada and Great Britain, the Canadian favorites being Longboat and Simpson. On the other hand, Barrows writing in the London, says; "Longboat won his races easily, but never within half of the record of Shrubb England has half a dozen who will make beat Longboat."

Canadians entered for the Olympic play and shooting competitions are Parlow, Ewan, Fletcher, Beattie, Vivian, Wenaver and McMahon.

There are sixty entries altogether representing eight countries.

Mounted Police Inspector A Prisoner of Fanatics

Sinclair, Man., July 8.—The religious fanatics have intend moving north today. They have been delayed by the lameness of their solitary horse.

Inspector Tucker of the Mounted Police visit of the invaders yesterday. While conversing with them, Constable King, who with Constable Turner has been in continuous touch with them, was seen riding in the direction of the farm where one of the invaders was getting supplies. King David suspected treachery and the seizure of his follower, and immediately the entire outfit pointed guns at the inspector, and the pseudo-Christ told him he would be shot if his men did not turn up. The inspector was kept in this uncomfortable plight for some time, until the man reappeared.

Leader Christ claims two of the band deserted. They issued a challenge to the police yesterday to come and have it out, as they wanted this struggle over. Chief Rooke of the Manitoba police withdrew, deeming this an affair for the Federal force.

Inspector Tucker has 50 mounted police from Regina awaiting developments. The delay is going after the band apparently as that they are just within the Manitoba boundary line, where the R.N.W.M.P. has no jurisdiction, except on special requisition.

CRAZY, BLASPHEMOUS LETTER.

The following extraordinary epistle, purporting to be written by the Virgin Mary, and dictated by Jesus Christ, has been left with the police here, being evidently the work of the ringleader, Jas. Sharpe;

"To save bloodshed, use sound judgment. If you are determined to take me, dead or alive, I would rather you would shoot me from ambush, and not shoot any of my followers, and then you would not be taking chances of getting shot.

"I will never give up alive. If I have got to continue living, sinful man. I would rather die. When can any Jesus is the Christ only by the Holy Ghost. The spirit comes to Christ in the form of a dove. He comes to me in the shape of a lion among the Gentiles, according to the Scriptures. I don't want to kill; I want to do good. When the Doukhobors receive me God will prove me, and then your eyes will come open."

Splendid Crop Assured in Western Canada

(Special to The Times.)

Winnipeg, Man., July 8.—Summing up the crop reports for the week from Brandon, Regina, Edmonton, Saskatoon, Lethbridge, Medicine Hat, Moose Jaw, Lloyd-Minister, Dauphin, Portage la Prairie, and other points show no falling off from the high standard of quantity and quality of the Western last crop. In some sections Forty bushels to the acre will not be regarded as anything extraordinary. Figures at hand tell that 4,000,000 acres of land is under crop this year and it is estimated that the total yield will not be less than 120,000,000 bushels, this means there will be 100,000 bushels for export with a return to the country of at least $60,000,000 without counting in the $12,000,000 value for home consumption purposes. Why should not the big wholesale, financial and manufacturing interests of the city of Winnipeg feel optimistic; upon just such solid foundations of agricultural resources the city has made for itself that of becoming third in importance in the Dominion.

ACTIVE BUILDING OPERATIONS.

Much building is now going on in the West and thousands of men are being employed. The Lyall-Mitchell Co., contractors for the new million dollar Union depot at Winnipeg have now their work in full swing, and the monthly report of the building inspector shows that a greater number of fine residences costing between $5,000 and $8,000 are under construction than in former years. Peter Lyall & Sons have secured the contract for the construction of the new parliament buildings at Regina, Sask., the contract price being $1,000,000.

WEST ENJOYS HOLIDAY WEEK.

Calgary celebrated Dominion holiday by the opening of the Dominion Fair amid great crowds. At the opening day there was a splendid pageant in which the grandest array of floats ever in parade in the West were in procession, two thousand Indians and cow-boys made up one of the most interesting parades ever witnessed.

At 6,000 people celebrated Dominion Day, Ringling Circus covering fifteen acres with their tents attracted 20,000 at the two performances, 11,000 attended the sporting events of the day and 5,000 took in the excursions to Winnipeg Beach, while Happyland the white city of the west attracted another 5,000.

AMERICAN IMMIGRATION.

In all of the larger cities of Western Canada the fourth of July was right royally celebrated. The American invasion of the West give promise of increasing, thirty sections of land in the Tramping Lake district west of Saskatoon have been acquired as the result of a visit of a party of Americans. These people are highly acceptable as an intelligent, industrious and thrifty people who speak our own language and practice our own customs. They are participating in the political issues which arise and are looking to the welfare of that provincial community of which they become members of.

COMMERCIAL CITY ENTERTAINS.

The various business organizations of Winnipeg are carrying into effect a "Trade Week" celebration during exhibition dates, this year. Business firms are sending our special invitations to Western customers, the retail shopping interests are co-operating in making extensive decorations and the city will present a gala appearance from July 11-18. The novel features outside of the exhibition attractions will consist in special prizes in window dressing, delivery rig and automobile decorations, store front illumination contests throughout the residential sections, there is being offered substantial prizes for the best decorated houses, the awards are being based on the best attractive and welcome features for the entertainment of the thousands of visitors that will take advantage to this annual event at Winnipeg.

Buckhorn Factory Voted off the Board

At the meeting of the Cheese Board yesterday morning, it was decided by a vote of the members that the Buckhorn factory is taken off the Board. The new president stated that the above factory are in agreement with a Montreal firm to sell their cheese at the highest price paid by the Peterborough Board and that their cheese had never been boarded.

Mr. Kennedy, the salesman, was present and explained the nature of the contract, which he maintained was a perfectly legitimate one. The Buckhorn factory paid its dues and was willing to pay all claims and fees made upon it. His factory had done no underhand work. They had not done as some had, boarded their cheese with the pretense that it was for sale on the Board, and at the same time have them sold before the meeting, and Mr. Kennedy believed that Buckhorn should have the privileges of the Peterborough Board.

The president and Mr. Hawthorne, the secretary, considered that Buckhorn factory was getting the same benefits as the others, and yet it did not see at the board in any way.

A vote was taken, and the majority present decided to have the factory under discussion erased from the board.

C. P. R. Company's Boat Wins the Big Race

Soo, Ont., July 8.—The result of the race between the Huronic of the Northern Navigation Co., and the Assiniboia of the C.P.R. fleet was a victory for the Assiniboia, which arrived at the head of ship locks at 6.25 this morning, about ten minutes earlier than the Huronic.

The trip down Lake Superior was a most exciting one. The Huronic was three minutes later than the C.P.R. boat in starting, leaving Port William at one o'clock yesterday afternoon, and soon caught up. Neither boat had any advantage until six o'clock, when the Assiniboia took the lead and held it right to the Soo.

It is seldom that a race of 370 miles lasting over seventeen hours results in such a close finish.

This morning at the Government dock Commodore Anderson of the Assiniboia, was presented by Mayor Thompson on behalf of the citizens of the town with a handsome chair His Worship also read an address to which Capt. Anderson responded suitably.

The town band headed a procession of citizens to the dock, where, for a short time, high carnival was held.

GOVERNMENT INSPECTION OF BANKS

The failure of the Ontario and Sovereign Banks, the collapse of the Bank of St. John's and the suspension of the Bank of St. Hyacinthe, all within a comparatively short time, might at first lead one to believe, says The Monetary Times, that our much-lauded bank system was in peril of losing its reputation. Naturally, the caustic critics will seize upon these four incidents as a text for drastic banking reform. When three or four tradespeople fail it is illogical to argue that the city's business is rapidly declining. Neither can it be correctly concluded, because four banks have failed to weather the financial storms during the last few years, that the monetary system of the country is in danger. The incidents prove one thing—a more strict supervision on the part of the Government is necessary.

The statement made by the banks monthly to the Government are taken by the business men of this country as correct. They are semi-broadcasted by the Department of Finance at Ottawa; the Department's statement is made up according to returns furnished by the banks. It is likely to be proved that the statements thus furnished by at least one of the banks mentioned were incorrect and misleading. The Department of Finance might conceive some way in which they shall know, as surely as is possible, the veracity or otherwise, of the figures submitted by the banks.

This leads to the subject of Government inspection—a topic which comes up usually with a cause for remodelling a country's financial institutions. Whenever national prosperity is checked or a difficulty is experienced in obtaining at moderate rates all the money required for development, people come forward with patent financial medicines. The present instance is somewhat exceptional. So far as we know, only one Canadian bank manager favors Government inspection of banks. There has risen in comparatively recent years a feeling that banks are not private businesses, but distinctly national, and even government institutions.

It is apt to be forgotten that banking is a business, usually undertaken without supervision, and managed by business men. The bank desires to make a profit on this year's operations, even as a departmental store. It is possible now to deposit money at three stores, even, which, broadly speaking, places them in the same category as banks. They have amounts on deposit, but are not required to submit a statement of such deposits to the Department of Finance. Yet there is no public cry that they shall be required to make such a statement or that they be inspected. While this is a somewhat extreme comparison, it may be that such a complaint is not made because it is recognized that a departmental store is a private business, and that the Government cannot undertake to protect the public in the investments of their personal moneys.

If the Government adopted a system of inspection—and it would have to be an intricate one to protect the shareholders — it would seem they would have to extend the same protection to all other financial institutions, while the same principles would have to be still further exploited and carried into every incorporated company. Many bankers state that in the only country where Government inspection has been consummated it is recognized as very largely a failure. It would be difficult to name one single instance in which a bank of the United States has been saved by the intervention of the Government examiner. On the other hand, the Government should be able to check, to some extent, the statements furnished them by the banks. Such a means cannot be devised by hasty legislation. To be satisfactory it must be the result of a conference between the Government and the bankers. The bankers of Canada are always willing and eager to improve the banking system. If improvement is possible, one may rely upon their hearty co-operation with the authorities at Ottawa.

A GREAT REFORM

The Laurier Government has taken a bold and forward step. The civil service reform bill introduced in the House is one of the finest achievements of the administration, and a hopeful omen for Canadian public life. Briefly the bill aims to take the whole inside civil service out of the hands of politicians; to divorce it from the patronage system; to free it from party guilt. Entrance to the service will be by merit alone, as determined by competitive examinations open to all applicants without distinction of party. It will be no longer necessary for candidates for the inside service to belong to the party in power, and to have a pull with the dispensers of patronage. The only test will be ability and fitness so far as these can be ascertained by an examination system, combined with the personal judgment of the civil service commissioners, who are to be independent of party.

When vacancies arise in the inside service, the commissioners will advertise the offices open, and hold examinations. They will rank the competitors in order of merit, having regard to their standing in the written tests, but to their character, habits and other qualifications. The commissioners will also regulate promotion in the inside service, not by examination, but by issue of certificates of merit, based on monthly records of the conduct of employees.

While the new law will apply only to the inside service—i. e., the people at Ottawa,—any branch of the outside service may be brought under its provisions by order-in-council. Doubtless in time the new system will cover the whole service, inside and outside, but the Government has thought it wiser to restrict the new plan to the Ottawa service, so as to test it thoroughly before going further.

The new regulations will raise the tone and efficiency of the public service, and at the same time help to divorce party politics by relieving it of some of the incubus of patronage.

THE OLD-AGE PENSION

Premier Asquith's old-age pension bill has passed its second reading in the House of Commons without any opposition or division. While the tory-unionists have criticized some of its features, it is quite clear that what really troubles them is the fact that the liberals have had the opportunity to offer a pension scheme of any kind and gain credit for establishing the principle itself. Their organs accuse Asquith of nervous haste to "get there first" and of overlooking many crudities and faults in his measure in order to save time. They do not, however, suggest that it was his duty to wait until after the next general election.

It is understood that the bill will be amended in many particulars. The government will accept minor changes tending to simplify and improve the administrative machinery provided and to meet practical objections. The provisions that will be insisted on are those fixing the pension age at 70 and the weekly payment at $1.25. The liberals feel that the state of the national finances precludes greater generosity, and the opposition, though it favors larger payments, explains that a condition precedent to an increased rate is "the broadening of the basis of taxation" or the adoption of revenue duties with incidental protection.

That the pension bill will pass parliament is admitted by all, for the house of lords will not be asked or advised by Balfour, Milner, Curzon and the other tory leaders to stand in the way of social reform.

It is interesting to find the Australian commonwealth competing with the mother country in old-age pensions. The federal parliament of the commonwealth is now putting through a pension bill which provides for a rate double that of the English scheme, or $2.50 a week, and fixes the pension age at 65. Canada, too, is studying the old-age pension problem, though she expects to solve it along different lines.

A BROKEN CUP.

The Way a Queen Saved an Old Servant From Dismissal.

A charming story is told of the former queen regent of Holland, the mother of Queen Wilhelmina. The old king had bought a fine service of Sevres porcelain for the use of the royal family, and he gave orders that any servant who should break any piece of it should be punished by being instantly dismissed. One day a man who had been many years in the royal household confessed to the young queen that he had broken one of these Sevres cups. Queen Emma spoke comfortingly to him and suggested that he should mend the cup. That, said the man, would be useless, for the king would surely notice the crack. Nevertheless the queen told him to mend the cup as neatly as possible and to be sure to give it to her that afternoon at tea time, when the king would be present. Tea time came, and the queen, after drinking from the mended cup, suddenly rose and let it fall to the floor. It was smashed to atoms.

"Think of me as one of the most awkward of your majesty's servants," she said humbly. "I have broken one of your precious Sevres cups. You must dismiss me at once. I don't deserve to be retained in your service." The arbitrary old king was highly amused at her dramatic manner and considered the matter a good joke. He never knew the true story of the broken cup.

Cheese and War.

The origin of cheese is shrouded in mystery. There is little doubt, however, that its birthplace was in India and that it is an offspring of a game called chaturanga, which is mentioned in oriental literature as in use fully 200 years before the Christian era. From India chess spread into Persia and thence into Arabia, and ultimately the Arabs took it into Spain and the rest of western Europe. The game was in all probability invented for the purpose of illustrating the art of war. The Arab legend upon this point is that it was devised for the instruction of a young despot by his father, a learned Brahman, to teach him that a king notwithstanding his power was dependent for safety upon his subjects. The Greek historians credit the invention of the game to Palamedes, who, they claim, devised it to beguile the tedium of the siege of Troy during the Trojan war.

HIT THE WRONG BANK

A WALL STREET EXPERIENCE.

The Would Be Depositor of Modest Means Found Himself In a Place For Millionaires—An Official's Courteous Explanation and Advice.

"When," said the man who writes pieces for magazines and things, "by some strange and unprecedented chance, I had got hold of a matter of $350 all at one and the same time it looked big to me. By an even more curious chance there wasn't anything that I really needed to do with the money, so I decided that I'd bank it.

"Now, I knew in a general way that in order to put money in a bank you've got to be known and give your pedigree and look respectable, and all that, and I hated to approach a bank without any sort of credentials. Therefore I went to the business manager of a certain magazine which occasionally prints pieces that I write and asked him what I'd better do.

"'Simplest thing in the world,' said he. 'I'll give you a note to our bank.'

"That sounded fine to me. He wrote me the note, and I started for the bank a good deal tickled over how easy the little depositing proceeding had been made.

"The bank to which I had the note is in Wall street. I asked the uniformed man who was standing around where I'd find the receiving teller's window, and he pointed that window out to me. I got into line and watched the teller take in money.

"I must own that I was a bit stalled to note the great size of some of the deposits he was receiving. Why, fellows were giving the money to him by the satchelful. But I had my note in my pocket, and I remained complacent enough with that consciousness.

"When I reached the receiving teller I passed in my note, and the receiving teller, a decidedly civil young man, opened it and read it. Then he looked at me, after which he read the note again, this time with a sort of puzzled expression on his countenance. I didn't see why the receiving teller should be puzzled over such a simple matter, but puzzled he seemed. He rang a bell, and the uniformed man who'd directed me to that window appeared.

"'Show this gentleman to the office of the cashier,' said the receiving teller to the uniformed man, at the same time regarding me with a pleasant smile, and the uniformed man led me down the passageway and took me behind a railing where there was a handsome gray haired gentleman sitting at a desk.

"The handsome gray haired gentleman received me courteously and invited me to be seated. I handed him my note, which the receiving teller had returned to me, and he leaned back in his chair and read it carefully. Then he, too, looked puzzled after he'd read the note a second time. Then he looked at me pleasantly over the tops of his spectacles.

"'Ahem!' said the handsome gray haired gentleman, not disagreeably, but in a nice, banker-like way. 'Might I—er—inquire, Mr. Penphist, without seeming to be unduly inquisitive, as to how—er—large a—er—balance you would usually be carrying?'

"Well, that was a civil enough question, nothing inquisitive about it.

"'Why, sir,' I said to the handsome gray haired gentleman, 'I am opening an account with a matter of some $350, but I shall no doubt make some additions to that within the next two months, and probably I shall carry a balance of—well, say, $500 or $600 right along.'

"The kindly cashier with the gray hair fairly beamed upon me.

"'Er—just so, just so,' said he, twiddling his thumbs. 'We feel complimented, Mr. Penphist, we really do, that you should have come to us. And it is unfortunate—er—really unfortunate, that we are so utterly lacking in facilities for taking care of accounts of such a character.'

"'You see, Mr. Penphist, our institution is of—er—a sort of special character. It is used as a depository by—well, perhaps I should put it in a clearer manner. I say it to you quite in confidence, you understand, Mr. Penphist, but we have only 1,600 depositors on our books, and these 1,600 depositors' aggregate balances amount all the time to a matter of $110,000,000.'

"Well, that was about enough. I saw the light then. I'd drifted into a millionaires' bank on the careless credentials of a business manager who'd written me that note no doubt in a thoughtless mood.

"The gray haired cashier acted bully about it. He recommended a fine bank to me—one that combines perfect responsibility with the necessary facilities for handling accounts like—er—yours, Mr. Penphist,' he added.

"For all of the cashier's niceness I walked out of there into the cold gray light of Wall street feeling like a good deal of a human caterpillar.

"I didn't go to the bank recommended to me by the cashier; didn't have the nerve to visit any more banks. I've got $62 left now of the $350, but I'm going to use that as a nest egg, and maybe some day even yet I'll have a bank account."

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the Northwest Provinces, excepting 8 and 26 reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father or mother.

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

"ALL DEALERS"

DON'T GIGGLE, GIRLS.

Nothing More Infectious and Charming Than a Good Laugh.

If half the girls knew how silly they looked when they constantly giggled they would stop it.

Learn to smile or laugh.

Nothing is more infectious and harrowing than a good laugh, but very few people know how to laugh. It is as rare in life as it is on the stage.

A giggle usually comes from nervousness. A girl will giggle when she cannot think of anything to say or when she is trying to be at ease in company.

She will giggle when a boy meets her and says "Good morning." She will giggle when he says "Goodby." She is only nervous, but she appears silly.

It is no wonder that young men pout with utter scorn at the giggling girl. They seem to think her the least attractive maiden on earth. It is trying to attempt to be fairly rational conversation with a girl who will punctuate her every remark with giggles.

It is not always possible to know at first thought whether or not you are one of the girls who giggle. Stop and think about it. Watch yourself the next time you are with any one. See whether this senseless trick is a part of your social equipment. If it is, take any heroic means to strangle that giggle until it is dead.

Far better be silent. You may then get the credit for wisdom that you have not got. Better than all if you don't know how to converse, natural, spontaneous laugh, then try your best to learn how to smile.

Do not let yourself give a weary sigh, for that is the result of effort and self conscious pose, but anything is better than a silly giggle.

TO TEST MATERIALS.

Distinguishing Pure Linen From Counterfeits Easy.

Of the goods sold as "linen" there is not one-tenth that is genuine. Generally the main component is cotton.

The test for this is simple. All that is necessary is to pull out a few threads and apply a lighted match. Cotton will go off in a blaze; wool will shrivel up.

To distinguish pure linen from counterfeit is even easier. The intended buyer need but wet her finger and apply it to the goods. If they are pure linen, the moisture will pass straight through. The spot touched will be soaked at once, and almost immediately the other side will be as wet as the other.

Brands are to be numerous in silk fabrics as in any other choice, but here also the basis of adulteration is cotton. Its presence can readily be discovered by a new three cent test. The pieces of cotton will snap off short when pulled, while the silk will stretch and permit considerable pull before breaking.

The best test of all, "when there is no cost by itself" is not necessarily so. Yet ingenuity has devised means of giving the poorest article the glossy appearance for this purpose.

Gum and other sticky substances mixed through the fabric will produce as stiff a silk as ever graced the wardrobe of our ancestors. Such stuff is quite worthless, however, as it quickly rots.

Keeping His Word.

Mrs. Fogarty (in fashionable restaurant)—"Now, for goodness' sake, Mike, don't order Irish stew."

Mr. Fogarty—All right, I won't, dear. Waither, fetch me syther some Hibernian suey or Celtic goulash!

Boots in Mandalay.

The Burman—that is, the emancipated and comparatively well-to-do Burman who can afford to think about his apparel—has taken permanently to boots. He still shies at the ugliness — and the inappropriateness in his climate — of European clothes, but he has adopted boots. There was a danger at first that the reformers of foot-wear would content themselves with the boot in all its black western unsightliness. A few years ago it was a common thing, at ceremonies in Burmese houses, to see men dressed in all the glory of native costumes—silks of the most delicately beautiful shades and of the most gorgeous hues—quite disfigured by a pair of the biggest, blackest, dullest boots and coarse stockings, always down over the ankles. But, happily, the Burmans have evolved a boot of their own, shapely things in brown or white buckskin, which harmonize very well with native clothes, and they wear finely knit, appropriately colored stockings kept in place by suspenders.

A Wonderful Drummer.

Probably the most remarkable drummer who ever lived was Jean Henri, the famous tambour major of the Emperor Napoleon. One of his feats was to play on fifteen different toned drums at the same time in so soft and harmonious a manner that instead of the deafening uproar that might have been expected the effect was that of a novel and complete instrument. In playing he passed from one drum to the other with such wonderful quickness that the eyes of the spectators could hardly follow the movement of his hands and body.

Woman's World

MME. MIDZUNO.

Japanese Consul's Wife Tells How Matches Are Made in Mikado's Land.

"Americans fall in love and then marry; the Japanese marry and then fall in love."

This is the statement of the wife of Kokikochi Midzuno, the Japanese consul general. She recently arrived from her native land and is living at present at the Barnard, 106 Central Park West, New York city.

"Why do American women tire of their husbands?" she asked as she brewed tea and ordered cake.

"American women," she said, "ought to stop and think of one of our old songs. The words of it run like this: 'I want to live to be ninety-nine years, and you must live to be a hundred, so that we may be happy while our hair grows gray.'

"Marriage is safer in Japan. Experienced people arrange it. In the great wisdom of our parents these marriages are brought about. A young man desires to marry a girl. Her father arranges a meeting, and the two young persons are introduced. Maybe they do not love at first, but after awhile a great and tender affection steals upon them. Wives in Japan are content with their husbands for years and years.

"Too many husbands is not a happy thing," she declared. "The American women should be more content and not crave so much excitement. They should have wise people to choose for them their mates and not go so suddenly into matrimony. To love all before marriage and leave no happiness for the years to come after that is not a good thing."

"Our English," he said, "is more academic than Idiomatic. We understand English with our eyes long before we know it through our ears."

Quaint Dental Wisdom.

In every age writers have occupied themselves with dental hygiene, and an old writer at the end of the sixteenth century quaintly condenses dental wisdom as follows:

"If you want to guard the teeth against all accidents, external as well as internal, to keep them beautiful and useful to the end of a long life, take care not to put into the mouth anything too hot or too cold.

"Do not eat meat that is hard or difficult to digest.

"Do not eat sweet or sticky things, nor break with the teeth anything that is hard, nor drink wine or water too cold, as many do during the heat of summer. Avoid soups that are too hot.

"After you have eaten, wash the mouth immediately with some harsh or rough wine to prevent decay. When you eat, do so on both sides of the mouth. Do not favor one side more than the other.

"Figs, sugar and other things which are inclined to soften or try the teeth are bad and unwholesome."

There is one golden rule that says, "After eating, rinse the mouth," and another, "Brush the teeth night and morning."

Dainty women do this three and four times a day. It becomes second nature with them.

In brushing, do not use too large a brush or too stiff bristles. See that the surface of the brush is well rounded, that it may reach every corner of the mouth.

The ideal way to brush is from the gum toward the end of the teeth, downward for the upper jaw and upward for the lower. In brushing lengthwise of the entire row of teeth there is danger of irritating the tender gums.

The woman who cares for immaculate teeth will every twenty-four hours pass through the interstices a thread of silk, made for the purpose, to remove every last particle of food.

A RAISE IN MINING STOCK

ALLOTMENT SUBSCRIBED.

The requisite amount of stock has been subscribed and paid in full to enable the Company to proceed to allotment and commence business.

RAISE OF MINING STOCK.

THE GREAT NORTHERN LARDER LAKE MINING CO., Limited, proposes to advance price of their treasury stock to Twenty-five (25c) cents on June 22nd. Last chance to buy at ten cents a share, par value One Dollar, fully paid up and non-assessable.

The foreman, Mr. David Foster, of Cobalt, has started to work on the Company's property with a gang of men to develop veins already discovered, also to continue striping in search of new gold veins.

We are erecting boarding houses and dining-rooms for our men.

HEAD COPY OF CERTIFICATE AND STATUTORY DECLARATION CONFIRMING SAME.

Toronto, March 25th, 1908.

To the Great Northern Larder Lake Mining Company, Limited:—

Gentlemen,—

I beg to confirm my previous report to you that in my judgment the surface showings on the 14 mining claims which the Company has acquired, being Nos. H.R. 231 to H. R. 234, both inclusive indicate the probability of the existence of large bodies of both high grade and low grade free-milling ore, sufficient to pay dividends for an indefinite period.

I have personally examined a number of veins and reefs on said property (consisting of about 56c acres) and had some assays made and from such examinations and assays I make this report.

The statement on pages nine and ten of the Prospectus giving the short history of the Company are correct. I insisted on retaining a large interest in the Company rather than sell for any price that seemed reasonable to the purchasers.

DAVID A. FOSTER,
Haileybury.

IN THE MATTER OF THE GREAT NORTHERN LARDER LAKE MINING CO., LTD.

Statutory Declaration.
DOMINION OF CANADA
County of York,
TO WIT:

I, David Foster, of the town of Haileybury, in the district of Nipissing, miner, do solemnly declare that the statements in the annexed certificate are true. I have personally inspected all of the fourteen claims now transferred to the Great Northern Larder Lake Mining Company, Limited. I have taken samples containing gold values from said property, and from my personal examination, and from assays made, I believe the Company's property when developed, will prove very valuable. I have full confidence in the success of the said Company, and on this account, with the exception of $500 already received, I have agreed to accept stock in said Company, and a note which I believe will not be of much value should the actual development work not prove the said claims to contain gold in paying quantities as it is not payable for one year from this date or until after the Company shall have done the necessary development work on said claims. And I make this solemn declaration conscientiously believing it to be true and knowing that it is of the same force and effect as if made under oath, and by virtue of "The Canada Evidence Act."

DAVID A. FOSTER.

Declared before me at Toronto, in the County of York, this 31st day of March, 1908. J. T. LOFTUS, A. Commissioner in H. C. J.

PROPERTIES TRANSFERED.

Since the prospectus was printed, the sale of the 14 mining claims to the Company has been completed and the transfers to the Company are registered in the Recorder's Office at Larder City. There is no mortgage or other encumbrance against said claims.

Balzac and the Thief.

A story, said to be new, of Balzac is related by a French contemporary. A burglar gained admission to Balzac's house and was seen at work by the light of the moon at the back of the apartment in the novelist's chamber. Balzac was asleep at the time, but the movements of the intruder aroused him. The burglar, who was working most industriously, paused. A strident laugh arrested his operations, and he beheld by the moonlight the novelist sitting up in bed, his sides aching with laughter.

"What is it that makes you merry?" demanded the burglar.

"I laugh," replied the author of "Pere Goriot," "to think that you should come in the night without a lantern to search my secretaire for money when I can never find any there in broad daylight."

Heat prostrates the nerves. In the summer one needs a tonic to offset the customary hot weather Nerve and Strength depression. You will feel better within 48 hours after beginning to take such a remedy as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Its prompt action in restoring the weakened nerves is surprising. Of course, you won't get entirely strong in a few but each day you can actually feel the improvement. That tired, lifeless, spiritless, feeling will quickly depart when using the Restorative. Dr. Shoop's Restorative will sharpen a failing appetite; it aids digestion; it will strengthen the weakened Kidneys and Heart by simply rebuilding the worn-out nerves that these organs depend upon. Test it a few days and be convinced. Sold by all druggists.

1 CENT A 2 SHARE

Send us your name as a member in this new company, with your remittance for as many thousand shares as you can take at $5 per thousand.

This is a short-time offer on a hurry-up proposition. Our vice president is up at Rawhide now putting the miners at work. We want to raise the necessary funds for development as quickly as possible. Therefore, we offer the first block of stock at $5 a thousand shares. This subscription must be all cash. We want the money in hand. We mean to work without let-up, and we have made it an ironclad rule not to run in debt. Cash counts now.

Our prospectuses are out. Send for one.

Make reservation of stock. If you do so more. But, remember, this present offer of stock at Half a Cent a Share is now up, and will be closed as soon as enough cash subscriptions are in hand. Don't wait, or you will get left.

The gold mining property owned outright by the company consists of 7 claims, 4 in the Rawhide district of Nevada, and 3 in the Dulzura district of Southern California.

The Rawhide district to-day is more famous than Goldfield, Tonopah, Bullfrog, or Searchlight were at the same stage of exploration and development. The Dulzura discovery is one of the most sensational in the history of California.

Ten samples of ore which were among the first assayed, run as high as $17,451.37 to the ton, and all ten averaged over $1,600 a ton.

In both camps we located early, and our locations are choice. Our own officers will superintend the mining.

What every Woman Requires for Headache Langour

Mrs. Mary Flannigan Gives Advice that is Sound, Useful and True.

Has your strength given out?
Do you feel languid and tired this spring?
Are you pale, somewhat nervous, finding it hard to do your housework?
Thousands feel just the same,—feel the enervating influence of spring, whether that brings out latent symptoms of disease and weakness. You should do like Mrs. Flannigan of Keswick Junction — here is her experience. "I will never again suffer the tortures of deadening spring illness — never will I have headaches, such sleepless nights, such pale cheeks and lack of appetite. I lived through it all several times, but now I know the medicine that cures. I urge every person, young and old, to try the invigorating effect of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. When I was so played out, tiglheen.—Dr. Hamilton's Pills gave an appetite—I relished my meals and grew strong. Rosy color came to my cheeks, every day I felt brighter and better. Ally my old strength has been restored and the great tonic, blood purifying powers of Dr. Hamilton's Pills did it all."
Women who are continually pale, blind and sick headaches, faint and dizzy spells, aching muscles, bearing down pains, lack of sleep and loss of appetite—they are the poor women that sorely need Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut, 25c at all dealers.

Half of a George street store to rent, very central, for 13th July, suitable for serving refreshments. Apply at this office.

Will Speak Here on the 13th

Rev. A. H. Brace of Cobourg, formerly pastor of the Park street Baptist church, has accepted the invitation to be one of the speakers at the Orangle celebration here on the 13th.

An Outside Contract

The local plumbing and electrical contractors, F. R. J. MacPherson & Co., have secured the contract of ventilating and wiring the new $60,000 school at Belleville. They have also the contract of heating and plumbing at a large residence in Stirling, and the new armories here.

Death of Willie Merrell

Tuesday night the death occurred of Willie Merrell, the 7-year-old son of Mr. Wm. Merrell. The little fellow was in the first book at St. Peter's school, and gave promise of a bright future. The funeral will be held today at 3 o'clock from the family residence, 561 Homewood avenue, to St. Peter's cemetery.

Pain will depart in exactly twenty minutes if one of Dr. Shoop's Pink Pain Tablets is taken. Pain anywhere. Remember! Pain always means congestion, blood pressure — nothing else. Headache is blood pressure, toothache is blood pressure on the sensitive nerve. Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets—also called Pink Pain Tablets—quickly and safely coax the blood pressure away from pain centers. Painful periods with women get instant relief. 20 Tablets 25c. Sold by all druggists.

New Tent Arrives

—Rev. H. M. Manning stated yesterday that the new tent which will be used for a place of worship until a new church is built, arrived yesterday and has been set up. On Sunday morning and evening services will be held in the tent and Sunday school will be held in the afternoon.

Park Nines will Play Here on 13th

A baseball match with the fast Park Nine of Toronto, leaders of their league, will take place on the 13th at Riverside Park. A large crowd will likely see the game as that is the day of the big Orange celebration. The Lindsay Wide-awakes will be here for a game with the Petes next week.

Night Performances at the Fair

The directors of the Peterborough Industrial Fair, have made plans to renew the night performances. The main building and other exhibits will be illuminated at night, and those who cannot attend the fair during the day can do so at night. A number of first-class attractions have been secured and a good entertainment will be held each evening in front of the grand stand.

Inspected C. G. E. Building

Yesterday morning Chief Howard inspected the C.G.E. building. He was accompanied by Mr. E. G. Patteson, superintendent of the works. A bylaw will likely be passed by the council by which Chief Howard will have to inspect the public buildings, factories, theaters and stores once a year. His first report is ready for the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

St. John's S. S. Picnic

St. John's Sunday school picnic was held yesterday to South Beach, Clear Lake. There were about 350 excursionists on board the Ozonaba, which carried them from Wolfe St. wharf over the left sock to the Beach. After spending a most pleasant day the party arrived home at 8 o'clock.

"Dad" Taylor to the Fore

In our report yesterday of the excursion from Whitby, we omitted to mention that Mr. William Taylor the (daddy) of the Sons of England society here, did the honors at the arrival of the visitors at the G.T.R. station. Mr. Taylor introduced the mayor and chairman of the reception committee, with a few well chosen remarks, and did everything necessary to make the visitors feel at home while they remained in the city.

"Con" Murphy Out of the Game

"Con." Murphy, the popular left fielder for the Petes, is out of the game, and will probably be on the bench for a month or the rest of the season. In Tuesday's game with Whitby, while sliding to 3rd base, he had the misfortune to wrench his knee. "Josh" Craig will probably play in the left garden for the Petes against the Athletics on Saturday.

Excursion from Port Hope

The Methodist church of Port Hope, ran an excursion to this city yesterday. About 250 arrived in the city at 10 o'clock, and journied to Nicholls Oval where a program of sports were run off, including a baseball match between the Chief tains and Port Hope. The excursionists left for home about 5.30

Cow Stolen from Field

Douro, July 8.—On Dominion Day a fat cow was stolen from the farm of Mr. David Leahy, and he has since learned nothing of the whereabouts or of the party who secured it. On that date Mr. Leahy attended the T. A.S. picnic down the Otonabee and next morning found that the beast was missing. Coming home that night about midnight he met a man driving a cow toward Peterborough and believes that it was his.

Do You Think For Yourself?

Or, do you open your mouth like a young bird and gulp down whatever food or medicine may be offered you?

When an intelligent thinking woman in need of relief from weakness, nervousness, pain and suffering, does it means much to you that there is one tried and true honest medicine of known composition, sold by druggists for the cure of women's ills.

The makers of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, for the cure of weak, nervous, run-down, over-worked, debilitated, pain-racked women, knowing this medicine to be made up of ingredients, every one of which has the strongest possible indorsement of the leading and standard authorities of the several schools of practice, are perfectly willing, and in fact, are only too glad to print, as they do, the formula, or list of ingredients, of which it is composed, in plain English, on every bottle-wrapper.

The formula of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will bear the most critical examination of medical experts, for it contains no alcohol, narcotics, harmful, or habit-forming drugs, and no agent enters into it that is not highly recommended by the most advanced and leading medical teachers and authorities of their several schools of practice. These authorities recommend the ingredients of Dr Pierce's Favorite Prescription for the cure of exactly the same ailments for which this world-famed medicine is advised.

No other medicine for woman's ills has any such professional endorsement as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has received, in the unqualified recommendation of each of its several ingredients by scores of leading medical men of all the schools of practice. Is such an endorsement not worthy of your consideration?

A booklet of ingredients, with numerous authoritative professional endorsements by the leading medical authorities of this country, will be mailed free to any one sending name and address with request for same. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Tortured with Skin Rash

Zam-Buk Brought Relief

At this time of the year children are liable to all kinds of torturing rashes and eruptions, and the advice of Mrs. F. Rowe of 1 Oxford st., London, Ont., is timely. She says:—"A horrid rash broke out on my little boy's body. The child suffered acutely with the burning and itching and grew quite restless. A friend advised me to try Zam-Buk. I did so, and was surprised to see how quickly it relieved the rash. The very first application seemed to cool and ease the burning and itching, making the child rest easier. In several days he was completely cured, not a mark remaining on the skin to show where the trouble had been. Zam-Buk is the best healing balm yet used."

Boom Broke and Logs Escaped

Lakefield, July 8.—The McDonald Lumber Company is having an unfortunate time with its logs this season. In the severe storm of Saturday night a boom containing one of the company's drives of logs broke near Mr. Wm. Irwin's cottages at Stony Lake and scattered the logs in the various bays adjacent. A boom had to be stretched on Sunday from Mr. Harris's Island to Grassy Point to keep them from scattering over the lake.

Women Cured At HOme

Women's disorders always yield, from the very beginning of the treatment to the mild but effective action of Orange Lily.

Within two or three days after commencing its use the improvement becomes noticeable, and this improvement continues until the patient is completely cured. Orange Lily is an applied or local treatment, and acts directly on womanly organs, removing the congestion, toning and strengthening the nerves, and restoring perfect circulation in the diseased parts.

In order to convince all suffering women of the value of this remedy I will send a 25-cent box enough for ten days' treatment, absolutely FREE to each lady sending me her address.

Petes and Athletics Clash Saturday

Saturday's big game between the Athletics and the Petes, is the talk of the fans, who seem to be in a quandry to pick the winners. Many of the "wise ones" are digging out the boys so khaki to pull out another victory from the Johnsonites. This would be no surprise on account of the Petes' crippled condition, beside the fact that the Athletics are playing winning ball, as is evidenced by their victories over both the Petes and Cobourg. Their work in the field and on the bags has shown great improvement while their batting average has increased 100 per cent. Manager Lynch has so improved on his team, by putting them through strenuous work at practice that they are now playing the fastest ball in the league.

The keenest of rivalry exists between the two teams, and a great contest is assured.

Sherring Says that They are Canada's Hope in the Marathon Race

Not Banking on Longboat

London, July 9.—Canada's best chances in the Olympic games look to be as follows;

Bobby Kerr in the sprints.

Ed. Archibald in the pole vault.

Cal. Bricker in the broad jump.

Sherring from three Englishmen—A. Duncan, J. C. Bush and F. Lord. Duncan is the 10 and 25-mile champion of England, and won the trial Marathon over this course.

The Canadians are worrying today over the non-arrival of Dr Bricker, the Toronto jumper. He was due here on Sunday, but has not yet put in an appearance. The Canadians expect Bricker to do well in the broad jump.

W. Morton, the Toronto cyclist, arrived today. He is considered to have a chance in the sprints. The other Canadian cyclists are faster than ever, but cannot get the stretch sprint necessary to win. They may do better in the long races.

London, July 9.—Kerr of Hamilton, ran a hundred metres in 10.3 seconds in a practice stunt this morning. This is a world's record.

Archibald of Toronto, vaulted twelve feet three inches easily.

LONGBOAT O.K.

London, July 9.—Despite American blathering, the name of Tom Longboat is today published in the official list of Olympic entries.

Bridge Fell Into the River and Many were Killed

Cologne, July 9.—The new bridge, under construction over the Rhine at Cologne, fell into the river today and a number of workmen engaged on the structure lost their lives.

Up to noon fourteen bodies have been recovered, and nine men have been taken from the water seriously injured.

It is impossible to tell now exactly how many were killed. The scaffolding supporting the powerful crane used in the erection of the central span of the bridge collapsed, and carried with it several other spans. Many of the workmen were thrown into the river, and are still under with the scaffolding, and there is no possible hope for their lives.

Immediately after the accident a number of boats put out for the scene and began the work of rescue. About a score of struggling men were quickly picked up.

Important Statement Issued by Liquidators of the York Loan

The liquidator of the York County Loan & Savings Company has been actively engaged since the winding-up order in realizing upon the assets of the company, and has been exceedingly successful in getting in a large amount of its assets, and it is confidently expected that, instead of the 25 per cent. dividend, which was first anticipated as a maximum, the liquidator, will be able to pay at least 40 per cent., but, as to the dividend, the liquidator expects to be in a position to make a further announcement within a short time.

The above paragraph forms part of a statement handed out yesterday morning by the liquidators, the National Trust Co. The settlement of the conflicting claims of the various classes of shareholders of the defunct company is also given.

GENERALLY RANK EQUALLY.

The result of the settlement is that all the shareholders with a few exceptions, rank equally upon the assets of the estate, the total amount of the preferred claims being $69.-427, whereas the total amount of claims for preference made by certain shareholders amounted to $1.-250,000. If these preferred claims had been allowed, there would have been very little left for the ordinary shareholders.

The result of the settlement practically to affirm the judgments given by Mr. George Kappele, K.C., the official referee in the different classes.

All litigation between the shareholders is now settled, and appeals to the Privy Council are now out of question.

The adjustment of the rights of the different shareholders among themselves threatened at the outset to indefinitely delay the liquidation of the estate. There are altogether upwards of 120,000 shareholders, and it was necessary to secure an amendment to the Winding-up Act from the Dominion Parliament to obviate an expenditure of $200,000 in connection with serving each shareholder with a notice to appear before the official referee.

The result of Mr. Kappele's last judgment was not satisfactory to counsel representing the different classes of shareholders as was to be expected owing to the fact that the official referee practically decided against preference of one shareholder over another, and so all came the solicitor and counsel appealed to the High Court. At the time negotiations commenced there were thirty appeals pending, and things looked very dark for the shareholders. Mr. C. D. Scott, counsel for the liquidator, and Mr. W. M. Douglas, K.C., counsel for the general body of shareholders, were instructed by the liquidator to secure a satisfactory adjustment if possible, and this has been accomplished.

THE DETAILS OF CLAIMS

Class 1. Permanent shareholders — Official referee decided that they were liable to contribute to the assets the unpaid balance on their stock. This is not finally adjusted, as it will not interfere with payment of the dividend.

Class 2. Nova Scotia and other shareholders outside Ontario who claimed to rank as creditors—Referee decided against them, and the settlement confirms the decision.

Class 3. Holders of Class "C" certificates which purported to give a first charge on assets—Referee decided against this and settlement confirms this ruling.

Class 4. Terminating shareholders who gave 30 days' notice of withdrawal—Referee decided that no shareholder whose notice expired after commencement of liquidation were entitled to priority, and that the shareholders whose notice had expired before liquidation were entitled to priority, but were subject to contribute to the losses of the company, which contribution would practically wipe out their property. Referee decided that liquidation commenced on November 20th, 1905, when the company practically ceased to do business.

Class 5. Those who had cash balances to their credit—Shall rank as creditors.

Class 6. Terminating shareholders whose stock was in process of conversion to permanent stock—Must rank as ordinary terminating shareholders.

Class 7. Claims of agents and employees for wages and commissions—Claims for salaries only, get priority for a certain period.

Class 8. Shareholders who claimed no preference.

Class 10. Shareholders in arrears—Shall be entitled to rank with the others upon payment by them of the arrears due, which arrears would be deducted from the dividends declared upon their stock.

Class 11. Share loan class — Payments made by shareholders to be applied upon the loans, but rights to be adjusted according to date of the issue of shares.

The liquidator will not enforce any fines or penalties.

Will Take no Action Regarding City's Request

The Department of Railways and Canals will take no action regarding the request of the city to have the entrance to the canal lock at Young's Point straightened and widened and the entrance to the canal at Lakefield widened and the pier removed. The following letter was read at Wednesday's meeting of the City Council;

Ottawa, June 24, 1908

Sir,—Referring to the certified copy of a resolution passed by the council of the city of Peterborough on the 1st inst., asking to have the entrance to the lock at Young's Point straightened and widened, the entrance to the canal at Lakefield widened and the pier removed, I am directed to inform you that on enquiry it does not appear that the conditions at Young's Point are otherwise than satisfactory provided that the route is known to those navigating the canal.

The department at present cannot incur any expenditure in connection with the widening of the entrance to the lock at Lakefield, nor is it considered necessary.

Your obedient servant,

E. K. JONES.

Secretary of Department of Railways and Canals.

Heat prostrates the nerves. In the summer one needs a tonic to off-set the customary hot weather Nerve and Strength depression. You will feel better within 48 hours after beginning to take such a remedy as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Its prompt action in restoring the weakened nerves is surprising. Of course, you won't get entirely strong in a few days, but each day you can actually feel the improvement. That tired, listless, spiritless, feeling will quickly depart when using the Restorative. Dr. Shoop's Restorative will sharpen a failing appetite; it aids digestion; it will strengthen the weakened Kidneys and Heart by simply rebuilding the worn-out nerves that these organs depend upon. Test it a few days and be convinced. Sold by all dealers.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

North River Bridge will be Rebuilt

The committee comprising Warden Thompson, Messrs. Russell, Hales, Brown, Moloney, and the county engineer, appointed by the County Council, visited the North River bridge, Belmont, on Tuesday. After inspecting the bridge they decided to build a new one to be built of steel, and to be planked with cedars. Tenders will be invited in a few days.

Was This the Missing Fat Cow?

A local painter asserts that on Friday night he saw two men driving a cow through a lane near Townsend street. It was taken to a slaughter house and killed, shortly after a wagon drove up to the slaughter house and the meat was taken away. Next day it was sold on the market. It is thought that this was the cow stolen from David Leahy of Douro, on Wednesday.

Received Injuries while Cutting Wedding Cake

Between 5 and 6 o'clock on the evening of July 1st, Mr. Bert Allen, son of Mr. George Allen of Smith, met with a very painful accident. He was busily engaged in cutting his sister's wedding cake, when the large butcher knife accidentally slipped and gave him a severe gash on the forefinger. From the loss of blood, Mr. Allen became very faint, and had it not been for the timely support of Mr. Harold Lawrence, would have fallen to the floor. Dr. Brown, of Peterborough, was immediately summoned and dressed the wound. Bert will be relieved of his duties in the milking yard for a few days, but his speedy recovery is hoped for.

ANARCHIST PAPERS TO BE WIPED OUT

Washington, July 9.—A crusade which will probably result in the suppression of all anarchist papers and periodicals, with the exception of those devoted to purely philosophic anarchism, will be commenced to-morrow by Postmaster General Meyer. A thorough investigation of all papers suspected of violent tendencies will be made by postal officials and it is probable that a few socialistic sheets may fall under the ban of official displeasure.

Following his order denying the use of the mails to a Paterson anarchist paper, Mr. Meyer instructed the Third Assistant Postmaster-General to formulate an order providing that papers of an anarchistic or socialistic character, printed in a foreign language, would be required to print with it a translation in English of any matter that was incendiary or advocated anarchy. An examination of the law, however, disclosed that such an order could not be based on it, and accordingly Mr. Meyer suggested to the post office committees of Congress an amendment to section 293 of the Revised Statutes, which prohibits the carrying in the mails of indecent matter. The amendment which was inserted and upon which will be based the forthcoming order of the Postmaster-General is as follows:

"And the term "indecent" within the intendment of this section shall include matter of a character tending to incite arson, murder or assassination."

This amendment will become active to-morrow, and at that time it is the intention of the Postmaster-General to detail law officers of the Department to examine carefully a score or more of papers, some of which are printed in the English language, to see if they are violating the new order.

A False Alarm

The fire brigade was called out last night about 12.30, by an alarm rung in from box 24. When the brigade arrived at the box they found no signs of a fire, it being a false alarm. The men were very prompt in getting out. The hose wagon led, followed by the hook and ladder, about ten yards behind.

Pain will depart in exactly 20 minutes if one of Dr. Shoop's Pink Pain Tablets is taken. Pain anywhere. Remember! Pain always means congestion, blood pressure — nothing else. Headache a blood pressure; toothache a blood pressure on the sensitive nerve. Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets—also called Pink Pain Tablets—quickly and safely coax this blood pressure away from pain centers. Painful periods with women get instant relief. 20 Tablets 25c Sold by all dealers

Indians Who Helped Reil Want to Return to This Country

They are Starving, and U. S. Asks if Canada will Take Care of Them

Are in State of Montana

Helena, Mont., July 9—Governor Norris yesterday addressed a letter to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, at Ottawa, relative to the deportation of a large band of Cree Indians, who, while Canadian charges, have for years been roaming throughout this State.

The Indians participated in the Riel rebellion and with its suppression came to Montana. The State Department arranged with Canada for their return but soon afterwards, dissatisfied with conditions in the north, they returned to the States, and are now at the point of starvation. Hence the letter to learn if the original allotments are still available.

A number of Indians have agreed to return.

sane to arrest those unnatural conditions.

Ferrozone is especially intended for the immediate relief and cure of kidney and bladder troubles, and its health-giving properties will be felt at once in new blood, healthy circulation, general strengthening of the system.

Ferrozone quickly corrects urinal disorders, headache, and pain in the back. It improves the appetite, digests the food, makes it nourish the nerves, makes them strong and enduring, and fits one for days of hard work.

Don't be misled by cheap, so-called kidney cures offered by dealers for the sake of extra profits. There is only one safe and reliable specific for Kidney, Bladder, Liver and urinal troubles, and its name is Ferrozone.

Refuse point blank to accept a substitute, and insist on your druggist supplying "Ferrozone" price 50c per box at all dealers.

Socialists Organize

A local branch of the Socialistic party was organized last evening. The new branch will start the propaganda of Socialism by an open air meeting on Brock street this evening, when W. Gribble, Provincial organizer will speak. The meeting will commence at 8 p.m.

RACE WILL BE FAST

London, July 9.—William Sherring, trainer for the Canadians, says the Marathon won't be half as severe as the trials. He intends giving the Canucks nothing except perhaps a little water during the race, which is going to be fast and right from beginning.

AMERICANS DO GOOD WORK.

London, July 9.—On the Stadium track, Sheppard made a half-mile in 1.56 in the team trial. Riley did it in 1.58. Sullivan in 1.58 1-5, and Halstead of Cornell did a mile and 45 yards in 4.29. Bonbag ran four miles in 19.56. Bacon did the 400-metre hurdles in 56 seconds. Hillman, running easily, did the distance in .58. Four American high jumpers did 6 feet easily. Three pole vaulters did 12 feet.

London, July 9.—The arrangements which have been provided for the American Olympic team here in London are unsatisfactory to Manager Halpin, Trainer Mike Murphy and the athletes, and after a consultation with James E. Sullivan, it was decided to take the team over to Brighton, where they will train while in England. They will remain at Brighton until the day of their events, when they will come to London to compete. Brighton is a little more than an hour's journey by train from London.

THE MONEY FLOWING IN.

London, July 9.—The Daily Mail's fund for the entertainment of the visiting athletes, now gathered here for the Olympic games, has reached $60,000.

FIRST STAGE WAS RE-SHOT.

London, July 9.—The first stage in the individual trap-shooting contest was re-shot today on account of the bad weather yesterday. The scores were; Ewing 27, Vivian 16, Beatty 21, Fletcher 22, Westover 21, and MacMahon 19.

Births and the Moon.

Among the Vosges peasants children born at the new moon are supposed to have better hung tongues than others and those born at the last quarter to have keener reasoning powers.

Boots For Apollo.

It was the custom of the Greeks to offer boots on a silvery tray to Apollo in his temple at Delphi.

Definition of Law.

One of the best definitions of law, long or short, is that found in Sir Henry Maine's "Early History of Institutions," "Law is regulated force." This may apply both to the law of nature and the law of man.

Blind Snakes.

Among snakes there are four species on this continent which are practically blind. They are popularly known as "blind worms." They are the lowest as well as the smallest of snakes. An ordinary earthworm is gigantic when compared with some.

Spanish Are Charitable.

The Spanish are among the most charitable people on earth. Without a poor tax Spanish communities of 50,-000 self supporters feed a pauper population of 5,000 or more.

The Swordfish.

The swordfish is utterly without fear and will, like a buffalo or rhinoceros, charge anything that offends it, often doing an amount of execution hardly to be believed did not the evidence exist. Combats between swordfish are most interesting and may be compared to a duel between two expert swordsmen.

Children and Fat.

Never press a child to eat fat. Many children have a constitutional loathing of this form of food. This distaste is given them by nature, as they cannot digest it.

Potato Bread.

Potato bread is used by the natives of Thuringia to feed their horses, especially when they are worked hard in very cold weather. The animals thrive on it, and their health and strength are excellent.

Captain and His Wife and Grandchildren Rescued

Watertown, N.Y., July 9.—During a storm on Lake Ontario yesterday at two o'clock in the morning, the CoGin-two o'clock yesterday morning, the Canadian two-masted "Acadia" from Kingston, out of Oswego, with 370 tons of coal consigned to F. Crawford of Kingston, went aground on the rocky shoal off Bull Rock point, two miles from Sackett's Harbor.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon the crew were rescued by Spencer and Samuel Dibble, and they are safe at Sackett's Harbor.

The big Sandy life-saving crew later went to the schooner.

The boat is reported pounding to pieces, and it is believed she cannot be saved. The cargo probably will be lost.

Dixon Released on Consent of Attorney-General

A despatch from Toronto says;

Mr. Justice Clute this morning gave orders releasing two men now serving time.

John Dixon, of Harvey township, who was serving 30 days on a charge of having failed to provide for the support of his wife and two children, was released on consent of the Attorney-General's Department, his conviction being shown to be bad in law.

Mr. J. B. Mackenzie had a library of law books on hand and a long series of illegalities to charge against the conviction of Thos. Reid, of Redon township, Hastings, sentenced to four months in Belleville jail for a second conviction for selling liquor without a license. But he got no further than the first, being successful in quashing the conviction on the first point made, that the magistrates had knowledge of the prior conviction previous to the hearing of the case.

"It is a technical objection," observed Mr. Edward Bayley, who appeared for the attorney-general.

"It is not technical; it is vagrancy," replied his Lordship. "A judge in spite of himself would be prejudiced. I find the magistrates erred and the prisoner was not tried in the manner contemplated by the Act. Such is sufficient to render the trial null

How to Test Your Kidneys

If any of your family have been troubled with kidney disease make a test of the urine and satisfy yourself whether you need a good remedy before the disease has cause serious complications.

Tomorrow morning put some urine in a glass or bottle and let it stand for twenty-four hours.

If the sediment, particles or germs floating about, is milky or cloudy, or contains a reddish sediment, then your kidneys are diseased.

Will Permit Longboat to Run--Take Up Protest Later

London, July 9.—Canadians are doing general work in view of the Polytechnic sports at the Stadium on Saturday. As the Olympic mile run is on Monday, the makers won't enter the Polytechnic games, but Canadians are entered for all events.

It is believed Longboat will be allowed to run in Marathons in any case, any protest being considered afterwards.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the Northwest Provinces, excepting 8 and 26 reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father or mother.

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

The Slippery Pronoun.

Many are the circumlocutions which have been devised by civilized races in order to avoid the bluntness of direct address. In fact, it may be said that at the moment when a nation standardizes its language it begins to have trouble with its pronouns.

"Thee" has of course become obsolete except in prayer, although it flourishes colloquially in the north of England. The second person plural is substituted. In parts of the south "you all" is heard, a further step toward refined elsewhereness.

In France and Germany "thee" has been retained in familiar or condescendingness speech. In Spain and Italy, on the other hand, the third person is substituted habitually in place of it.

"Alexandria, Egypt."

All correspondents with Egypt in all parts of the world should be warned that it is necessary to put the word "Egypt" on all communications addressed to Alexandria, as a great deal of trouble and annoyance has been caused owing to communications addressed to the Egyptian city being delivered to Scotland, Canada, New South Wales, Cape Colony, Italy, the United States of America and other countries where towns of the same name exist.—Egyptian Gazette, Alexandria.

The Berliner.

On the theory that might goes before right the Berliner fights his way past old ladies and tired women into crowded tram cars and ruthlessly jostles from his path the passerby in the streets with an obstinate insolence that goads the visitor accustomed to the higher civilization of other capitals to impotent fury.—Berlin Cor. Weak Kidneys

Weak Kidneys, surely point to weak Kidney Blood. The Kidneys, like the Heart, and the Stomach, find their weakness, not in the organ itself, but in the nerves that control and guide and strengthen them. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a medicine specifically prepared to reach these controlling nerves. To doctor the Kidneys alone, is futile. It is a waste of time, and of money as well.

If your back aches or is weak, if the urine scalds, or is dark and strong, if you have symptoms of Bright's or other distressing or dangerous kidney disease, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative a month—Tablets or Liquid—and see what it can and will do for you. Druggist recommend and sell

"ALL DEALERS"

CONDITIONS OF EMIGRATION.

Work For Right Men In Canada, Says Glasgow Paper.

Some misunderstanding exists at the present time regarding the conditions of emigration to Canada, says a writer in The Glasgow Evening News. The idea has got abroad that the Canadian Government, finding that the number of emigrants arriving from Europe was too large for the country, have placed solid obstacles in their way.

There is a certain amount of truth in this belief, but it is mixed with a great deal of falsehood. It is partially true, for instance, that a large number of undesirable emigrants reached Canada last year from England, and it is also true that the Canadian Government have taken steps to prevent a repetition of this disaster.

For the arrival of these people in Canada was actually disastrous, both for themselves and for the country. The intention was right. These emigrants had been sent out by charitable societies, working chiefly in London, in order that they might get a fresh chance. But as a matter of fact many of the people thus assisted had lost the desire or the capacity to work, while most of them were absolutely ignorant of how to work on the land—which is the great need in Canada. The result was that these unhappy emigrants, misled by people as ignorant as themselves, became unemployed from the hour of their arrival, and have so remained during the whole of last winter. In the Canadian cities, where they gathered, they have lived upon charity.

The bad conditions of the labor market in Canada, it is true, were aggravated by a comparatively small harvest last year, and by the slump in the United States. But the Canadian Government determined, nevertheless, that this dumping of the unemployed by charitable societies, should not go unchecked. They obtained an order in council, therefore, which gives them the power to prohibit the landing in Canada of any person whose passage has been paid, wholly or in part, by any charitable organization, or out of public moneys. And in order to get this prohibition removed, for it is now in force, such an assisted emigrant must obtain the written authority of the Assistant Superintendent of Emigration for Canada in London.

This superintendent has just made an explanation to an interviewer of the manner in which he is using his new powers, and he is anxious to have it understood that Canada is not closing her doors against British emigrants. "Of those I have refused," said the superintendent, "the majority have either no friends or no assured work on arrival, and do not belong to the class you could place on a farm. It would be inhuman to let such people sell up the few things they have, and go out to a life for which they are totally unfitted. I refuse to aggravate the situation by letting more men, who cannot keep themselves, drift into the towns."

As a matter of fact, there is now, and for many years there will be, ample work in Canada for the right kind of emigrants. At this season of the year there is always a big demand for skilled workmen, farm workers, and domestic servants. But it should be understood by every emigrant, whether his passage is paid by himself or by others, that in Canada he must work, and work hard for his livelihood. This is a piece of information which, apparently, requires to be repeated firmly. The emigrants who have been living upon charity last winter went out to Canada, as it would seem, with the notion that in some mysterious way, all would be well with them if only they reached the land flowing with milk and honey. But Canada is no such land. It has work for those who are willing and able to work, and opportunities for those men who are keen to seize opportunity. There is, however, no royal road to success in Canada any more than in Great Britain, and any emigrant who thinks otherwise is certain to be disappointed.

Not Particular as to Weapons.

The waiter girl knew a thing or two about table etiquette, so she sniffed scornfully as she said, "It's not our custom to serve a knife with pie."

STRANGE FANATICS.

Of the many strange sects which find followers in some portion or other of the globe there is none more eccentric or more Spartan in self-discipline than the Doukhobors. It is a sect which responds to a call that breaks no caviling, no hanging back.

The people who voluntarily accept its obligations impose upon themselves a penance which is calculated to test the limit of their endurance. Humiliation of the flesh is part and parcel of their creed. To such extremes do they carry their fanatical beliefs that they are frequently to be seen marching through scorching heat or bitter cold with practically no clothing beyond a loin cloth to cover them.

The Doukhobors make sacrifices which surpass in severity those of the most rigid ascetic. They have been ordered by their leaders to sell their cattle. They have done so. Now their children are dying for want of sustenance. Last autumn they were ordered to sell their sheep, and they disposed of 15,000. They then sold their chickens. Now they are paupers.

Their leaders have abolished time. Nearly $8,000 worth of watches and clocks have been taken away from the people by their head men. Mirrors have been forbidden; to make sure, special agents have collected all the looking glasses. Tea, coffee, sugar and pancakes are under the ban, and their food is now narrowed down to potatoes, carrots, onions and turnips.

According to the statement of a correspondent who has studied their customs, 500 Doukhobors live in two houses. Every man and woman has a space allotted, which is just four feet wide. They have to get into their beds from the foot, so cramped are their quarters. All eat at big tables in the centre.

The young men sleep like sardines in the garret. And, under a new rule, no Doukhobor may own more than one shirt. So poor and indigestible is their food now that most of the Doukhobors are really ill and diseased.

They let the law go as a dead letter, and births, deaths and marriages go unrecorded.

They live in northwestern Canada, these strange fanatics. Only a little while ago they were Russians—Quakers in reality. Like some of the earlier English Quakers, they were forced by persecution to leave their country and flee to North America. Their Russian prototypes went to Pennsylvania more than two centuries ago; the Russians went to Canada in 1898. They settled near Lake Winnipeg, and there they are now, where 200,000 acres are reserved for their colonization.

DELIGHTS OF THE PRAIRIE.

Young Englishwoman Describes Life on a Canadian Farm.

We have heard a lot of the experiences of the usual British immigrant who takes up land in British America, but it has remained for The World's Work in its "all round the world" May issue to give us the vivid picture of a young Englishwoman who runs a Canadian farm. Miss Binnie-Clark, in telling her story, says: The sun was my clock. I was due to leave my bed the moment it escaped the lingering embrace of the horizon. My room faced east; white muslin curtains veiled the window, but no blind. The hired men were supposed to put in an hour's work before six o'clock breakfast—feeding, milking, creaming. The Canadian always turned out at dawn, it was his strong point; the Englishman hated early rising and skulked to a man, her one, and he was endowed with the conscience of an Arthurian knight; the Irishman had a deplorable weakness of not being able to awaken, but he was so convincingly sorry for it; he had a way of excusing himself in the true Hibernian turn of the tongue, with the true Hibernian smile to help it out, so that it was not until duck shooting started—when I undertook to provide cartridges for shooting before or after work hours—that I started to understand the way of the awakening and some other ways of the Irishman. On Sunday mornings I was as a rule the solitary human in residence.

I must acknowledge that the sun often ceased from crimson nearness to distant gold before I obeyed the wireless message from my four-footed friends assembled at the paddock gate to urge the fact that the golden rule of oats for breakfast was not to be cancelled even by the well-appreciated delight of sleeping out on summer Saturday nights. Now and again I obeyed the summons ungraciously enough, with the deliberate intention of turning in again the moment I had measured up breakfast, but if the fine air of the Canadian prairie is the special quality of Canada, the early morning air is the essence of the quality; day by day it revives one physically and mentally to the somewhat arduous duties of the daily round, and it can stimulate to that inspiring degree of life which may only be written down as the purely pagan joy of being alive; so that, although I have turned in again after preparing kibbeh on breakfast for the household, dinner after measuring up stable breakfast for the beasts.

Apples and Insomnia.

A medical writer declares that the apple is such a common fruit that very few persons become familiar with its medicinal properties. The best thing just before going to bed, he says is to eat an apple. "Persons unintimated in the mysteries of the fruit," he continues, "are likely to throw up their hands in horror at the visions of dyspepsia which such a suggestion may summon up, but no harm can come even to a delicate system by the eating of a ripe and juicy apple before going to bed. The apple is excellent brain food, because it has more phosphoric acid in easily digested shape than any other fruit. It excites the action of the liver, promotes sound and healthy sleep and thoroughly disinfects the mouth. This is not all; the apple prevents indigestion and throat diseases."

Fighting Consumption.

The Anti-Tuberculosis Association of Ottawa has just issued its annual report. During the year 130 cases came under the care of the association, which is one of the best organized in Canada; and yet it was only able to reach about one quarter of the cases of consumption in that district. Not only does the association look after those who have contracted the disease, but it deals with the prevention of the spread of consumption, [illegible]

PERILS OF COD FISHING.

The perils of codfishing on the Grand Banks are tragically illustrated by the terrible experience of the French fishing fleet in the past season, which has lost 10 ships and 200 men during a single summer. This is the worst record in the history of the French flotillas, which have their headquarters at St. Pierre, Miq., since 1900, when 23 vessels and nearly 400 men were lost in the gale which devastated Galveston, and, working up the Atlantic seaboard, spent its final fury on the Grand Banks.

The St. Pierre flotilla itself has dropped in five years from 320 vessels to 70 and the St. Malo fleet has also suffered a considerable decline.

The roster of recent years contains some striking stories of tragic disaster to the French fishing vessels. Ten years ago the Vaillant, with 72 men, from St. Malo for St. Pierre, Miq., in April, struck an iceberg off Cape Race at midnight in a dense fog and foundered within ten minutes. Of her whole company only 12 escaped in two small boats. They were adrift for a week without food, water or adequate clothing, had no protection from the elements and were stricken with frostbite in addition to their other miseries. They perished one by one till but three remained. They were picked up by a passing vessel and landed in St. Pierre, where they had to have their hands and feet amputated, so frightfully were these extremities affected by the frost.

The next year the Alsace was dismasted and was totally crippled by a hurricane on the Grand Banks, and of her crew of 38 men all but five were swept overboard, and these survivors remained on the floating hulk for nearly a fortnight, starving because they were unable to reach the food supplies below, as she had become waterlogged, so that they were reduced almost to skeletons when rescued.

As already stated, twenty-two of the fleet were sunk in the Galveston gale in 1900 and the next year five ships and seventy-eight men were missing at the close of the fishery and never a word was heard from them after. The Hirondelle in 1904, the largest vessel in the French fishing flotilla, carrying forty-five men, was torn from her anchorage on the Banks in a gale with but three people on board.

Of the Hirondelle's crew never a man returned, nor did the ship herself with the three men on board ever reach harbor. She was last seen by a Canadian banker drifting before the elements with three frantically gesticulating wretches on her deck, but it was impossible to afford them relief and they passed out of sight, not to be seen by human eyes evermore.

The worst individual tragedy among the French vessels in late years was the loss of the Cousine Renaie, of St. Malo, early in 1905. This vessel, a large bark, was crossing to St. Pierre with 150 men to crew a number of fishing vessels lying up there for the winter, but she never reached her destination, becoming one of the world's marine mysteries.

The French are not the only victims of fast liners. On the 4th of July, 1905, the American fishing smack Wenonah was struck by the British steamer Aleides and sunk within a few minutes, only one man out of the nineteen on board being saved. A few years previously the City of Rome struck the Victor, of St. Pierre, with thirteen men on board, and in this case, too, there was but one survivor.

In the season of 1905 a drunken Malean set fire to his vessel, the Madeleine, in the midst of a score of others, and as the flames spread some frightened wretch cut the vessel's cable and the burning craft drifted down on the other vessels, forcing them to cut and run also to escape disaster.

The crew of a Newfoundland banker lying to windward rescued the imperiled men, all except the maniac who started the fire and who, armed with an axe, beat off all who came near him and danced with glee on the deck of what became his funeral pyre. Under these circumstances and with such conditions existing, it is not strange that the French fishing industry is going to pieces.

British Asiatics in Canada.

The Right Hon. Alfred Lyttelton, Secretary of State for the Colonies in the late Government, has contributed to the issue of The Standard of Empire an article on the immigration of British Asiatics to Canada and the other dominions. Mr. Lyttelton's views may be taken to represent the attitude that will be adopted by the Unionist party towards this question, and are, therefore, of considerable importance. Mr. Lyttelton writes, in part: "If we look on this matter, not merely as affecting the self-governing Dominions of the British Empire, but broadly, the East and the West, it may be permitted to us to doubt whether the Western nations will be able always to maintain the position which they have so firmly taken. For no system with even the appearance of equity can be constructed which will give even temporary shelter to the claim by the West for free admission (the open door) to the East, and prohibition (the shut door) to the West. Nothing but plain force, the naked fist in the most palpable form, can support the dogma of free competition for Westerns in Eastern lands and strict monopoly for them in their own." Mr. Lyttelton, however, concludes by declaring that it appears almost impossible, at any rate, for the present, effectually to preserve the purity of the race and the industrial standard of Canada except by "more restrictive of full industrial freedom to Asiatic labor."

British Columbia Notes.

Settlers are rapidly taking up land in the Similkameen Valley, in the southern part of British Columbia. The land is fertile, and exceedingly well adapted to fruit growing. Apples, pears, peaches, and grapes flourish. As a general thing irrigation is needed, but abundant water is available, and it seems that the Similkameen will soon rival the famous Okanagan Valley.

Although all news received from the gold placers in the valley of the Findlay river in northeastern British Columbia is very favorable, any rush into the district is deprecated for the present. The mouth of the Findlay is 140 miles north of the proposed location of the Grand Trunk Pacific across British Columbia.

It is announced that the Dominion Department of Mines is about to undertake a very exhaustive exploration of British Columbia by its geologists. It is also announced that a special report on the iron ore deposits of the province will soon be issued.

The undersigned has received an allotment of unsold portion of $150,000 of

7 Per Cent. First Mortgage Five-Year Gold Bonds

dated January 11, 1908, and maturing January 11, 1913. These Bonds are offered at par and accrued interest by Metropolitan Trust & Savings Bank, Chicago, trustees.

SECURITY—The Entire Property and Improvements Owned THE URES CONSOLIDATED MINING COMPANY in the District of Ures, State of Sonora Mexico, Free from Mortgage of Bonded Indebtedness except this present Bond issue.

An Unusual Opportunity for Investment in Sound Security

The Ures Consolidated Mining Company offers $100,000.00 of First Mortgage Gold Bonds. This issue of bonds is the only mortgage or bonded indebtedness ever placed on the company's properties.

These bonds are in the denomination of $100.00, and bear interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, July and January, and are redeemable on or before five years from date at the company's option at $110.00 and accrued interest.

With each bond issued there will be given $100.00 par value of the capital stock of the company as a bonus, and in addition thereto there will be placed in escrow with the Trustee additional stock which will be available to the bondholders at their option any time within a period of three years, the bondholder being entitled to surrender his bond any time within said period and receive in lieu thereof stock for every dollar of indebtedness to him on account of said bonds.

The Security Back of these Bonds

The company owns twelve claims situated in the district of Ures, State of Sonora, Mexico, free from mortgage or bonded indebtedness, except the present bond issue.

On one of these properties (The Ramona Mine) 5,000 feet of underground development work has been done, consisting of an inclined shaft to the depth of 400 feet with drifts in three levels to the North and South of the shaft.

An average value of ore worth $11.47 per ton is exposed throughout the mine, from the collar of the shaft to the extreme parts in the drifts, all of which is above water level.

The company has made surface improvements and mine improvements to the extent of $60,000.00 in the way of machinery, skids, trams, steam hoists, mill and nearly everything necessary to make the mining camp complete.

In addition to the absolute ownership of these twelve valuable claims, the company has a lease on the San Jose Mine, adjoining its property, in which the company has been operating in high grade ore.

During the past sixty days the company has extracted and delivered to ore buyers and the bank at Hermosillo, $4,000.00 worth of ore and bullion, the ore having been reduced to bullion through the company's mill, with the exception of 1,454 pounds, which was sold to an ore buyer for $502.10.

This issue of bonds is made for the purpose of securing money at once in order to extend the development work more quickly than the company's present means will permit.

With the high grade ore in sight to the distance of 80 feet to the South of the shaft, the management is assured that within six months from date of making the improvements now necessary the company's properties will be on a self-sustaining and dividend-paying basis.

The Stock which is Given with these bonds will be as valuable as the bonds when the Company has the ready capital to push operations

Men who invest in these bonds will have no cause or reason to regret their action, for the bonds afford an investment in a security which is absolutely safe—much better than ordinary city or country real estate, which is considered perfectly safe if the property put up to secure a mortgage is double the face of the loan. The security given on these bonds is better than 7 to 1, for the Ures Consolidated Mining Company has refused an offer of $750,000.00 for the property upon which this $100,000.00 worth of bonds is issued.

These bonds are an investment with all speculative risk eliminated—an investment with absolute security.

Make your reservation at once. This is small and promises to be quickly sold.

Feb. 11th, 1908.

To whom it may concern:—

We hereby beg to state that The Ures Consolidated Mining Company have during the past five years made several deliveries of bullion to this bank, and it is the opinion of mining men here that they have the making of a fair mine, and further, that the properties owned and controlled by them bid promise of becoming paying properties.

From our knowledge of the men connected, we believe they are doing all in their power to bring about the results above mentioned.

RAWHIDE-DULZURA

1 CENT A 2 SHARE

Send us your name as a member in this new company, with your remittance for as many thousand shares as you can take at $5 per thousand.

This is a short-time offer on a hurry-up proposition. Our vice president is up at Rawhide now putting the miners at work. We want to raise the necessary funds for development as quickly as possible. Therefore, we offer the first block of stock at $5 a thousand shares. This subscription must be all cash. We want the money in hand. We mean to work without letup, and we have made it an ironclad rule not to run in debt. Cash counts now.

Our prospectuses are out. Send for one.

Make reservation of stock, if you do no more. But, remember, this present offer of stock at Half a Cent a Share is now open, and will be closed as soon as enough cash subscriptions are in hand. Don't wait, or you will get left.

The gold mining property owned outright by the company consists of 7 claims, 3 in the Rawhide district of Nevada, and 4 in the Dulzura district of Southern California.

The Rawhide district to-day is more famous than Goldfield, Tonopah, Bullfrog, or Searchlight were at the same stage of exploration and development. The Dulzura discovery is one of the most sensational in the history of California.

Ten samples of ore which were among the first assayed, run as high as $7,661.57 to the ton, and all ten averaged over $1,600 a ton.

In both camps we located early, and our locations are choice. Our own officers will superintend the mining.

Appetite Gone Nerves Badly Run Down

A Strong Moral Well Exemplified In Mrs. Wilson's Case.

Like thousands of other people at this season of the year Mrs. E. P. Wilson was tired and worn out—winter surely tried her health and vigor. But now she is robust and well, eats well, sleeps well, feels invigorated and braced. "For some years," writes Mrs. Wilson of Waltmere, P.Q., "I suffered from systematic weakness, biliousness and depressing headaches. I could take little nourishment and grew thin and pale. If I ate a hearty meal the result was dreadful. Pains started at my chest, and spread all through my body going across my stomach, back and right side. I was discouraged till a friend insisted on me taking Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They made a new woman of me, and for the past eight months my health has been perfect. For a good cleansing, rejuvenating medicine I urge every one to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

There is extraordinary and magic power in Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they bring vigor, tone, health and spirits—are compounded from the most wonderful and healing juices and essence in vegetable life—are safe for young and old, and guaranteed to kindle renewed activity and strength in every system that is weak, sickly or run down from kidney, liver, stomach or bladder trouble. The Story of a Medicine

Its name—"Golden Medical Discovery" was suggested by one of its most important and valuable ingredients—Golden Seal root.

Nearly forty years ago, Dr. Pierce discovered that he could, by the use of pure, triple-refined glycerine, aided by a certain degree of constantly maintained heat and with the aid of apparatus and appliances designed for that purpose, extract from our most valuable native medicinal roots their curative properties much better than by the use of alcohol, so generally employed. So the now world-famed "Golden Medical Discovery," for the cure of weak stomach, indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver, or biliousness and kindred derangements was first made, as it ever since has been, without a particle of alcohol in its make-up.

A glance at the full list of its ingredients, printed on every bottle-wrapper, will show that it is made from the most valuable medicinal roots found growing in our American forests. All these ingredients have received the strongest endorsement from the leading medical experts, teachers and writers on Materia Medica who recommend them as the very best remedies for the diseases for which "Golden Medical Discovery" is advised.

A little book of these endorsements has been compiled by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., and will be mailed free to any one asking same by postal card, or letter addressed to the Doctor as above. From these endorsements, copied from standard medical books of all the different schools of practice, it will be found that the ingredients composing the "Golden Medical Discovery" are advised not only for the cure of the above mentioned diseases, but also for the cure of all catarrhal, bronchial and throat affections, accompanied with catarrhal discharges, hoarseness, sore throat, lingering, or hang-on-coughs, and all those wasting affections which, if not promptly and properly treated are liable to terminate in consumption. Take Dr. Pierce's Discovery in time and persevere in its use until you give it a fair trial and it is most likely to disappoint. Too much must not be expected of it. It will not perform miracles. It will not cure consumption in its advanced stages. No medicine will. It will cure the affections that lead up to consumption. If taken in time.

Funeral of the Late Mrs. Harry Phelan

The funeral of the late Mrs. Harry Phelan was held yesterday morning from the family residence to St. Peter's Cathedral, and then to the Roman Catholic cemetery. At the cathedral yesterday morning mass was said by Rev. Father Phelan, of Young's Point, brother-in-law of the deceased. Rev. Father Kelly acted as deacon and Mr. Victor McFadden of this city, who is studying for the priesthood acted as sub-deacon. Rev. Dr. O'Brien was master of ceremonies. Revs. Fathers Brotherton and Galvin were also present. His Lordship Bishop O'Connor also officiated.

The pall-bearers were his Worship Mayor Bush, D. Wilson, T. Fortye, R. B. Fortye, H. LeBrun, B. Morrow, and R. Shenton. The floral tributes were very numerous and exceedingly beautiful. They included designs from the mayor and aldermen, the city engineering department, the city officials, the Conservative Association, the Young Conservative Club, Messrs. T. E. E. Bradburn, J. H. Burnham and James Kendry, the deceased little son's playmates, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Brun, Messrs. T. and R. H. Fortye, a pillow from son Nagle, and an anchor from Mr. Walter Phelan of Pittsburg, Pa.

At the cemetery the last sad rites were performed by Rev. Father Phelan and Rev. Dr. O'Brien.

Mr. Walter Phelan of Pittsburg, Pa., was unable to be present on the deceased's sisters, Mrs. H. J. Friel, of Ottawa, was here for the funeral, but Mrs. Brophy was too ill to come. Others from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. P. J. McCauley, Trenton, and Mrs. J. Corkery of Burwood.

Wedding Bells

Wednesday afternoon the wedding took place of Miss Lena, daughter of Mr. Douglas Bradley, to Mr. Chas. Porter. The ceremony was performed by Rev. D. Marsh of Springville.

The bride was given away by her father and was attired in a costume of fine muil, trimmed with lace insertion and carried a bouquet of cream roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Mabel Bradley, who was becomingly costumed, and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Wm. Norman Porter. The wedding ceremony was witnessed by about 40 guests and after the nuptial knot had been tied refreshments were partaken of.

The happy couple left on a trip to the lakes, before going to Toronto, where they will reside at 194 Grace street. The bride's going-away dress was of Venetian gray, with an Alice blue hat.

The presents were many and beautiful. The groom, who is a trusted employe of the Gordon McKay Co., of Toronto, was presented by his fellow employees in the shoe and leather department with a solid mahogany office upholstered in silk.

Mr. and Mrs. Porter will have the best wishes of a host of friends.

Pates and Athletics Clash Saturday

Saturday's big game between the Athletics and the Pates, is the talk of the fans, who seem to be in a quandry to pick the winners. Many of the "wise ones" are doping out the boys in khaki to pull out another victory from the Johnsonites. This would be no surprise on account of the Pates' crippled condition, beside the fact that the Athletics are playing winning ball, as is evidenced by their victories over both the Pates and Cobourg. Their work in the field and on the bags has shown great improvement while their batting average has increased 100 per cent. Manager Lynch has so improved on him team by putting them through strenuous work at practice that they are now playing the fastest ball in the league.

The keenest of rivalry exists between the two teams, and a great contest is assured.

English Detectives Come to Guard the Prince of Wales

A Score Have Reached Quebec--Ample Accomodation for Visiting Thousands--Military Already Pouring In

Quebec, July 10.—Preparations for the approaching Tercentenary celebration are now apparent on almost every street corner throughout the entire city. All the public buildings are dotted with workmen engaged in the electric wiring for the illuminations as well as other decorations of every imaginable description.

The chairman of the Accommodation Committee stated this morning that there was absolutely no danger whatever of congestion owing to too great an influx during the festivals. Of course the large hotels and principal boarding houses would be taxed to their utmost, but many thousands of rooms were available in private dwellings, and even though they should be filled up, there are several picturesque suburbs and villages close by.

DRAINAGE FOR TENTED CITY.

There is also the tented city, which will accommodate ten thousand people, affording them every convenience of a modern hotel. Plumbers have been at work for weeks past attending to the proper drainage and installing lavatories, while carpenters have already erected the necessary woodwork preparatory to the pitching of the tents themselves.

Two thousand soldiers have already arrived, principally from the Maritime Provinces and are now in camp close to the Plains of Abraham, where they will remain during the celebration.

DETECTIVES FROM ENGLAND

The civic and Provincial authorities are exercising all necessary discretion for the protection of the crowds. The police force will be trebled, while a small army of detectives will do duty, and firemen are already being taught those of thieving inclinations by the arrest of suspicious characters on the slightest provocation. In addition to Anglo-Canadian and Upper Canada sleuths, no fewer than twenty picked English detectives recently arrived in the city, some of whose duty it will be to keep close to the Prince of Wales.

The military men will now be arriving daily, as some fifteen thousand in all are coming. The majority will camp at Lilth River, close to the point where Jacques Carter first landed.

ENTRANCE EXAMINATION RESULTS

The following are the results of the entrance examinations for the city of Peterborough. The total number of marks obtainable was 650. To secure honor standing 75 per cent or 488 marks were required; to pass 40 per cent, or 260 marks on the whole. The winners of the scholarships are Edwena Palmer and Angus MacIntosh. The number of candidates who wrote on the examination was 203, and of these 121 passed. The candidates' marks have been sent to the principals of the different schools.

Another Lindsay Mill Goes Up in Flames

Lindsay, July 10.—The saw mill of G. J. Brunwell was destroyed by fire here at an early hour this morning. The mill has been idle down for some time, and the cause of the fire is unknown. The heat from the conflagration was terrific and sparks were scattered all over the town. The mill is valued at $5,000 and the insurance is $2,000.

Many windows were shattered by the great heat. For a time a large portion of the frame section of the town was in danger of being swept away.

Bed Simpson Won the 20 Mile Marathon Trial

London, July 10.—A final twenty-mile trial by the Canadian Marathoners today was won by Simpson, the Peterborough Indian, with a half mile to spare. The time was one hour fifty-eight minutes. Cotter, Goldsboro, Lawson and Caffery came in order. The time was excellent. The trial was made during a strong rain and wind storm.

Sherring and Crocker are delighted with Simpson's showing. He was always in front, and ran with judgment. Sherring says he will beat Longboat.

THE TEEMING WEALTH OF URES DISTRICT

Sonora, Mexico, World's Bountiful Tray

Description of What is Believed to be Amongst Earth's Richest Mineral Deposits

Nowhere in the world has the combination health, congenial clime, fertile soil, picturesque and romantic spots and commercial metal production become more pronounced than in the Ures district of Sonora, Mexico.

Until comparatively recent, the locations of the richest deposits have been kept a profound secret by the natives, but the steady and persistent encroachment of capital has brought into subjection all of the superstitions and secretiveness of the natives, and they now are unfolding to the world the marvelous hidden wealth of the region. The result is that new mines are being opened up and conducted which have lain dormant during the ages; and the veins are being successfully tapped by modern mining methods.

The beauty of the country, the charms of the climate, and powerfully in themselves an attraction which when combined with that of the wonderful mineral wealth, a magnet to draw fortune seekers to this fabulously and yet only partially developed mineral country, which people are beginning to regard as a sort of glittering fairy land, and where millions of capital, are being attracted from all parts of the world seeking investment in this great mineral lodge.

Our representative paid a visit to Hermosillo, the capital of Sonora, and took a drive across the country leading to the mountains where many a surprising and delightful picture presented itself. Hermosillo, with its mixture of old Spanish and modern architecture, its plaza, its cathedral, its cosmopolitan population, is pleasantly situated in the midst of a fertile valley, and is as quaint an old town as one would wish to see, while at the same time it has nearly all the advantages of a modern city. The drive leads one in a north-easterly direction from the capital, on a wagon-road so broad and smooth that it offers a comfortable journey or a pleasure drive for pleasure. Over this course the stages carry the mails to the distant mining camps. Winding in and out among the hills and barren rocks where the mesquite and cacti struggle up from the sun-baked plain and where the orange and the palm grove and broad fields of waving grain lead you on and on in the direction of the great mineral ledge, which is forty miles from Hermosillo. When you reach it you will look upon one of the most notable ledges in the whole state of Sonora, but in the meantime you are interested in your journey to that point and are taking no heed of the future. The country fairly bristles with imposing spectacles and presents a kaleidoscope of shifting forms and colors, you are beset by varying emotions, as scene after scene breaks upon your vision. At one moment you are in an ecstasy of poetic delight at the next you are filled with a deep and sublime admiration.

On the right of the road for a long stretch, the land is fertile with vegetation, oranges, lemons and other tropical fruits, and wheat fields covering an immense area. Here the country is owned by large farming estates, and is under the best cultivation, forming a striking contrast to the barren and rocky ground to the opposite side of the way.

An old Mexican Hacienda bursts upon the view in the midst of its picturesque surroundings, suggesting Spanish legends and ballads of centuries gone by; yet the mansion has something of a modern air about it, as revealed on closer inspection. It is equipped with a wind-mill, modern machinery and implements, for cultivating the rich farm land that spreads out on every side, where water can be turned on it from the surrounding ditches from which source the tilling of the soil is made possible. The owner of this Hacienda is a prince among men and has a large and distinguished family which fled at the first sign of the revolution, and are now living in Paris, where they are surrounded by all the luxuries that wealth can command. The Hacienda is now in charge of a manager, who is a typical Mexican, and who is a most genial host. He is a man of fine physique, and is a splendid horseman, and is never happier than when in the saddle. He is a man of wide experience, and has had charge of many of the largest estates in Mexico, and is a most interesting conversationalist. He is a man of fine physique, and is a splendid horseman, and is never happier than when in the saddle. He is a man of wide experience, and has had charge of many of the largest estates in Mexico, and is a most interesting conversationalist.

The Hacienda is a typical one of the country, and is a most interesting place to visit. The buildings are all of adobe, and are arranged in the form of a square, with a large courtyard in the centre. The rooms are all on the ground floor, and are very cool and comfortable. The furniture is of the most primitive description, and consists of a few chairs, a table, and a bed. The floors are of earth, and are kept very clean. The walls are whitewashed, and are decorated with pictures of saints and other religious subjects. The windows are small, and are protected by iron bars. The doors are of wood, and are very heavy. The roof is of tiles, and is very steep. The chimney is of brick, and is very large. The fireplace is in the kitchen, and is used for cooking. The food is cooked in pots and pans, and is served on plates and dishes. The meals are taken in the dining room, which is also the living room. The family sits around the table, and eats with their fingers. The children are not allowed to speak at the table, and are expected to be very quiet and well behaved. The parents are very strict with their children, and punish them severely for any misbehavior. The children are taught to read and write, and to do arithmetic, but they are not taught any other subjects. They are taught to work in the fields, and to help their parents in every way. They are taught to be obedient, and to respect their elders. They are taught to be honest, and to tell the truth. They are taught to be kind to animals, and to treat them well. THREATENED WITH PARALYSIS.

BEFORE TREATMENT

AFTER TREATMENT

Peter E. Sommers, of Kalamazoo, Mich., relates his experience:

"I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and carelessness in early youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Nightmarish dreams at night weakened me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair came, memory poor, etc. Numbness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, even an electric belt for three months, went to St. Clements for treatment, but received little benefit. While at St. Clements I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the New Method Treatment and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and will continue to do so."

Lusitania Clipped Thirty-Nine Minutes off Record

New York, July 10.—Breaking all previous records over the long distance course across the Atlantic of 2,891 miles, the swift turbiner Lusitania arrived at Sandy Hook lightship today at 2.11 a.m., the time of passage being 4 days 19 hours and 36 minutes.

New four-bladed propellers were used on the trip. The best day's run, July 7, was 643 knots, beating the previous record two knots.

Home Bank's Large Profits

Year's Good Business Closed —New Stock to be Issued—Annual Meeting

The following review of the Home Bank of Canada's annual report, reprinted from the Toronto World of Friday last. The Home Bank has nineteen branches in Ontario. There are six branches in Toronto;

To the Home Bank of Canada belongs the distinction of having concluded its year's business with an increase in deposits. The condition of the money market has caused heavy shrinkage in the deposits the banks have been carrying from the public. The Home Bank's increase is small, $100,000, but it is an increase, nevertheless, and under the circumstances, it is an appreciable increase.

Another item worthy of note, in the annual report handed out yesterday for the fiscal year just closed, is the announcement that Home Bank's capital will be increased and that $500,000 stock will be placed on the market at once, to sell at the price the old stock has uniformly commanded, 33 per cent, premium.

During the past year the Home Bank has opened six new branches, two in Toronto, one in London, and three in small points in Western Ontario. In this instance, also, the Home Bank has an individual record. The past year was not generally favorable for bank extension.

THE YEAR'S PROFITS.

In looking into the figures of the annual report of the Home Bank of Canada it is seen that the profits for the past year, after making allowance for doubtful debts and deducting all expenses for management, amount to $95,411.31. This sum, together with the profits carried over from 1907, and the premiums on capital stock paid during the year, being the profit account up to $144,790.54. After paying dividends out of this amount $93,795 has been transferred to the rest and "We consider the present time favorable for placing $500,000 new stock on the market, and bank's rest account, and $30,863.32 carried forward as a credit.

THE VOLUME OF BUSINESS.

The Home Bank stands nearly a million and a quarter to the good when its assets are compared with its liabilities to the public. These liabilities consist of the money the Home Bank carries on deposit from the public, the Home Bank bills in circulation among the public in Canada, and a small sum, $18,916, the Home Bank is owing to other banks the total amounting to within $5,000 of five and a half millions.

STATEMENT OF ASSETS.

On the other hand the assets amount to $6,734,863.03, made up as follows; Gold and silver coin on hand, Dominion Government notes on hand and deposit with the Government as security for note circulation, total, $566,284.

Notes and cheques of other banks held by the Home Bank, balances due the Home Bank from other banks in Canada, and from banks in Great Britain and foreign countries, total $652,241.

Bonds, stocks and debentures in possession of the Home Bank, held as security for call and other short terms which amount to $2,328,802.89.

Current loans and bills discounted, $2,714,747.52.

The bank's premises and office equipment in Toronto and at the branches are valued at $196,000.

THE PRESIDENT'S REMARKS.

The annual meeting was held at the head office of the Home Bank, 8 King street west, and in the remarks which he made following the presentation of the annual report, the president dwelt on the condition of the money market. "You will observe," he said, "that the deposits, which in view of the general withdrawal that has taken place, might have been expected to show a decrease, not only do not do so, but show an increase of nearly $100,000. With normal conditions existing we would likely have shown a larger increase."

IMPURE BLOOD

Clogs the Kidneys
Slows the Heart
Fags the Brain

Weakens Every Part of the Body. Causes Organic Diseases.

Just as strength is the natural outcome of pure blood, so is debility and sickness the result of impure blood.

To know how quickly how surely Ferrozone cures, to see how it rebuilds and restores, you have only to read the following letters—read them carefully—one of the symptoms may be yours.

Miss Phebe M. Geatz of Kingston, writes, "I have had an attack of blood disorder which broke out in horrid looking pimples. They were ugly red disfiguring blotches that ruined the appearance of my face. I tried all sorts of medicine, but the pimples didn't leave. I was recommended Ferrozone and gave it a trial. I noted an improvement after the second box, and kept up the treatment which finally cleared my skin. As the result of Ferrozone I have a clear healthy complexion and can recommend it to all other young women similarly affected."

Another young lady well known in society circles of Springfield, who, derived exceptional benefit from Ferrozone, says; "I felt it my duty to make known the value of Ferrozone. My trouble was poor weak blood, and as a consequence my lips were pallid, and my cheeks had no color. I wasn't at all strong, and required a braceing tonic. Ferrozone soon brought color to my cheeks, improved my appetite and made me stronger than I had been in years. I favor Ferrozone because it is so simple to take and works so quickly.

No blood remedy exists that has the power to cure, to heal, to restore like Ferrozone; try it, 50c per box at any drug store.

Chief Howard Submits His Second Report

Last night at a meeting of the Fire, Water & Light Committee, Chief Howard presented the following report to the committee, which was adopted as read;

Peterborough, July 10, 1908.

To the Chairman and Committee of the Fire, Water & Light Committee;

Gentlemen,—I beg leave to present report No. 2 of the fire department as follows.—

I took charge of your fire department at 12.05 a.m., July the 1st, and immediately took stock of the buildings and equipment. You will please find attached to this report a stock sheet of the apparatus, equipment, and supplies, as I found them on July 1st.

I trust the committee will sanction the stock sheet and by so doing avoid any misunderstanding that might occur in years to come. I also attach to this report a list of articles for purchase, that will be necessary to make an appropriation for, over and above the ordinary running expenses.

The list referred to is not put in the way of a demand, but merely as a guide to assist your committee in speedily bringing the department to a state of efficiency.

I wish to draw your attention to three important matter that should be acted upon immediately.

1. Your No. 1 hose wagon is in a bad state of repair, and in my opinion should receive a general overhauling. The box of the wagon is in upset shape, but the gear is not substantial enough. I would suggest that the present gear be replaced with a heavier set, with Archibald wheels and roller bearings, and that the old gear be equipped with a common box and made into a supply wagon. In cities it is customary to have the supply wagon for more long hours.

2. That your new hose wagon be equipped with a 50-gallon chemical tank, with interchangeable fittings.

3. It may be necessary to replace two of your horses some time in the near future as they show signs of playing out.

I also wish to report that we have not received the books belonging to the fire department, nor have I been able to obtain possession of the keys to the bell tower.

Some minor repairs are required at the fire station. The roof of the building is leaking, and the eave troughs at the rear of the building are broken.

There is another matter that I would like the committee to take up at once. I refer to the passing of bylaws governing the storage of combustibles, and the inspection of public buildings, as I would like to take up the work of inspection as soon as possible.

An Annual Opportunity

For Seven Per Cent. Investment is a Sound Security and at the same time reserve shares in a mining enterprise free and clear without cost to you. This enterprise is conducted by men of the highest character and the administration of the company is along lines which are found to bring the results sought. The money received from the Bond issue will be used for development and extension of the company's vast interests, and it is the opinion of experts that the company can pay large returns from the property, the ores to be extracted being of sufficient value to pay the interest on the bonds as well as permit of a sinking fund to carry on further improvements and for dividend paying purposes. Send in your order and make reservations for 7 per cent. bonds, they take 30 days in which to make investigations before making your payment, as we want to have you thoroughly satisfied before investing a dollar of your money. Here is the opportunity that has been long sought and we don't think has ever been offered before.

For complete information, detailed description of the property, record of the bank references, etc., address Thomas Patterson & Co.

Women Cured At Home

Women's disorders always yield, from the very beginning of the treatment to the mild but effective action of Orange Lily.

Within two or three days after commencing its use the improvement becomes noticeable, and this improvement continues until the patient is completely cured. Orange Lily is an approved local treatment, and acts directly on womanly organs, removing the congestion, toning and strengthening the nerves, and restoring perfect circulation in the diseased parts.

In order to convince all suffering women of the value of this remedy I will send a 25-cent box enough for ten days' treatment, absolutely by FREE to each lady sending me her address.

A BANKER'S OPINION

[illegible] to be contained in the remarks made by Mr. Walker, President of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, in an interview, a report of which was published [illegible] Mr. Walker says to expect great prosperity in the immediate future, but only during which a year during which economy was practised by all sections of the community, prosperity would be [illegible] business and affairs passed on a normal basis. But economy is essential, and it is on a great extent to the regard to economy during the last few years that the commercial and financial depression which marked the closing months of last year was owing. The enlightened and crop [illegible] year in the north west was, of course, an incident in the situation, but only an incident, and in the main way a good crop this year would be a favorable and mitigating circumstance, but we [illegible] wished [illegible] that in the [illegible] may for complete restoration of normal conditions.

That view is not a novel one. From time to time during the last [illegible] were those who looked a little ahead and suggested that during a period such abounding prosperity was the time to prepare for a less favorable condition of things. Large crops and good prices with the rounds in the United States, by that country suffered severely, and is still suffering, because the tendency among all classes of the people was to live beyond the means which in the past had sufficed them and not to accumulate anything. They called how the millionaires they made, and may profit in the future by the experience, but that does not prevent the inconvenience and difficulties which in the meantime they have been subjected.

Free extravagance and a willingness to [illegible] lead to [illegible] an [illegible] without a clear perception of the means in which those obligations were to be met, were no characteristics of individuals only. They marked municipalities and other public bodies, and each of these have suffered heavy penalties as the result of this lack of foresight and prudence. With [illegible] monetary conditions, which a large crop may bring about, some of these municipalities may again take advantage of the change and once more engage in costly schemes and undertakings on borrowed money. But unless more regard is paid to economy we cannot, as Mr. Walker says, expect a new [illegible] another period of permanent prosperity for some time to come.

MAKING A WILL.

If You Draw Up Your Own, Stick to the Most Simple Terms.

"If the people," said a lawyer, "who for whatever reason prefer to draw wills without resorting to legal advice would keep just one thing in mind a lot of trouble would be saved. It is nothing save insistence on simplicity. Simplicity is the main thing to make a will effective, and apparently it is the one thing that the will makers forget about. High sounding words and half remembered law phrases come to their minds, and into the documents these verbal extravagances go. There appears to be a popular impression that, for example, to say 'I give and bequeath' is a stronger way of saying 'I give.' Again, take the matter of directions. Here a desire to be explicit frequently results in contradictions, and the longer a sentence in a will is the more likelihood there is of its being open to misinterpretation.

"No will should be drawn without at least a couple of drafts having been made of it, each one being gone over carefully with the idea of simplifying and clarifying it. Give the time to it that the importance of the action demands. Know what you want to do and study out the best way of expressing yourself. Don't put off making a will. I'm superstitious enough to consider that tempting fate. And when a will is drawn remember that it has no legal binding unless the signature is witnessed by two persons, who must themselves witness the document in the presence of the testator and each other."

Ruth's Aunt Mehitable.

By ANNE HEILMAN.

Copyrighted, 1903, by Associated Literary Press.

Hetty Peters sat gazing out of her window across the closely cropped lawn, past the garden of many hued roses and away to the woods, all white with dogwood and purple with violets. She held a letter in her hand. Not in many a long year had Hetty's face worn such an expression of woe.

"If you please, ma'am," awakened her from the trance. She turned to the cook and gave her orders for the day. Then, with a sigh, she opened the letter and reread it:

Dear Aunt Mehitable—Papa and Jessie Miller will be married Tuesday morning and sail for Europe the same day on an extended trip. So I shall leave college and go home to look after you.

The Stirlings are here for the wedding. You know they are related to Jessie. Fred looks as old-fas his father. They have made a mint of money mining in Colorado and intend to buy back their estate and settle down as our nearest neighbors again. No place like the south, they declare. Papa invited them to make our house their home while negotiations are pending. Business will detain Mr. Stirling in Boston for a few weeks, but Fred will come to town with me. Expect us on Thursday. Your loving RUTH.

"Jessie's a dear soul. I hope they'll be very happy," Hetty murmured to herself, "but I never thought John would marry again. And Ruth coming back a year before I expected! This'll never seem like home to me any more."

Hetty Peters was single. She had never had a lover, had never looked for one and, incredible as it may seem, had never wished for one. She had been altogether too busy, first, in looking after a younger sister and brother, and, second, in caring for her delicate mother, to consider her matrimonial prospects. The brother and sister had grown up, married and moved north. Her mother's death had left her alone.

When her elder brother's wife died she had gone to live with him, and for several years her existence had been happy if monotonously uneventful. Now came the disquieting news of John's second marriage and of her niece's unexpected return.

Ruth had a decided predilection for managing everything and everybody she came in contact with. Her aunt had always trembled before her. Ruth was the only one who remembered her baptismal name, and Hetty detested it, but Ruth persisted in calling her Aunt Mehitable.

"Perhaps she intends to marry Fred!" Hetty reflected hopefully. "If she does, of course he'll have to give in. He was a nice looking boy when he left. I remember I kissed him goodby, he seemed such a boy, and he is a year older than I am."

On Thursday Miss Peters was at the station when the northern train arrived. While she was watching the outcoming passengers from one car a hand touched swiftly her arm, and a pleasant voice exclaimed, "Hetty, you have not changed a bit since we parted."

"I've grown fifteen years older," she answered, giving her hand to a tall, bronzed, handsome man, whose dark eyes were scrutinising her admiringly.

"I know it," he replied. "So have I"—

"Fred, loosen that checkrein. Aunt Mehitable, how could you drive this horse in such a condition? You really need some one to look after you!"

And Hetty realized, with a pang, that Ruth had come back to her own.

"No tea for me," she commanded at the dinner table. "Aunt Mehitable, I'm surprised at you! Any doctor will tell you that tannic acid is a rank poison. It's positively criminal to use tea or coffee when one can have fresh milk."

The next morning Ruth's sway began.

"Just up?" she called out as Hetty made her appearance at 7 o'clock. "I've been up for hours. I shall move the breakfast time an hour earlier, and you must come for a walk every morning before breakfast. It will do you a world of good." And Aunt Hetty, realising the futility of argument where Ruth was concerned, miserably acquiesced.

"Is it possible you sleep on a feather bed?" exclaimed Ruth that evening, unexpectedly invading her aunt's room. "Don't you know that feathers are not sanitary? You need some one to look after you, Aunt Mehitable."

"I'm not so old as that," protested Hetty.

"It isn't altogether a matter of age; it's temperament. You take life like a grasshopper. You really do need some one. Of course you'll have me until"—

"Until you marry?" suggested Hetty.

"I have been thinking of it," Ruth admitted complacently. "By the way, how do you like Fred?"

"I think he is in every way desirable. I don't believe any woman could ask for a better husband."

"I'm glad to hear you say so," said Ruth. "Was his father a good husband?"

"I do not remember Fred's mother. She died when I was very young. But I always understood they were very happy."

"I met Mr. Stirling frequently at Jessie's," said Ruth. "He came to Boston on business. If Fred is like his father I'm sure he'll make a good husband. We were talking about you this afternoon. He thinks you look younger than I do, and he thinks, as I do, that you need some one to take care of you. He really takes a great interest in you, Aunt Mehitable."

"He takes a great interest is you apparently, which is more to the point," ejaculated her exasperated aunt. "Do you mean to pretend that you don't want Fred to be fond of you?"

"Why, of course," asserted Ruth as she rose to leave the room. "Of course I hope Fred is going to be fond of me. I shall have that feather bed taken up to the garret tomorrow morning, Aunt Mehitable."

In the days that followed Hetty found herself taken in hand and "looked after" with a thoroughness that reduced her to the verge of melancholia. All her actions and movements were regulated by her energetic niece, who dictated what she should eat, what she should drink and wherewithal she should be clothed.

[illegible] to an entertainment [illegible]

"She is, indeed," Fred assented. "She is a perfect example of what the higher education can do for a woman. But, joking aside, I don't think she's an awfully good sort, and I'm fonder of her than any other girl I know. This is a very pleasant day. Can't you come for a row on the river, Hetty?"

"N-no. I have some work that must be attended to," she faltered.

"You haven't given me any of your attention since I've been here," he complained. "You're not treating me right, Hetty."

"But—Ruth"— Hetty began in surprise.

Fred rose to his feet.

"Hetty," he said, "I want you to know something. When I left for the west, you kissed me goodby. Oh, I know you felt nothing but friendship for your old playfellow, and it sounds silly to say, but it's true, I've never kissed another woman. I meant to tell you some day, and now that"— He paused. "I promised not to say anything until Ruth told you, but"—

"I understand," said Hetty softly.

"Did she tell you?" he asked.

"Not in so many words, but I think she meant me to understand. I am so glad."

"It began last winter," said Fred. "I'm glad too. I think we're all going to be very happy."

"Aunt Mehitable," broke in Ruth's crisp voice, "here's a telegram from Mr. Stirling. He will arrive this evening."

The interruption was welcome to Hetty. She felt that she could not have endured another word.

Hetty spent the remainder of the day in her room. Fred and Ruth waved their hands gayly when she drove off to the station to meet Mr. Stirling. How well they looked together, she thought. Something in the sight stirred a strain of sadness in her. She seemed to realise for the first time that she had been cheated out of her girlhood.

Absorbed in her sad musings, she absentmindedly took a turning which made her drive longer by half a mile. When she reached the station Mr. Stirling had already started for the Pines.

Hetty drove back slowly. The full moon arose and the air was sweet with the scent of roses, but Hetty had no thoughts for the beauty of the night.

She threw the reins to the stable boy and took a short cut for the house. She was in no mood to join the family party and intended to go quietly to her room.

As she passed the rose garden she caught sight of Ruth's white dress in the shrubbery. Ruth's face was upturned to her companion, and—yes, he had taken her in his arms. It was Ruth's kiss Fred would remember now.

Hetty sat down on a rustic seat under a live oak. The meaning of it all swept over her. She was thirty-four, and there had never been moonlight or a rose garden for her. She had always left love out of her plans for herself, and now it was Fred, Ruth's Fred, out there in the rose garden, and she was alone with the emptiness of thirty-four unlived years—alone and old. Her eyes filled with scalding tears, and she sobbed aloud.

"Why, Hetty, what on earth are you crying about?"

Fred sat down beside her and gathered her in his arms.

"Don't cry, dearest," he implored. "Tell me what the trouble is. Don't you want dad to have Ruth? Why, I"—

"Your father!" gasped Hetty. "Is that who she's with?"

"Why, of course," said Fred. "I told you all about it."

Hetty sprang up in astonishment.

"I expected her to marry you," she cried.

He laughed softly.

"I didn't. She knew all along that I wanted to marry you. She's been doing all she could to make the match. She knew you needed some one to look after you."

The Seven Prophets.

"The late Duke of Devonshire," said a diplomat at a Washington dinner, "kept a stud and took a calm and ducal interest in the races. There was a certain sporting paper that kept a large staff of prophets and always prophesied the outcome of important races. The duke for some reason put great reliance in these prophets and their prophecies. He always read the paper, and he continually recommended it to his friends. But once at Goodwood, at the day's end, a man came up to the duke and said:

"'What of your paper now? Did you see it this morning? Six prophets prophesied that six different horses would win, and here only seven ran, and the winner was the seventh, which no prophet had selected. Well, what have you to say now?'

"'All I have to say,' the duke answered calmly, 'is that there's room for another prophet on that paper.'"

Two dukes a year.

Henry Keyes of Vermont was a lifelong Democrat. Governor Mattocks, or Judge Mattocks, was for a brief period a Democrat also. After he got to be a judge he soon became a Whig. While holding court at St. Johnsbury he occupied a room at the leading hotel, which, as was usual during court time, was full. Late at night Mr. Keyes arrived and wanted a bed. The landlord informed him that every bed in the house had two in it except the one that was occupied by Judge Mattocks.

"Go up and tell him that Henry Keyes wants to sleep with him."

The landlord went up, rapped at the judge's door and told him his errand.

"Henry Keyes," said the judge, half asleep—"Henry Keyes of Newbury? Democrat? Oh, yes; I've had it once. Let him in."

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pains and purge of this deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. With it that last ingredient, I successfully treated many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it unfailingly cures all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. These sand-like granular wastes, found in Rheumatic Blood seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. We call, and in confidence recommend

"ALL DEALERS"

When Ben Sailed In.

By HARRIS INGALLS.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press

"Come on out," pleaded Drakin. "There is only myself and the mosquitos out there. I'll guarantee that you will not have to speak to any one else."

Ben Hubbard paused irresolutely; then he turned and suited his pace to the shorter steps of his friend. Drakin beamed.

"There's the sensible boy," he said approvingly. "I'll bet that you ask me to have your things sent out in the morning, so you can stay a week or two—the longer the better."

Hubbard shook his head and assured himself that a single night would probably be enough. It was only a year since Tom Drakin had married, and probably he would be bored by their absurd billing and cooing.

It was only for Tom's sake that he was coming out for the night, and only the fact that there would be no other woman there was his reason for going at all. Probably Mrs. Drakin would insist that he come again and would introduce him an introduction to some friend of hers who would be just the one he should marry.

Hubbard was used to that.

Besides Grandin's enthusiastic efforts to marry him to a cousin of hers had sent him scurrying off to South America. He had maintained that he would write a book on the flora of the Argentine Republic, but his real reason for flight was the fear that Mrs. Grandin would make good her threat to marry him to Helen Wilson in spite of himself.

For years Hubbard had lived in fear of matrimony. He was not exactly a woman hater, but an excess of timidity left him stammering and afraid in feminine presence, and he had come to have a mortal dread of matrimony so great a dread that more than once he had fled from some enthusiastic matchmaker lest he be led, protesting, but helpless, to the altar.

But he was just back from the South American trip and hungry for the companionship of his fellows. In that frame of mind he had run across Drakin, who had once been the geologist of an expedition of which he himself had been botanist.

They had had lunch together, and Drakin had urged him to spend the night with him that their talk might be continued.

Drakin lived in a small suburban town, and Hubbard regarded approvingly the neat little cottage they approached, even though a woman in something fleecy and white stood on the porch to welcome them. Drakin had gone into the telephone booth at the station to announce their coming and had emerged from the booth very red and confused.

Hubbard hoped that his coming had not been the cause of the confusion. He knew that there were times when things in the kitchen went wrong and when visitors were not welcome. He had suggested as much to Tom, but the offer to return to town had been hooted at, and Tom had laughed immoderately to cover his confusion at the discovery of his embarrassment.

[illegible] was no embarrassment on Mrs. Drakin's face as she made him welcome. There was only interest and cordial friendship, and Ben was surprised to find himself rather envying his chum.

Of course Tom had been exceptionally fortunate in finding such a woman, but as Ben trembled into bed some hours later he told himself that were there two such women he should like to marry the other.

They had sat talking until late in the evening, and when Ben finally woke he discovered a note on his dresser, in which Tom explained that it was necessary for him to go to the city on business, but that he would return in the afternoon and bring with him the trunk Ben had sent to the hotel.

Ben wavered—and was lost. He slowly dressed and went downstairs to find Mrs. Drakin sitting in the dining room waiting for her guest to come downstairs.

"Tom left his apologies," she explained as she poured him his coffee. "He had to rise at such an unearthly hour to make the train that we decided to let you sleep. He will be out on the 4:10, and in the meantime I am solemnly bound to hold you here at all hazards. Tom would never forgive me if you should be gone before he came back."

"You couldn't drive me away," declared Ben gayly. "I'll be well content to sit out on the porch and just think how lucky I was to run into Tom yesterday afternoon."

"I'll take my sewing out, and we can chat as I work," suggested Mrs. Drakin, and presently they were established on the broad piazza. To his surprise Ben found himself chatting with his hostess as freely as though she were a man and not one of the dread women.

Tom came out as he had promised, and Ben frowned as he caught sight of his friend perched on the seat of an express wagon in which was his trunk.

"Now you've got to stay," announced Tom. "We shall hold your trunk like they do in the hotels if you try to escape us."

"I think that you would be wise to ship me and the trunk back to town," said Ben seriously, but Drakin hooted down the suggestion, and when Mrs. Drakin added her entreaties to Tom's he gave in, and the trunk was taken up to his room.

That night when Ben put out the light he did not jump into bed, but long after the rest of the house was quiet he sat by the open window, looking across the moonlit fields and wondering what he should do.

Of one thing he was certain. He was in love, and in love with his friend's wife at that. What was more, it had seemed to him that as she had bidden him good night and had told him she was glad that he had decided to stay there was something more than mere friendship in the glance of the tender blue eyes.

Her hand had lingered for a moment in his, and she had paused by the door of her room to look after him. The memory of her smile was with him still, and when he at last flung himself upon the bed to fall into troubled slumber the problem was still unsolved.

But with the morning came calmer sense. As he came into the breakfast room there was no mistaking the soft flush that came to Mrs. Drakin's cheek nor the look that flashed into her eyes as she gave him the morning greeting.

Sick at heart, Ben followed his host out on to the piazza, while Mrs. Drakin remained behind to see to the disposition of the breakfast things and give her orders for dinner.

"Look here, old man, I've got to be getting back to town," he began.

"Not on your life," was the emphatic response. "Do you suppose that I took all that trouble to lug your trunk out yesterday to have you lug it in today? You are going to stay right here for the next two weeks. By your own confession you have nothing else to do, and I don't promise to let you go."

"But I must!" cried Ben miserably. "I must, old man! I—I'm in love! I can't help it, but I've fallen in love with your wife. I must get away before greater harm is done."

"Lois seems pretty fond of you. It was only this morning that she was saying that she hoped to be able to induce you to stay here while you write your new book. I think it would be a great scheme. You can put in the day working on the book and then sit out on the piazza in the evening and gather inspiration for the next day's work."

Ben regarded his friend with horror. It must be that he had gone mad, for now his face was contorted with laughter, and he rocked in his chair. Ben had heard of great shocks turning men's minds, but he had not believed that Tom would take his declaration so much to heart.

His amazement seemed to increase Tom's merriment, and Ben half rose to his feet to go into the house. Tom sprang up and forced him back into his chair.

"It seems a funny sort of thing to laugh at," he said chokingly, "but, you see, Lois is not my wife. I knew that if I told you the truth and admitted that there was an unmarried woman in the house you never could be induced to come out. I parted Lois from the station when you were worrying for fear it was inconvenient. My wife is visiting her younger sister, who is very ill. That is my sister, Lois, who is keeping house for me until Nell gets back. So sail in, old man, and may luck be with you. Where are you going?" he added as Ben shook him off and made for the door.

"I'm going to sail in," explained Ben as he vanished into the house.

Marriages in Manitoba.

A number of marriage ceremonies have been solemnized in Manitoba by visiting clergymen from the United States. When his fact was brought to the attention of Attorney-General Campbell he stated that marriage ceremonies performed in Manitoba by a visiting clergyman from across the line are illegal. United States clergymen have no legal status in Manitoba, and have, therefore, not the right to perform marriage ceremonies. They are liable to the penalties provided by statute. He pointed out, however, that all marriages performed in the province by unauthorized persons become legal after the expiration of two years, provided the two parties have lived together as man and wife during that time and the validity of the marriage has not been questioned by any suit or action.

Not Particular as to Weapons.

The waiter girl knew a thing or two about table etiquette, so she sniffed scornfully as she said, "It's not our custom to serve a knife with pie."

"No?" remarked the patron to surprise. "Then bring me an ax."

QUEBEC'S GREAT PAGEANT.

Three Thousand Performers in the Tableaux.

For the greatest pageant of modern times, that to be given next month on the scene of Wolfe and Montcalm's bloody fight on the heights of Quebec, when the city observes the tercentenary celebration of the founding of the settlement, 3,000 performers are now being recruited in Quebec, Montreal and Ottawa. They will shortly commence their rehearsals and drill under the direction of Frank Lascelles, who was the master of the Oxford pageant last year and who has gone to Quebec at the special invitation of his friend, Earl Grey, Governor-General of Canada.

"There is no other such stage in the world for dramatic pageantry as the Plains of Abraham," said Mr. Lascelles recently, "where the grandeur of the natural scenery defies description and where the 20,000 spectators on the grand stand, facing the St. Lawrence 300 feet below, at a point where Wolfe's highlanders clambered up the heights, will be able to see at the grand finale of the performance the combined navies of three great powers, consisting of twenty to thirty men-of-war, appearing on the scene to fire a deafening salute to the past, the present and the future of the Canadian nation.

"The spectacle will be given in the presence of the heir to the British crown, the vice-president of the United States and the representatives of the President of the French republic and of the families of the French and English generals who met there in mortal combat a century and a half ago."

Mr. Lascelles has been asked to explain what the coming pageant will be like, what historic scenes are to be portrayed and how they are to be represented in the great open air drama. This in part is what he said:

"From the foot of his statue, where stands for all time the bronze figure of the great Champlain, stepping ashore, as it were, as he did so long ago to take possession of this new country of the west, the Prince of Wales and Mr. Fairbanks, with other illustrious guests, will see pass in procession before them all the great men and women who have made Canada what it is, and later on, on the Plains of Abraham, they will see the living pictures of the great events of those early days.

"On the banks of that river this summer we shall see again, as Cartier saw nearly 400 years ago, a cluster of wigwams set beneath the trees. Away on the broad waters of the river many feet below will come the little boats with Cartier and his crew, their names still preserved and their descendants impersonating them.

"Then we are transported to the court of France, the gardens at Fontainebleau, and high on the white charger, trapped with cloth of gold, rides the proud figure of Francis I. as we see him in pictures painted when he lived. Around him, clad in rich colored velvets and brocades, are the ladies and gentlemen of his court, some hundreds on horse and on foot, and Cartier, with three of the Indians with him, tells of the wonders of the country from which he has come.

"So on through many scenes the floating clouds of incense which accompany the ecclesiastical pomp and ceremony of the great and dignified Archbishop Montmorency de Laval, the booming cannon, the gorgeous attendants of the representatives of the king, the Marquis de Tracy, the brilliant uniforms of the soldiery, the quaint costumes of the habitants, the fierce battle of the Iroquois, the flying arrows and the burning forts, the war dances of the savages and the Maypoles of the children, the powder and patches of the ladies of France, the curled leonine locks of the cavaliers, pass on and pass away.

"Then in a final scene will march the armies of two brave nations, side by side in a parade of honor, the scarlet and gold of the British and the blue and white of the French, headed by four noble generals — Montcalm and Wolfe, Levis and Murray. The flags wave, the drums rattle, the trumpets blare, our dream of the past is over, and we see only the wonder of the present and the infinite possibilities of the future."

SUBSTITUTES FOR TOBACCO.

Persons Deprived of Real Article Use Many Expedients.

The Indians along the Alaskan coast have a very curious substitute for tobacco, which is composed of wood shavings saturated with a strong solution of pepper. The practice, however, is extremely injurious, the strong fumes acting on the mouth and eyesight.

Among the farmers of the west it is no uncommon practice for them to smoke the leaves of tomato and potato plants. While these plants both contain a narcotic poison, the smoking of leaves in moderation is harmless. Excessive use, though, produces a heavy sleeper, from which the smoker awakes with a terrible headache and a feeling of utter exhaustion. Insanity and suicide have often been caused by the immoderate use of these two weeds. Elmbark, bast and even sandalwood leaves are all smoked by farmers, and are perhaps the least harmful of substitutes for tobacco.

Indian hemp is smoked by nearly all classes in Jamaica with terrible results. It is supposed that this weed was used by the leaders of the Indian Mutiny to unbalance the minds of the sepoys and to excite them into the terrible paroxysms of raging insane which they exhibited during that campaign.

Even in modern Europe we hear of people who, unable to get the real article procure substitutes of their own manufacture. Russia is not the only one "cultivator tobacco." It is simply a powdered form of the leaves of the common coltsfoot, a plant found growing wild in chalky soil. The smoke causes no terrible after-effects, although some say that it is injurious to the eyes. Because this tobacco relieves difficult breathing it is known as "the finest remedy on earth for catarrh."

Among the least harmful of substitutes for tobacco will be found dried leafy leaves, the bark of the willow trees and leaves of the ash's have smoked, which are all smoked by the American Indians.

To Canadian Investors

The undersigned has received an allotment of unsold portion of $100,000 of

7 Per Cent. First Mortgage Five-Year Gold Bonds

dated January 11, 1908, and maturing January 11, 1913. These Bonds are offered at par and accrued interest by Metropolitan Trust & Savings Bank, Chicago, trustees.

SECURITY—The Entire Property and Improvements Owned THE URES CONSOLIDATED MINING COMPANY in the District of Ures, State of Sonora Mexico, Free from Mortgage of Bonded Indebtedness, except this present Bond issue.

An Unusual Opportunity for Investment in Sound Security

The Ures Consolidated Mining Company offers $100,000.00 of First Mortgage Gold Bonds. This issue of bonds is the only mortgage or bonded indebtedness ever placed on the company's properties.

These bonds are in the denomination of $100.00, and bear interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, July and January, and are redeemable on or before five years from date at the company's option at $110.00 and accrued interest.

With each bond issued there will be given $100.00 par value of the capital stock of the company as a bonus, and in addition thereto there will be placed in escrow with the Trustee additional stock which will be available to the bondholders at their option any time within a period of three years, the bondholder being entitled to surrender his bond any time within said period and receive in lieu thereof stock for every dollar of indebtedness to him on account of said bonds.

The Security Back of these Bonds

The company owns twelve claims situated in the district of Ures, State of Sonora, Mexico, free from mortgage or bonded indebtedness, except the present bond issue.

On one of these properties (The Ramona Mine) 6,000 feet of underground development work has been done, consisting of an inclined shaft to the depth of 400 feet with drifts in three levels to the North and South of the shaft.

An average value of ore worth $11.47 per ton is exposed throughout the mine, from the collar of the shaft to the extreme parts in the drifts, all of which is above water level.

The company has made surface improvements and mine improvements to the extent of $60,000.00 in the way of machinery, skids, trams, steam boiler, mill and nearly everything necessary to make the mining camp complete.

In addition to the absolute ownership of these twelve valuable claims, the company has a lease on the San Jose Mine, adjoining its property, in which the company has been operating in high grade ore.

During the past sixty days the company has extracted and delivered to ore buyers and the bank at Hermosillo, $4,000.00 worth of ore and bullion, the ore having been reduced to bullion through the company's mill, with the exception of 1,464 pounds, which was sold to an ore buyer for $562.50.

This issue of bonds is made for the purpose of securing money at once in order to extend the development work more quickly than the company's present means will permit.

With the high grade ore in sight to the distance of 50 feet to the South of the shaft, the management is assured that within six months from date of making the improvements now necessary the company's properties will be on a self-sustaining and dividend-paying basis.

The Stock which is Given with these bonds will be as valuable as the bonds when the Company has the ready capital to push operations

Men who invest in these bonds will have no cause or reason to regret their action, for the bonds afford an investment in a security which is absolutely safe—much better than ordinary city or country real estate, which is considered perfectly safe if the property put up to secure a mortgage is double the face of the loan. The security given on these bonds is better than 7 to 1, for the Ures Consolidated Mining Company has refused an offer of $750,000.00 for the property upon which this $100,000.00 worth of bonds is issued.

These bonds are an investment with all speculative risk eliminated —an investment with absolute security.

Make your reservation at once. This is small and promises to be quickly sold.

To whom it may concern:—

We hereby beg to state that The Ures Consolidated Mining Company has during the past five years made several deliveries of bullion to this bank, and it is the opinion of mining men here that they have the making of a fair mine, and further, that the properties owned and controlled by them bid promise of becoming paying properties.

From our knowledge of the men connected, we believe they are doing all in their power to bring about the results above mentioned.

1 CENT A 2 SHARE

Send us your name as a member in this new company, with your remittance for as many thousand shares as you can take at $5 per thousand.

This is a short-time offer on a hurry-up proposition. Our vice president is up at Rawhide now putting the miners at work. We want to raise the necessary funds for development as quickly as possible. Therefore, we offer the first block of stock at 1/2 a thousand shares. This subscription must be all cash. We want the money in hand. We mean to work without let-up, and we have made it an ironclad rule not to run in debt, cash counts now.

Our prospectuses are out. Send for one.

Make reservation of stock, if you do no more. But, remember, this present offer of stock at Half a Cent a Share is now open, and will be closed as soon as enough cash subscriptions are in hand. Don't wait, or you will get left.

The gold mining property owned outright by the company consists of 7 claims, 4 in the Rawhide district of Nevada, and 4 in the Dulzura district of Southern California.

The Rawhide district to-day is more famous than Goldfield, Tonopah, Bullfrog, or Searchlight were at the same stage of exploration and development. The Dulzura discovery is one of the most sensational in the history of California.

Ten samples of ore which were among the first assayed, run as high as $7,461.67 to the ton, and all ten averaged over $1,500 a ton.

In both camps we located early, and our locations are choice. Our own officers will superintend the mining.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the Northwest Provinces, excepting 8 and 26 reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father or mother.

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

Board Accepts this Generous Offer

The scholarship that has been offered by Dr. Burnham some years ago to the pupil obtaining the highest number of marks at entrance examinations has been changed on account of the first year pupils being admitted free.

However, determined to offer a special inducement to the pupils in trying their examinations, Dr. Burnham has generously made a new offer which was accepted with thanks by the board. To the boy or girl securing the highest number of marks in passing the Entrance Examinations a five dollar gold piece will be given. This is in lieu of Dr Burnham's scholarship.

On motion of Dr. Morrison and Mr. Crane the Board accepted the generous offer, which is characteristic of Dr. Burnham's interest in school affairs.

Clean Up Inside

Blood and System Cleansing in the Spring Makes Good Health all Summer.

In spite of all your careful habits, it's safe to say that in the spring you feel poorly—have a throbbing sensation in the head—skin is pale or yellow, with dark rings under the eyes. If not absolutely bilious the system is so full of bile that you feel heavy and tired all day long.

Clean up, work off the winter's accumulation of waste, purify your blood. Do this and you'll feel fresh as a prize-fighter. "For ten years, says W. B. Sangster, of Concord, "I suffered greatly from impure blood, which made me feel debilitated and unfit for work. I had no appetite suffered from indigestion and gas, had some pains in the back, caused by poor kidney action. Spring was the hardest time of all, and many a time I felt despondent and languid enough to throw up the sponge. I was impressed by the marvellous work done by Dr. Hamilton's Pills and tried them. They suited me exactly. In one week I felt like new. I was braced up, got rid of blood weakness, gained in flesh, got back my old time appearance and smiles. Dr. Hamilton's Pills will clean all the sickness out of a man in short order and I urge young and old to use this grand tonic medicine."

Dr. Hamilton's Pills are a perfect spring medicine; they destroy germs and poisons of every description and strength whereby the system rallies and the patient quickly enjoys the blessings of Perfect Health. Get Dr. Hamilton's Pills—to-day—25c at all dealers.

DOCTORS MISTAKES

Are said often to be buried six feet under ground. But many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another from nervous prostration, another with pain here and there, and in this way they present alike to themselves and their easy-going or over-busy doctor, separate diseases, for which he, assuming them to be such, prescribes his pills and potions. In reality, they are all only symptoms caused by some uterine disease. The physician, ignorant of the cause of suffering, keeps up his treatment until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better in spite of the wrong treatment, but probably worse. A proper medicine like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, directed to the cause, would have promptly relieved the disease, both by dispelling all those distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery. It has been well said, that "a disease known is half cured."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a scientific medicine, carefully devised by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate system. It is made of native American medicinal roots and is perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the female system.

As a powerful invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. For overworked, "worn-out," run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequaled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nervine "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the uterus. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets invigorate the stomach, liver and bowels. One to three a dose. Easy to take as candy.

It will first be offered to the shareholders, as required by the Bank Act, and such as are not taking up will probably be placed in the Northwest Provinces, in which part of the country there is springing up a demand for our stock. There are a considerable number of shares now held there, and in view of a very probable large increase in that number, and that we have recently established a business connection in Manitoba that should produce results valuable to the bank, it has been considered advisable to ask you to place two gentlemen on the directorate, residents of and who stand well with the community in that rapidly-growing country.

There were present at the annual meeting: Anson Simmons, R. B. Street, Lieut.-Col. James Mason, Eugene O'Keefe, Col. John I. Davidson, Thomas Flynn, E. G. Gooderham, J. S. Robertson, W. J. Green, Edward Gailey, Dr. Fitzgerald, Edward Flanagan, William Crocker, G. F. Burns, F. E. Lukes, A. W. Thomas, Harold Munts, Matthew O'Connor, H. Crews, T. W. Ellis, A. R. Davidson, W. Lavoie, Widmer Hawke, J. Batho, J. O. Paterson, James Matthews, Major James Cooper Mason, W. T. Kernahan, W. H. Partridge, J. J. Foley, M. A. Thomas, B. G. Hopkirk, A. E. Brownlee, C. E. P. McWilliams, Philip Jamieson.

Messrs. W. T. Kernahan and Arthur R. Dennistoun were appointed scrutineers, and reported the election of the following board of directors: Eugene O'Keefe, Thomas Flynn, Lt.-Col. John I. Davidson, Edward G. Gooderham, W. Parkyn Murray, Lt.-Col. James Mason, John Person and John Kennedy.

At a subsequent meeting of the new board Mr. Eugene O'Keefe was re-elected president, and Mr. Thomas Flynn, vice-president.

The Business Men's Excursion

The business men of the city held their annual excursion to Idyl Wyld yesterday afternoon. It was one of the most enjoyable outings of the season. A large number of the local business men with their friends, took in the trip, and speak in glowing terms of Mine Host Parker at Idyl Wyld, and the crew of the Otonabee.

Decorating the City

Decoration for the 13th of July, was commenced yesterday by Mr. Alf Kingscote. He estimates that before the conclusion of the job he will use about 5,000 yards of streamers and bunting, of which about 3,000 yards will be put up on George street. The city will present a gay appearance by the time it is fully decorated.

Socialists Held an Open Air Meeting

The Socialists held their open air meeting on Brock street, last evening as announced. The speaker, Gribble of Toronto, took for well over an hour, dealing with the cause and cure of the unemployed problem, showing how absurd it was for the workers to suffer want in the midst of plenty, appealing to them to study economic conditions in order to educate themselves for the purpose of entering the political field as a class and legislate in their own interest. He showed how natural it was for the owning class to appropriate the good things the workers produced so long as the workers consented to the appropriation.

He also asserted that all the resources of the earth were unlimited, it only remained for the working class to develope those resources and enjoy the results, to do this they would have to abolish the present system of capitalist ownership and substantiate the common ownership of all the means of production; by so doing they would all be able to claim the right to work, and in addition the right to own and enjoy the full product of their associated labor.

The usual large crowd that gathers at Victoria Park to hear the weekly band concert given by the 57th Regt. Band, was in attendance last night.

The Peterborough Baseball team meet the Athletics this afternoon at Riverside Park in a Midland League game. Each team has a win to their credit, and this afternoon's game will decide which team is superior. The Petes will be weakened by the loss of Murphy and O'Brien, who are on the hospital list, but are determined to give the Athletics the fight of their lives to pull out a victory. The Athletics will have the same line-up on that trimmed the Petes and Cobourg, and one of the best that has represented the boys in brown this season.

LIST OF PROMINENT AMERICANS.

Gen. W. H. Parsons, Confederate Army, ex-State Senator, Texas.
Col. Bailey, of Washington, D. C., Labor Organizations and U. V. L.
Col. Patten, of Washington, D. C., Military and Masonic Orders.
Hon. R. S. Ryan, of Alaska, Ex-Member English House of Parliament.
Congressman Cale, of Alaska, well known on Pacific Slope.

Gen. W. H. Parsons.

Gen. W. H. Parsons is ex-State Senator and ex-Special Judge of the Supreme Court of Texas, also Brigadier General in Confederate Army. In a recent letter from 325 H St., N. W., Washington, D. C., this prominent gentleman says:

"Upon the recommendation of personal friends and many strong testimonials as to the efficacy of Peruna in the treatment of the numerous symptoms of the la grippe with which I have been afflicted for four months past, I have been induced to undergo a treatment with this justly celebrated formula. I feel a decided change for the better after using it only one week. It is especially good in toning up the stomach and has had a decided effect upon my appetite. I therefore feel much encouraged that I am on the road to complete restoration.

"My numerous friends in Texas, where I have had the honor to command a brigade of her Veteran Cavalry in a four years' war, may accept this voluntary testimonial to the merits of Peruna as a sense of obligation on my part for its wonderful efficacy."

Col. Wm. Bailey.

William Bailey, 58 I St., N. E., Washington, D. C., Past Col. Enc. No. 69, Union Veteran Legion, and prominently identified with many of the great labor protective associations in Chicago and New York, and Secretary of one of the largest associations in the former city, had for nearly thirty years been afflicted with kidney troubles.

Within a short period he has been persuaded to try Peruna, and his present healthy condition is attributed to his judicious use of that great remedy. Washington climate is notoriously bad for kidney and liver troubles, yet by a judicious use of the remedy he is now quite cured and in excellent physical condition.

This brief statement of facts, without exaggeration or hyperbole, appears to tell the whole story, which the Peruna Company is authorized to use, if it so chooses, believing, as I do, that by so doing it will be for the general good.—Wm. Bailey.

Col. C. L. Patten.

Col. C. L. Patten, 509 T St., N. W., Washington, D. C., a Lieutenant in the Old Guard, an exclusive organization composed of soldiers of distinction who fought in the civil war, and a Thirty-second degree Mason, writes as follows:

"I have used Peruna, and desire to recommend your remedy as an invigorating spring tonic; also one of the best remedies that I ever tried for coughs, colds and catarrhal complaints."

Hon. R. S. Ryan.

Hon. R. S. Ryan, now residing in Nome, Alaska, was formerly a member of the English House of Parliament, and Secretary to the late Irish patriot, Charles Stewart Parnell. His Washington address is New Willard Hotel, Washington, D. C. He writes: "I have used Peruna and can recommend your remedy as a very effective cure for colds and catarrhal complaints."

Hon. Thomas Cale.

Hon. Thomas Cale, elected to Congress from Alaska, is well known on the Pacific slope, where he has resided. His Washington address is 1313 9th St., N. W., Washington, D. C. He writes: "I can cheerfully recommend Peruna as a very efficient remedy for coughs and colds."

St. Peter's T.A.S. to Purchase New Picnic Grounds

The grounds used as picnic grounds by the St. Peter's T.A.S. Society, will not be available in future, as the Board of Trustees of the society, are seeking a new pleasure resort. With this in view the trustees and others of the society took a trip down the river a few days ago, looking over new grounds which will be purchased for picnic purposes. Mr. T. Hooper and Mr. T Meredith had very kindly offered to take them down in their launch and the offer was gratefully accepted. There were about twenty in the party.

They looked over a number of different grounds bordering on the river, but no selection was made. It is very likely that the new park which will be purchased will be farther down the river. The committee was pleased with a number of groves, and a choice will likely be made before long. The T.A.S. picnic was apparently come to stay, and the officers will only be satisfied when the society posses its own grounds.

THE HOLY LAND TO BE CONQUERED

Jews to Organize to Redeem Their Native Country---To Formulate Plans for a Peaceful Conquest

Atlantic City, N. J., July 12.— To formulate plans for a peaceful conquest of the Holy Land, and the restoration of the chosen people to the country now held by the usurping hosts of Mohammed, is now the object of the eleventh annual convention of the Federation of American Zionists, opens today for a session of six days.

Some of the most prominent Hebrew scholars and men of affairs in America are here and will address the delegates, who represent about 400 societies in different cities of the United States and Canada.

Aside from considerations of the future, when the dream of the restoration of Palestine to the Jewish people shall come true, the convention will pay much attention to the practical work of Jewish colonization in Palestine, which is now being carried on. The political phase of the international movement, in its relation to negotiations with the Turkish government, will also be fully discussed. Officers for the coming year will be elected.

It is estimated that a number of Jews in the United States is about 1,500,000, and the total for the world about 12,000,000. Of all the nations of earth, Russia leads in Jewish population, with about 5,500,000, and it is in the land of the Czar that the Zionist movement has gained its greatest strength. Centuries of persecution have caused the Russian Jew to look upon Palestine with a depth of longing unknown in other lands, and, despite extreme poverty, to contribute liberally to the Zionist fund. Measures for the relief of the brethren in Russia will be considered at the present convention and those who have attained wealth in this country will be asked to contribute liberally to the colonization fund.

In regard to the purposes of the convention, President Harry Friedenwald, of New York, said:

"This convention can and should be made one of great importance. The Zionist movement has entered upon the first stages of practical activity in Palestine, and the reports of this activity and as to the conditions in Palestine in general are such as to encourage every lover of his people. The land of our fathers is undergoing a period of real prosperity and happiness. We can see there the first fruits of Zionist endeavor. This successful labor in Palestine should be for us an indication of what may be accomplished there if those of us outside of Palestine appreciate our duty. By the strengthening of the Zionist movement in this country, by making it possible for the Zionists to do large things, in and on behalf of Palestine, we would be happy to realize the great ideal for which our movement stands. The revival of the Jewish people upon its own soil.'

"That we have not as yet been able to organize the Jews in America so effectively as to obtain a large measure of their financial and moral support is due only to our own negligence. We have not taken advantage of the many opportunities for organizing the Jews and for strengthening Judaism that have presented themselves to us. We find sympathy for Zionism expressed on every side, but up to the present we have not shown organizing powers strong enough to develop this sentiment into actual Zionist achievement. It must be the duty of the eleventh convention to discuss the situation of the Jews of the United States so carefully that, at the end of our deliberations, we shall be able to present definite plans of work to our societies for the conquest of the American Jew for Zionism. The American Jew can be won for Zionism, for he is learning the lesson of freedom. And what is Zionism but the freeing of the Jewish people and the spirit of this people from the shackles that 2,000 years of slavery has imposed upon them?"

Men Require Nerve and Blood Tonic

HOW ARE YOUR NERVES!

The daily grind of life burns up a man's vitality faster than he renews it.

He gets shaky, starts at trifles, tosses in his sleep, is ready to fly off the handle any minute.

The nervous man is nervous because his blood is so thin his nerves are starved to death.

He needs Ferrozone!

Its first action is upon digestion.

It stimulates secretion of gastric juice, ensures perfect digestion, prepares the food so it can fully nourish and assimilate.

Hence the blood is nourished, is fortified, made redder, richer, stronger.

To the whole organism is imparted a vim, endurance and reserve of vigor that the nervous man never knew before.

The restorative power of Ferrozone is marvellous. In a month it will make you feel like new, just as it did Mr. Karl E. Newsom of Rothesay, who writes: "I owe a debt of gratitude to Ferrozone which saved my life after a severe seige of nervous prostration. About a year ago my health gave out. I was in such a weak, irritable condition I couldn't work, and found that the doctors did nothing for me. My druggist recommended Ferrozone as the best preparation for nervous troubles, so I commenced with one tablet at meals. Every box of Ferrozone I took did me more good than the previous one, and it wasn't very long before I was strong enough to move around again. In three months I was completely cured. Ferrozone braced up my nerves, gave me a strong, healthy constitution, and is certainly a marvellous restorer and tonic.

Orders for Composite Company

Orders for the composite company for the Quebec celebration are as follows:

No. 1—Company will parade this evening, July 13, at eight o'clock in review order. Blankets, tunics and leggings to be in first-class condition. The company will be inspected by the commanding officer. Any man not answering to his name at roll call will be cut off the strength of the company and his place supplied from the men in waiting.

No. 2—An advance guard of three men will be selected this evening to proceed to Quebec in advance of the company.

By Order.

J. MILLS,
Captain.

Chief Roszel was Elected President

Quebec, July 10.—At yesterday morning's session of the Chiefs of Police, Chief MacRae, of Winnipeg, said that the trial by jury as at present constituted had outgrown its usefulness.

Niagara Falls has been chosen for the next convention which will take place next July.

Yesterday afternoon at the city hall they elected the following officers,

Pres.—Chief Roszel, Peterborough.

Vice-Pres.—Chief Trudel, Quebec.

Secretary—Deputy Chief Stark, Toronto.

Executive Committee — Inspector Archibald, Dominion Patrol Official, Toronto, Chief Clarke, St. John, N. B., Lieut.-Col. Sherwood, Ottawa, Chief MacRae.

Votes of thanks were passed to the retiring officers, and Chief Trudel, etc. His Worship Mayor Garneau attended yesterday afternoon's session and extended a civic welcome.

Will Go by Special Train to Quebec

The composite company of the 57th Regiment which will go to Quebec has been steadily drilling twice a week in ceremonial drill and is now in good condition and will make a very creditable showing. Arrangements have been made by which the company will leave by the C.P.R. on Saturday evening, July 18, at 9 o'clock. They will go by special train which will start from Toronto with the composite regiment. A good leather upholstered chair is in reserve for the Peterborough company. The train will be in charge of Mr. W. McElroy, local agent of the C.P.R., who will accompany the train from Toronto to Quebec.

350 People Took in the Quaker Oats Co. Picnic to Cobourg

The Quaker Oats Co. employes held their sixth annual excursion to Cobourg on Saturday. About 350 people took in the excursion and a most delightful time was spent. They left Peterborough at 8.45 a.m. via G.T.R. and arrived in Cobourg 10.45. The pic-nic ists then went to Victoria Park, where the rest of the day was spent. The company had a booth where they supplied lemonade and puff rice. A baseball match was run off between the mill and office, the former winning by a score of 9—1. The line-up was as follows:

Orange Day Celebration

Belfast, Ireland, July 13.—A three-day celebration of Orangemen's Day, which falls on Sunday, will be commenced in Belfast today. It is estimated that 100,000 Orangemen are participating in the merrymaking. Extra police are on duty and troops are held in waiting at their barracks, but no serious trouble is anticipated.

"Petes" Shut Out the Athletics on Saturday Afternoon in a Hard Fought Game--Score was 5-0

The local fans who journed to Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon to witness the Athletics and Petes, the two local Midland League teams, clash for the third time this season, were well paid for their journey. Both teams were confident of victory, and the supporters of each side were equally as confident as the players themselves. In fact the Petes were so sure of victory before going on the diamond that they declared they would hand out a lemon to their opponents and their hopes were realised at the end of the ninth with the score standing 5—0 in favor of the "Burnsters."

No doubt Saturday's jolt was an unpleasant surprise to many of the local fans, while on the other hand fandom was set wild by the Petes' victory.

The Petes won on their merits, playing almost errorless ball, while their battery was working like clock work. Clements pitching winning ball, and receiving perfect support, while Jerry Edmunds, who is always in the game, had the field on the rocks all the time. Jerry has a great throwing arm. Murphy was considerably and fans draw men.

Quinlan for the Athletics, was in good form, and only allowed the heavy hitting Petes six hits, while he struck out eight men, but did not receive the support given Clements. Contrary to expectation the vocalist was out—"Con" Murphy could not be kept out of the game, and donned a suit in spite of his physician's wing. Complete allowed but five hits handicapped in running the sacks, and in getting after the bright ones, but made a creditable showing under the circumstances. O'Brien was also in the game back in his old position in middle field, and played an errorless game despite his sore shoulder. Fred Anderson, who was in the game last year for the Petes, was out with the locals for the first time this season, he covered 2nd base and looked to his reputation.

The Athletics had the same line-up that defeated the Petes on the previous game and they made their opponents fight every inch of the ground. It was a spirited game for the spectators, clean and exciting.

About 3.15, Umpire Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, who kindly consented to officiate, in the absence of the official umpire, Jack Rosevear, got the game going, with the Petes first up. Following is the summary:

Rainbow Ran on a Pier and was Delayed

The steamer Rainbow was delayed in filling her engagement on Friday morning, to take the Park street Baptist Sunday school picnic to Idyl Wyld by running onto a sunken pier. It however arrived in the city about 10.30 a.m., nearly two hours late.

PETES VS. LINDSAY

This afternoon the Peterborough Baseball team will meet the Wide-awakes of Lindsay at Riverside Park at 3.30. A good game of ball is assured. The Petes will be the same as Saturday. Ladies will be admitted free. A band will be in attendance.

Made Right

It Was the Basker

"At the age of seventeen I was thrown on my own resources," writes the cashier of a Western Bank, "and being low in finances I lived at a cheap boarding house where they served black coffee three times a day.

"At first my very nature rebelled but I soon became accustomed to it, and after a while thought I could not get along without it.

"I worked hard during each school term (I was attending college) and taught country school between times.

"At the end of three years I had finished my course—my nerves, too, and I went back to the farm to rest up. This did me some good but I kept on drinking coffee, not realizing that it caused my trouble, and later accepted a position in a bank.

"About this time I was married and my acquaintances called me 'edits'. On the advice of a friend, my wife began to serve Postum and she made it right from the start, boiled it 15 minutes after boiling actually starting. I liked it and have used it exclusively for three years. I am no longer dubbed 'edits,' my weight has increased 40 pounds and I have nerves to stand any strain without a flinch. And I have increased my salary and my shares of bank stock. I can work 16 hours a day, sleep soundly and get up feeling like a healthy boy." "There's a Reason."

London, July 11.—At the Polytechnic international sports and carnival there were over a thousand entries. In the 120 yards handicap Kerr of Hamilton, Ont., from scratch, won the heat, in 12 1-5 seconds. Bland was unplaced in his heat.

In the 120 yards handicap Lou Marsh of Toronto, lost his heat. Kerr was second in his heat in the second round, qualifying for the final. The winner's time was 12 seconds.

In the final heat, the result was as follows; 1st, Watson, Cambridge University, 10 yards; 2nd, Tuck, Orford, 10 yards; 3rd, Kerr, scratch. Time :11 3-5.

Kerr was only beaten by two yards by the winner, and one yard by the other man.

CANADA 1ST AND 2ND

London, July 11.—Canada won first and second places in the Olympic Club trap shooting individual competition. Ewing was first with 72 out of 80, and Beatty second with 70, winning gold and silver medals, respectively. Ewing killed 27 birds out of 30 in the final stage of the individual today.

CANADIAN CYCLISTS BEATEN.

London, July 11.—In the quarter-mile cycle handicap at Birmingham, Anderson at 10 yards, McCarthy at 12 and Morton at 10 were unplaced in their heats.

LACROSSE.

Following were the lacrosse games played on Saturday.

Cornwall 3, Tecumseh 6.

POLICE

A young man named Burley, who it is alleged had several fines against him in police court, was before the magistrate on Saturday. He was arrested in a house in the company of a young woman, who was introduced as his wife. They were both charged with vagrancy. The police magistrate remanded them until today.

Also Saturday in the police court, Mr. Geo. Stevens, east ward, was charged with non-payment of wages to George Bell. The latter claimed $13 due him for work done, but Stevens claimed that this had been settled by Bell receiving the amount in coal. However the magistrate gave judgment in favor of the plaintiff.

Chicago, July 11.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Mexico City says;

A lake of oil covering an area of more than a square mile, and of unknown depth in the State of Vera Cruz, is on fire. It has been burning for five days, and has created the widest terror among the natives of that section. The blaze is seen for more than 200 miles at sea, according to navigators who have arrived at Vera Cruz and Tampico.

The scene of the fire is about 75 miles east of Tampico. It is remote from any river, the oil field being developed at that place by the Pennsylvania Oil Company, which is composed of Pittsburg men.

The company had bored a number of wells, and all of them were flowing oil in large quantities. The product was placed in earthen storage tanks preparatory to shipment.

A careless workman accidentally set fire to one of the wells, and the flames were communicated to the underground reservoir of oil. A terrific explosion occurred, which split the earth's surface throughout the entire field. The explosion was heard 75 miles distant. The oil company lost $200,000 worth of machinery, and the oil which has been burned will total millions of barrels. The whole oil field will be destroyed.

"North Pole or Bust" Says Robert Peary

Oyster Bay, N.Y., July 11.—"My, my, what a fine ship," remarked President Roosevelt as he approached the Arctic steamer Roosevelt lying at anchor near the President's yacht sylph, in Oyster Bay harbor, before she sailed for Sydney, N.S., and the North Pole, Commander Robert E. Peary, U.S.N., the Arctic explorer, who was at his side, agreed with the President, and thanked him for the compliment.

It was shortly after three o'clock when the Sylph's launch Gleam steamed around the stern and along the port side of the Roosevelt. On board the little craft were President and Mrs. Roosevelt, Commander and Mrs. Peary, Mr. and Mrs. K. E. Roosevelt, Quentin Roosevelt, the President's youngest son, several guests, and Lieutenant Commander Roger Williams, of the Sylph. President Roosevelt, dressed in a white duck suit, was the first to scramble up the Roosevelt's ladder. Then came Commander Peary. They awaited the ladies and the inspection of the exploring craft began.

Captain Bartlett, of the Roosevelt, and Herbert L. Bridgman, secretary of the Peary Arctic Club, received them on board. In another launch came the president's sons, Kermit and Archie, accompanied by several boys. The Roosevelt had arrived in the harbor at 11 in the forenoon and Captain Bartlett dressed the ship in honor of the visit of the President. Every available boat in the harbor was pressed in service by persons to see the Roosevelt and when the President's party went aboard the water about the ship was crowded with pleasure craft.

PRESIDENT IN ENGINE ROOM.

Captain Bartlett made apologies to the president for the appearance of the Roosevelt, saying she did not quite come up to the standard of the United States Navy.

Commander Peary escorted the party into the deck house and to his own cabin, on the starboard side aft. There they saw many books, a piano and mechanical player, and a phonograph. The explorer told them that from three things the members of the expedition would derive amusement during the trip, and besides they would help to entertain the natives of the far north. The visitors then inspected Captain Bartlett's quarters on the opposite side of the ship, and went through the galley.

The president insisted upon going down the ladder into the engine room and seeing everything there was to be seen. When he came up he was wiping perspiration from his brow, but seemed to be enjoying himself nevertheless.

Climbing upon the forecastle deck, the president found the crew of the Roosevelt lined up. He was introduced to each individually. As he grasped, successively, the hands of the sailors he said something different to each.

"I'm glad to meet you and I hope you'll reach the Pole," he said to one. "I'm glad to see you here today. You have a very brave commander," he exclaimed to another, as he grasped his powerful hand and shook it vigorously.

"NORTH POLE OR BUST."

Commander Peary said his last good-bye to the President as Mr. Roosevelt was about to go over the side into the launch. He shook hands with the explorer, saying that hunting the Pole is good sport.

"Inasmuch as I cannot go with you myself," said the president, "all I can do is to wish that old good luck may go with you. I feel confident that you will get there this time, if it is possible to do so; if you don't, do the best you can. Good-bye."

Captain Bartlett, shaking hands with the president and bidding him farewell, said: "It's 90 to nothing; the North Pole or bust, this time, Mr. President."

The president laughed and cried to Captain Bartlett and his men;

"Good-bye, Captain, good-bye, boys, good luck to you all. I believe you'll get there this time."

While the party was walking from Sagamore Hill to the post Quentin Roosevelt, the president's son, picked up a four-leaf clover. He walked up to Commander Peary, and presenting it to him, said it would bring him good luck. The explorer carefully put the clover away in a memorandum book.

Australians Arrested for Rioting

Port Arthur, July 11.—Ten Australians, arrested on a charge of rioting at the Union Lake dam, appeared in the police court this morning and were remanded and their trial set for Tuesday. It developed that they planned to blow up the dam, but their plot was frustrated by the removal of the fuse and cups from the rock they had laid down, just in time to prevent what would have been a terrible serious ripple.

C.P.R.'s Magnificent New Steamer

S. S. Assiniboia is Upper Lakes Champion

The latest addition to the Canadian Pacific's upper lake fleet is the "Assiniboia," now in active commission, and on her first voyage she has proved herself to be not only the largest and most modern passenger vessel on the upper lakes, but also the swiftest. She will sail from Owen Sound at about 5.50 p.m., every Saturday for Sault Ste. Marie, Fort Arthur and Fort William, the connecting express train leaving Toronto at 1.50 p.m.

The "Assiniboia" has luxurious accommodation for 250 cabin passengers, with five cabins de luxe (private baths), spacious dining saloon, observation drawing and smoking rooms and many new features conducive to passengers' comfort. Intending passengers should make early application to local C.P.R. agent for accommodation.

Obituary

Reginald Miles

Much sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Miles, Aylmer street, in the death of their infant son, Reginald George, which occurred on Sunday afternoon at the age of 2 months and 2 weeks. The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon to the Little Lake cemetery.

Gertrude Amy Pollard

The many friends of Gertrude Amy Pollard will regret to hear of her death, which occurred Saturday afternoon at 4.30. She was 21 years of age, and was the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Pollard, 57 George street. She leaves to mourn her loss her parents, and one sister and four brothers, Mrs. N. G. Hall of this city, W. E. and Frank of Port William; Reuben of Owen Sound, and Joseph of this city. The funeral will be private.

Caroline Allison

The death occurred yesterday afternoon of Caroline Townley, the daughter of the late John Allison. She was 73 years of age, and was born in Wiltland, and came to Peterborough 15 years ago. She leaves to mourn her loss, two sons and two daughters, Fred Allison of this city, Charles of Chicago, Mrs. Wiseman of Niagara Falls, and Mrs. McGinnis of the city. The funeral will take place Tuesday afternoon.

Harvey-Ross

On Wednesday last, at the hour of high noon, St. Paul's church was the scene of a very happy wedding, celebrated with all due ceremony when Miss Lelia Euphemia, eldest daughter of Mrs. and Mrs. C. H. Ross, was united in marriage to Mr. John Franklyn Harvey of Peterborough, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Canon Spragge of Cobourg, uncle of the bride. Miss Christina Barker, of Picton, acting as bridesmaid, and Miss Stacy Ross, sister of the bride, as flower girl.

The groom was supported by Mr. L. D. Ross of Renfrew, the bride's brother, with Messrs. Lyall Scott of Toronto, and Norman L. Rogers, of Newmarket, filling the duties of ushers.

The church had been most lavishly decorated with ferns and daisies for the occasion and was filled to overflowing with invited guests, friends and acquaintances of the contracting parties.

Mrs. Boswell presided at the organ with skill, and at the close of the ceremony Miss Barker sang most beautifully, Guy D'Hardelot's "Because."

At the conclusion of the church service, a large party proceeded to "Rosemary," the spacious home of the bride's parents, and, after tendering their congratulations to the bridal couple, partook of a sumptuous breakfast.

The house decorations consisted of roses, sweet peas and ferns, and the bride's dress of traditional white, was of crepe de chene, trimmed with pearls and point lace, the veil and orange blossoms being those worn by her mother at her wedding. She also carried a beautiful shower bouquet of bridal roses and lily of the valley.

Mrs. Ross, the bride's mother, was attired in grey crepe de chene with touches of lavender, and bonnet to match.

The bridesmaid and maid of honor were similarly attired in semi-empire gowns of white marquisette over taffeta. Their hats were white mohair, with white tulle pompons and green ribbons. Large bouquets of pink sweet peas were carried by each.

Amidst showers of rice and good wishes, the happy couple left by the southbound Grand Trunk train at 2 p.m., for a short trip. Their future home will be in the city of Peterborough, whether they are accompanied by the best wishes of their legion of friends in the vicinity.—Newmarket Herald.

Orangemen Attend Service at St. Paul's Church

The local Orangemen attended St. Paul's last night in a body. They were headed by the Peterborough Band. The sermon was preached by Rev. Mr. Pogue, who took his text from Joshua 4—6 verse, "What mean ye by these stones." He stated that he did not like the way the celebration of the 12th of July was held, but would rather have it as a memorial day, and in that way would not have so much hard feelings with the Catholics, and would therefore bring them closer together. He closed by saying, he hoped that the Orangemen would form a society like the F.A.S., and not touch liquor.

JAPAN'S DEBT PAYING.

It is really debt paying and not inflation, which is imposing the financial burdens under which Japan is struggling. The imperial government has committed itself to the extraordinary programme of discharging [illegible] indebtedness—in the course of a single generation without in the meantime contracting any new loans for any purpose. Whether this is a wise course to pursue is a matter of opinion on which men will differ. There may also be some question as to Japan's ability to carry it out. Of the present resolute determination to do so there can be no doubt.

The process thus far has been marked with shrewd financing. If no will what has been called sharp practice, and with some "bluffing", though it has probably involved the abandonment of an expedient of doubtful prudence which has adopted years ago, at the time of the war with China, in 1894, and 1895, a large domestic debt was contracted which the creditors supposed would be paid off with the indemnity exacted from China. When that indemnity was used for other purposes the market price of the war loan bonds fell very low. Thereupon the government secured parliamentary permission to pay off as much of the debt as it could. Instead of calling in bonds by lot and paying them in full, however, it simply went into the market and bought what it could at the lowest prices and cancelled them. This performance was sharply criticised by many as a practical breach of faith, but the Japanese government did not regard it in that light. It held that it had as good a right to buy in its bonds at whatever price they were offered at as anybody else had to buy them, and it persisted in the practice, until the present year.

Early this year the government decided to begin paying off at once a war loan of $50,000,000 which did not fall due until about the end of the year, in order to relieve the currency stringency. But instead of calling in bonds by lot it invited bondholders to compete for redemption by offering their bonds at a practical discount, or at least by relinquishing the interest which would be due on them in December next. Moreover, it informed them that if they preferred to rewrite their bonds they might do so on exceptionally favourable terms. This caused much dissatisfaction, the market price of bonds sharply declined and the financial stringency was increased rather than relieved. Many people held that the offer of rewriting was made to induce bondholders not to seek repayment and was a practical confession that the government was not able to redeem all the bonds which might be offered, and not a few who had no need of ready cash declined to sell, preferring to wait until next December and then get the full year's interest. Finally, an [illegible] protest was made by bankers and capitalists against the government's practice thus. It was deemed prudent to abandon the system of bond purchases which had been adopted at the close of the Chinese war, and resume the play of redeeming by lot.

The salient feature of the whole situation is that some $80,000,000 of war taxes are still retained and apparently are to be retained in the yearly levy. The government could abolish them and let the debt run on indefinitely, as some nations have done, or it could retain them and pay off the debt. It has chosen the latter course. It continues to collect the $80,000,000 of war taxes, and of that sum it uses $50,000,000 for service and liquidation of the war debt, which will thus be extinguished in thirty-four years, and $30,000,000 for the service and payment of the old debt, which existed before the war and which will thus be disposed of in thirty years. The margin which is left added to the yearly surplus of the ordinary budget, is expected to obviate the need of any new loans for public works or other purposes. This is an heroic programme, but it is subjecting the present generation of Japanese to an enormous strain.

That prostrates the nerves. In the summer one needs a tonic to offset the customary hot weather. Nerve and Strength Restorative will feed better within 48 hours after beginning to take such a remedy as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Its prompt action in restoring the weak and nerves is surprising. Of course, you won't get entirely strong in a few days, but each day you can actually feel the improvement. That tired, lifeless, apathetic feeling will quickly depart when using the Restorative Dr. Shoop's Restorative will sharpen a failing appetite; it aids digestion; it will strengthen the weakened Kidneys and Heart by simply rebuilding the worn-out nerves that these organs depend upon. Test it a few days and be convinced. Sold by all dealers.

Johnny Helps Cupid.

By Abraham R. Grob.

Copyrighted, 1902, by Associated Literary Press.

This is the simple narrative of the great services rendered by Johnny Gaylord to Dan Cupid. Who was Johnny Gaylord? Why, Johnny Gaylord, captain of the Little Giants baseball team, of course.

Furthermore, Johnny was the son of John Gaylord, president of the big Gaylord-Lorraine Iron company. Also, and this is more germane to the present narrative, Johnny was the small brother of Georgette Gaylord.

Georgette Gaylord had no rival as the social queen of Reading. Personal beauty and tact seemed to have united with the wealth and social position of her family to place her on a pedestal.

Marshall N. Joslin was the junior member of the firm of Shackleton, Smith & Joslin, attorneys for the Gaylord-Lorraine company. He was also the accepted suitor for the fair hand of Georgette.

Never was fate kinder to two young people. The sky of their future glowed.

This tale opens with the gathering of thick clouds. Marshall Joslin, scion of a wealthy house, graduate of a great university, brilliant member of a famous law firm, remarked that evening to Georgette Gaylord, social queen and lovely woman:

"If that is the way you feel about it, there is nothing for me to do but go."

To which Georgette Gaylord nodded her head slowly, but with dignity.

Then the young man moved to the hall, calmly put on his coat, took his hat, his stick and his gloves and only broke the intense silence to say in a distant, cold sounding voice:

"Good evening, Miss Gaylord."

And from the depths of the large, half darkened drawing room came back in a low, controlled voice:

"Goodby."

Then he went out and shut the door behind him. Miss Gaylord did not move until his steps had died away down the stone walk that led through the big yard to the street. Then she dropped her lovely head on her arms and sobbed, for Georgette Gaylord had behind a thickly curtained corner in the depths of her woman's heart a very, very warm feeling for Marshall Joslin.

Marshall Joslin made his way home in a sort of dazed condition. It is true he shed no tears, but neither did he sleep a wink that night nor eat a bite of breakfast the next morning nor smoke his usual matutinal cigar in the office. These things were mere outward signs which he succeeded fairly well in concealing.

But there was an effect upon his brain which he was powerless to conceal. He and Shackleton, the senior partner, were working on a suit which involved thousands of dollars for their client, the big iron company. This morning Shackleton quickly noted the brain fag of the junior partner.

"What on earth is the matter with you, boy?" he demanded in his quick way. "Where are your wits this morning?"

The junior partner smiled a sickly smile, and out of his dry throat came some words about not having slept very well. In his heart he didn't care what came of the lawsuit.

He suddenly wanted to get away somewhere and be alone with this the greatest trouble that had ever come upon him. Life without Georgette Gaylord meant life insipid, useless, objectless.

The air of the office seemed to stifle him, and the questioning gaze of the senior member of the firm, looking so fit and strong on the other side of the polished table, tormented him.

"I believe I will take a walk in the fresh air, if you don't mind," he said finally. "It will clear my brain, perhaps, and I will come back better able to do something."

He left the office abjectly miserable, but relieved to find himself alone with his wretchedness. He remembered now that Georgette had spent considerable time recently in the company of a certain dashing Captain Mostyn, who was visiting in Reading. Yes, there must have been something serious behind that affair in spite of her assurances to the contrary. She no longer loved him. He laughed in bitter contempt of himself.

And right at this critical point is where signal service was rendered to Dan Cupid by Johnny Gaylord, captain of the Little Giants baseball team.

"Hello, Mr. Joslin!"

"Why, good morning, Johnny. How are you?" said Joslin.

The question was merely formal, but it started Johnny's willing tongue.

"Oh, I'm all right," he chattered. "I never had anything the matter with me in my whole life except the measles and the measles and the whooping [illegible] sick, did you say?"

"Oh, I don't think she's very sick," said Johnny. "I guess she isn't very sick. Say, are you coming out to see us play the Little Sluggers? We've got a game with them Saturday. Say, you don't want to miss it. We're going to put it all over them."

Marshall Joslin's excited gesticulations could not stop Johnny when he was talking baseball until Johnny had finished.

"But your sister, Johnny—your sister! You said she was sick!" he cried when at last he had an opportunity to speak.

"Oh, I don't think she's very sick," said Johnny. "Only she wasn't down to breakfast this morning, and she generally gets up before I do. And last night I heard her in her room, and it sounded as if she was crying. I was awfully sorry, because she's about the best sister a feller ever had. She gave me the money out of her own pocket to organise the Little Giants. I gave her an annual pass."

The captain of the Little Giants grinned as he raised his eyes to those of Mr. Joslin. The face of that young man had also undergone a remarkable change. It fairly beamed with joy.

"Is there anything else you need for your club?" he demanded suddenly.

"Well, I want to get uniforms for all the regular men," Johnny said seriously, "as soon as we get the money."

"How much will that take?" demanded Mr. Marshall Joslin.

"We can get some bully ones for $12 a dozen, but"—

The next moment Johnny Gaylord felt something thrust into his hand and saw Marshall Joslin striding down the street with rapidity. Johnny looked at what was in his hand. It was a greenback for more than enough to buy the uniforms.

"Well, I wonder what I said to earn that?" he mused as he carefully stowed it in a place of safety.

When Johnny came home at noon a voice called him from the big, half darkened drawing room. It was the voice of Miss Georgette, and he hurried to her.

"Look what Mr. Joslin gimme, sis," he cried as he came toward her. He displayed the greenback.

"Johnny Gaylord, what have you been telling Mr. Joslin?" demanded Georgette, serious eyes fixed upon him.

"I didn't tell him anything," averred the captain of the Little Giants. "We were just standing on the street talking, and I happened to mention that I was going to get uniforms for the Little Giants as soon as I got the money. And then he just stuck this in my hands and rushed off before I could even get a chance to thank him. Oh, say, sis, but won't the team look fine in those blue uniforms with white stripes?"

But Georgette did not join with her usual enthusiasm in the plans for the Little Giants.

"Johnny Gaylord," she said solemnly, "you told Mr. Joslin something else. Now, tell me what it was you said."

"Why, that's all we talked about, honest," protested Johnny, "except that I told him I was well and that you weren't well because you didn't come down to breakfast and I heard you crying last night and"—

"Johnny!"

"So that is why he came," murmured Georgette, biting her lip.

Johnny was beginning to feel very uncomfortable when suddenly he was swept into the warm embrace of two strong arms, and Georgette placed a kiss right on his pouting lips.

"Oh, you're a dear little brother," she declared, hugging him.

Johnny went away mystified over the two strange events of the day, but happy in the possession of means to uniform the Little Giants.

When Marshall Joslin arrived again at the office he was so cheerful of spirit and vigorous of mind that Shackleton remarked upon it.

"Your walk seems to have done you good, my boy," he said.

"Made a new man of me, sir," declared Joslin warmly.

A Spanish Ghost Story.

The atmosphere of Spain agrees most perfectly with all sorts of spirits, and a delightfully ghoulish story is told of the punishment of a bold, bad man who killed a friar. At the time of the crime the murderer escaped to Portugal, where he remained so long that on his return nobody recognised him. One morning, when he was walking along the street, he saw a fine sheep's head in the market place and, fearing it might be purchased while he went home for a servant, he secured it, but, ashamed to be seen carrying a package, he concealed it under his cloak. Unfortunately, blood trickled from the head, and a member of the holy brotherhood, perceiving it, stopped him and asked, "What bearest thou, cavalier?" "Nothing," was the mendacious reply, which naturally excited suspicion, and the monk cried, "My brother, thou hast somewhat unlawful beneath thy cape." And behold, when the cloak was torn aside there was—the head of the murdered friar!—Los Angeles Times.

Marriages In Manitoba.

A number of marriage ceremonies have been solemnized in Manitoba by visiting clergymen from the United States. When his fact was brought to the attention of Attorney-General Campbell he stated that marriage ceremonies performed in Manitoba by a visiting clergyman from across the line are illegal. United States clergymen have no legal status in Manitoba, and have, therefore, not the right to perform marriage ceremonies. They are liable to the penalties provided by statute. He pointed out, however, that all marriages performed in the province by unauthorized persons become legal after the expiration of two years, provided the two parties have lived together as man and wife during that time and the validity of the marriage has not been questioned by any suit or action.

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is in fact, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing Hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to the weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds, strengthens; it offers real, genuine heart help.

If you would have strong Hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these Nerves—re-establish them as needed, with

"ALL DEALERS"

The Lovers' Riot.

By Martha Cobb Sanford.

Copyrighted, 1913, by Associated Literary Press.

Ella Marden suddenly dropped her golf club and sat down under the shade of an elm tree.

"It's too hot to play," she announced ungodly. "Do you mind finishing the course by yourself, Mr. West?"

Lyndon West glanced at her with very evident concern.

"You're not ill?" he asked anxiously.

"Not a bit of it," Ella assured him; "just lazy. Now, do finish and then come and tell me your score."

West hesitated.

"All right, if you wish it," he assented finally. "You'll promise to stay right here?"

She watched West swinging off over the green stretching links and then, bending forward, began to unlace one of her smart little tan boots.

"Um," she said to herself, "that was easy." Suddenly she paused, her boot only partially loosened. "If he really liked me better than golf," she mused, "he would have insisted on staying with me. He's a selfish brute, after all, like the others. Well, it's lucky I had this chance to find out."

"Oh, Miss Marden," called a masculine voice very near her, "what are you doing all by yourself under a tree?"

Ella hid her foot under her skirt.

The man laughed incredulously.

"Something new for you, isn't it? I thought you were an indefatigable golfer. As for me, I always prefer resting," he finished jocosely, at the same time seating himself uninvited beside her.

Ella sighed. The man misinterpreted her meaning.

"Beastly hot?" he agreed.

Ella let the remark pass unnoticed. Soon she sighed again.

"Can't I fan you?" urged the man, taking up his hat and suiting the action to the words.

"Please don't," protested Ella, ungraciously.

"But you're in distress," he insisted, noting the drawn look on her face.

"SHALL IT BE A TRUE LOVERS' KNOT, DEAREST?"

"Is there anything I can do? A glass of water, perhaps?"

Ella accepted the suggestion eagerly.

"Oh, if you will, Mr. Stearns!"

The man disappeared precipitately. The clubhouse was a considerable distance away, and Ella rejoiced in the fact.

"What egotists men are!" she soliloquized. "Any man halfway intelligent would have left me alone."

Again the telltale unlaced boot was hastily concealed.

"I thought you men were never conscious of the weather when golf was the attraction," generalized Ella, evading the personal equation.

"I hadn't thought much about it, to tell the truth, till I saw you carried up comfortably here in the shade. I think I'll follow your lead, Miss Marden," whereupon, without so much as adding "by your leave," the newcomer disposed himself indolently on the velvety turf beside her.

Ella frowned, but her companion was oblivious.

"Made a good score today, Miss Marden?"

"Fair," replied Ella listlessly, "until I lost my ball." Then, with a sudden animation, "I suppose it would be asking too much of you, Mr. Brayton, to hunt a bit for it?"

Mr. Brayton rose gallantly.

"Most certainly not," he answered his. "Where did you lose it?"

With a vague gesture Ella indicated the woods back of them, and Brayton started forth good naturedly.

"There," breathed Ella, at last pulling off the torturing boot. "What a relief! Now I'll investigate."

She thrust her hand into the boot, drawing it out again immediately with a little cry of pain. She had cut her finger somehow, and it was bleeding.

A familiar whistle caused her to look up. Lyndon West was coming toward her rapidly. There was no time to mend matters. Ella wrapped her handkerchief hastily around her wounded finger and thrust the offending boot beneath her skirt.

"Well, here I am again!" sang out Lyndon. "Been lonely?"

"Haven't had a chance," laughed Ella. "Everybody that's passed felt called upon to sit down and keep me company."

"I don't wonder," was Lyndon's frankly admiring comment.

"Not one of them," announced Ella condemningly, "had the sense to see that I wanted to be by myself—so cool. You are either exceptionally perceptive, Mr. West, or exceptionally callous."

West, who had thrown himself wearily down on the grass, looked up in time to catch the mischief in Ella's sparkling eyes.

"I am exceptionally perceptive," he affirmed laughingly. "I knew you didn't want me to stay."

"But you are quite sure I am glad you are back?" she teased.

Whatever Lyndon had in mind to reply was not spoken.

"Jump!" he shouted excitedly. "A ball's coming!"

Ella grasped his hand and sprang up just as a swiftly driven ball brushed by her skirt. Then, still holding Lyndon's hand, she hopped on one foot to a nearby stump.

"It struck you," gasped Lyndon. "You are hurt. Where?"

Ella, convulsed, raised her handkerchief to her face.

"It is your hand—it is bleeding," he exclaimed. "Let me see it! I thought it was your foot."

At this dramatic moment Stearns appeared with a glass of water.

"I'm sorry I was so long, Miss Marden," he began apologetically.

West snatched the glass from him.

"You were miraculously quick," he said gratefully. "Here, Miss Marden," he began, "drink this."

But Ella, who was apparently sobbing, could not be induced to lift her face from her handkerchief.

"Just leave her to me, Stearns," urged West. "She'll be all right in a few minutes. And thanks ever so much, old man."

Stearns, utterly flabbergasted, but well aware that he was quite de trop, walked slowly off.

"Here's the ball, Miss Marden," he called victoriously.

"Who cares about the ball?" snapped Lyndon. "Go find the one who sent it if you want to make yourself useful!"

"Well, what's the matter with you?" demanded the angered Brayton.

At this climax Ella lifted her face. It was certainly flushed—whether with weeping Lyndon West was a bit in doubt.

"Thank you, Mr. Brayton," she said humbly. "It was awfully good of you to hunt it for me. Now please go on with your own game or you won't be able to finish before dark."

Brayton, though mystified, took his congé like a thoroughbred.

For a few eloquently silent seconds Ella and Lyndon looked at each other—Lyndon with the air of a man who has been the victim of a practical joke and Ella with an expression half mischievous, half embarrassed.

"Perhaps you can explain," suggested Lyndon at length.

"Um, hum! I can," Ella assented. "Do you mind going back to where we were sitting? I think I left something there."

Lyndon went on the errand. He soon returned, carrying Ella's tan boot dangling by its lacings.

"If the beautiful Cinder-Ella will permit," he begged, kneeling before her.

"It isn't a cinder at all," sniffed Ella scornfully. "It's a nail."

While Lyndon, with the aid of a stone or two, pounded down the refractory nail Ella made clear to him the sequence and denouement of the afternoon's events.

The boot finished, Lyndon again begged the privilege of putting it on the lady's dainty foot.

The lacing process was executed with great precision, but when it came to tying the knot Lyndon hesitated.

"Shall it be a true lovers' knot, dearest?" he asked, looking up at her with grave affection.

Ella laughed. She couldn't help it—Lyndon was so serious and she was so happy.

"Is that the same as a beau knot?" she asked him archly.

And somehow, both helping, the knot was tied.

Good Proof.

At a colored revival two of the brethren started an argument as to the nationality of St. Peter. One brother claimed he was a colored man, while the other one said he was not. After arguing for quite awhile one brother, becoming greatly excited, said, "St. Peter was not a called man, as' Ah can prove it."

"All right," said the other. "Go ahead."

"Well, in de fust place, you recommember wah it say in de Bible dat aftah St. Peter denied the Lord de cock crowed for de third time?"

"Yes, I recommember dat," said the other.

"Well, dat's de solushion to de problem, for do you suppose for an instant dat if St. Peter had been a called man dat dat rooster would eber hab crowed mere dan once?"—Judge.

His Big Gorge.

Several young members of a Philadelphia family that spent a summer in the White mountains were exchanging reminiscences of their trip when one of the girls exclaimed:

"Oh, Tom, do you remember that gorge in Jefferson?"

"Do I remember?" repeated Tom. "Sure! You mean the day we got there. It was the swellest dinner I ever had in my life. I was so hungry, sir."—Lippincott's Magazine.

NEW RULER OF AFGHANISTAN.

An Interesting Man Almost as Versatile as the Kaiser.

A short, stout man, who wears a gray frock coat when visiting, likes afternoon tea, plays a remarkably good game of bridge, does not hesitate to sit down at the piano and sing a song for the entertainment of a party, and after dinner has been known to speed the parting friend with a long and animated conversation on the doorstep—this is one side of the character of Habib—Ullah Khan, ruler of the Afghans, Amir of Kabul, sealer after God's health and lamp of the congregation and the faith. He did all these things when visiting India in the early part of last year, says a writer in The London Daily Mail. In some minds he created the impression that he was the Asiatic counterpart of the German Emperor.

He told various people whom he met that he was the best smith in Afghanistan, the best carpenter, the best drill sergeant. Then he claimed to be able to preach a better sermon than any mullah, and as a matter of fact had 700,000 people in prayer at Delhi—surely the largest prayer meeting on record. He speaks seven or eight languages; he plays cricket; he has acquired a liking for the motor car and he seems to think very highly of his own powers as a doctor.

Then, too, he apparently knows how to enjoy himself at a race meeting, and when he makes a bet, he pays on the spot if he loses. When he was in India an attendant stalked solemnly behind him, carrying a vast cashbox full of money, from which disbursements were made, when necessary. He is said to be a good sportsman, but when he plays cricket with his attendants the Amir apparently always wins. It might perhaps be risky for opponents to make a better showing.

The Amir is the son of one who was a slave girl before she became one of the Queens of Afghanistan.

His harem in Kabul is not so large as that maintained by his father. Angus Hamilton says that when the Amir came to the throne three wives were divorced in order to keep the spirit of the Koran law, which forbids the maintenance of more than four wives.

Many slaves of prepossessing charms, we are told, are taken into the harem from time to time and added to the number of his consolatrices. But the queens appear to exercise a strict censorship in regard to the type of slave. The hapless woman who becomes a favorite and excites the admiration of the Amir "is generally removed."

One queen, it is recorded, "has killed with her own hands three of her slaves and personally chastises her erring handmaidens, purposely disfiguring any whose physical attractiveness might charm the Amir."

The four wives of the Amir "occupy positions which are graduated to a recognized scale. The first wife draws an allowance of one lakh of rupees annually; the second wife receives 80,000 rupees, the third wife 40,000 rupees, the fourth wife 20,000 rupees a year."

One rather gathers that the domestic life of the Amir is not untroubled and that the influence of his wives is not cast on the side of peace and quietness.

An Island of Massacres.

Hayti, the West Indian island, to which public attention has just recently been directed, has been the scene of more massacres than any other place on earth.

They began with the coming of Columbus and the rubble rent that followed him. In a few years its 3,000,000 of gentle, brown-skinned inhabitants had perished utterly, exterminated by fire and sword and by forced labor in the mines.

Next the buccaneers seized the unhappy island and wrested vengeance on the Spaniards. Presently came the French, and for a brief space there was some semblance of peace. But in 1793 the negroes revolted and murdered practically all the whites.

On account of these atrocities frightful reprisals took place when France, in due course, reoccupied the island. But the negroes seized their time and presently rose again under a ruffian named Dessalines. This time they did the thing thoroughly. Not only were all the Europeans put to death, but all having any admixture of white blood in their veins suffered a like fate. In all it is computed that 5,000,000 men, women and children have met with violent deaths on this island of massacres since the intruding white man first set foot on its palm-fringed strand.

Against the King.

Many people blissfully imagine that high majesty—that is, punishing royalty—is a crime peculiar to foreign countries and unknown in free and happy Britain. That, however, is where they make a mistake.

It is, for instance, technically a punishable offence to stick a penny stamp on a [illegible] upside down. Doing so is to insult the King through his effigy, and a few centuries ago—supposing penny stamps to have been then invented—might easily have landed the offender in prison on a charge of seeking to bring ridicule on the sovereign or to express contempt for his authority by causing his picture to stand on its head. Also, it is a punishable offence to deface a coin of the realm bearing the royal image and then deliberately put it into circulation again.

To strike the King would, according to the strict letter of the law, render the assailant liable to the death penalty, no matter how trifling the blow was in reality.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Age of the Human Race.

The highest authorities place the total number of years elapsed since, in the light of the best geological evidence, man first appeared upon the earth at 250,000. Of this, 75,000 belongs to the preglacial epoch, 100,000 years to the glacial, 44,000 years to the interval between the glacial

The undersigned has received an allotment of unsold portion of $100,000 of

7 Per Cent. First Mortgage Five-Year Gold Bonds

dated January 11, 1913, and maturing January 11, 1918. These Bonds are offered at par and accrued interest by Metropolitan Trust & Savings Bank, Chicago, trustees.

SECURITY—The Entire Property and Improvements Owned THE URES CONSOLIDATED MINING COMPANY in the District of Ures, State of Sonora Mexico, Free from Mortgage of Bonded Indebtedness, except this present Bond issue.

An Unusual Opportunity for Investment in Sound Security

The Ures Consolidated Mining Company offers $100,000.00 of First Mortgage Gold Bonds. This issue of bonds is the only mortgage or bonded indebtedness ever placed on the company's properties.

These bonds are in the denomination of $100.00, and bear interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, July and January, and are redeemable on or before five years from date at the company's option at $110.00 and accrued interest.

$100.00 Stock Bonus Given with Every $100.00 Bond

With each bond issued there will be given $100.00 par value of the capital stock of the company as a bonus, and in addition thereto there will be placed in escrow with the Trustee additional stock which will be available to the bondholders at their option any time within a period of three years, the bondholder being entitled to surrender his bond any time within said period and receive in lieu thereof stock for every dollar of indebtedness to him on account of said bonds.

The Security Back of these Bonds

The company owns twelve claims situated in the district of Ures, State of Sonora, Mexico, free from mortgage or bonded indebtedness, except the present bond issue.

On one of these properties (The Ramona Mine) 5,000 feet of underground development work has been done, consisting of an inclined shaft to the depth of 400 feet with drifts in three levels to the North and South of the shaft.

An average value of ore worth $11.47 per ton is exposed throughout the mine, from the collar of the shaft to the extreme parts in the drifts, all of which is above water level.

The company has made surface improvements and mine improvements to the extent of $60,000.00 in the way of machinery, skids, trams, steam hoists, mill and nearly everything necessary to make the mining camp complete.

In addition to the absolute ownership of these twelve valuable claims, the company has a lease on the San Jose Mine, adjoining its property, in which the company has been operating in high grade ore.

During the past sixty days the company has extracted and delivered to ore buyers and the bank at Hermosillo, $5,000.00 worth of ore and bullion, the ore having been reduced to bullion through the company's mill, with the exception of 1,464 pounds, which was sold to an ore buyer for $562.50.

The Money Derived from the Sale of These Bonds

This issue of bonds is made for the purpose of securing money at once in order to extend the development work more quickly than the company's present means will permit.

With the high grade ore in sight to the distance of 80 feet to the South of the shaft, the management is assured that within six months from date of making the improvements now necessary the company's properties will be on a self-sustaining and dividend-paying basis.

The Stock which is Given with these bonds will be as valuable as the bonds when the Company has the ready capital to push operations

Men who invest in these bonds will have no cause or reason to regret their action, for the bonds afford an investment in a security which is absolutely safe—much better than ordinary city or country real estate, which is considered perfectly safe if the property put up to secure a mortgage is double the face of the loan. The security given on these bonds is better than 7 to 1, for the Ures Consolidated Mining Company has refused an offer of $750,000.00 for the property upon which this $100,000.00 worth of bonds is issued.

These bonds are an investment with all speculative risk eliminated—an investment with absolute security.

Make your reservation at once. This is small and promises to be quickly sold.

To whom it may concern:—

We hereby beg to state that The Ures Consolidated Mining Company has during the past five years made several deliveries of bullion to this bank, and it is the opinion of mining men here that they have the making of a fair mine, and further, that the properties owned and controlled by them bid promise of becoming paying properties.

From our knowledge of the men connected, we believe they are doing all in their power to bring about the results above mentioned.

Respectfully,

1 CENT A 2 SHARE

Send us your name as a member in this new company, with your remittance for as many thousand shares as you can take at $5 per thousand.

This is a short-time offer on a hurry-up proposition. Our vice president is up at Rawhide now putting the miners at work. We want to raise the necessary funds for development as quickly as possible. Therefore, we offer the first block of stock at $5 a thousand shares. This subscription must be all cash. We want the money in hand. We mean to work without let-up, and we have made it an ironclad rule not to run in debt. Cash counts now.

Our prospectuses are out. Send for one.

Make reservation of stock. If you do no more. But, remember, this present offer of stock at Half a Cent a Share is now open, and will be closed as soon as enough cash subscriptions are in hand. Don't wait, or you will get left.

The gold mining property owned outright by the company consists of 7 claims, 5 in the Rawhide district of Nevada, and 2 in the Dulzura district of Southern California.

The Rawhide district to-day is more famous than Goldfield, Tonopah, Bullfrog, or Searchlight were at the same stage of exploration and development. The Dulzura discovery is one of the most sensational in the history of California.

Ten samples of ore which were among the first assayed, run as high as $7,461.57 to the ton, and all ten averaged over $1,500 a ton.

In both camps we located early, and our locations are choice. Our own officers will superintend the mining.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the Northwest Provinces, excepting 8 and 26 reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father or mother.

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

Fred Simpson Sees King and Queen

Keene, July 9.—A friend in Keene received a letter today from Fred Simpson, the Indian runner, in which he states that he is having a good time and is in the very best of condition. London, he states, is a much busier town than Kenora, and the traffic is greater. He likes both the city and the people. The day before writing, he says he saw the King and Queen, who passed in an automobile. The Queen nodded to Simpson and the Quarty of athletes and the King lifted his hat.

An Early Morning Test of Fire Engine

Yesterday morning at 4 o'clock, the fire engine was given another test. The chief says it is not yet working satisfactorily, but will soon be in shape.

A couple of citizens near where the tests have been held have complained to the Chief that they have been annoyed by the noise made in the early hours of the morning and the chief has given them the assurance that they won't be troubled again so in future the tests will be in different localities or at a more seasonable hour.

Almost Run Over by Steamer

Lindsay, July 11.—A young boy had a very narrow escape from being run over and perhaps fatally injured by the "Esturion," this morning, and it was only by the prompt action of Capt. Johnston that a serious accident was averted. As the Esturion was running slowly along opposite Madison Williams' foundry, a boy supported by a life-preserver, swam out directly in front. The passengers in the bow shouted to him to get out of the way and the engineer was signalled to stop, as the suction from the paddle wheels would have drawn the boy into them. The paddles missed him by about a foot.

IN SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

How Unfortunate Children Are Cared For There.

In South Australia there is a state children's department, which is managed by a board nominated by the Government, and supervised by a permanent secretary. This department does most useful work. Like all young countries, it recognized long ago that children—especially healthy, intelligent children—were of the greatest value to it, says its Premier. From their birth upward, however, they need to be cared for, whether the offspring of poor or worthless parents, or other unfortunate little ones.

The state children's council, therefore, decided to become the foster parents of all those children who might otherwise have died in infancy. The children are brought up by registered foster mothers.

Other children who, for any reason, are taken in hand by the authorities are, if under the age of 18, dealt with by a children's court. By this means they are not brought into contact with all the necessarily degrading influence of the ordinary police tribunal. In a semi-private room they are questioned by a magistrate or justice of the peace. If adjudged vicious, they are sent to a reformatory; if merely destitute, they become for a few weeks inmates of an industrial school. The authorities have powers to take children from worthless parents and bring them up, of course at the parents' expense. If the father and mother can shew later on that they have become respectable and responsible citizens, the children are restore to them.

After a period at an industrial school, destitute or neglected children are boarded at the state's expense with decent families all over the country, sometimes as many as three going to one house. Here they are brought up as if they were the real children of their foster parents. Indeed, in many cases, even the neighbors do not know the truth. They attend church and school, and there is not the workhouse taint to follow them through life. To see that they are fairly treated there are visiting inspectors who from time to time report to the head office.

Crime In Rangoon.

Nowhere, perhaps, in the world are the methods of the criminal more subtle, and the difficulties in the way of bringing him to justice more numerous, than in Burma. People who really could throw light upon the commission of a crime are apt to keep their mouths shut, and the witnesses who come forward are often enemies of the accused man, who are prepared to commit the worst kind of perjury to get him hanged or imprisoned. These witnesses manufacture the most extraordinary stories, and tell them wonderfully well, so well that only an experienced judge can detect the false ring in them. Quite recently one Manackji has been tried for the murder of one Mancheji, who died four years ago. Two men, who said they were eye-witnesses of the crime, came forward. One of them, Maung Tha Maung, related how he heard cries in Manackji's house, and, looking through a hole in a window or a door, watched Manackji during twenty minutes, whilst he beat Mancheji to death. The other witness, Sultan, was Manackji's cook; he said he was inside the house, and, stooping down to look through a hole in a partition, saw the murder committed by two men. He gave most elaborate details of the crime; Manackji and an accomplice took it in turns to beat Mancheji; they murdered him slowly, first one man and then the other taking a spell at the thrashing. The wretched victim's screams, loud at first, grew gradually fainter and more faint, until, at the end of four awful hours, he died. Sultan wanted the court to believe that he stood in a cramped position, with an eye glued to the hole in the partition during the whole of that time. The court was incredulous, however, and the prisoner was acquitted.

Real Lordly Chauffeurs.

Since it has become usual for younger sons of the English aristocracy to engage in the automobile business; it is extremely difficult for the ordinary purchaser to distinguish between the professional chauffeur and the aristocratic driver who occasionally exhibits a car to a client. There are at least thirty young Englishmen of noble families studying the fine points of motoring and taking customers for trial runs with the result that some amusing mistakes are made.

Recently a young cousin of the Duke of Beaufort was instructed by his employer to exhibit a car to one of the London newly rich, the wife of a retired tradesman. The young man made himself agreeable, and when the car returned to the big house in Belgravia, the customer alighted and, pressing a half-crown upon the chauffeur, said:

"There my lad! and take care not to spend it foolishly!"

The young man drove back to his employer, a son of Lord Llangattock, and indignantly recounted his experience.

"Well, you can consider yourself jolly lucky," was the consoling rejoinder. "The last time I saw the lady she gave me only a shilling."

Under British Rule.

Sir Percy Girouard, High Commissioner for Northern Nigeria, who has just arrived in England, stated in a recent interview that what most appealed to him in the Protectorate was the wonderful agricultural development, more particularly of the northern provinces which he visited. Within sixteen miles of Kano there are over one million acres under crop.

Sir Percy made extensive tours of the Protectorate, and was greatly impressed with the peaceful conditions prevailing, happy symptom of which was the fact that the agricultural population now resides in the open country, while formerly it was necessary to live within walled towns as protection against raids.

A general feeling of security has replaced the old conditions of continuous warfare, and the walls of the towns are being permitted to fall into complete disrepair.

The Knock-out Blow.

The blow which knocked out Corbett was a revelation to the prize fighters. From the earliest days of the ring the knock-out blow was aimed for the jaw, the temple or the jugular vein. Stomach punches were thrown in to worry and weary the fighter, but if a scientific man had told one of the old fighters that the most vulnerable spot was the region of the stomach, he'd have laughed at him for an ignoramus. Dr. Pierce is bringing home to the public a parallel fact; that the stomach is the most vulnerable organ out of the prize ring as well as in it. We protect our heads, throats, feet and lungs, but the stomach we are utterly indifferent to, until disease finds the solar plexus and knocks us out. Make your stomach sound and strong by the use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and you protect yourself in your most vulnerable spot. "Golden Medical Discovery" cures "weak stomach," indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver, bad, thin and impure blood and other diseases of the organs of digestion and nutrition.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" has a specific curative effect upon all mucous surfaces and hence cures catarrh, no matter where located or what stage it may have reached. In Nasal Catarrh it is well to cleanse the passages with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy fluid while using the "Discovery" as a constitutional remedy. Why the "Golden Medical Discovery" cures catarrhal diseases, as of the stomach, bowels, bladder and other pelvic organs will be plain to you if you will read a booklet of extracts from the writings of eminent medical authorities, endorsing its ingredients and explaining their curative properties. It is mailed free on request. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. This booklet gives all the ingredients entering into Dr. Pierce's medicines from which it will be seen that they contain not a drop of alcohol, pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead.

Arkansas Heresy Hunt

Tamarkana, Ark., July 13.—What will probably become one of the most notable heresy trials that the Presbyterian Church has known in years will be commenced Monday by the Ouachita Presbytery, with the Rev. F. E. Maddox, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Tamarkana, as the defendant. Dr. Maddox is alleged to have cast doubts upon the inspiration of the Bible and his views of salvation are declared to be heretical. Presbyterians throughout the country will watch the trial with interest, as it will cover practically the same points as have already been decided by the northern church but which have not yet been brought to a final issue in the southern branch of the denomination.

AN ENJOYABLE EVENT.

Port Hope, July 8.—One of the most enjoyable events held here was the military assembly given by Lieut.-Col. Ward and the officers of the 45th Regiment, in honor of the officers and men of the 65th Separate Company of Rochester, and 3rd Regiment National Guard, of New York, which took place in the town hall here, in connection with the old boys' reunion. Col. and Mrs. Ward, assisted by the officers of the regiment, received the guests. The floor just comfortably accommodated the throng of dancers, and the affair passed off very pleasantly.

City Fathers Met in Committee of the Whole

The City Council met in Committee of the Whole last night, when there were present, Mayor Ryan, Aldermen Phelan, Morrow, Buller, Neill, Johnston, Turner, Gillespie, Morgan, Elliott and Bradburn.

The question of the right of companies to open up streets without consulting the city officials, came up for discussion. Mr. Larmonth and Mr. Peck were present as the interests of the gas company. Mr. Peck offered that it was necessary for the gas company to open streets in order to meet the requirements of consumers. The city and the gas company, he thought, should work in harmony. It would be unjust, he contended, to deprive citizens of the use of gas owing to a prohibitory law in regard to opening the streets. No company, he contended, would enter into any agreement with the city under such conditions as proposed by the council re opening streets. The gas company must be in a position to meet the requirements of gas consumers.

Mr. Larmonth said his company were quite willing to pay for use of the road roller in fixing any streets they are forced to open up in their consumers' interests.

Ald. Morrow moved, seconded by Ald. Neill,—That Aldermen Phelan, Gillespie and Bradburn be a committee to endeavor to enter into an agreement with the city by which the streets may be opened by the gas company and left in a condition satisfactory to all concerned.—Carried.

The question of a public abbator for Peterborough was referred back to the Property Committee to glean information on this subject.

PUBLIC LIBRARY.

The mayor explained that Mr. Richard Hall feels sore over the fact that the council have not met his wishes in regard to the establishment of a public library. When Mr. Hall deeded the old store on Simcoe street to the city for a public library, he fully expected the council to expend $10,000 on the building, which can be sold today for $15,00.

This matter was left in abeyance pending further consultation with Mr. Hall.

ISOLATION HOSPITAL.

The question again came up. Mr. Neill offered that he case handled by the city in their own building on Simcoe street, represented the interest on $7,000. He thought the matter should be dealt with definitely at once one way or the other.

The Property Committee was instructed to report as to the cost of an isolation hospital.

Fanatic's Children Carry Weapons

Person, July 13.—Western Canada has been cursed with a number of queer bands intent upon carrying out some ridiculous religious mania, but the present crusade of the "Admen" along the Manitoba-Saskatchewan border affords more food for the curious than even the spectacular pilgrimages of the naked Doukhobar fanatics. Old James Sharpe, the leader, styles himself Jesus Christ, and his wife, a gaunt and resolute Amazon, insists that she is the Virgin Mary.

Probably the very theft and moving force which characterizes the great body of Western Canada as people adds to the sensational aspect of these crazy bands which have from time to time disgraced the British land north of the 49th parallel. The very contrast contributes to the interest that surrounds thy men. Even the Indians look upon them with contempt, for the red man's idea of the Great Spirit commands respect and his worshipping is conducted with a dignity that would put to shame many of the white brothers.

While the authorities of the West have had a great deal of trouble with a variety of crazy foreigners who believed in worshipping God naked, or exterminating those who did not worship as they did, the Sparenzade is the first fanatical outbreak in which the police have been met with firearms and threats made to resist arrest even to the point of death. James Sharpe, a sixty-five years of age. He is an illiterate old soul, and apparently sane on all subjects but religion. He has a glib tongue, and with his whole hand affects great familiarity with the Scriptures, which they quote on slight provocation. His son, a man of 30, also uncultured, is really an orator of more than usual ability, though, like his father, his most fiery outbursts relate only to religious discussions.

These people, even the children, are armed with modern repeating rifles and heavy revolvers.

AFTER TREATMENT

"I took your New Method Treatment for a serious blood disease with which I had been afflicted for twelve years. I had consulted many of physicians, taken all kinds of blood medicines, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, baldness of the hair, swellings of the glands, pains of the hands swelling, itchiness of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 6 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks' time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the New Method Treatment for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. My boy, then 7 years old, is sound and healthy. I certainly can recommend your treatment with all my heart. You can refer any person to me personally, but you can use this testimonial as you wish."

House Fat--A Vital Problem

Shall a fat woman decide during the sweltering evenings of midsummer to sit on the porch corseted and asphyxiated but presentable; or shall she take off her harness and garner a little comfort at the expense of a few pounds more of house fat? Here is a problem as momentous as Hamlet's "To be or not to be?"

Hamlet ended where he began, however, whereas fat folks can solve their hot weather problem; they can reduce.

This does not mean hard work through exercise or a course of ascetic dieting, though. It does not mean one must take a change of running his stomach with "secret" advertised "remedies." All one has to do is to take a teaspoonful after meals and at bed time of the following simple, harmless mixture; 1-2 ounce Marmosia, 3-4 ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and 3-4 ounce Syrup Simplex, and in a reasonable time the loss of fat should amount to 12, or even 16 ounces a day. This home method of reducing flesh quickly and safely gets results without disturbing one's regular diet or the formation of wrinkles, and these advantages, combined with the fact that any druggist will fill it for a small sum, make this receipt unique.

Tripped on a Mat and Fractured Her Hip

Havelock, July 13.—As a result of falling to the floor and fracturing her hip, Mrs. Devenport, an aged resident of the town, is in a critical condition and will be taken to the Nicholls hospital at Peterborough. The accident occurred yesterday. Mrs. Devenport, who is seventy years of age, was visiting at the home of her daughter, Mrs. S. J. Cross. The old daughter, a rheumatic and walks with the aid of a cane. On Sunday she was feeling better than usual and tried to move about the room without the cane. In doing so she tripped on a mat and fell heavily to the floor. When the doctor arrived he found that Mrs. Devenport's hip was fractured and that her condition was critical. It was decided to have her removed to the Nicholls hospital at Peterborough and this will be done this afternoon. Mrs. Cross was away at the time of the accident, but was summoned at once.

Sinking Sensations in the Stomach

DO THEY AFFECT YOU?

These unpleasant feelings of weakness and collapse indicate that the sympathetic nervous system is out of order.

The cause is impairment of nerve tone, arising from failure of the stomach to perform its work.

Acute indigestion follows and the natural result is mental depression, and a feeling of collapse and extreme weakness.

The best, because the quickest and surest cure, is Ferrozone.

It acts at once upon the digestive and assimilative organs—it fortifies the stomach—makes the blood nourishing, gives it a rich, red color, the best evidence of health.

"For ten years I suffered acutely from stomach troubles," writes Mr. Maxwell Thompson, of Toledo. "I always had a headache and dull feeling after meals. My appetite was poor, and I did not relish food. It was all due to a weak, defective stomach. I read about Ferrozone and ordered six boxes from my druggist. It was no time at all before I felt much better, and when all the Ferrozone was used I really took a new lease of life. I am stronger, brighter, and feel more like work than before trying Ferrozone. It is a splendid tonic, the best I ever used."

Ferrozone is unrivalled in curing stomach ailments, try it and be convinced. Sold by all druggists in 25c. boxes.

GLORIOUS TWELFTH LOYALLY CELEBRATED IN PETERBOROUGH

The Anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne Splendidly Commemorated

Eloquent Speeches at Central Park--Much Credit Due to Peterborough Organization

It was 218 years since the Battle of the Boyne was fought, but nearly 8,000 Orangemen joined in the largest parade ever held in Peterborough.

Everything was carried off smoothly, no interference with traffic, as the cars were stopped.

wide awake and the streets began to

Early in the morning the city was full up. No one ever dreamed the demonstration would be so large, nor ever thought that the parade would be kept so well in hand.

The trains bringing in the visitors began to arrive as early as 8.30, and the last one was in at 11.30. There was 15000 visitors in the city, the largest crowd ever seen on our streets.

The big procession was formed at 2 o'clock, in Central Park and headed by the lodges from East Durham, they paraded down George to Hunter from Hunter to Aylmer, then to Charlotte, across Charlotte to George up George to Hunter, over to Water, up Water to London, over to George and then returned to the park. After all the parade finished a number of addresses were made by the following men; Rev. Dr. Bruce, Cobourg; Bro. T. B. Collins, Millbrook, Past Grand Master of Ontario East; Bro. R. H. The Majesty of Women

Naturally makes them shrink from the indelicate questions, the obnoxious examinations, and unpleasant local treatments, which some physicians consider essential in the treatment of diseases of women. Yet, if help can be had, it is better to submit to this ordeal than let the disease grow and spread. The trouble is that so often the woman undergoes all the annoyance and shame for nothing. Thousands of women who have been cured by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription write in appreciation of the cure which dispenses with the examinations and local treatments. There is no other medicine so sure and safe for delicate women as "Favorite Prescription." It cures debilitating drains, irregularity and female weakness. It always helps. It almost always cures. It is strictly non-alcoholic, non-secret, all its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper; contains no deleterious or habit-forming drugs, and every native medicinal root entering into its composition has the full endorsement of those most eminent in the several schools of medical practice. Some of these endorsements or strongest of professional endorsements of its ingredients, will be found in a pamphlet wrapped around the bottle, also in a booklet mailed free on request, by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. These professional endorsements should have far more weight than any amount of the ordinary lay, or non-professional testimonials.

The most intelligent women now-a-days insist on knowing what they take as medicine instead of opening their mouths like a lot of young birds and gulping down whatever is offered them. "Favorite Prescription" is of KNOWN composition. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., 21 one-cent stamps for paper-covered, or 50 stamps for cloth-bound.

If sick consult the Doctor, free of charge by letter. All such communications are held sacredly confidential.

$125 Well Spent by the City Fathers

Some short-sighted citizens have been objecting to the council's action in granting the Orangemen $125 toward the expenses of yesterday's mammoth 12th of July celebration successfully carried out.

There were quite 8,000 men in the parade, and it is safe to say that that altogether yesterday's "Battle of the Boyne" celebration attracted to the neighborhood of 15,000 visitors to our Electric City. This represents a tremendous amount of money left in the city to the benefit of many ratepayers who contribute their quota of the paltry $125 granted by the city fathers.

As an example of the money left in town yesterday, one confectionary alone sold over $60 worth of ice cream to a middleman, who of course must have reaped a satisfactory profit from his sales. And everyone catering to the demands of visitors had a big day. It is generally conceded by all that money in exceptionally light these days, and the cash brought into our city yesterday by Orangemen and their friends, and put into rapid circulation was certainly a god's send to Peterborough.

Apart from the above facts the council did a wise stroke of business in voting the Orangemen a grant of $125, when one takes into consideration the fact that $115 were paid into the city treasury in the way of special licenses for eating houses, peddling, booths, etc. This means that the city has merely spent $10 in order to encourage the biggest gathering of visitors ever met together in Peterborough on one day.

So long as Orangeism exists, the glorious 12th will be celebrated each year, and those who object to the granting by our city fathers of $125 for decorations purposes, etc., should bear in mind that each community within a hundred miles of Peterborough, as a strong competitor with this city for the 12th of July celebration, which represents the acquisition by ratepayers of thousands of dollars in one way and another. "No Surrender" to any avenue of finance in Peterborough's motto.

In the Realm of Sport

Different Now

Athlete Finds Better Training Food

It was formerly the belief that to become strong, athletes must eat plenty of meat.

This is all out of date now, and many trainers feed athletes on the well-known food, Grape-Nuts, made of wheat and barley, and eat the meat down to a small portion, once a day.

"Three years ago," writes a Michigan, "having become interested in athletics, I found I would have to stop eating pastry and some other kinds of food.

"I got some Grape-Nuts and was soon eating the food at every meal. For I found that when I went on the track, I felt more lively and active.

"Later, I began also to drink Postum in place of coffee and the way I gained muscle and strength on this diet was certainly great. On the day of a field meet in June I weighed 124 lbs. On the morning of the football season in Sept., I weighed 148. I attributed my fine condition and good work to the discontinuation of improper food and coffee and the using of Grape-Nuts and Postum, my principal diet during training season being Grape-Nuts.

"Before I used Grape-Nuts I never felt right in the morning—always kind of 'out of sorts' with my stomach. But now when I rise I feel good, and after a breakfast largely of Grape-Nuts with cream, and a cup of Postum, I feel like a new man." "There's a Reason."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

COURT OF REVISION

TAKE NOTICE that the municipal Council of the Corporation of the City of Peterborough intends to construct sewers on the streets or parts in the City of Peterborough named below, and intends to assess a portion of the final cost thereof upon the real property to be immediately benefitted thereby fronting or abutting upon the said part of the said street. A statement showing the lands liable to and proposed to be specially assessed for the said work, and the names of the owners thereof, so far as the same can be ascertained from the last revised assessment roll and otherwise is now filed in the office of the Clerk of the Municipality and is open for inspection during office hours:—

(Antrim Street, between Water and Harvey streets, estimated cost of the work $1884.40, of which $262.84 is to be provided out of the general funds of the Municipality; annual rate per foot frontage, $0.02564; number of annual assessments, 20.

Harvey street, between Antrim and Smith streets, estimated cost of the work $652.40, of which $76.57 is to be provided out of the general funds of the Municipality; annual rate per foot frontage $0.0259; number of annual assessments, 20.

A Court of Revision will be held on the 28th day of July, 1908, at the hour of 8 o'clock in the evening at the City Council Chambers, for the purpose of hearing complaints against the proposed assessment or the accuracy of frontage measurements or any other complaints which the person interested may desire to make and which is by law competent by the Court.

Dated at Peterborough the 13th day of July, 1908.

E. B. ARMSTRONG,
City Clerk.

BONUS FOR CIVIL SERVANTS.

In addition to the classification clauses in the civil service bill which involve considerable increases in the maximum and minimum salaries of the several classes of civil servants, the supplementary estimates of the present session will probably contain a bonus allowance for the entire public service based upon the increased cost of living throughout Canada. The exact amount of this bonus has not been agreed upon, but it will not be less than ten per cent. This is a question which will have to be dealt with apart from the Civil Service Act. But it is practically assured that the bonus will be granted and that it will be of sufficient amount to be heartily appreciated.

OLD AGE ANNUITIES.

The Old Age Annuities Bill has passed the House of Commons. Its chief provisions, as summed up by The Globe are as follows:

No annuity shall be larger than $365 to one person and no more than $365 to husband and wife jointly.

The minimum age at which an annuity may begin is 55 years. A man may arrange to have his annuity begin at a later age if he wishes to do so. No man shall receive an annuity until he has reached 55 years. This is subject to a proviso that if disability falls upon a man and he needs the annuity at an earlier age he can receive it, but the amount will in that case be smaller than what he will receive if he carries the transactions to the full 55 years.

The annuities will not be transferable, and will not be subject to seizure.

In case of death before the age at which the annuity is payable, all the moneys paid in will be returned to the representatives of the annuitant, with interest, at three per cent., compounded yearly.

The annuitant may make periodical payments at stated times, or he may make independent payments to suit his own convenience.

Assuming that the contributor began at the age of 20, and continues payment until the age of 55, he can take his annuity at once, or if he chooses he can allow the money to stay a little longer and he will receive a larger annuity.

There is a provision for independent payments by which a contributor may make a payment of $10 or more at any time.

By payment at the age of 55 immediate annuities may be purchased.

The Postoffice Bank depositors may transfer their money to purchase annuities.

Friendly societies and religious organizations can purchase annuities for their members and employers of labor can make such arrangements as are necessary with their workmen in order that the latter may benefit under the provisions of the act.

The two great advantages of the scheme are the security provided by Government and the cheapness of administration.

The scheme is a decided step in advance, and will be favourably received by the country. It will be observed, however, that it is not one of "old age pensions", but a plain business proposition by which the government reduces to a minimum cost, combined with absolute security, protection against penury in advancing years.

Heat prostrat of the nerves. In the summer one needs a tonic to off-set the enervating hot weather. Nerve and Strength depression. You will feel better within 48 hours after beginning to use such a remedy as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Its prompt action in toning the weakened nerves is surprising. Of course, you won't get entirely strong in a few days, but each day you can actually feel the improvement. That tired, listless, spiritless feeling will quickly depart when using the Restorative. Dr. Shoop's Restorative will sharpen a failing appetite, it aids digestion; it will strengthen the weakened Kidneys and Heart by simply vitalizing the worn-out nerves that these organs depend upon. Test it a few days and be convinced. Sold by all dealers.

The Falling of Lucy.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

Copyrighted, 1903, by Associated Literary Press.

Elwood craned his neck as the train drew in at the little station. Yes, there was the low, red brick structure, from either end of which the road wound away between the young oaks, now showing a faint misty brown in the late April sunshine.

With a sudden impulse he arose and grasped his hat and grip. In another instant he stood before the station house, while the train screamed away through the wooded tunnel of oaks.

He looked around at the familiar scene, slightly bewildered at the result of his impulsive action. He had left New York with the intention of spending the week end with friends at Shrimp Cove, but the familiar scenes through which the train had sped and which marked milestones in his memory had roused within him depths of feeling that he thought could not now exist.

Evading the puzzled glance of the station agent, he turned down the right hand road. Ultimately it would take him to the village hostelry. Incidentally it would lead him over old paths and permit his fancy to revel in banished dreams.

He plodded through the thick yellow sand with eager eyes on the budding hedges. Gratefully he inhaled the delicate spring odors that seemed to emanate from the golden afternoon sunshine.

He paused, once beside a foaming spring where sweetflag was shooting green blades from the black, soggy mud, and again in the Hoodspot redd, where arbutus clung to the steep banks and the pink pouch of the moccasin flower sprang from the lichened tree stumps. Each time he removed his hat and stood with painfully knitted brow and reflective eyes. Then he moved on.

The village hotel was under new management, and he passed unchallenged by old acquaintances. He strolled down the irregular street after the evening meal was over and in the spring twilight revisited old haunts and revived old memories until his mind was a chaos of rage with himself and grief for the unattainable.

The next morning when clamoring bells rang out from the white painted churches and the quiet streets were gay with the Easter finery of the village belles Elwood made his way to a quaint old edifice tucked away on the shore road, so that when he was seated in a familiar place he could see the white sails in the harbor and the thin drift of smoke from passing steamers on the sound.

The gathering congregation looked curiously at the dignified, middle aged stranger who sat in the old Elwood pew, but he maintained an attitude of motionless rigidity, with eyes fixed steadily on the rippling water beyond the window. He was listening with painful eagerness for a light step.

It came. He heard the swish of silk and the soft slip of her feet as she ascended the steps of the chancel and took her place among the assembled choir. In his eyes' mind he could see her, cool and pale, with flaxen hair and dark blue eyes.

There would be little change in her appearance after fifteen years. Her fair skin might have faded a little, and her slimness might have become angularity, but there would be no other visible alteration. Still, he could not look.

Two women rustled into the seat behind him and conversed in hissing whispers that reached his ear with annoying distinctness.

"Lucy Clifford's got on her blue foulard silk, ain't she?"

"Yes! I wonder if she's going to sing today?"

"I suppose so. Mr. Larkin said it would be the last year she could sing in the choir."

"Her voice is getting terrible thin, and once in awhile it gives out. She ain't sung for two or three weeks now. I guess she was saving it so's she could sing today."

"Lucy's getting to be a regular old maid. Now that she's left alone down to the old place, I guess she wishes she'd taken up with young Elwood after all."

"I hope her voice don't fail today," remarked one of the women as the low tones of the organ rumbled through the church.

Elwood turned his head. Yes; there she sat, her pale, pure profile outlined against the red and purple of the chancel window.

She looked as his memory had framed her save that she was not angular; she still retained her youthful slimness. There was a pathetic droop to her once proudly lifted head and a wistfulness in the full lidded eyes as she turned toward the congregation.

The organ ceased, the white robed minister entered and knelt in prayer, and then with a triumphant burst of music the choir arose and the notes of the anthem rang through the little church. Elwood pressed a hand across his stinging eyes as the familiar melody proceeded. It seemed but yesterday that he had stood beside Lucy Clifford in the choir and lifted his strong young voice in that same strain.

He heard the high notes of her thin soprano above the reedy tenor and the rumble of alto and bass, and there was an uncertain quality in it that caused his heart to beat a little faster in the fear that her voice might fail altogether. Anxiously he followed her through the anthem and sighed with relief when the final "Amen" died away in the rustle of the kneeling people.

The service proceeded as it had proceeded fifteen years ago. There was another minister and, save for Lucy Clifford, other voices in the choir. There were strangely familiar faces in the congregation, and his eyes studied many a glance of recognition. It was enough for him that he could look upon Lucy Clifford's sweet face once again. In the morning he would go away.

When the long sermon was finished the organ commenced a well known melody, two girls passed, speaking to the rector, and proceeded up the aisle and received the extra contribution boxes, while the choir arose to sing the offertory.

"Christ the Lord is risen today. Al-le-lu-ia!"

That was Lucy's voice rising high above the other singers, and again Elwood felt that tender apprehension lest she should fail. When the second stanza was begun her tones were strained and tremulous.

"She's going to break down!" Whispered one of the women in the seat behind him.

"Lo, our sun's eclipse is o'er"—.

It had happened. With a discordant wail like the breaking of a violin string Lucy Clifford's voice died out. The startled choir paused for an instant, and then from the congregation burst a man's strong voice, "Al-le-lu-ia!"

To a triumphant conclusion he carried the fine old melody, his rich tenor supporting the wavering voices of the agitated choir. He had seen the white, frightened face of Lucy Clifford turned in his direction, and he threw all the vigor and force of his nature into the third stanza.

Almost unconsciously her tremulous voice took up the refrain, and once more their tones were united. It seemed as though her weak utterance rested on the assured strength of his, and he carried it up—up—to an exultant close until their voices blended in final joyous "Al-le-lu-ia!"

Lucy Clifford sank back in her seat with trembling hands and a flickering color in her pale cheeks. She did not glance at Allen Elwood. It was sufficient for her that he was present and that in the hour of her distress he had come to her rescue.

It was like him to have done that. It was strange that she had permitted that escapade of his youth to blind her to his many noble qualities. Well, it was too late now, but she could remember this day. It would be a pleasant memory to be stored away against a dreary future.

When the service was concluded, Lucy Clifford slipped through the side door into the churchyard and thence toward the opening in the stone wall that led to the homeward path across lots.

Elwood did not follow her. It would be of no use. He was too much of a black sheep. But when the dusk fell he walked slowly along the shore road until he came to the old Clifford place.

It was a long, low, brown house facing the harbor. Tall cherry trees overshadowed its gabled roof, and thick hedges of pungent box bordered the winding paths. A wind swept up from the bay, and a shower of blossoms fell about him. A whipporwill throbbed from the bough of an apple tree. It was like another night that was past.

There was a light step on the gravelled path, a startled exclamation, and he was holding Lucy's unresisting hands in his own.

"I have come to ask your forgiveness, Lucy," he began tenderly.

"Nay," she murmured tremulously; "it is I who should ask yours for my narrow minded prejudices. But that is past—I—I tried to steel my heart and failed—and the years have been so long, Allen"— Her voice broke.

"I know," he said slowly, "but the years that are to come will be long and sweet, God willing!"

The whipporwill whirred away through the darkness, while again the cherry trees swayed in the breeze and sent a shower of bridal whiteness over the lovers at the gate.

Philosophy of Good Clothes.

Besides the sentimental and aesthetic reasons that exist for dressing well it seems there is a scientific one, if we accept the statement of a London medical man that a good suit of clothes acts as a tonic on the mind of the wearer, while the consciousness that one is not at one's best in appearance or wearing shabby or ill fitting clothes may be reckoned as one of life's real handicaps. In the moral support that smart clothing furnishes he thinks there is a source of mental strength and activity that aids one to center one's thoughts on the things that lead to success in one's trade and profession. To be shockingly attired and to be constantly conscious of the condition leads the mind into worrying ways that dissipate healthy energy.—Boston Transcript.

A Different Brand.

An eminent medical gentleman engaged a nurse, recently graduated, for a case of delirium tremens. The physician succeeded in quieting the patient and left some medicine, instructing the nurse to administer it to him if he "began to see snakes again." At the next call the physician found the patient again raving. To his puzzled inquiry the nurse replied that the man had been going on that way for several hours and that she had not given him any medicine.

"But didn't I tell you to give it to him if he began to see snakes again?" demanded the physician.

"But he didn't see snakes this time," replied the nurse confidently. "He saw red, white and blue turkeys with straw hats on."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Three Dreams.

"I had the very strangest dream,"
Said Jasper John, "last night.
I dreamed the moon and all the stars
Were shining just as bright,
And yet the sun was shining, too,
And I was racing Ted,
While everybody else we knew
Was sound asleep in bed."
"I dreamed," said little Theodora,
"About a monstrous horse,
With twenty legs and lots of tails
(He belonged to me, of course);
His eyes were green, the rest of him
Was yellow streaked with black,
And nobody in all the world
But me could mount his back."
Teddy's father, mother and their aunt
Agreed their three two dreams
Were very queer, but Bobby said:
"The one I had it seems
To me's the queerest of them all.
I saw a boy that said
He hated baseball, and he wished
He'd been a girl instead."

SYNOPSIS Of CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the Northwest Provinces, excepting 8 and 26 reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father or mother.

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

Action Against P. L. & P. Co.

The City Council has entered an action against the Peterborough Light & Power Co., for digging up the streets. The company claim that by an old law they have the right to do so without consulting the council. The city disputes this claim and has issued a writ in the High Court accordingly. Messrs Bell & Hays are solicitors for the city and Messrs. Peck & Kerr for the company. It is hoped that some reasonable understanding will be reached that will obviate a legal struggle to determine the rights a question.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treasons must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential.

Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional.

The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a tonic-alterative sometimes magnificently remedy. While Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, making the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood alike.

The "Night Cure", as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, eases nerve excitement, gives restored vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

"ALL DEALERS"

AN ISLAND OF QUIET.

Not Going Downtown in Madeira is an Exciting Event.

Madeira is populated, yet is one of the quietest as well as one of the most beautiful places in the world. Although the roads are paved with round beach stones, there is nothing to remind one of the fact, because, as David O. Fairchild, agricultural explorer of the department of agriculture, explains in the National Geographic Magazine, there are no horses or jolting wheels.

All vehicles in Madeira are on runners. If you go calling it is in a bullock sledge with canopy top and comfortable seats. If you move a bank safe or a steam boiler it is carried on a "stone boat," or sledge of poles, and you may have to get forty oxen to pull it. If you are in a villa on the hillside and want to get downtown you take a running car and slide down over the cobblestones.

Two strong men, each holding a guide rope, pull your car over a bag of grease to grease the runners and then give you a running shove and jump each on a runner behind as the car shoots down at a breakneck pace over the cobblestones.

The men yell, bens and dogs scamper, foot passengers cling close to the wall of the narrow street, the runners get hot and fill the air with odor of burning wood as you shoot round sharp corners, down the busy thoroughfare past gorgeous masses of flowering creepers which hang over the walls of the private villas that border your road.

But, oh, the change when you get to the bottom! You are obliged either to walk or take a carro, drawn by slow moving bullocks, squeaking and slipping over the stones.

ORIGIN OF THE HORSE.

The Modern Animal a Cross Between Two Ancient Breeds.

In Wissen Tur Alle Professor Koenig discusses in some detail the origin of the horse of today. He finds that the horse of neolithic times was not specifically distinct from the horse of the present. While there is no doubt that the horse of that period was used by man for food, there seems to be no conclusive evidence as to whether it was domesticated or not. His own opinion, however, is that it was probably domesticated.

The horse of that time was closely allied to the tarpan or semiwild horse that lived in southern Russia up to a century ago. This was a "hog maned," short legged horse headed beast. It seems probable that the domesticated horses of the Germans of Caesar's time were derived from this breed.

The Egyptians had horses as early as 2000 B. C. These were long maned, more like the Arab horses, and came from Persia. Where the Assyrians obtained them is unknown, but it was probably from southern Asia, where the long maned breed has been developed in all probability as the result of long continued domestication. The modern horse is a cross between these two breeds, with a further mixture of the Arab horse. This Arab horse, too, was itself a descendant of the earlier long maned horse.

The origin of the long maned horse is a matter of doubt, but Professor Koenig thinks it may have been from an extinct Indian species.

Women Who Marry at Thirty-five.

A German doctor lays it down as a well established fact based on close observation that women who do not marry until thirty-five or thereabout invariably achieve matrimonial success. Why women of this particular age should make more successful marriages than those who fall victims to love's young dream is fairly obvious. When a young woman marries between thirty and forty she either does so for companionship, choosing her mate accordingly, or from need, in which case she also chooses with a certain amount of care. She has no wild dreams of unclipped bliss.—London Lady's Pictorial.

A Freak of the Lightning.

A curious case of lightning destruction took place some years ago at Gatchina, an imperial summer residence not far from St. Petersburg, where stood a stone column fifty feet high, held together by iron angles. When rain fell more or less water penetrated the stones in the interior of the monument. One day it was struck by lightning, and instantly the column disappeared from view, killing a lone sentry on guard. The only explanation is that the heat of the lightning instantly generated steam on coming in contact with some of the water and the terrific explosion followed.

The Change of a Comma.

"Whenever she asks me to do anything," soliloquized Mr. Meeker pensively, "I always go and do it, like a fool."

"Yes," said Mrs. Meeker, who happened along in time to overhear him. "Whenever I ask you to do anything you always go and do it like a fool."

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

A MODERN MACAULAY.

Wonderful Memory of an Old Time Missouri Lawyer.

One of the most picturesque of the early lawyers of Missouri was Billy Campbell, who came from Virginia in 1820 and opened an office in St. Charles. He was a man of great ability, a classic scholar, an orator and a political writer of unusual power. But he was indolent, careless about collecting and spending money and so lazy that physical exertion of any kind was positively painful to him. He had a most remarkable memory, as proved by the following incident: Campbell, who was a Whig, represented his district in the state senate several years. On one occasion he was lying on a bench in the senate chamber, apparently sleeping, when the Democratic members came in to hold a caucus. They attempted to arouse him, but he appeared so soundly asleep that they decided to let him alone. The next day a complete report of the proceedings of the caucus, including a verbatim copy of the resolutions adopted, was published in the St. Louis Republican. A row followed, and the secretary was charged with having been bribed to report the proceedings of the caucus. After the excitement died down somewhat Campbell admitted that he had been awake all the time and that he had done the reportorial work entirely from memory.

A MUFF BED.

Surprise of a Man Who Thought It Had to Do With Sleep.

A man who saw on a sign the words "muff beds" and imagined that a muff bed must be something to sleep in, a brother or cousin or other more or less distant relative of the sleeping bag, such as explorers carry with them, found upon inquiry that his imagination had carried him very far from the truth; that the muff bed is in fact not a bed at all, but is the trade name for the inner part of a muff, the body of the muff—in short, the part you put your hands in.

The muff bed consists of a double walled bag made in cylindrical or other shape, according to the style of muff, and then stuffed with down, the quality and quantity of the down depending on the character of the muff.

The making of muff beds is a business by itself. Some of them are sold to the furriers in the simplest form, just the bed or bag stuffed with down, the furrier putting in the silk or satin lining when he puts on the fur. Others are made with the silk or satin lining attached, to be finished up when the fur is put on. There is at least one concern in New York that makes a specialty of muff beds and turns out many thousands of them annually.

Wanted a Robota.

In a rural community in one of the middle states dwelt a man who made a vow in 1856 that he would wear his hair and beard unstrimmed until John C. Fremont should be elected president of the United States. He kept that vow for forty years, at the end of which time he had nearly a half bushel of hair on his head and face. Then, coming to the conclusion, toward which his mind had been gradually working for a long time, that General Fremont's death in the interval had practically absolved him from his vow, he decided to have his hair cut and his beard shaved off clean. On his next visit to the county seat he went to a barber shop and was soon relieved of the bizarre burden he had carried for forty decades.

"How much?" he asked.

"Have to charge you half a dollar for that job," said the barber, looking at the mass that lay on the floor.

"Half a dollar!" he gasped. "Don't I get anything for the hair?"

The Actor and the Critic.

One of the near comedians who always submit to be entirely careless of newspaper criticism recently struck from his list of bowing acquaintances a critic noted for his candor. The player met the writer and a friend while crossing a park square and exchanged a few words of greeting and as he passed on heard this conversation:

"Who was that?"

"Oh, that is L., the actor!"

"He does not look much like an actor of the stage."

"Well, less when he's on the stage," returned the critic.—Argonaut.

On New England Tombstones.

There were several epitaphs which displeased you for awhile, epitaphs like that of "Helen Tyndall, Killed by a Fall from the Main topmast Yard of the Bark Alnomus, in the Harbor of Buenos Aires on March 13, 1880:

"He as a seaman did his duty well,
But his foot slipped, and from aloft he fell—
Fell, but to rise and climb the shrouds on high
And greet his Master with a glad 'Aye, aye!'"

Or that which recorded the fate of "Absalom Peters, Shot in the Creek by the Explosion of his own Gun."

A Scramble.

"All the world's a stage."

"What of it?"

"I was just thinking that the cast is so large that nobody gets much of a chance at the spot light."

His Weak Point.

The Stage Manager—He can play "drunken parts" better than any man on the stage. The Business Manager—Yes, but he's too fond of rehearsing.

Fortune brings in some boats that are not steered.—Shakespeare.

Labor Saving Devices.

"Do you know, Sam, that a man does not have to do as much work now as he did ten years ago?"

"Yes, sah; I know it, sah. Why, I've been married nearly eight years, sah!"—Yonkers Statesman.

Mistress—How, remember, Bridget, the Joneses are coming for dinner. Cook—Leave it to me, mum. I'll do me worst! They'll never

WHEN FOOD WAS SCARCE.

The following interesting statement of the prices that were paid for food during the siege of 1870 is taken verbally out of the journal of a French officer stationed in Paris at the time:

"Toward the middle of October we had to make up our mind to sacrifice the animals of the zoological garden. The elephants and many other beasts were bought by M. Debos, the owner of the English meat shop in Av. Friendland. The meat of the elephants was sold from $10 to $12 a kilogram (two pounds), the trunk commanding the highest price, $16 a kilogram. The trunk and feet were both declared delicious by all gormands. In the same shop a pair of young wolves were sold for $2.50 per pound. The meat was soft and without taste. The biggest price was paid for a young live lamb that had been swiped by a 'franctireur' from the enemy. One hundred dollars was paid for it.

Two pounds of horseflesh	$5.00
One ham	10.00
A whole cat	2.00
A rabbit	10.00
One turkey	20.00
One egg	1.00
A rat	.50
A pigeon	2.00
One pound of butter	6.00
A pound of beans	1.00
A peck of carrots	2.00
One cabbage head	2.00
One stick of celery	.50
Wood to burn (300 pounds)	2.00

"Even the rich had to live on the meagerest diet and to take into their mean things that till then only the trapper in the virgin forests was supposed to eat. I leave it to you to imagine what kind of meals were served in the small restaurants and boarding houses.

"Moreover, everybody had to submit to the strictest orders. People stood in file before the butcher and baker shops to wait for their turns. Each household was furnished with a card from the municipality authorizing the bearer to buy a certain amount of meat and bread. The cook, the housewife, the young girl, the little child (men never go shopping in France), were posted for hours before the shops in rain and snow, with wet feet, shivering with cold. The unfortunate ones endured without a murmur these hardships. Women throughout the time of the siege were setting an example of courage and self abnegation not always followed by men.

"It was a sad and touching spectacle, these long files of women, nearly all dressed in black, grouped before the doors of the dealers, watched by the national guard, with whom they at first were laughing and chatting, till the sufferings from the cold had silenced the laugh and sometimes brought forth the tears.

"But in spite of all precautions the stores one by one were exhausted, the provisions, put in too late before the siege, were used up, and, while the babies, deprived of milk, died in great numbers or, fed on sweet wine and bread, pined slowly away, the big people tried to find new resources to prolong their lives."

Generous Mrs. Crewe.

A gambling story is told of Charles James Fox that rather reflects on his honor. He was one of the ardent admirers of Mrs. Crewe, a noted beauty of her day, and it is related that a gentleman lost a considerable sum to this lady at play and, being obliged to leave town suddenly, gave Mr. Fox the money to pay her, begging him to apologize to her for his not having paid the debt of honor in person. Fox lost every shilling of it before morning. Mrs. Crewe often met the supposed debtor afterward and, surprised that he never noticed the circumstances, at length delicately hinted the matter to him.

"Bless me!" said he. "I paid the money to Mr. Fox three months ago."

"Oh, did you, sir?" said Mrs. Crewe good naturedly. "Then probably he paid me, and I forgot it."

Risky Revenge.

Gagnini, the wonderful violinist, had a narrow escape at Ferrara from a violent death. Enraged by some hissing from the pit, he resolved to avenge the insult, and at the close of his programme informed the audience that he would imitate the language of various animals. After having rendered the notes of different birds, the mewing of a cat, and the barking of a dog, he advanced to the footlights, and, saying, "This is for those who hissed!" imitated the braying of an ass. At this the occupants of the pit rose, rushed on to the stage and would probably have killed their calumniator had he not hastily retreated.

Fixing His Status.

A waiter spilled some soup on the clothing of a portly, choleric old gentleman dining with his wife in an uptown lobster palace the other night whereupon the old gentleman jumped to his feet and, calling the manager, burst into a tirade which ended with the somewhat antithematic charge that the waiter was "no gentleman."

"This man is not supposed to be a gentleman," said the manager coldly. "He is merely a waiter."

Tommy Spoke.

Minister—If any one present can show cause why this couple should not become man and wife, let him speak now or forever hold his peace. Tommy—I kin, mister. He thinks aunty's only twenty-five, and she's forty.

Economy may be the road to wealth; but nine-tenths of those who are compelled to travel it never reach the goal.—Chicago News.

Jones—Yes, our household now represents the United Kingdom. Smith—How's that? Jones—Why, you see, I am English, my wife is Irish, the nurse is Scotch, and the baby wails.—London Express.

Changed.

"Do you believe that man and woman should have equal rights?"

"Well, I used to, but since I've been married I don't dare to say so!"—Cleveland Leader.

To Canadian Investors

The undersigned has received an allotment of unsold portion of $100,000 of

7 Per Cent. First Mortgage Five-Year Gold Bonds

dated January 11, 1908, and maturing January 11, 1913. These Bonds are offered at par and accrued interest by Metropolitan Trust & Savings Bank, Chicago, trustees.

SECURITY—The Entire Property and Improvements Owned THE URES CONSOLIDATED MINING COMPANY in the District of Ures, State of Sonora Mexico, Free from Mortgage of Bonded Indebtedness, except this present Bond issue.

An Unusual Opportunity for Investment in Sound Security

The Ures Consolidated Mining Company offers $100,000.00 of First Mortgage Gold Bonds. This issue of bonds is the only mortgage or bonded indebtedness ever placed on the company's properties.

These bonds are in the denomination of $100.00, and bear interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, July and January, and are redeemable on or before five years from date at the company's option at $110.00 and accrued interest.

$100.00 Stock Bonus Given with Every $100.00 Bond

With each bond issued there will be given $100.00 par value of the capital stock of the company as a bonus, and in addition thereto there will be placed in escrow with the Trustee additional stock which will be available to the bondholders at their option any time within a period of three years, the bondholder being entitled to surrender his bond any time within said period and receive in lieu thereof stock for every dollar of indebtedness to him on account of said bonds.

The Security Back of these Bonds

The company owns twelve claims situated in the district of Ures, State of Sonora, Mexico, free from mortgage or bonded indebtedness, except the present bond issue.

On one of these properties (The Ramona Mine) 5,000 feet of underground development work has been done, consisting of an inclined shaft to the depth of 600 feet with drifts in three levels to the North and South of the shaft.

An average value of ore worth $11.67 per ton is exposed throughout the mine, from the collar of the shaft to the extreme parts in the drifts, all of which is above water level.

The company has made surface improvements and mine improvements to the extent of $60,000.00 in the way of machinery, skids, trams, steam hoists, mill and nearly everything necessary to make the mining camp complete.

In addition to the absolute ownership of these twelve valuable claims, the company has a lease on the San Jose Mine, adjoining its property, in which the company has been operating in high grade ore.

During the past sixty days the company has extracted and delivered to ore buyers and the bank at Hermosillo, $5,000.00 worth of ore and bullion, the ore having been reduced to bullion through the company's mill, with the exception of 1,464 pounds, which was sold to an ore buyer for $562.80.

The Money Derived from the Sale of These Bonds

This issue of bonds is made for the purpose of securing money at once in order to extend the development work more quickly than the company's present means will permit.

With the high grade ore in sight to the distance of 80 feet to the South of the shaft, the management is assured that within six months from date of making the improvements now necessary the company's properties will be on a self-sustaining and dividend-paying basis.

The Stock which is Given with these bonds will be as valuable as the bonds when the Company has the ready capital to push operations

Men who invest in these bonds will have no cause or reason to regret their action, for the bonds afford an investment in a security which is absolutely safe—much better than ordinary city or country real estate, which is considered perfectly safe if the property put up to secure a mortgage is double the face of the loan. The security given on these bonds is better than 7 to 1, for the Ures Consolidated Mining Company has refused an offer of $750,000.00 for the property upon which this $100,000.00 worth of bonds is issued.

These bonds are an investment with all speculative risk eliminated—an investment with absolute security.

Make your reservation at once. This is small and promises to be quickly sold.

Banco de Sonora,
Hermosillo, Mex.,
Feb. 11th, 1908.

To whom it may concern:—

We hereby beg to state that The Ures Consolidated Mining Company has during the past five years made several deliveries of bullion to this bank, and it is the opinion of mining men here that they have the making of a fair mine, and further, that the properties owned and controlled by them bid promise of becoming paying properties.

From our knowledge of the men connected, we believe they are doing all in their power to bring about the results above mentioned.

Respectfully,
BANCO DE SONORA,

RAWHIDE-DULZUR

1 CENT A 2 SHARE

Send us your name as a member in this new company, with your remittance for as many thousand shares as you can take at $5 per thousand.

This is a short-time offer on a hurry-up proposition. Our vice president is up at Rawhide now putting the miners at work. We want to raise the necessary funds for development as quickly as possible. Therefore, we offer the first block of stock at $5 a thousand shares. This subscription must be all cash. We want the money in hand. We mean to work without let-up, and we have made it an ironclad rule not to run in debt. Cash counts now.

Our prospectuses are out. Send for one.

Make reservation of stock. If you do no more. But, remember, this present offer of stock at Half a Cent a Share is now open, and will be closed as soon as enough cash subscriptions are in hand. Don't wait, or you will get left.

The gold mining property owned outright by the company consists of 7 claims, 5 in the Rawhide district of Nevada, and 4 in the Dulzura district of Southern California.

The Rawhide district to-day is more famous than Goldfield, Tonapah, Bullfrog, or Searchlight were at the same stage of exploration and development. The Dulzura discovery is one of the most sensational in the history of California.

Ten samples of ore which were among the first assayed, run as high as $7,461.57 to the ton, and all ten averaged over $1,500 a ton.

In both camps we located early, and our locations are choice. Our own officers will superintend the mining.

Weary, Worn-Out, Tired

If You Feel Poorly this Spring this Article is worth Considering.

Nothing in life keeps people from advancement like poor health. If the nerves are weak, if the stomach, liver, bowels or kidneys fail to work properly, health surely suffers. Spring is the hardest time on health—the season when the system calls for active cleansing medicine.

The best plan is to consult your condition to a physician of reputation like Dr Hamilton, who has had years of experience in compounding tonics. For the ills and tired feeling of spring Dr. Hamilton says nothing is better than Mandrake and Butternut Pills, and this is well proven in the case of James Burton, of Lowestown. "I had grip and it left me very weak. The disease settled in my back and side, which ached day and night. I had a nagging cough. My appetite was all gone. My nerves unstrung. I could not sleep well. I struggled against growing pale, thin and weak—but it was no good. Spring brought depression, overpowering weakness and bad headaches. But my life was spared, simply because I learned off the wonderful merit in Dr Hamilton's Pills and Mandrake and Butternut. The result was marvelous. I gained rapidly, became strong, ruddy, vigorous, perfectly well. I urge every man and woman to use Dr Hamilton's Pills regularly."

You'll brighten up, have cleaner blood, stronger nerves, better spirits after using Dr. Hamilton's Pills. 25c at all dealers. Guaranteed safe, sure, helpful for old and young.

Lost Watch While Fishing

While fishing from the old dredge below Hunter's bridge, Mr. Geo. Hutchison lost his watch, in about nine feet of water, Saturday morning. Several boys tried to get it but without success. About 4 o'clock, Willie Taylor, who has suffered the loss of both legs, appeared on the scene, and was soon exploring the bottom of the river. It was not long till he recovered the watch for Mr Hutchison.

Sad Drowning Fatality in the Burnt River

Lindsay, July 14.—James Richard Swanton, a young lad of 16 years, was drowned yesterday afternoon in the Burnt River about half way between Burnt River village and Kinmount. He was unable to swim and got beyond his depth. He was the only son of Mrs. Swanton, of Swanton's Corners, a widow.

A number of companions witnessed the drowning.

Billy Sherring Calls Longboat for Marathon

London, July 14.—Trainer Billy Sherring of the Canadian Olympic team has an article in the Daily Mail today, in which he picks Tom Longboat to win the Marathon the 24th.

The English critics look on Duncan, their champion 10 and 25-miler, fear the Greek runner Kautulakis.

RUNNERS BREAK DOWN.

Jack Caffery, the veteran Hamilton runner, has contracted rheumatism in the leg, and Frank Nesworth of Montreal has strained a tendon in his leg. Both are Mirathon runners but will hardly be in shape for the big race.

BRICKER OFF COLOR

Cal Bricker of Toronto, the Canadian broad jumper, is away off color. The best he could do today a practice was 21 feet 6 inches.

R. C. Reed considers Canada a chance only in the sprints.

UNLUCKY AT THE TRAPS

The Canadian trap-shooters lost the team competition through a fluke. The English team shot the first stage under ideal conditions, while the Canucks had a gale and a heavy wind to contend with. In the final they gained ten out of a 12 minority, losing by only one point.

Everything Points to a Bountiful Harvest in the West

Money is Plentiful and Abundance of Work for Everyone

Special to The Morning Times.

Winnipeg, Manitoba, July 15.—Evidence of prosperity is seen every day in Winnipeg. With building and real estate on the boom, a stranger in that city becomes convinced at once that the "stringency of the money market" scare is not real. With thousands of dollars being invested every week in new buildings and extensive improvements being made to the city in general, it would be almost impossible for a person to be convinced otherwise.

But this great swell of prosperity does not confine itself to Winnipeg. During the past two weeks, fairs have been held in half a dozen Manitoba towns, and it was at these, that the fact that Manitoba is on the boom was made apparent. Every fair held was an immense success, and in nearly every case, a greater success than ever. The farmers congregated for the last time before harvest, and were jubilant over crop prospects. Samples of wheat in record size were exhibited, a sign of a harvest of unusual richness. Money was plentiful at all the fairs, and this in itself is good evidence of the prosperity of the province of Manitoba.

The Winnipeg exhibition which is now on, is another testimonial to the prosperity of the Western metropolis. Commercial men all over Canada are in attendance, and an excellent opportunity is laid open, therefore, to ascertain the commercial conditions now existing. Several big merchants from points west have been interviewed, and they were unanimous in stating that prospects were never better for a prosperous summer and fall. They point out that the crop prospects are so good, that there is no timidness shown by the wholesalers like last year. A trip through the western country has convinced all that the harvest will be the richest in the history of the country, and assured of this, the merchants do not consider that they are taking chances in buying up big stock.

The scarcity of money according to these men, is almost a thing of the past. At any rate, it is not interfering with business to any marked degree. The depression left its mark in nearly every Western centre, but the merchants, like the Winnipeg men reboom is more than making up for lost time with farmers and merchants so optimistic, the summer of 1908 will be a good one in the history of Western Canada.

The great increase in building operations in Winnipeg continues. Nearly $30,000.00 worth of building permits have been issued in Winnipeg during the past week.

One of the greatest features in the brightening up of business in Winnipeg is the abundance of work given the laboring classes. The crowds which formerly blocked the pavements outside the labor bureaus, have dwindled down to the normal size. A good laborer can now secure work in Winnipeg without the least trouble, and grand opportunities are open for men with trades.

The construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific and Canadian Northern Union depot, which building will start close on to a million dollars in giving work to several hundred men, and double of a month, many others will be needed.

Winnipeg, July 15.—The influence of the favorable crop outlook has already been reflected in commercial circles throughout the West, and trade activity has been greatly stimulated by the extremely favorable weather of the past week. The faith of the people in the country has been responsible for a remarkable revival in business, and should present weather conditions continue for another fortnight, the West will witness probably the greatest boom in its history.

In the preceding year is it probable that such a favorable combination of circumstances existed as now have combined to promise the greatest crop that ever was produced in the West. During the month of June rains were general throughout the three provinces, and in many parts it was feared that an over-abundance of wet weather would have a tendency to injure the grain. With an almost provential abruptness the rains ceased, however, and were succeeded by bright, sunshiny weather, which quickly dried out the ground, and gave the crops a chance to grow. The result in nearly every locality, has been almost astounding, as the grain has shot out ahead with a quickness that has surprised even veteran growers. From all parts of the country the reports are most optimistic, and indicate that the farmers have little fear of any untoward circumstances arising to interfere with their prospects. The growth has been so rapid that it is not anticipated that the crops can be spoiled by early frosts, the most feared enemy of the settler. In some districts hail has been reported, but not in sufficient quantity to affect the yield. Hail is by many people considered a sure sequence to hot weather, but in the more settled portions of the country such is coming less frequent every year, and when it does come, is usually confined to but limited areas.

It is expected that cutting will commence from two to three weeks earlier this year than last, and this combined with the abundance of the crop, has created the fear that the farmers will find it difficult to secure sufficient help help for the harvest. Every effort is being made by the railway and immigration officials to get all the unemployed men from the city out on to the land, and with the usual excursions from the east, it is hoped to secure a sufficient supply of labor.

The situation has been summarized by the officials of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who receive regular reports from their agents throughout the country. The following is the summary for the first week of July, which has just been received:—

"Weather conditions during the past week have been almost perfect, threshing is reported heading out at many points in the three grain provinces, and the general conditions of the crop are excellent."

From the Canadian Northern offices information of a very similar character was issued. The reports from all sections of the vast new country served by that road are singularly uniform, and indicate ideal weather conditions, and bright prospects for a heavy yield. When it is considered that the wheat acreage of Manitoba is twenty per cent. greater than last year, and the provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta thirty-five per cent. greater, it is right to be wondered at that grain men are predicting a yield of a hundred and twenty million bushels. Figuring this at even an average price, it is easy to understand what an enormous bearing the weather conditions of the next month have on the prosperity of the country, and why there should be such a feeling of anxiety in regard to the crops that shows itself in conversation almost to the exclusion of every other topic.

Not only in the wheat-growing country are conditions promising, however. The reports from centres of mixed farming districts are equally favorable, and indicate that other crops will be just as heavy as wheat. The wet weather of June was especially favorable for the growth of hay, and the yield, it is said, will be immense. The sun has dried up the coulees, and given an excellent opportunity for cutting, which in some instances has already begun, as it is found necessary to get through with the work as early as possible in order to let the farmers get at the grain. Flax also promises a heavy yield, and the oats are in splendid condition. Root crops are good, and it is hardly expected that such a contingency will arise as will prevent this season being recorded as the best ever known in the history of the North-West.

London, July 14.—The sun shone brilliantly at the Stadium this morning, giving promise of perfect weather for the second day of the Olympad, in contrast to yesterday's drizzle, which threw a dampner over the opening ceremonies. The flags of all the nations that have sent athletes to compete in the games, with which the stands are decorated, floating in a light breeze added a further touch of brightness to the scene, while among the competitors the improved climatic conditions had a good effect, lightening their spirits, and increasing their enthusiasm. The spectators, however, were slow in coming, and when the hammer throwing, the first event on the program, commenced, the stands were almost deserted.

The interest centers mostly today in the hammer throwing, and in the final heat of the 1,500 metres run, in which Tait of Canada, and Sullivan and Sheppard of the United States, compete against five Englishmen, winners of the preliminary heats run off yesterday.

THE EAGLE SCREECHED.

When the result of the hammer throwing was announced, it being the first final of the fourth Olympad, the Stars and Stripes were run up on the arena flagstaff to announce that the United States had gathered in the first event to be decided. There was a great burst of cheering from the American section of the stands as the flag broke out. Canada joined in, for Walsh wins the bronze medal.

THE THREE-MILE RACE.

In the draw for the three-mile race the United Kingdom, Italy, Holland, and Germany were down for the first heat. This insures a victory for the United Kingdom. In the second heat are Canada, United States, France, and Sweden. The first two men in each heat qualify for the finals.

The weather continues unsettled. The attendance at the Stadium is not large.

CYCLING HEATS.

The fifth heat of the 20 kilometre cycling race was won by Hanson, Sweden. Time .34 mins., 53 3-5 secs.

The sixth heat of the twenty-mile metre cycling race was won by Denny, England, in 33 mins, 40 3-5 secs.

WINNERS OF HEATS.

LoHndon, July 14.—At the Olympic games today, Con. Walsh of Canada, won in the first section of the hammer throw with a throw of 159 feet 11-2 inches; Talbot, America, second, 157 feet 1-4 inch; Lamming, Sweden, third, 141 feet 3 inches.

Only the men who make the three best throws in all sections will compete in the final.

In the second section of the hammer throw Nicolson, England, made 157 feet 9 1-4 inches; Barr, American, 154 feet 1-4 inch; Fyfe, England, 122 feet 6 1-4 inches.

BRITISH RECORD BROKEN.

In the third section of the hammer throw McGrath, American, threw 167 feet 11 inches, breaking the British record. Flanagan, American, threw 165 feet 8pl-2 inches, and Gilbs, American, 143 feet 6 1-2 inches.

Walsh, Canada, McGrath and Flanagan, United States, qualified for the final.

In the final Flanagan finished first with a throw of 170 feet 4 1-2 inches, beating the Olympic record. McGrath was second with a throw of 167 feet 11 inches, and Walsh, Canada third, 159 feet 11-2 inches.

GOULDING WON THIRD HEAT.

G. E. Larner, of the United Kingdom team, easily won the first heat of the 3,500 metre walk in 15 minutes 32 seconds. H. E. Kerr, Australia, was second, and W. J. Palmer, England, third. In this event the first three in each heat qualify for the final.

E. J. Webb, England, won the second heat in 15 minutes 17 1-5 seconds. In the heat Quinn, England, finished second, and Rothman, Sweden, third.

Goulding, Canada, won the third heat in 15 minutes 54 seconds. Harrison, of England, was second, and Rowland, of New Zealand, third.

The final of the 3,500 metre walk was won by Larner, England, Webb, England, was second, and Kerr, Australia, was third. The time of the winner was 14 minutes 55 seconds.

TAIT WAS BEATEN.

The final of the 1,500 metres flat race was won by Sheppard, American, Wilson, England, was second, and Hallows, England, was third. Sheppard's time was 4 minutes 3 2-5 seconds. He equalled the best time made in the preliminaries yesterday. This was done by Hallows, who, by making the distance in four minutes 3 2-5 seconds, cut a full 2 seconds off the record made at St. Louis in 1904.

SHEPPARD HUNG BACK.

Sheppard lay back on the first stages of the race, and let the others take the lead. He was fourth until the last stretch, and Wilson and Hallows were in the first string. As the men started to sprint on the back stretch of the final lap Wilson swung into lead. As they turned on the stretch, Sheppard sprinted the last 100 yards, and passing his competitors, crossed the tape one yard and a half ahead of Wilson.

Mount Forest Woman Brutally Beaten by Tramp

Mount Forest, July 13. — This morning about eight o'clock Mrs. Henry Harper, living on a farm two miles from here, hearing a noise in the stable close by the house, went out to investigate, and on entering the stable was assaulted and most brutally beaten over the head and body by an unknown tramp, who apparently had been sleeping in the stable.

Mrs. Harper turned and ran towards the house, closely followed by the tramp, who dealt her several more blows with a club he picked up and knocked her down three times.

Mrs. Harper's screaming drew the attention of her daughter, who was in the field, but as soon as the tramp saw her coming he quickly took to the woods. Mrs. Harper's daughter notified the hired man, who was also working in the field and the hired man at once followed the tramp into the woods and found him hid in a pile of brush.

A desperate fight followed, the tramp giving the hired man a fearful beating and getting away.

Search parties were immediately sent out by the farmers round about, and a tramp was caught. He is a man who has been looking for work in the vicinity during the past few days. The police have gone to take charge of him until he has been identified.

Mrs. Harper is in a serious condition.

In the Realm of Sport

Can the Peps turn the tables on the Port Hope nine on Saturday? That is what the local fans are trying to solve. The Lakesiders defeated the Peps in that thing out July 1st, and are determined to repeat the trick here on Saturday.

Saturday's game is a Midland League fixture, and the visitors will have their strongest line-up, including two players from city of London, and Dunn, an ex-member of the same city team. Port Hope are building strong for first place, and will put up a lively article of ball on Saturday to retain possession of the league pennant.

The Strathconas defeated the Y.M.C.A. ball team last night at Nobleville by 9—6. The Strathconas now have the league leadership well in hand and the lead which they have will be hard to overtake.

BOWLING.

Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., July 14.—The twentieth annual champion competition of the Ontario Bowling Association, opened this morning under the most favorable weather conditions. The lawns of the Queen's Royal were alive with color, and hundreds of spectators followed the play of the various rinks. The greens of the rinks were in splendid condition, and the men of the seventy-five rinks who are scheduled to play today were enthusiastic in their praise of the greens.

Peterborough won in the preliminary.

POLICE

George Taylor was fined, and pleaded guilty to assaulting George Ridge. He was fined $5, to be paid in three days. Taylor promised to send the money down last night.

A young girl by the name of Kate VanNorman, was given one year in the Mercer Reformatory for being a common prostitute. She was found in company with Joseph Smith at Burnham's Point about six o'clock yesterday morning by P. C. Mowarry. She has appeared before Magistrate Dumble before, and was one of those who escaped from a house of ill-fame in Ashburnham. The police magistrate thought it was time she was sent down and therefore gave the sentence. She took the sentence as a matter of course and did not seem to be affected by it.

Historic Quebec

Ancient and Modern and its Accommodation

An announcement, of no small importance to those contemplating a trip to historic Quebec to witness the Tercentenary celebrations has just been made by the Passenger Department of the Grand Trunk Railway System, to the effect that they are officially advised by the directors of the Tented City and Suburbs, that there will be plenty of accommodation for visitors provided in the Tented City and elsewhere, this together with the liberal excursion fares that are offered by the Grand Trunk Railway System and the comfort and despatch which passengers using that line are assured of will no doubt be the means of enabling all, even those of limited means, of enjoying one of the best educational and pleasant outings that has heretofore been provided for them. For information regarding fares, train service, etc., enquire at any ticket office of the Grand Trunk Railway System.

BOARD OF EDUCATION MET IN SPECIAL SESSION LAST NIGHT

New Schedule of Teachers' Salaries Adopted by the Board--Committee Reports on School Plumbing

Last night a special meeting of the Board of Education was held at the secretary's office, George street, when the following members were present; Robt. Parr, chairman; B. T. Ackerman, W. T. Robinson, J. Crane, D. W. Dumble, W. G. Morrow, W. T. Nelson and L. M. Hayes.

The following reports were read and adopted;

COMMITTEE OF APPOINTMENTS.

To the Chairman and Members of the Board of Education;

Gentlemen,—During the past year several changes have taken place on the public school staff. In almost all of these it was found possible to secure the services of experienced teachers holding first-class certificates and this was made possible by the salaries which we pay our public school teachers.

In connection with the vacancies on our Collegiate staff, the condition of affairs has been quite different. We have found it very difficult to secure men of ability and successful teaching experience.

We shall soon have ready a magnificent new building with a very expensive equipment, but these will be of little use unless we have along with them a strong staff of teachers.

The only possible way to secure and retain the services of such men and women as to offer salaries such as are being paid by the leading cities throughout the Province.

Your committee would therefore recommend that the following schedule be adopted to take effect September 1st, 1908;

Salary Schedule.

Applicable to the staff of Collegiate Institutes, and to the Public school inspectors.

(a) Public school inspector and principal of the Collegiate Institute, minimum $1800, yearly increase of $100, maximum $2200.

(b) Specialists who are honor graduates and in charge of a department, maximum $1400, yearly increase of $50 until maximum of $1700 is reached.

(c) Assistants and commercial specialists, minimum $1100, yearly increase $50 until $1400 is reached.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

W. H. HALL,
Chairman of Committee.

PLUMBING REPORT.

Report on plumbing in King Edward VII and Queen Alexandra public schools, and Collegiate Institute.

Your committee appointed to inspect and report on the plumbing of the above named schools beg to report as follows;

King Edward VII School.

The contract as to this school has been substantially complied with. The workmanship was by Mr. W. Meadows, the Toronto city inspector, declared good.

It appears that Mr. Pringle and Mr. McGregor had a settlement the result of which was to leave a balance yet due McGregor of about $600. The matter of the sewer connection is yet open, the sewer being evidently imperfect, but it is not advisable to touch it until vacation—or until the city sewer is made good.

Queen Alexandra Public School.

The plumbing in this school has never yet been finally passed and taken off the contractors' hands.

The committee found that in the closets there were six seats instead of seven as called for. The contractor provided the seats but the space available was not long enough for seven seats and by the architect's directions six seats were put in, this was to advantage to the contractor, six seats are quite sufficient for the school. A like number being in the boys and girls' toilet rooms. The boys' urinal was made twelve feet long instead of ten feet as called for. We have deducted the contractor to put covers on the seats as noted for by the specifications.

The architect and chairman of the Building Committee found that one six-foot drinking fountain in each hall was sufficient. The contractor will give the board the two on hand. They were actually put in and removed by direction.

All soil drains and vent pipes not according to specifications will, as to difference in weight, be allowed as a credit to the board.

In the City By-law of Toronto, all vent pipes are medium weight—not extra heavy—Our contract for this school only calls for medium quality, as soil and vent pipe stacks, and such they are.

The vent pipe in cellar lavatories extend up 15 feet into the old Samuel Davis smoke stack and there is a splendid draft in it, ensuring good ventilation.

Several vents from lead pipes, which the workmen entrusted with the plumbing led from the side, instead of from the top, have been changed by the contractor.

The water tests have been applied by the city inspector—the smoke test has also been applied and the work found perfectly tight.

All joints are wipe joints and the entire work as completed, is a good job.

The report of Mr. Meadows has been carefully considered, and the work considered in reference thereto, and changes suggested by the report to make work comply with the specifications and city bylaw have been cheerfully made by the contractor, some of the work done was better and more costly than called for by contract.

Collegiate Institute.

The soil pipes below the floor were stripped and found "extra heavy" as called for.

The 4 in. soil and vent pipes above cellar floor are medium weight such as are used under the city bylaw in Toronto and Peterborough.

The rain water branches have been made to fit as called for by contract.

In every respect the contract is being complied with by the contractor save that in the soil and vent pipes above the floor, the pipes are medium weight instead of extra heavy—which is wholly unnecessary. The contractor allows for the difference in weight in all pipes.

Mr. Meadows reported the workmanship of the work then installed as good except where the foreman in charge of the work had connected some vent pipes from the side instead of from the top—these have been remedied.

In order to bill this work to all the schools your committee with pleasure report that good and satisfactory work has been done, save in a few particulars where the foreman was to blame, and as to these the contractors have made good.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Kansas Denounces Dogs.

Topeka, Kan., July 14.—"The average canine is a worthless, cryptomaniac, lamb-killing, flea-breeding, fly-swapping pests-healer," declares F. D. Coburn, secretary of the Kansas board of agriculture and one of the best known agricultural authorities in the land. Mr. Coburn has commenced a crusade against dogs and advises Kansas farmers to raise fewer canines and more sheep.

Had a Collision

What might have been a serious accident occurred Monday night near Central Park. A local merchant was driving down George street on his night side, when he collided with another rig coming up at a furious rate. The merchant was thrown out and the horse had its leg badly injured, but when he realized what had happened the occupant of the other buggy had driven away.

Y.M.C.A. Board of Directors Meet

The Y.M.C.A. have installed a new heating apparatus for the plunge and shower baths. It is separate from the other heating, for the building, and will make a great improvement to the baths. For the past three years the plunge at the "Y" could not be used on account of the water being too cold. The members will be able to use it now, and for the benefit of Cramp.

The Board of Directors of the Y.M.C.A. held a meeting last night in the board room of that institution. The secretary's report was read and the securing of a new physical director was left to the hands of Mr. Cressman of Kingston. Mr. H. A. Edwards was given leave of absence for a week up so to attend the boys' camp at Sandy Point.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 15TH.

Joy Is Creed of a New Religion

Washington, July 14.—Happiness and joy and personal liberty are the basic creeds of a new religion which has just been launched in Washington by Evangelist Theodore Valiant, son of the late Bishop Valiant. Already the newest creed has gained many converts and Valiant declares that it will soon spread all over the country. Sunday laws which seek to restrict the innocent sports of the people are denounced by this modern evangelist, who has gained the assistance of leaders in the personal liberty movement. At present, Valiant's church is a local amusement park, where he preaches to enthusiastic thousands.

In regard to his new creed, Evangelist Valiant says:

"The old hell, of the old religions with its flaming fires, its dancing imps in lecherous nudes, its catacombs of dead hopes and its fumes of sulphur, is a thing of the past. It was solely employed to frighten people into the church. To-day the modern religions do not play upon the fears and ignorance of the people. It says God bids you come to church with acclaims of joy. It presents a church in which you may smile, and from the portals of which morbidity and fear have been banished.

"My friends, be not deceived. Our Father does not want us to approach Him with long faces and downcast eyes. Go to Him with happiness beaming from your countenance and overflowing from your heart. Take a lesson in happiness from His creatures—the birds with their songs of praise; the glittering fishes as they flirt about like flashing sunbeams in the silvery waters, or the animals, as they gambol on the greensward. Crime and depravity are unknown to such of God's creatures. It is left for man to be morbid and sorrowful and sinful.

"Blue laws and fanatics will find no place in the religion of the future.

"Those of you who profess to be Christians, I beseech you do not seek to take away the joys of the people by imposing fanatical conditions upon them. Do not waste your energies upon that which does no harm, except you regard happiness as harm. Rather go as God has commanded, out into the sin-darkened highways and into the gloomy hedges and seek poor, downcast, sinful humanity, and bring them to light."

"There is no crime in the entrancing strains of music; no sin in the simple means of enjoyment called games; no sinfulness or wrongdoing in this bright and cheerful glare of God's electricity.

Heat penetrates the nerves. In the summer one needs a tonic to offset the customary hot weather Nerve and Strength depression. You will feel better within 48 hours after beginning to take such a remedy as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Its prompt action in restoring the weak and nervous is surprising. Of course, you won't get entirely strong in a few days, but each day you can actually feel the improvement. That tired, listless, aimless, feeling will quickly depart when using the Restorative. Dr. Shoop's Restorative will sharpen a failing appetite; it aids digestion; it will strengthen the weakened Kidneys and Heart by simply rebuilding the worn-out nerves that these organs depend upon. Test it a few days and be convinced. Sold by all dealers.

Hindoo Confectionery.

Like the American girls, Hindoo girls are passionately fond of sweet things. One of their candies, sadu, is very much like our plain sugar candy. It is made of sugar and milk and flavored with attar of roses. Buddha-bal, or hair of Buddha, is one of their most popular sweetmeats. It is so called because it is in fine, long strings like vermicelli. This is made of sugar and cream from buffalo's milk, which is exceedingly rich.

A Queer Twist.

The late Bishop T. U. Dudley of Kentucky declared that he was indebted to a mountaineer of that state for the most ungrammatical sentence he ever heard. This is it:

"Them three Miss Blake are three of as pretty a gal as I ever seen."

Beau Brummel Reprimanded.

Beau Brummel once indirectly replied to an invitation to take tea by remarking that he never "took" anything but physic.

"Yes, you do," frowned his hostess; "you take liberties."

Playful Otters.

Otters are the most playful of all the animals, romping, wrestling, playing tug of war with a stick instead of a rope and sliding downhill on a slippery incline of mud which they make themselves.

Why, Indeed?

Robert Louis once watched a deaf friend listening to a most tremendous book with his fire prospect. "Why?" [illegible] gold than virtuous [illegible]

Saving the Company.

By CARLETON HAZZARD.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

After a long line of incompetent stenographers Bradley congratulated himself when Alice Fuller took her place at the typewriter desk, and as though by magic the crooked places were made straight.

So quietly did the girl slip into the routine of the office and so unostentatiously did she accomplish results that Arthur Bradley did not realise all that she was doing. He had only the pleasant feeling that at last the office was running straight, and, manlike, he took the credit to himself.

It had been a struggle to get the office going at all, for the firm was in opposition to the trust, and everything possible was done to break up the newly established branch office.

More than once Bradley had narrowly escaped some trap laid for him, but for every blow struck at him he gave back as good. The letters from the home office were encouraging and intimated that if he would round out the first year there would be an increase of salary as well as the present of a block of stock.

The biggest feather in his cap was when the home office turned over to him the task of securing a contract for some $2,000,000 worth of material.

"Such big contracts are usually handled from the home office," he explained to Alice Fuller as he gave her the letter with instructions to place it in the private letter file in the safe. "If they turn this matter over to me it is a sign that they have faith in my judgment. It's going to be a ticklish matter to figure on all that material at a price that will be low enough to capture the contract and still give us as much of a profit as possible."

"They probably realize that you are close to the contract, and they know that they can trust you," answered Alice. "It shows that this branch is becoming important."

She went quietly about her work, but there was a happy light in her eyes, for she was as much pleased at this sign of confidence as was Bradley himself.

Alice was not a girl of impulses, but she had come to have more than a liking for Bradley, and she took a pride in his success.

The week that followed was a busy one. Bradley figured far into the night on the problems of cost, and each morning he gave to Alice the results of his work, to be tabulated on the machine and filed in the safe until the figures should be complete. It was weary work with all the specifications and blanks, but at last the estimate was complete, and Bradley took it on to New York in person for the approval of the home office.

He was jubilant on his return. The president of the company had congratulated him on the excellence of his work and had hinted that the new London office might be opened soon with Bradley in charge.

But the jubilation was short lived, for two days later a long letter came from the New York office instructing the branch to alter the estimates in accordance with a set of figures some 10 per cent in advance of the original estimate.

"There's a job for you," growled Bradley as he took the paper to Alice's desk. "I'll have to do as the home office says, but it's throwing away the contract and my chance of promotion."

"Are you certain that it is the order of the New York office?" asked Alice as she took up the sheets. "You know that this contract will mean a great deal to the trust if they are able to take it away from us. It means a great deal more to us to retain it."

"That's just it," complained Bradley. "They know that if we lose this contract we lose our fight for an independent existence and shall have to sell out to the trust at their own price. If we get it, it will mean that we can beat them and hold our own. Yet they raise my figures."

"And it would be worth a great effort to beat us," went on Alice. "Suppose that the trust people had some one planted in the home office who could copy the figures and send them to the trust officers. Suppose, too, that they supplied the people with our letter heads and [illegible]. We would be unsuspicious and change the bid in accordance with instructions, only to find out that we had been duped after the bids had been opened and the contract awarded to the trust. I think you will find that they have bid only slightly lower than this, but much higher than your original figures."

"That's possible," admitted Bradley. "I'll wire the home office and find out."

"And warn the traitor in the office that his plans have been discovered?" reminded Alice. "They will then bid below your figures and get the contract anyway. It would be best to hold on and take chances by yourself. It will be the only way to hold the contract."

"If I only could be sure," exclaimed Bradley. "But I can't act on mere guesswork."

"This is something more than guesswork," insisted Alice. "In the first place, this letter is mailed from the Madison square station. That is in the building in which the trust has its main office. Our letters all come from the Wall street station, four or five miles away and nearest our office. They are using the same make of typewriter President Hammond's stenographer uses, but it is not the same machine. On the letters from our office there is a piece broken from the cross of every 't.'"

"I think you are right!" cried Bradley as he compared two letters. "We'll pop in the original estimate, and when they come to open the bids out our trust friends will have a dozen fits."

"But answer this letter and say that changes have been made in the bid in accordance with instructions, and that the bidders have responded," directed Alice, [illegible] quietly chuckled to herself.

[illegible] gathering [illegible] admiringly. "I am only the second in command until this is straightened out. Do just as you please."

Bradley wrote the office reporting that the changes had been made as directed, but Bradley personally took to the office of the contracting company the original bid.

Two days later a long telegram arrived from the head office demanding the explanation of the changes to which Bradley made reference. It was Alice who wrote the telegram in reply, explaining what those changes were, and who wrote the second message declaring it to be impossible to alter the bid to the old figures, as they directed by wire.

The next morning President Hammond stamped into the office shortly after Bradley had come in.

"I came out on the fast train to see what it all means," he cried. "You have ruined the company by letting yourself be fooled in this fashion."

For reply Bradley brought out the letter he had received. It startled Hammond, for beyond question it was on the paper of the company and not on a cheap imitation. He sighed as he laid it down.

"I suppose that you cannot be blamed," he said dispiritedly, "but it means that the company is smashed by a trick of the trust."

"Not yet," declared Bradley, with a laugh. "Miss Fuller's quick eyes saw through the trick. We took a chance and put in the original bid. I think you will find that we are the lowest bidders, for the trust felt safe in keeping up their bid."

"If we win, you can have the London office next month," declared Hammond.

"Excuse me a moment," said Bradley as he slipped out to the outer office.

"It's a go," he announced beamingly. "Miss Fuller says that she will come—as Mrs. Bradley."

"Rather sudden?" asked Hammond.

"It's sudden only in the recent realization that I have loved her ever since she came into the office," explained Bradley. "It took this crisis to force the fact home."

Alice looked in at the doorway.

"The Wellington people telephone that your estimate has won the contract," she reported demurely, and to her great embarrassment Bradley kissed her under the approving eyes of the president of the company.

"We've tricked the tricky trust," he cried, "and we're going to London on our honeymoon."

"On my yacht," added the president. "We can't do too much for the girl whose clever brain saved the company. You're a lucky man, Bradley."

"Don't I know it?" cried Bradley. "I knew it first."

Lungs and Long Life.

One of the most remarkable cases of longevity on record was that of an Englishman born in 1463, whose delicate appearance made all the doctors give him up when he was in the cradle. His chest was so narrow, says the report, that he seemed to have difficulty in breathing. Well, this young moribund, condemned by the doctors to die in short order, died in 1651 at the age of 169. He saw the reign of ten kings. Secundi Hango, consul of Venice at Smyrna, measured only fifty-seven centimeters around the chest, and one of his lungs was diseased. Nevertheless he lived to the age of 115 years. He was married five times and had forty-nine children. When he was 100 years old he got his wisdom teeth. When he was 110 his hair turned black again. At 112 his eyebrows and his beard turned black.

Lucky in One Way.

"The late Valerian Gribayedoff," said a Chicago art editor, "was one of the first American newspaper sketch artists. On that account he leaves behind him a famous name. As Gribayedoff said himself the last time I visited him in Paris, his fame was due not to his great artistic skill, but to his luck in coming first. And he added with a laugh, that it was always lucky to come early and avoid the rush, instancing the case of a restaurant on the Boule Mich, in the Latin quarter, where a young poet had a large tureen of soup spilled over his coat one evening. The waiter, in response to the savage [illegible] of the poet, said good naturedly:

"'Oh, well, you needn't alarm yourself, sir. There's no harm done. Our soup never stains after half past 7.'"

All in Red.

The playwrights over their supper of lobster boasted. "I," said the greatest of them, with a complacent glance at the two pure pearls in his shirt front, "decree the color of every actress' frock."

"That is carrying the regard for detail too far," said a playwright who had failed.

"Not a bit of it," said the other. "If I didn't decide on the color of the dresses the stage manager would. Why, that must always be done. Otherwise, in their overmastering desire to draw all eyes to themselves, every actress would wear bright red. In my first play the frocks were forgotten in the general excitement, and at the first dress rehearsal all six actresses came on in the discovery scene in scarlet gowns."—New York Press.

A Philosopher in a Cyclone.

"I believe in optimism," said the cheerful citizen, "but there is a limit even to that. I saw a man the other day whose house had been carried away by cyclone, and he was the most cheerful citizen in town. 'Why,' I said, 'I thought you had lost your house?'

"'I did lose it,' he replied, 'but thar was nobody in it but me at the time, an' thar wasn't a hair o' my head hurt. The cyclone lifted the house high, all but the ground floor where I was sleepin' peaceful in my bed, an' I hain't never seen nor heern o' that house since! Ay', anyhow, I didn't have any fire insurance on it an' wasn't able to put up a lightnin' rod, an' of the wind hadn't took it away who knows but lightnin' would 'a' hit it, an' I've got the rheumatism so bad I couldn't run in case o' fire.'"—Atlanta Constitution.

Pain will depart in exactly twenty minutes if one of Dr. Shoop's Pink Pain Tablets is taken. Pain anywhere. Remember! Pain always means congestion—blood pressure — nothing else. Headache is blood pressure, toothache is blood pressure on the sensitive nerve. Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets—also called Pink Pain Tablets—speedily and positively cure this blood pressure by drawing away from congested parts. Useful periods with women [illegible] relief. 25 Tablets 25c. Sold by all druggists.

PAIN

Pain in the head—pain anywhere, has its cause in congestion, pain is blood pressure—nothing essentially. At least, so says Dr Shoop, since he has created a little pink tablet called Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets—which relieving, pleasingly delightful thing—quickly, safely, it surely equalizes the blood circulation.

If you have a headache, it's blood pressure. If it's painful periods with women, same cause. If eyes are sleepless, restless, nervous, it's blood pressure—blood pressure. That supply is a necessity, for Dr Shoop's Headache Tablets stop pain. Attributes, and the tablets simply distribute normal blood pressure.

Squeeze your finger, and doesn't it get red and swell, and pain, too? Of course it does. It's congestion, blood pressure. You'll find it where pain always is. It's simply Common Sense.

AN ISLAND OF QUIET.

Yet Going Downtown in Madeira Is an Exciting Event.

Madeira is populated, yet is one of the quietest as well as one of the most beautiful places in the world. Although the roads are paved with round hewn stones, there is nothing to remind one of the fact, because, as David G. Fairchild, agricultural explorer of the department of agriculture, explains in the National Geographic Magazine, there are no horses or jolting wheels.

All vehicles in Madeira are on runners. If you go calling it is in a bullock sledge with canopy top and comfortable seats. If you move a bank safe or a steam boiler it is carried on a "stone boat," or sledge of poles, and you may have to get forty oxen to pull it. If you are in a villa on the hillside and want to get downtown you take a running car and slide down over the cobblestones.

Two strong men, each holding a guide rope, pull your car over a bag of grease to grease the runners and then give you a running shove and jump each on a runner behind as the car shoots down at a breakneck pace over the cobblestones.

The men yell, oxen and dogs scamper, foot passengers cling close to the wall of the narrow street, the runners get hot and fill the air with odor of burning wood as you shoot round sharp corners, down the busy thoroughfare past gorgeous masses of flowering creepers which hang over the walls of the private villas that border you road

But, oh, the change when you get to the bottom! You are obliged either to walk or take a carro, drawn by slow moving bullocks squeaking and slipping over the stones

ORIGIN OF THE HORSE.

The Modern Animal a Cross Between Two Ancient Breeds.

In Wissen fur Alle Professor Koenig discusses in some detail the origin of the horse of today. He finds that the horse of neolithic times was not specifically distinct from the horse of the present While there is no doubt that the horse of that period was used by man for food, there seems to be no conclusive evidence as to whether it was domesticated or not His own opinion however, is that it was probably domesticated

The horse of that time was closely allied to the tarpan or semiwild horse that lived in southern Russia up to a century ago This was a "hog maned," short legged horse headed beast It seems probable that the domesticated horses of the Germans of Caesar's time were derived from this breed

The Egyptians had horses as early as 2000 B C These were long maned, more like the Arab horses of the present time [illegible] Where the Assyrians obtained theirs is unknown, but it was probably from southern Asia. Where the long maned breed has been developed in all probability as the result of long continued domestication The modern horse is a cross between these two breeds, with a further mixture of the Arab horse This Arab horse, too, was itself a descendant of the earlier long maned horse

The origin of the long maned horse is a matter of doubt, but Professor Koenig thinks it may have been from an earliest Indian species.

Women Who Marry at Thirty-five.

A German doctor lays it down as a well established fact based on close observation that women who do not marry until thirty-five or thereabout invariably achieve matrimonial success. Why women of this particular age should make more successful marriages than those who fall victims to love's young dream is fairly obvious. When a young woman marries between thirty and forty she either does so for companionship, choosing her mate accordingly, or from need, in which case she also chooses with a certain amount of care. She has no wild dreams of unalloyed bliss.—London Lady's Pictorial.

A Freak of the Lightning.

A curious case of lightning destruction took place some years ago at Gatchina, an imperial summer residence not far from St. Petersburg, where stood a stone column fifty feet high, held together by iron angles. When rain fell more or less water penetrated the stones in the interior of the monument. One day it was struck by lightning, and instantly the column disappeared from view, killing a lone sentry on guard. The only explanation is that the heat of the lightning instantly generated steam on coming in contact with some of the water and the terrific explosion followed.

MEN AND WOMEN
Due May at the appointed time, the Dominion Government Printing Bureau will be prepared to supply the Dominion Parliament, and other departments of the Government, with the necessary supplies of printing, stationery, etc., required for the public service during the ensuing year. Tenders will be received by the Secretary of the Department of Public Printing and Stationery, Ottawa, up to noon of that day, from persons willing to undertake the contract for the supply of the whole or any part of the said supplies. Forms of tender, with specifications and conditions of contract, may be obtained on application to the undersigned. Tenders must be addressed to the Secretary, Department of Public Printing and Stationery, Ottawa, and must be accompanied by a certified cheque for the sum of $5,000, which will be returned to the successful tenderer if he declines to enter into contract when called upon to do so. Tenders will be opened by the Minister of Public Printing and Stationery, in the presence of such tenderers as may desire to be present, at 3 o'clock p.m. on the day mentioned for the receipt of tenders. Tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied by the Department, and in accordance with the conditions of contract. Each tender must be signed by the tenderer, and must be countersigned by two sureties, who must be bondsmen approved by the Minister of Public Printing and Stationery. Tenders will not be considered unless accompanied by the certified cheque mentioned above. The Minister of Public Printing and Stationery does not bind himself to accept the lowest or any tender. By order, W. A. LANGLOIS, Secretary.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the Northwest Provinces, excepting 8 and 26 reserved may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has a permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father or mother.

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

THE TEEMING WEALTH OF URES DISTRICT

Sonora, Mexico, World's Bountiful Tray

Description of What is Believed to be Amongst Earth's Richest Mineral Deposits

Nowhere in the world has the combination health, congenial clime, fertile soil, picturesque and romantic spots and commercial metal production become more pronounced than in the Ures district of Sonora, Mexico.

Until comparatively recent, the location of the richest deposits have been kept a profound secret by the natives, but the steady and persistent encroachment of capital has brought into subjection all of the superstitions and secretiveness of the natives, and they now are unfolding to the world the marvelous hidden wealth of the region. The result is that new mines are being opened up and conducted which have lain dormant during the ages, and the veins are being successfully tapped by modern mining methods.

The beauty of the country, the charms of the climate, and powerfully in themselves an attraction which when combined with that of the wonderful mineral wealth, a magnet to draw fortune seekers to this fabulously and yet only partially developed mineral country, which people are beginning to regard as a sort of glittering fairy land, and where millions of capital are being attracted from all parts of the world seeking investment in the great mineral lodes.

Our representative paid a visit to Hermosillo, the capital of Sonora, and took a drive across the country leading to the mountains where many a surprising and delightful picture presented itself. Hermosillo, with its mixture of old Spanish and modern architecture, its plaza, its cathedral, its cosmopolitan population, is pleasantly situated in the midst of a fertile valley, and is an quaint an old town as one would want to see, while at the same time it has nearly all the advantages of a modern city. The drive made one in a northeasterly direction from the capital, on a wagon road so broad and smooth that it offers a comfortable journey or a pleasure-taking drive for pleasure. Over this course the stages carry the mails to the distant mining camps. Winding in and out among the hills and barranca rocks where the mesquite and cacti struggle up from the sun-baked plain and where the orange and the palm grove and broad fields of waving grain lead you on and on in the direction of the great mineral ledge, which is forty miles from Hermosillo. When you reach it you will look upon one of the most notable ledges in the whole state of Sonora, but in the meantime you are interested in your journey to that point and are taking no heed of the future. The country fairly bristles with imposing spectacles and presents a kaleidoscope of shifting forms and colors, you are beset by varying emotions, as scene after scene breaks upon your vision. At one moment you are in an ecstasy of poetic delight as the mag. you are filled with a deep and sublime admiration.

On the right of the road for a long span, the land is fertile with vegetation, oranges, lemons and other tropical fruits, and wheat fields covering an immense area. Here the country is owned by large farming estates, and is under the best cultivation, forming a striking contrast to the barren and rocky ground to the opposite side of the way.

An old Mexican Hacienda bursts upon the view in the midst of its picturesque surroundings, suggesting Spanish legends and ballads of centuries gone by; yes the mansion has something of a modern air about it, as revealed on closer inspection. It is equipped with a wind-mill, modern machinery and implements for cultivating the rich farm land that spreads out on every side, where water can be turned on it from the surrounding ditches from which source the tilling of the soil is made possible. The owner of the Hacienda is a prince among men and has a large and distinguished family which is a power in the state. In the distance the towering Bombores Mountains have been forcing themselves upon your attention during the whole journey. They loom up in the rarefied atmosphere with a distinctness that makes them always near at hand, and are plainly visible at a distance of at least twenty-five miles as you approach them. At last they cease to recede, and permit you to pass them, beyond the Bombreros, you see a comparatively short distance ahead the range in which are located the wonderful mines of the Ures Consolidated Mining Company. You pass through the town of El Gavilan, which is within one and one-half miles of the mining camp, and which is situated on the Sonora River, at an altitude of 1,100 feet above the sea level. The approach to the camp presents a scene of rare grandeur. To the right of the road rises a great bald mountain, hoisting its huge bulk against the sky in silhouette as clear-cut as a mammoth cameo, like a frowning sentinel standing guard over the buried treasures below. On the other side of the gorge, to the left of the road, is the range that at once becomes the principal object of interest. Along its side extends a ledge that is visible to the naked eye for fully three miles and a half. This ledge tells of the mineral wealth to be found there, and it is this ledge that the Ures Consolidated Mining Company has marked for its own. Here are located the company's mines, which when operated with a full force of men and machinery, will undoubtedly fill the coffers of the lucky members with silver and gold.

The Ures Consolidated Mining Company owns twelve mining properties which are said by experts to be the richest in Sonora. But little work was required to reveal the possibilities of the entire ledge. On the property has been expended about $300,000 for developing and machinery, and the average value of the ore is between $10 and $12 per ton. The mill, the reservoir, the dwelling house, assay office, blacksmith shop, are complete and have every convenience for the successful and economical working of the properties and but little improvements are necessary to make the mines complete.

The vein of ore is continuous from the surface to the lower developing work done, and shows a body of ore from twenty inches to six feet in width. The vein lines between two well defined walls and is what is termed a "fissure vein". The ore is free milling; the values are silver and gold, silver predominating in value at the present developing work done in depth. The ore increases in gold values as depth is gained.

An engineer of national reputation considers them the best mines he has ever seen, and predicts that in a short time they will uncover sufficient ore to keep the mill in operation for ten years. This is the expert opinion of a man whose judgment is well known to be sound, and it must be very gratifying to those who own stock in the Ures Company.

Climatic conditions are all in favor of the entire operation of the mines the year round. It is never cold enough in the winter for frost, and never so hot in midsummer that one cannot get cool by seeking a shady spot. Owing to the character of the ore taken from these mines, it is not necessary to stop it to have it reduced to bullion, as it can be done at the mine with the facilities at hand. A railroad runs from Hermillo to Nogales, which is on the boundary line between Sonora and Arizona, where connections are made to all parts of the continent. It was the writer's privilege to have an interview with one of the officers of the corporation, who said in substance:—

"The development of these mines will be pushed as rapidly as possible. We have found ore in great quantities, and all that remains to put the property on a paying basis is to go the stamp mill into active operation. The Ures Company is managed by honest and competent men, every one of whom has invested his money and good name, knowing that the company owns as good mining property as exists in Mexico. It is the combined investments of many that build cities, that sustain governments, erect public buildings, create our great transcontinental lines and our municipal improvements, and it is by this aggregation of money and interest that wealth is produced. Particularly is this so in mining operations. The history of the greatest mines in the world is invariably the history of original ownership by some one man who believed in their riches, but had not sufficient money to develop them, and their great wealth is only demonstrated when the interests are sub-divided through its capital stock among a large number of investors whose money was the one thing necessary to develop and make them enormously profitable for all concerned.

The company has gone farther by placing a bond on the property of $100,000. The bonds afford absolute security as they are backed by values in actual cash expenditures of at least three to one and the values of the property are worth many times over that of the bond issue, besides with each bond is given as a stock bonus 100 shares of stock, free and clear, and it in itself is worth equally to that of the bond.

Surely a more meritorious a proposition offered to the investing public where good management may bring forth excellent results, and I do not see any reason why this will not be a good paying investment.

Those interested in placing their money where it is secure and where extra results are bound to be had should correspond with Thos. Patterson & Co., of Peterborough, Ont., Canada, before avesting any of their money.

An Annual Opportunity

For Seven Per Cent. Investment in a Sound Security

and at the same time receive shares in a mining enterprise free and clear without cost to you. This enterprise is conducted by men of the highest character and the administration of the company is along lines which are bound to bring the results sought. The money received from the Bond issue will be used for development and extension of the company's vast interests, and it is the opinion of experts that the company can pay large returns from the property, the ores to be extracted being of sufficient value to pay the interest on the bonds as well as permit of a sinking fund to carry on further improvements and for dividend paying purposes. Send in your order and make reservations for 7 per cent. bonds, these take 30 days in which to make investigation before making your payment, as we want to have you thoroughly satisfied before investing a dollar of your money. Here is the opportunity that has been long sought and we don't think has ever been offered before.

For complete information, detailed description of the property, record of title, bank references, etc., address Thomas Patterson & Co.

Action Against P. L. & P. Co.

The City Council has entered an action against the Peterborough Light & Power Co., for digging up the streets. The company claim that by an old law they have the right to do so without consulting the council. The city disputes this claim and has issued a writ in the High Court accordingly. Messrs. Ball & Hayes are solicitors for the city and Messrs. Peak & Kerr for the company. It is hoped that some reasonable understanding will be reached that will obviate a legal struggle to determine the rights in question.

To Canadian Investors

The undersigned has received an allotment of unsold portion of $100,000 of

7 Per Cent. First Mortgage Five-Year Gold Bonds

dated January 11, 1908, and maturing January 11, 1913. These Bonds are offered at par and accrued interest by Metropolitan Trust & Savings Bank, Chicago, trustees.

SECURITY—The Entire Property and Improvements Owned THE URES CONSOLIDATED MINING COMPANY in the District of Ures, State of Sonora Mexico, Free from Mortgage or Bonded Indebtedness except this present Bond issue.

An Unusual Opportunity for Investment in Sound Security

The Ures Consolidated Mining Company offers $100,000.00 of First Mortgage Gold Bonds. This issue of bonds is the only mortgage or bonded indebtedness ever placed on the company's properties.

These bonds are in the denomination of $100.00, and bear interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, July and January, and are redeemable on or before five years from date at the company's option at $110.00 and accrued interest.

With each bond issued there will be given $100.00 par value of the capital stock of the company as a bonus, and in addition thereto there will be placed in escrow with the Trustee additional stock which will be available to the bondholders at their option any time within a period of three years, the bondholder being entitled to surrender his bond any time within said period and receive in lieu thereof stock for every dollar of indebtedness to him on account of said bonds,

The Security Back of these Bonds

The company owns twelve claims situated in the district of Ures, State of Sonora, Mexico, free from mortgage or bonded indebtedness, except the present bond issue

On one of these properties (The Ramona Mine) 5,000 feet of underground development work has been done, consisting of an inclined shaft to the depth of 400 feet with drifts in three levels to the North and South of the shaft.

An average value of ore worth $11.47 per ton is exposed throughout the mine, from the collar of the shaft to the extreme parts in the drifts, all of which is above water level.

The company has made surface improvements and mine improvements to the extent of $40,000.00 in the way of machinery, skids, trams, steam hoists, mill and nearly everything necessary to make the mining camp complete.

In addition to the absolute ownership of these twelve valuable claims, the company has a lease on the San Jose Mine, adjoining its property, in which the company has been operating in high grade ore.

During the past sixty days the company has extracted and delivered to ore buyers and the bank at Hermosillo, $8,000.00 worth of ore and bullion, the ore having been reduced to bullion through the company's mill, with the exception of 1,400 pounds, which was sold to an ore buyer for $600.00.

The Money Derived from the Sale of These Bonds

This issue of bonds is made for the purpose of securing money at once in order to extend the development work more quickly than the company's present means will permit.

With the high grade ore in sight to the distance of 60 feet to the South of the shaft, the management is assured that within six months from date of making the improvements now necessary the company's properties will be on a self-sustaining and dividend-paying basis.

The Stock whichis Given with these bonds will be as valuable as the bonds when the Company has the ready capital to push operations

Men who invest in these bonds will have no cause or reason to regret their action, for the bonds afford an investment in a security which is absolutely safe—much better than ordinary city or country real estate, which is considered perfectly safe if the property put up to secure a mortgage is double the face of the loan. The security given on these bonds is better than 7 to 1, for the Ures Consolidated Mining Company has refused an offer of $750,000.00 for the property upon which this $100,000.00 worth of bonds is issued,

These bonds are an investment with all speculative risk eliminated —an investment with absolute security.

Make your reservations at once. This is small and promises to be quickly sold,

Feb. 15th, 1908.

To whom it may concern:—

We hereby beg to state that The Ures Consolidated Mining Company has during the past five years made several deliveries of bullion to this bank, and it is the opinion of mining men here that they have the making of a fair mine, and further, that the properties owned and controlled by them bid promise of becoming paying properties.

From our knowledge of the men connected, we believe they are doing all in their power to bring about the results above mentioned.

1 CENT A 2 SHARE

Send us your name as a member in this new company, with your remittance for as many thousand shares as you can take at $5 per thousand.

This is a short-time offer on a hurry-up proposition. Our vice president is up at Rawhide now putting the miners at work. We want to raise the necessary funds for development as quickly as possible. Therefore, we offer the first block of stock at 1/2 a thousand shares. This subscription must be all cash. We want the money in hand. We mean to work without lay-up, and we have made it an ironclad rule not to run in debt. Cash counts now.

Our prospectuses are out. Send for one.

Make reservation of stock, if you do so more. But, remember, this present offer of stock at Half a Cent a Share is now open, and will be closed as soon as enough cash subscriptions are in hand. Don't wait, or you will get left.

The gold mining property owned outright by the company consists of 7 claims, 5 in the Rawhide district of Nevada, and 4 in the Dulzura district of Southern California.

The Rawhide district to-day is more famous than Goldfield, Tonopah, Bullfrog, or Diamondfield were at the same stage of exploration and development. The Dulzura discovery is one of the most sensational in the history of California.

Ten samples of ore which were among the first assayed, run as high as $1,621.37 to the ton, and all ten averaged over $5.60 a ton.

In both camps we treated ourselves, and our locations are choice. Our own officers will superintend the mining.

How to Tell

If the Kidneys and Liver are Not Acting Well.

Thousands die every year from aggravated kidney distress that could have been saved if they only knew.

Your back may ache, you think it's tiredness or physical weakness.

You grow irritable and nervous—it's put down to loss of sleep.

Joints ache, muscles get sore,—that's all put down to bad weather.

Then digestion gets poor, appetite fades away, color bleaches, spirit droop.

Can't you see it's all from your over-worked kidneys, which can't keep the body clear of poisons that are now surging through the whole system.

Cure your kidneys with Dr. Hamilton's pills.

"When I was so stooped and back weary, so lame and sore with kidney and bladder trouble, I cured myself quickly with Dr. Hamilton's Pills" writes C. C. Ferrier, a well known merchant in Plainsville. "Dr. Hamilton's Pills touched the spot at once, gave my back ease, lifted depression and weariness, made a new man of me. I can also say for a good spring medicine to clear and enrich the blood Dr. Hamilton's Pills have no equal."

The housewife whose aching back makes every little duty a burden, the working man who is tired all day and can't rest at night, whose back aches, and whose feet swell—these people have kidney trouble. Women whose kidneys are sick, suffer continually from blind and sick headaches, faint and dizzy spells, fearful down pains, sharps twinges when stooping, distressing urinary troubles, aching muscles and joints, lack of appetite and loss of sleep. Reach the cause. Cure the kidneys. Use Dr. Hamilton's Mandrake and Buttermut Pills, which have cured thousands. 25c. at all dealers.

Escaped Serious Injury

The escape from very serious injury of the occupants of a carriage going to Peterborough on Monday from the north was nothing less than miraculous. Mr. Robt. About half a mile out from Lakefield the seat broke and the three tumbled backwards to the ground. Mrs. Weaver, who is 68 years of age, was painfully injured across the breast, but the others escaped with only slight injuries.—Lakefield News.

Where to Go For Your Vacation

District Passenger Agent McDonald of the Grand Trunk Railway System has just returned from a visit to the charming Ontario resorts of Muskoka, Lake of Bays and Algonquin Park, and also made a trip to Kawartha Lakes, and reports that hotels and boarding houses are rapidly filling up, and all indications point to splendid crowds. If visitors to Ontario, and our citizens of this city, only realized what delightful places there are on the "Highlands of Ontario," and how easily accessible they are by the splendid service of the Grand Trunk Railway System, many more extra trains would be needed. The beautiful Royal Muskoka Hotel, the finest summer hotel in Canada, has made their rates, including meals and lodging from $3 to $4 per day, and accommodation at hundreds of other hotels and boarding houses at lower rates, may be obtained a little farther north, the Lake of Bays has good hotels viz.; Bonville, Wa Wa, and Brittania, the Magnetawen River can take care of some. The Algonquin Park, 2000 feet above sea level has now landed, the "Highland Inn," just opened at moderate rates.

Temagami Lake farther north, with its 1400 islands, good hotels, and splendid fishing, will repay you for a visit. Still nearer, the pretty resorts of Lake Simcoe, Barrie, Atherley, Orillia, Jackson Point, and the Kawartha Lakes with its Fenelon Falls, Lindsay, Sturgeon Point and numerous boarding houses on Sibley Lake, are well worth a visit. The Badge of Honesty

Is on every wrapper of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery because a full list of the ingredients composing it is printed there in plain English. Forty years of experience has proven its superior worth as a blood purifier and invigorating tonic for the cure of stomach disorders and all liver ills. It builds up the run-down system as no other tonic can in which alcohol is used. The active medicinal principles of native roots such as Golden Seal and Queen's root, Stone and Mandrake root, Bloodroot and Black Cherrybark are extracted and preserved by the use of chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine. Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce at Buffalo, N. Y., for free booklet which quotes extracts from well-recognized medical authorities such as Drs. Bartholow, King, Scudder, Coe, Ellingwood and a host of others, showing that these roots can be depended upon for their curative action in all weak states of the stomach, accompanied by indigestion or dyspepsia as well as in all bilious or liver complaints and in all "wasting diseases" where there is loss of flesh and gradual running down of the strength and system.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" makes rich, pure blood and so invigorates and regulates the stomach, liver and bowels, and, through them, the whole system, that all skin affections, blotches, pimples and eruptions as well as scrofulous swellings and old open running sores or ulcers are cured and healed. In treating old running sores, or ulcers, it is well to insure their healing to apply to them Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve. If your druggist don't happen to have this Salve in stock, send fifty-four cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., and a large box of the "All-Healing Salve" will reach you by return post.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic, medicine of KNOWN COMPOSITION, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

THE HUMAN TONGUE.

It Is Very Inquisitive, With a Strong Will of Its Own.

The curiosity of the tongue does not cause the human being so much trouble as the curiosity of the eye, but the tongue, within its limits, is the most curious of all.

Let the dentist make a change in the mouth, let him remove a tooth or replace with his admirable artifice one that has long been absent, let him change the form of a tooth by rounding off a corner or building up a cavity, and see what the tongue will do. It will search out that place, taking careful and minute account of the change. Then it will linger near the place. If it is called to other duties, it comes back as soon as they are discharged and feels the changed place all over again, as if it had not explored and rummaged there already.

It makes no difference that these repeated investigations presently cause annoyance to its supposed master, the man. The tongue in nothing more than in this matter proves that it is an unruly member and will not be controlled.

It seems to have an original will and consciousness of it own, and nothing will serve it except the fullest satisfaction of its curiosity. It will wear itself out, perhaps, but it will find out all about the strange change.

CANES IN SPAIN.

Every Spaniard has a stick, the well to do own several, and the "gilded youth" often has a small arsenal of them. The term arsenal in this case is used positively and not figuratively, as the Porto Ricans, like the Spaniards, have quite a craze for sword canes and dagger canes, and they make these with remarkable skill.

The blades of the finer specimens come from famous smiths in Toledo and other Spanish cities and are forged from the finest steel. Some are damascened and others are inlaid with silver and gold, some have worked upon them the name of the owner and others the name of a patron saint. The assortment of walking sticks in the shops in the larger towns is very varied.

They have fashions in sticks and canes suited to different ages and professions. There are sedate mahogany, ebony and rosewood sticks for clergymen and physicians and fanciful bamboos with gleaming steel inside for men about town. There are rough oaken sticks for the Spanish Anglomaniacs and saucy little staves for those who ape the styles of the boulevard. For travelers there are coffee sticks, thorns, tea sticks, leopard wood canes and orange sticks.—London Chronicle.

MAKING A WILL.

If You Draw Up Your Own, Stick to the Most Simple Terms.

"If the people," said a lawyer, "who for whatever reason prefer to draw wills without resorting to legal advice would keep just one thing in mind a lot of trouble would be saved. It is nothing save insistence on simplicity. Simplicity is the main thing to make a will effective, and apparently it is the one thing that the will makers forget about. High sounding words and half remembered law phrases come to their minds, and into the documents these verbal extrava...ances go. There appears to be a popular impression that, for example, to say 'I give and bequeath' in a stronger way of saying 'I give.' Again, take the matter of directions. Here a desire to be explicit frequently results in contradictions, and the longer a sentence in a will is the more likelihood there is of its being open to misinterpretation.

"No will should be drawn without at least a couple of drafts having been made of it, each one being gone over carefully with the idea of simplifying and clarifying it. Give the time to it that the importance of the action demands. Know what you want to do and study out the best way of expressing yourself. Don't put off making a will. Tempt superstitions enough to consider that tempting fate. And when a will is drawn remember that it has no legal binding unless the signature is witnessed by two persons, who must themselves witness the document in the presence of the testator and each other."

A STORY OF HEROISM

Showing How Brave Men Can Calmly Meet Death.

WRECK OF THE BIRKENHEAD.

The Way This British Vessel Went Down Off the Cape of Good Hope. Most of the Crew Were Lost and All the Women and Children Saved.

Visitors to the hospital of the old pensioners at Chelsea will perhaps have noticed in the colonnade a simple memorial tablet, placed there by order of the late Queen Victoria to record the heroic constancy and discipline of the officers and soldiers who lost their lives in the wreck of the transport Birkenhead off the Cape of Good Hope on Feb. 26, 1852. On Jan. 7 in that year, after embarking re-enforcements amounting to fifteen officers and 476 men for the troops engaged in the Kaffir war, the Birkenhead left Ireland for the cape. On board were also 166 women and children, the wives and families of soldiers. All went well till the transport reached Simon's Town, where ten officers and eighteen men were landed. The ship continued her course on the evening of Feb. 25. But the captain in his anxiety for a quick passage unfortunately kept so close to the shore that during the night the ship got among the rocks which line the coast. About three miles off Danger point at 2 o'clock in the morning of the 26th, while all except those on watch were sleeping peacefully in their hammocks, the ship struck with a violent shock. The bulk of the men on board were young soldiers.

The rush of water on the Birkenhead striking was so great that most of the soldiers on the lower troop deck were drowned in their hammocks. The remainder, with all the officers, appeared on deck, many only partly dressed, and fell in as orderly and as quietly as on the barrack square. Calling the officers round him, Lieutenant Colonel Seton of the Seventy-fourth highlanders, the senior officer on board, impressed on them the necessity for preserving order and silence among the men. The services of the next senior, Captain Wright, Ninety-first highlanders, were placed at the disposal of the commander of the ship to carry out whatever orders he might consider essential. Sixty men were put on the chain pumps on the lower after deck and told off in three reliefs. Sixty more were put on to the tackles of the paddle box boats, and the remainder were brought on to the poop to ease the fore part of the ship, as she was rolling heavily. The commander next ordered the officers' chargers to be pitched out of the gangway. The plunging and terrified horses were got up and cast over, five of them managing to swim ashore. The cutter was then got ready for the women and children, who had been collected under the poop awning, and they were passed in one by one. There being room in the boat for one or two more, the order was given for any trumpeter or bugler boys to be taken. A young drummer standing near was told by an officer to get into the boat, but, drawing himself up, exclaimed that he drew man's pay and would stick by his comrades. The cutter then shoved off in charge of one of the ship's officers, and the women and children were safe.

No sooner was she clear than the entire bow of the vessel broke off at the foremast, the bowsprit going up in the air toward the foretopmast. The funnel also went over the side, carrying away the starboard paddle box and boat and crushing the men on the tackles. The paddle box boat capsized on being lowered, and the large boat in the center of the ship could not be got up.

The men were then ordered on to the poop, where they stood calmly awaiting their fate. Within a few minutes the vessel broke in two, crosswise, just abaft the engine room, and the stern began rapidly to fill. In this extremity the commander called out, "Those who can swim jump overboard and make for the boats!" but the officers begged the soldiers not to, as the boat with the women and children would be swamped. They were young men in the prime of life, with all before them, yet no one moved, nor did any sign of terror or fear escape them. Lower and lower sank the vessel into the deadly sea. The old transport shivered, gave a final plunge and disappeared, carrying with her the band of heroes on deck and those working below at the pumps.

Men of all ages and ranks they were—the colonel and the drummer boy, officers of gentle birth and men from the workshop, the plow and the mine, but all animated with the same heroic resolution, fortitude and chivalry—as cool as though they had been on their parade ground, with as much courage as in action in the field. A few managed to cling to the rigging of the mainmast, part of which remained out of water, while others got hold of floating pieces of wood and were eventually rescued, but of fourteen officers and 458 men no fewer than nine officers and 349 men perished, many falling prey to the attacks of the sharks, which surrounded the ship in shoals, waiting for their victims. Every woman and child was saved.

Perhaps the greatest compliment ever paid to the memory of the brave was the order of the king of Prussia for the account of the wreck of the Birkenhead to be read on three successive parades at the head of every regiment in his army, and it was spoken of in every school in Prussia and Germany.—London Globe.

COURT OF REVISION

TAKE NOTICE that the municipal Council of the Corporation of the City of Peterborough intends to construct sewers on the streets or parts in the City of Peterborough named below, and intends to assess a portion of the final cost thereof upon the real property to be immediately benefitted thereby fronting or abutting upon the said part of the said street. A statement showing the lands liable to and proposed to be specially assessed for the said work, and the names of the owners thereof, so far as the same can be ascertained from the last revised assessment roll and otherwise is now filed in the office of the Clerk of the Municipality and is open for inspection during office hours.

Antrim Street, between Water and Harvey streets, estimated cost of the work $450.00 of which $360.00 is to be provided out of the general funds of the Municipality; annual rate per foot frontage, $0.05625; number of annual assessments, 20.

Harvey street, between Antrim and Ashburnham streets, estimated cost of the work $655.00, of which $78.87 is to be provided out of the general funds of the Municipality; annual rate per foot frontage, $0.0986; number of annual assessments, 20.

A Court of Revision will be held on the 20th day of July, 1908, at the hour of 8 o'clock in the evening at the City Council Chambers, for the purpose of hearing complaints against the proposed assessment or the accuracy of frontage measurements or any other complaints which the persons interested may desire to make and which is by law cognizable by the Court.

Dated at Peterborough the 11th day of July, 1908.

PRINCE TO RENEW OFFER OF PEERAGE FOR LAURIER

Prince of Wales Carries a Special Message from King Edward, Expressing an Appreciation of His Services

London, July 15.—It is stated that the Prince of Wales carries a special message from King Edward, expressing an appreciation of the services of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and the offer of a peerage may be renewed.

The previous offer of a peerage was made, it is understood, on the occasion of Sir Wilfrid's visit to England in 1902 to attend the Coronation ceremonies, and the first Colonial Conference. Naturally, there has never been any official announcement regarding the offer, though it is pretty well understood that it was made.

Sir Wilfrid was created a Knight Grand Cross of St. Michael and St. George at Victoria's Diamond Jubilee in 1897. He was made a Privy Councillor in the same year.

Likewise in 1897 the President of France presented him with the star of a grand officer of the Legion of Honor, the highest rank but one of the National Order. Universities, civic corporations, and other bodies have conferred their best honors on him at various times.

CRUISER DAMAGED BARGE.

Portsmouth, July 15. — A large coal barge came into collision with the warship Indomitable in Portsmouth harbor today shortly before the Prince of Wales boarded the Indomitable to leave for Quebec, where he is to attend the tercentenary festivities. The force of the collision was slight. A little paint was scratched off the side of the battleship and the barge lost her foremast.

ELECTRICITY HELPS WHEAT.

London, July 15.— Today the meat traders' deputation interviewed Premier Asquith about the removal of the embargo on Canadian cattle.

Sir O. Rolfe, experimenting with the influence of electricity on corn growth, states that on an average on electrified, were yielded 35 1-2 bushels of Canadian red Fife wheat, while an unelectrified acre, yielded 25 1-2 bushels.

Mighty Warships Reached Quebec Yesterday--Took Leave of King

Quebec, July 15.—The advance British fleet for the tercentenary celebration swung majestically into the harbor at 7 o'clock last night, and cast anchor in the river below the Citadel. There were five ships in the fleet, the battleships, Exmouth, Albemarle, Russell, and Duncan, and the cruiser Arrogant.

The cruiser Venus did not come with the rest of the fleet, being still down the river, but will arrive later. There were large crowds of people along the waterfront to view the arrival of the ships, the bands of which played as they proceeded up the harbor, "The Maple Leaf Forever," being prominent among the musical selections.

The fleet is the most powerful ever visiting a Canadian port.

TERCENTENARY STAMPS.

Ottawa, July 15.—The special issue of postage stamps in commemoration of the Quebec Tercentenary will be placed on sale on Thursday morning. The respective denominations issued are half-cent, one cent, two cents, five cents, seven cents, ten cents, fifteen cents, and twenty cents.

TOOK LEAVE OF KING.

London, July 15.—The Prince of Wales took leave of the King and Queen yesterday prior to his sailing for Canada. There is a unanimous chorus of good wishes in the press today. It is pointed out that during the tercentenary Canada will be the temporary center of interest.

LEFT FOR QUEBEC

Kingston, July 15.—Last evening "A" Battery, Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, in command of Major Lessel, left for Quebec. There were four guns, 70 horses, and 130 men. Lieut.-Col. Burstall will be in command of the whole Horse Artillery, "A" and "B" Batteries, when both reach the ancient capital. On the first of August the artillery will proceed from Quebec to Petawawa camp.

The 14th Princess of Wales Own Regiment will entrain here next Sunday evening for Quebec.

FALL OF THE BASTILE.

Montreal, July 15.—The anniversary of the fall of the Bastile is being celebrated here with picnics, speeches, games, and a large banquet.

London, July 15.—The Prince of Wale to-day completed preparations for his visit to America and will sail to-morrow on the new cruiser Indomitable, the famous "mystery ship", for Quebec, where he will take part in the tercentenary celebration beginning next week. The prince will be given an elaborate welcome to his Makesty's great new-world dominion and will dedicate a monument to Wolfe and Montcalm on the Plains of Abraham. The Indomitable is now in readiness for the trans-atlantic voyage and will land its royal passenger in Quebec a week from to-day when the official reception to the Prince will take place.

This will be the Prince's second visit to Canada, he having crossed nearly ten years ago when on his world's tour from ocean to ocean, visiting the chief towns. He also spent some time fishing and hunting in the Northwest. This time he will go no further west than Quebec and will stay only a week.

His Royal Highness will be accompanied by a brilliant staff, so that none of the pomp and ceremony of the British court will be missing. Among the staff will be Sir Francis Hopwood, Under Colonial Secretary, who probably knows more about the colonies than any other Englishman and upon whom the Canadians at least rely when dealing with the mother country.

French and American squadrons will be at Quebec and invitations have been sent to France and all the colonies to send delegations. Australia will be represented by Lord Dudley, the new Governor-General.

On landing the Prince will be received by Governor-General Grey and will be presented with an address by the Dominion Parliament. The next day (July 23) the landing of Champlain will be re-enacted, the old navigator being shot arriving with a crew in a ship like the one he sailed in. The fetes will then be formally opened by the Prince. The programme for the following days is this:

July 24—Dedication of the battlefield. Military and naval review.

July 25—Review of the fleets.

July 26—Thanksgiving day. Services in the Roman Catholic and English Cathedrals.

July 27—Naval display ashore by 10,000 sailors. Representation of the bombarding of Quebec by the British fleet and army under Saunders and Wolfe.

July 28—Prince leaves Quebec.

The Indomitable is one of three sister ships, the two others being the Invincible and Inflexible, which were voted in 1905, but no. laid down till 1906, and which are to all cruisers of the past what the Dreadnaught is to all earlier battleships.

She is at once the fastest, the largest and the most heavily armed cruiser afloat, in many respects she resembles a fast battleship rather than a cruiser.

The first point to notice is the immense power of her artillery. She carries eight huge 12-in. guns, each forty-five feet long, and each capable of firing a 850-lb. shell twice in the minute.

These guns are mounted in pairs in four turrets, and the turrets are so arranged that all the eight big guns can fire on either broadside, and six of them ahead or astern.

The guns are directed from the fire-control stations, which are duplicated, one on each mast, the details of the system being absolutely confidential. But the general arrangement is that electrical transmitters from the fire-control stations aloft send down to indicators at the guns the range in yards the deflection to right or left, the order to commence or suspend fire, and the final signal, a flash right on a G.R., to fire the gun.

Some idea of the blast and the force of these guns can be gained from this fact—that during her trials two of the amid-ship turret guns were trained right ahead and fired simultaneously. A boat was hanging on the davits, well out of the actual path of the projectiles, but in the track of the blast of gas which accompanies them.

After the shots had been fired the boat was left a mass of matchwood, lying on the deck. The projectiles from these mammoth guns will pierce four feet three inches of solid iron placed close to the muzzle. At 6,000 yards they will penetrate with considerable inches of the best and strongest armor now made.

The engines of the Indomitable are of the Parsons turbine type, developing 41,000 horsepower, the most powerful ever put into a British warship. They drive four screws, and on her recent official trials, which were carried out under war conditions, she at a rate in excess of 25 knots.

The turbine engines run smoothly and also without attention; indeed, it is said that the engine-room staff in these new turbine vessels have so little to do when running at high speed that there is danger of the men going to sleep.

The boilers are fitted with appliances for burning oil, though coal is the main fuel.

The effect of the Indomitable on naval construction has already been remarkable.

In Germany two even more gigantic and powerful cruisers are now being built of her special type, while Japan is also constructing cruisers of the same general design.

POLICE

Yesterday morning in the police court Gus McDonald, an employe of Lee & Cavanagh's livery barns, was charged with damaging the property of Samuel Anglesey, by colliding with him while on a bicycle, with a team of horses.

Anglesey testified that he was riding south on George street near the corner of Simcoe street shortly after 5 o'clock on Monday morning. He was on the west side of the street and near an express wagon also going south. The buck which McDonald was driving, came around the corner of Simcoe street and smashed into the wagon, knocking him from his wheel, which was smashed beneath the horses' feet, while Anglesey leaped for the pole of the buck, succeeding in catching hold of it. He was dragged across the street before the horses were stopped. The wheel was badly wrecked. Anglesey testified that he was on the right-hand side of the street when struck, and other witnesses corroborated his testimony.

McDonald swore that he was on the east side of the car tracks, and hence on the right side of the street when the collision came, and that Anglesey had wheeled directly in front of his team as he was turning the corner.

The magistrate reserved judgment in the case for one week, advising Messrs. Lee and Cavanagh, who owned the buck, to recompense Mr. Anglesey for the damage to the wheel, as he considered they were liable.

Don't Boil Your Eggs

Washington, July 15.—The average housewife knows less about eggs than about any other article of food of animal origin. This information, with other gleanings, as to how to fry, poach or boil them, is the sum of knowledge possessed by seventy-five per cent. of the country's cooks. This is regrettable, because books have been written about eggs, and only recently Dr. C. H. Langworthy, Ph.D., of the Department of Agriculture, has prepared a valuable paper on the subject.

Two or three minutes, women and men cooks will tell you, is the time required to boil eggs. That's wrong, and the experts in the laboratory of the University of Illinois have proved it. There they put the egg into a pan of water that had boiled and then shut off the heat. The pan was closely covered and the egg was allowed to remain in the water six minutes. By that time it was soft boiled. Tests showed that when the egg was put into the water the temperature fell from 185 degrees Fahrenheit to 170 degrees. If the egg remained in the water eight minutes it was medium cooked and the water temperature had fallen to 158 degrees. If more time be allowed the egg may be hard cooked.

The value of this process, more lengthy than the customary one, is found in the flavor imparted, or rather retained, in the egg, as compared with the egg that has received only a hasty dash into any water or coffee that chances to be hot at the moment.

Housewives ordinarily pass over the pages in cook books that refer to eggs, and yet the many varied forms of preparation and the great value of the price is high, is reason for giving the subject close attention.

Eggs at twenty-five cents a dozen are cheaper than meat, not, of course, as some suppose, that the total amount of nutrients obtained is equal, but because less money is needed to furnish the meal. That is to say, the experts figure that whereas one pound and a quarter of beefsteak, costing twenty-five cents, at twenty cents a pound, would be necessary to serve five grown persons, in many families five eggs, costing ten cents, at twenty-five cents a dozen, would serve the same number and satisfy them as well. If the appetite demand two eggs each, doubling the cost, it still is twenty per cent. less than the steak.

Guns of Nelson's Ship Boomed as Prince Started for Canada

Duke of Connaught, Lord of Admiralty Gave The Prince a Send-Off

A Brilliant Departure

London, July 15.— The scene at Waterloo station on the departure of the Prince of Wales for Canada was brilliant. Those assembled included the Duke of Connaught, Lord Strathcona, Whitelaw Reid, the United States Ambassador, and Lord Crewe, the Colonial Secretary, with whom the Prince conversed.

There was an enthusiastic send-off at Portsmouth and a lack of ceremonial. After a private reception by Sir John Fisher, Lord of the Admiralty, and other naval officers, the Royal party boarded the cruiser Indomitable, which quickly swung out of the harbor Canadawards escorted by the cruiser Minotaur. The Prince was saluted by the guns of Nelson's Victory as the Indomitable passed.

TO COME BY TRAIN.

Newport, R.I., July 15.—The battleship New Hampshire sailed yesterday for Quebec to participate in the Tercentenary celebration. Before she sailed Rear Admiral William S. Cowles, Chief of Bureau of Equipment of the United States Navy, raised his flag on board the New Hampshire with the customary ceremonies. Admiral Cowles will represent the United States at the celebration.

It has been decided that Vice-President Charles W. Fairbanks, who will represent the United States Government at Quebec, will proceed to the city by rail over the Grand Trunk road.

MAY SPEED HOME.

London, July 15.—The Prince of Wales and his suite sailed from Portsmouth today, on board the Indomitable, Great Britain's newest cruiser battleship, to attend the forthcoming fetes at Quebec in honor of the founding of that city three hundred years ago by Champlain.

The Earl of Dudley and Sir Francis J. S. Hopwood are traveling with the Prince. Sir Francis represents the Colonial Office, while the Earl of Dudley, who is going out to take up the Governor-Generalship of the Australian Commonwealth, will represent Australia at the Canadian celebration.

The departure of the Indomitable from Portsmouth was without formality, beyond the firing of salutes from the old flagship Victory, as the new cruiser battleship, followed by the escorting cruiser Minotaur, left the harbor.

There has been considerable talk of the Indomitable, which is capable of doing 27 knots an hour, trying to give the trans-Atlantic liners a new record to emulate, but it is understood that if anything in this direction is attempted it will be on the return journey.

Obituary

The death occurred yesterday afternoon at one o'clock of Mrs. Ann Maria Charrett, 428 Water street. The deceased came to Canada from England, and settled at Woodstock, coming to Peterborough about six years ago, and lived with her daughter Agnes. Mrs. Charrett was a faithful believer in the Christian Science faith. The funeral will be held on Friday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock to the Little Lake cemetery.

Great Preparations

Quebec, July 16.—The tercentenary is on the eve of its initiation. The whole city, irrespective of age, is going in with a spirit of participation never heretofore entertained in this part of the Dominion of Canada.

The general programme has already been made public, but so far the inside fixtures in which his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales and the distinguished representatives of foreign nations will be the leading factors, have not been given out. It is, of course, a matter of royal etiquette fair to the Crown of the British Empire is concerned nothing can be that in any programme in which the adopted or given out until every detail, in first communicated to his Royal Highness and by him sanctioned. The details are under the control of his Excellency the Governor-General, and not yet altogether formulated. However, it is no secret to say that the Prince of Wales, his suite and foreign representatives, are to be given a close insight into the realism of the French-Canadian "habitant" life. It is arranged that his Royal Highness will be taken on a trip over the Quebec Railway to Cap Tourmente, the celebrated mountain over two thousand feet high, upon which a chapel is built, under control of the Quebec Seminary. This is one of the highest peaks of the Laurentian Mountains, overlooking the St. Lawrence.

The return trip will be by automobiles which will pass through all the oldest and most picturesque villages and settlements of the French-Canadian habitant. In connection with this return trip, the French-Canadians, young and old, are as busy as beavers putting the main road in order, and when their labor is finished, by the end of the present week, one of the best macadamized roads in the Province will be built. In the meantime the farmers are getting ready to decorate the roadway, some thirty-five miles long, in order to show their loyalty to the Sovereign of Great Britain, and at the same time recognize the benefits and prosperity bestowed upon them by a great and generous Government that recognizes their laws, language and religion. This in itself, will be one of the greatest features of the celebration.

Maddened Tiger Mangles Trainer--Audience in Panic

New York, July 15.—Henrick Falkenderph, an animal trainer in the employ of Bostock at Coney Island, who has a reputation in the schooling of tigers for show purposes, was savagely attacked and seriously injured last evening just after the performance by two of the charges who have been out of the jungles less than six months.

Falkenderph was cracking his whip and urging the tigers and lions to their cages in the passageway behind the arena when Mokk, a particularly vicious brute, snarled, feinted with his paw, and prepared to spring upon the trainer.

Falkenderph quickly lashed the tiger with his whip and put up a courageous front, but in the meantime Rajah, another savage tiger, made a similar move to attack him. Both animals were cross because of the intense heat in their quarters and their exertions.

When the trainer turned to meet Rajah's attack, Mokk saw his chance. He made a long leap, and landed squarely on Falkenderph's body, bearing him to the floor. The big cat sank its fangs into the man's left arm tearing cruelly, and with its hind feet scratched and tore at his legs, which were soon covered with deep lacerations.

RESCUED BY ATTENDANTS.

Falkenderph kept his wits, and with his right hand managed to get hold of his revolver. He was unable to use it on the tiger, but by firing several shots and shouting loudly, he finally summoned help. The other attendants were accustomed to hear him fire the revolver to frighten the animals into subjection and paid no attention at first, but when they heard his cries they rushed for spears and clubs and went to his assistance.

Mokk, who only a week ago had dragged Falkenderph about to cage in a ferocious fit of sulks, was driven away and soon caged, and Rajah and the other animals which were by this time making a great commotion were beaten into submission and chivvied to their cages. The noise of the men's shouts and the roars of the animals were plainly heard in the streets, and a panic resulted. The audience realized that something was wrong, and when some one shouted, "The beasts are loose!" there was a rush for the exits, men shouting and women screaming as in their fears it was several minutes before the attendants were able to restore order and assure the frightened patrons of the show that there was no danger.

Falkenderph was taken to a room above the arena, where his hurts were treated by Dr. Frank E. Smith and Dr. Charles E. Hall of Coney Island. They said that he would probably recover, but was in a serious condition. The greatest danger, they said, was from blood poisoning. The trainer was removed to the Coney Island Receiving Hospital.

Husband and Son Cured

A Mother's Praise of Zam-Buk.

Oakwood, Victoria.

Dear Sirs,—I have great pleasure in stating that Zam-Buk cured my husband of barber's rash with twice rubbing. It also cured my little boy of a dreadfully bad arm after vaccination. I know of several other cures it has effected and I cannot speak too highly of it. I am sure of people once try it they will always use it. Yours truly, R. SAVILLE.

Zam-Buk is healing, soothing and antiseptic. It quickly heals wounds and skin troubles. Certain cure for piles. Sold by all druggists and stores.

Returned Home from Lake Abitibi

Mr. Wall Grady, formerly of this city, has returned home after spending six months at Lake Abitibi, where he was working with one of the contractors on the Grand Trunk Pacific. Mr. Grady states that things are rapidly becoming more civilized at Lake Abitibi. Steamers are now running on that lake, and he was enabled to come part of the distance home on one of them boats. He was fifty miles from a railway, and mail was very scarce, and more than welcome on that account.

While on his way home, Mr. Grady spent a few days at Cobalt, being there when the recent rush upon the "blind pigs" were made. He met several Peterborough boys at Cobalt, among them Arthur Graham, son of Mr. Geo. N. Graham of the Oriental, and John O'Brien, son of the Separate School Inspector, and Mr. J. O'Brien, all of whom are doing well in the north.

—Last night a trolley wire on George street, broke below the C.P.R. station, and the car service was delayed for some time.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Thanksgiving Day will Be Held on Monday

Thanksgiving Day will be held on Monday instead of Thursday this year. This was officially announced by the Prime Minister Tuesday, on requests from various organizations who wished the date changed.

Canadians Have Not Much Chance in the Finals

London, July 15.—Meadows was second in his heat of the five-mile race, but will not show in the finals. Zimmerman of Montreal, is out of it in the diving. Canada has no chance in the swims.

Keith and Elliott, the Varsity gymnasts, were beaten in the gymnastic competition, but not disgraced. They were both close to the winners in points. They will go to Frankfort, Germany, next week to use forty thousand gymnasts to perform, and get new ideas. The trip will be at their own expense.

The cyclists have practically no chance in the 62-mile race (100 kilometres), as they lack staying powers. Morton and Andrews rode heats tomorrow.

Two Thousand Boys in this Relay Race

New York, July 15.—As a pistol shot rang out on the City Hall steps this morning at 10 a.m., a lithe athlete in running suit, carrying a silver tube containing a message from Mayor McClellan to Mayor Busse, of Chicago, darted away up Broadway on the first relay of a thousand-mile journey to Chicago. Herbert H. Rapp was the runner, and Mayor McClellan's message was as follows:

"To the City of Chicago: The City of New York sends greetings by the fleet runners of the Young Men's Christian Association. This message is borne on foot, without a halt from the Atlantic to Lake Michigan, and the hundreds of boys who carry it go as one prize except the consciousness of having done their best."

According to the schedule, the message will reach Chicago, Tuesday, July 21. Two thousand boys will take part in the race, and a strenuous effort to break all records for similar events will be made. The race is conducted by the Young Men's Christian Association, and so great was the interest in it that 100,000 volunteers offered their services.

Each runner will carry the message half a mile.

Perhaps the most spectacular feature of the relay run will be the swimming of Lake Cayuga by the boys of the Auburn, N.Y., department.

Y.M.C.A. Boys Arrive at Camp

The Y.M.C.A. camp commenced Tuesday morning at Sandy Point near Lake. A new addition has been built to the cookery, and they have now every convenience. The tents have been put in fine shape, and the camp has a good appearance. The Peterborough boys have been joined by the Port Hope contingent, and they have now organized a baseball league. A number of local boys leave this morning for the camp, and will be followed by more Friday.

The boys want to say that the trip on the Water Lily was very much enjoyed. They have on the camp grounds a candy store, run by Tom Arnott, who carries a full line of goods, which will save the boys going to Juniper Island for their treats. It was decided that their regatta day be held on July 27th.

Hanlon Heward Had a Narrow Escape

Hiawatha, July 15. — Yesterday Hanlan Heward had a narrow escape from drowning in Rice Lake. He is the son of Hanlan Heward of Hiawatha and a brother of the late Ben Heward, famous as a runner. On Saturday morning he was upset on Rice Lake while canoeing. He called loudly for help and his cries were answered by his father, and his uncle, Jim Heward. He was rescued from his danger, and did not suffer any ill effects. It is not known how the young man's canoe was upset. The time of the accident was in the evening, just at dusk.

Away with Weariness!

Brace Up—Get Strong—Get Fat.

The Cure is Simple.

You're nervous and uneasy.
Appetite is poor.
Sleep is hard to get.
Still worse, you are thin and flagged out.
Work must be done but where is the strength to come from?
Make your blood nutritious and you'll have lots of strength.
Your only hope is Ferrozone, an instant blood-maker, blood purifier, blood-nourisher. It brings keen appetite, digests food and supplies nutrition for building up all the bodily tissues.
Ferrozone makes muscle and nerve-force, increases your weight, instils a reserve of energy into the body that defies weariness or exhaustion from any cause.
For men who toil and labor, for the office man, the minister, the teacher—to them will Ferrozone bring a new life of spirit and robust health.
For growing girls, women of all ages—no tonic is more certain. Sold on the terms by all dealers.

THE GEORGIAN BAY CANAL

During the past four years a thorough and comprehensive survey of the route proposed for a canal from the Georgian Bay to Montreal has been carried on and the report of the survey was presented to Parliament last week. The report has been drawn up upon the basis of a twenty-two foot canal. The undertaking is a tremendous one. Exclusive of land damages, it is estimated that the cost of such a canal would be either ninety-four or one hundred millions of dollars, according to which of two entrances to Montreal might be chosen. The survey itself has cost about $800,000. It is supposed that the canal could be kept open for traffic two hundred days in the year. As projected it would afford communication between Montreal and the Upper Lakes to the largest vessels now on the lakes. In addition to its value as a waterway, there should be set down to the credit of the canal the immense amount of water power which would be available for development along its route.

FREAK LEGISLATION

The "Daylight Bill" now before the sub-committee of the Imperial House of Commons savors of "freak" legislation. It recalls the miracle worked by Joshua, but unlike the Israelitish leader's coup, will probably prove unpopular. Legislation of so revolutionary a nature requires a certain amount of education, at least, as far as the masses are concerned, and cannot be suddenly grafted on the every-day life of a community with any degree of success. Moreover, it is legislation of a nature that cannot be made compulsory. Even in the interests of the public health. You may not say to a man that he shall rise at 6 a.m. and retire at 9 p.m., consign him to gaol if he performs this matutinal abluction at 7 in the morning instead. There is no class more resentful of anything like interference with his vested interests than the working man. Let it be his habit to have three glasses of beer a day, and a mordinance that he take four will find demonstrating in Trafalgar Square. No amount of argument, especially if in the guise of a blue-book, will convince him that an extra hour of daylight is conducive to his well-being. And as the laboring forms so large an element of society, his righteous resentment of this paternal legislation will go far to render the latter abortive. He will regard the putting back of the public clock as a thin mask for Parliamentary persecution, and will persist in keeping the kitchen time-piece at the same hour that his fore-fathers did. The back-bone of this country, he will not be bamboozled into abandoning those good old customs which are in-born and will stigmatize the Bill as against nature. We hardly expected the measure to receive the support with which it has met. It seemed more likely to be laughed out of court. Under any circumstances it is safe to contribute largely to the amusement of the nation, and in this way affect the hygienic results which it will prove impotent to bring about otherwise.

Heat prostrates the nerves. In the summer one needs a tonic to offset the customary hot weather Nerve and Strength depression. You will feel better within 48 hours after beginning to take such a remedy as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Its prompt action in restoring the weak nerves a surprising. Of course, you won't get entirely strong in a few days, but each day you can actually feel the improvement. That tired, listless, spiritless feeling will quickly depart when using the Restorative. Dr. Shoop's Restorative will sharpen a failing appetite; it aids digestion; it will strengthen the weakened Kidneys and Heart by simply rebuilding the worn-out nerves that these organs depend upon. Test it a few days and be convinced. Sold by all dealers.

Dream Troubles.

"Once when I was blue," said a business man, "a friend told me I was worrying over imaginary troubles. He cheered me up with a yarn about his little nephew. This little fellow's sister said one morning:

"'Oh, Gussie, I had such a lovely dream last night! I dreamed I was at a cake shop, and I had such loads of good things—ice cream, pie, strawberry shortcake, chocolates, jelly macaroons, kisses and lots of other things besides.'

"The little boy's eyes glistened. He smiled with delight.

"'And what was I eating?' he asked eagerly.

"'Oh, you wasn't there, Gussie.'

"Then, overwhelmed with sorrow, little Gussie hid his face in his hands and wept bitterly."

Hercules' Labors.

The twelve labors of Hercules were: To slay the Nemean lion; to kill the Lernean hydra; to catch and hold the Arcadian stag; to destroy the Erymanthian boar; to cleanse the stables of King Augeas; to destroy the cannibal birds of Lake Stymphalus; to capture the Cretan bull; to snatch the horses of Diomedes; to get possession of the girdle of Hippolyte, queen of the Amazons; to capture the oxen of the monster Geryon; to get possession of the

THE DUCKING STOOL.

How a "Scold" Used to Be Punished in Old England.

It is interesting to conjure up a picture of a "ducking" as practiced in England at the end of the eighteenth century.

When the "scold" had been properly tried and convicted, she was escorted by a crowd of her neighbors—in fact, by the whole village—to the nearest pond, and the greener and slimier the pond the better. A long plank was produced, at one end of which was the ducking stool, and in this the screaming, struggling victim was securely pinioned.

The chair end of the plank was then pushed far over the edge of the pond, and at a signal it was tilted deep into the green ooze until the scold was completely immersed.

When the dripping, half drowned woman was raised to the surface again to the jeers and laughter of the onlookers it can be imagined that her tongue wagged to some purpose. After a second dose she emerged more subdued, and after a third or fourth she was as penitent a woman as the village contained and was allowed to proceed home a sadder and wiser woman until the next time.—London Tit-Bits.

DEFIED THE JUDGE.

A Fine For Voting That Susan B. Anthony Never Paid.

"It has been so many years ago that most people have forgotten that the late Susan B. Anthony was fined $100 or a year's imprisonment for having dared to vote for General Grant for president," said a Chicago judge.

"Miss Anthony was as brave as she was intellectual and asked to be allowed to speak a word in her own behalf. Permission being given, she told the court of the struggle she had in keeping a little newspaper going from which she made her living. 'Your honor,' she said, holding up her right hand, 'I am due my creditors not less than $1,000. This money I expect to live to pay, but I am willing this arm shall wither from my body before I pay the $100 you have so unjustly assessed against me.'

"The court realized the deep seriousness of Miss Anthony's declaration, and though she could have been ordered to jail for nonpayment of the fine his honor did not have the nerve to enforce the extreme penalty. Miss Anthony lived for many years after its imposition, but the fine was never paid."

Cobra's Fatal Bite.

One of the deadliest snakes in India is the cobra, which claims hundreds of victims every year. An English official once saw one bite a fowl, and, being curious to learn how long the venom took to act, he timed it with his watch. The moment the cock was touched it screamed, but at once ran off to its mates and began picking as if nothing were wrong. In thirty seconds the comb and wattles changed from red to black. In two minutes it began to stagger and fell down in convulsions, struggling violently until it died, three minutes and a half after it had been bitten. On plucking the fowl a wound not bigger than a pin prick was found at the extreme end of the wing. Round this spot the color was very dark, but the rest of the bird's body, excepting comb and wattles, was of a natural color.

The Bribe That Failed.

Among Father Dempsey's steady boarders was a fellow named Delaney. He was drunk as often as he could get that way. Father Dempsey tried all manner of means to get Delaney to quit drinking. At last he said to him:

"Delaney, my man, if you'll stop drinking for six months I'll give you a check at the end of that time for $50."

"Indeed, if I stopped for six months I could write you a check for $100," answered Delaney, and Father Dempsey in telling of it later added:

"And indeed he could, too, for he's a No. 1 mechanic."

A Rapid Rhymer.

In illustration of the working powers of George R. Sims, the dramatist and poet, it is said that one night a new piece was produced at a leading theater in London. Sims sat it out and then returned to his office, where he wrote a column and a half of criticism in rhyme. It was near the time for the paper to go to press when he began, and the boy took the piece verse by verse from him to the composing room, the boy walking continuously from one to the other for an hour.

A Hint to the Old Man.

"I hope you appreciate the fact, sir, that in marrying my daughter you marry a large hearted and generous girl."

"I do, sir," with emotion, "and I hope she inherits those qualities from her father."

Expressive.

One morning when little Edna's mamma came down to breakfast she was so hoarse she could scarcely speak.

"Oh, mamma," cried Edna, "what a sore voice you've got!"

Extremely Prosperous.

Mrs. Brown—Is your husband's business growing? Mrs. Smith—Oh, dear, yes! Why last week his receipts were so large that he had to have a receiver appointed to take care of them!

No grand door in this world can be a copious spouter about his doings.—Carlyle.

Births and the Moon.

Among the Vosges peasants children born at the new moon are supposed to have better hung tongues than others and those born at the last quarter to have keener reasoning powers.

Boots For Apollo.

It was the custom of the Greeks to offer boots on a silvery tray to Apollo in his temple at Delphi.

ARTISTS' BLUNDERS.

A Procession of Monks That Adam and Eve Enjoyed.

Among the most amusing "breaks" by artists is a landscape by Turner in which a rainbow is depicted behind the sun. This occasioned almost as much humorous comment in English art circles as did the slip of Constant, the great French artist, who in his portrait of Queen Victoria painted the ribbon of the Order of the Garter the wrong color.

A picture of Adam and Eve in the garden of Eden hung in the gallery of the Gesu, in Lisbon, represents the first couple as watching a procession of monks.

In the famous galleries at Antwerp are certain pictures of old masters in which the jumble of ideas is as remarkable as the technique is fine. In one picture of heaven the archangels are armed with bows and arrows, and in a celebrated painting of "The Murder of the Innocents" the massacre is represented as taking place in a city of Holland. The parents of the children are stout burghers, the Roman soldiers are Dutch policemen armed with muskets, and the innocent infants are transformed into solid schoolboys in bulgy woolen trousers and jackets and hobnailed shoes.

SOMNAMBULISM.

Some of the Curious Things Done by Sleepwalkers.

Many years ago an archbishop of Bordeaux attested the case of a young ecclesiastic who was in the habit of getting up during the night in a state of somnambulism and, taking pen, ink and paper, composing and writing his sermons. When he finished one page he would read and correct it. In order to ascertain whether the somnambulist made use of his eyes the archbishop held a piece of pasteboard under his chin to prevent his seeing the paper upon which he was writing, but he continued to write on without being in the least inconvenienced.

It is related of Negretti, a sleepwalker, that he would sometimes carry a lighted candle, as if to give him light in his employment, but on a bottle being substituted he took it and carried it without apparently noticing the difference.

Another somnambulist would dress in his sleep and go to the cellar, where it was pitch dark, and draw wine from the cask without walking into anything and without spilling a drop of the wine, but if he happened to awake in the cellar he had great difficulty in groping his way out.—Exchange.

Another Kind.

When Johnny Hobbs left his home up among the New Hampshire hills to visit his grandmother in Worcester, Mass., he was cautioned by his mother that he would find things in the city strangely different from those at home.

Johnny arrived in the early afternoon, and long before tea time his grandmother, who lived most simply, told him to run out to the pantry and get a bowl of milk which she had left there "for a hungry boy."

A moment later she followed him and, to her amazement, beheld her grandson bravely at work on a bowl of spearmint tea which she had forgetfully put in the place where she had told him to find the milk.

"Why, child," she cried, seizing the bowl from poor Johnny, "don't you know this isn't milk?"

"I—I knew it wasn't like Hillsury milk," stammered Johnny, with a final gulp, "but I thought maybe it was the kind folks had in Worcester."

A Musical Spider.

The extraordinary musical sensitiveness of spiders has several times been proved. Every one has heard of Pelisson's spider. Consoler of the unfortunate prisoner, it perished because it listened too closely to the captive's violin. The jailer saw it and crushed it brutally. Gretry, the composer, speaks of a favorite spider which descended along its thread upon his piano as soon as he played it. When giving recitals at Brussels Rubinstein saw a large spider issue from the floor of the platform and listen to the music. He gave three concerts at the same hall, and on each occasion the spider appeared.—Paris Revue.

Sailing Clubs.

The first sailing club was probably the Cork Harbor Water club, now known as the Royal Cork Yacht club, established in the year 1720. The vessels were small, and from that period until early in the nineteenth century yachting developed but slowly. In 1812 the Cowes Yacht club was founded with some fifty-five yachtsmen. Since that date yachting associations have rapidly grown in numbers and strength all over Europe and America.

Squelched.

Prosperous Young Actor (returning tired after a matinee and evening performance of successful play)—Ah, dear boys, I really think it's time all good actors were in bed. Grumpy Tragedian (looking up from his paper)—They are.—Life.

Unexpected.

"Why, Clara," said a mother to her little daughter, who was crying, "what are you crying about?"

"'C-cause," sobbed the little miss, "I s-started to m-make dolly a b-bonnet, and it c-comed out b-bloomers."

Potential Incentive.

Nell—Do you think you could love him if he were rich? Belle—I would try harder!

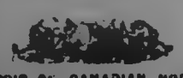
GEORGE STREET PETERBOROUGH



SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the Northwest Provinces, excepting 8 and 26 reserved may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his duty residence duties by living with the father or mother.

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

Cough Caution

Never, positively never poison your lungs. If you cough—even from a simple cold only—you should always heal, soothe, and ease the irritated bronchial tubes. Don't blindly suppress it with a stupefying poison. It's strange how page things finally come about. For twenty years Dr. Shoop has constantly warned people not to take cough mixtures or prescriptions containing Opium, Chloroform, or similar poisons. And now—a little late though—Congress says "Put it on the label, if poisons are in your Cough Mixture." Good! Very good! Heaven-forbid that every reasonable man, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison marks on Dr. Shoop's bottle—and none in the medicine, else it must be how be on the label. And it's not only safe, but is said so by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance then, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. SOAP BUBBLES.

How Some Pretty and Marvelous Effects May Be Produced.

There are degrees of skill in all pastimes, but one would hardly think that there were specialists in the art of blowing soap bubbles. An article in the Windsor Magazine by Meredith Nugent, however, shows that some very pretty and marvelous effects may be obtained by the exercise of care and patience with soap and water.

The first step is to make a solution by rubbing pure white castile soap into a bowl partly filled with water until a lather has been formed. Then remove every particle of lather, dip a clay pipe into the cleared solution and start to blow a bubble.

If you can blow one six inches in diameter so that it will hang suspended from the pipe and will allow your forefinger covered with the solution to be pushed through into the bubble without breaking, then the mixture is ready for use.

Six bubbles may be blown, one inside the other. This is performed by dipping the end of a straw in the soapy water and after resting the wet end upon an inverted plate or sheet of glass, which should have been previously wet with the solution, blow a bubble six inches in diameter.

Then dip the straw into the solution again, carefully thrust it through into the center of this first bubble and blow another. Continue in this manner until all the bubbles are in position. Great care must be taken that the straw is thoroughly wet with solution for fully half its length before each bubble is blown. With practice ten or twelve bubbles may be placed inside of one another.

The bishop replied: "I fear the latter is unlikely, as there are no Tears in heaven."

"No doubt," willy answered the parson, "you are right that our chance of meeting is small as one reads of the plains of paradise but never of any Hills there." London Queen

HYDROPHOBIA MYTHS.

Mad Dogs Do Not Act as Many Believe.

Owing to the rarity of hydrophobia many myths have grown up around it. Indeed, what passes for common knowledge of it is almost all false. The "mad" dog does not froth at the mouth, he does not hate water, he is no more a product of summer heat than of winter cold, and he has no inclination to bite except in blind resentment of any interference with the motionless hebetude which characterizes one phase of the malady or with the impulse to constant and purposeless flight which marks the alternative manifestation. The dog that acts as rabid dogs are popularly supposed to act can confidently be held to be suffering from some other and more common disease. The symptom that should most quickly excite suspicion is a notable and otherwise unexplained change in the animal's disposition, a calm dog becoming excitable or a lively one dull. In neither case is rabies proved, but in both the dog should be carefully confined and watched, and expert advice should be secured.

There is much misapprehension, too, as to the cause of hydrophobia in dogs. There is but one—infection of the blood through a wound inflicted by a dog suffering from the disease. Whether a dog is fed well or ill, too much or too little, has nothing to do with the matter directly; neither has abuse or lack of a home. The stray starveling is more dangerous than the valued canine friend only because he is more in the way of infection and because the early stages of his illness receive no attention. This, however, is quite reason enough to warrant the destruction of all ownerless and uncontrolled dogs, for it will be noticed that every outbreak of hydrophobia about the beginning of which anything is known starts with the biting of one or more dogs by a dog from nobodys know where—by precisely the dog, that is, with which the dogs of a neighborhood are sure to pick quarrels.

As for muzzles, they are effectual in exterminating rabies when they are worn for a long time by every dog in a definitely limited region, but all except the very best of them are torture to the wearers and their use in a district subject to constant invasion is almost useless.

England's Birth Rate Falling.

Not only is the birth rate in London dropping, but the custom of marriage seems to be gradually sinking into disuse, according to figures gleaned from the annual summary of vital statistics for England and Wales, just issued.

The birth rate in England and Wales last year was the lowest on record. It was 917,638, or 25.2 per thousand of the population, 0.6 below the rate in 1906 and 2.1 below the average for the preceding ten years.

A curious feature of the death rate was that, owing to the cool summer, far fewer children under one year old died. At the same time the death rate of persons over 60 was 1.6 above the average for the preceding ten years.

The birth rate in London was even lower than that for the whole country, being only 25.8 per thousand. But in the other seventy-six great cities it was 27, while in rural England it was only 25.6.

London is, indeed, threatened with becoming a city of bachelors and spinsters. Here are some startling figures taken from the report:

In 1871 there were 268 bachelors to every 1,000 males over fifteen years of age. Now there are 421 to every 1,000.

In 1871 there were 280 spinsters to every 1,000 women over fifteen years of age. Now there are 422.

Making the Old Young.

Men are paying more attention to health conditions to-day than ever before and numerous societies exist, of which the study and care of the body are the principal object. In Switzerland there is a native colony, whose devotees have eschewed the comforts of civilization, in the accepted sense, and live in huts and go barefooted and as naked as the law will permit. Kneipp curists, who profess to find increased healthfulness in walking barefooted through wet grass, are thickly scattered over Europe, and vegetarians, beyond count, who associate disease with meat consumption, can be found the most inclement weather, is a fad cultivated by not a few; but it remains for Scotland to advance the first regular Health Congress, whose main purpose is a plunge into the sea every day in the year. This congress exists in the town of Arbroath, in Forfarshire, whose coast line is washed by the cold waters of the North sea. It has a membership of 200 men and boys, ranging in age from 15 to 70 years, and every morning at 6.30 o'clock the year round they are stripped by the lees of their vestry to bathe in the sea. This practice has been kept up for five years to the great physical advantage of the members, some of whom have built up shattered constitutions under the treatment.

Glasgow's Penny Saving Banks.

There are now 274 penny savings banks in operation in Glasgow and the west of Scotland which acknowledge the Glasgow Savings Bank as the parent institution. The value of these minor banks in very great not only in inculcating the virtues of thrift in childhood but in their actual result. There were 1,200,326 transactions, but at the end of the financial year the depositors had £31,754 to their credit in the Glasgow Savings Bank. The amount deposited during the year was £91,483.

Miss Frankly—What are those men working so hard at, papa?

Mr. F.—They are weighing the anchor, my dear.

"Goodness, how absurd! If the captain wants to know the weight of his old anchor, why doesn't he have it weighed beforehand and not keep us waiting for the men to weigh it when we are all ready to sail?"

Indian Famine Rages Thousands Dying

Calcutta, July 5.—Despite the declaration of the British officials that they have the situation under control and that sufficient relief supplies have been provided to prevent and despair suffering, reports from the interior state that the famine conditions are daily growing worse. Over a million natives are declared to be on the verge of starvation, thousands are said to have succumbed within the last few weeks and gloomy prophecies are made that no less than ten millions will be forced to subsist on charity or die miserably during the summer and autumn. While all of these statements cannot be verified, owing to the secrecy of the government, which fears a widespread insurrectionary movement, there is little doubt that India is facing a grave crisis.

The recurrence of these terrible famines is due to several causes, mostly attributable to the influence of the British Government. Four-fifths of the population are now entirely dependent on precarious crops for their sustenance, and although great irrigation works have been carried out, the state of agriculture is still very unstable. Each peasant cultivates a little patch of land, which supplies the bare living for himself and his family. When the crop fails they are faced with starvation. The British regime provides regular employment for only a fraction of the native; while it has killed a great deal of the native industry, and has imposed other conditions on the people which work against prosperity of the natives. The taxes are high, and the economic system imposed by British rule is unsuited to the conditions of native life.

Joy is Creed of a New Religion

Washington, July 14.—Happiness and joy and personal liberty are the basic creeds of a new religion which has just been launched in Washington by Evangelist Theodore Valiant, son of the late Bishop Valiant. Already the newest creed has gained many converts and Valiant declares that it will soon spread all over the country. Sunday laws which seek to restrict the innocent sports of the people are denounced by this modern evangelist, who has gained the assistance of leaders in the personal liberty movement. At present, Valiant's church is a local amusement park, where he preaches to enthusiastic thousands.

In regard to his new creed, Evangelist Valiant says:

"The old hell, of the old religions, with its flaming fires, its dancing imps in leather hides, its catacombs of dead hopes, and its fumes of sulphur, is a thing of the past. It was adroitly employed to frighten people into the church. To-day the modern religion does not prey upon the fears and ignorance of the people. It says God bids you come to church with acclaims of joy. It presents a church in which you may smile, and from the portals of which morbidity and fear have been banished.

"My friends, be not deceived. Our Father does not want us to approach Him with long faces and downcast eyes, but to Him with happiness beaming from your countenance and overflowing from your heart. Take a lesson in happiness from His creatures—the birds with their songs of praise; the glittering fishes as they flirt about like flashing sunbeams in the silvery waters, or the animals, as they gambol on the greensward. Crime and depravity are unknown to such of God's creatures. It is left for man to be morbid and sorrowful and sinful.

"Blue laws and fanatics will find no place in the religion of the future.

"Those of you who profess to be Christians, I beseech you do not seek to take away the joys of the people by imposing fanatical conditions upon them. Do not waste your energies upon that which does no harm, except you regard happiness as harm. Rather go ye, as God has commanded, out into the sin-darkened highways and into the gloomy hedges and seek poor, downcast, sinful humanity, and bring them to light."

"There is no crime in the entrancing strains of music; no sin in the simple means of enjoyment called games; no destructiveness or wrongdoing in this bright and cheerful glare of God's electricity.

To Canadian Investors

The undersigned has received an allotment of unsold portion of $100,000 of

7 Per Cent. First Mortgage Five-Year Gold Bonds

dated January 11, 1908, and maturing January 11, 1913. These Bonds are offered at par and accrued interest by Metropolitan Trust & Savings Bank, Chicago, trustees.

SECURITY—The Entire Property and Improvements Owned THE URES CONSOLIDATED MINING COMPANY in the District of Ures, State of Sonora Mexico, Free from Mortgage of Bonded Indebtedness except this present Bond issue.

An Unusual Opportunity for Investment in Sound Security

The Ures Consolidated Mining Company offers $100,000.00 of First Mortgage Gold Bonds. This issue of bonds is the only mortgage or bonded indebtedness ever placed on the company's properties.

These bonds are in the denomination of $100.00, and bear interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, July and January, and are redeemable on or before five years from date at the company's option at $110.00 and accrued interest.

$100.00 Stock Bonus Given with Every $100.00 Bond

With each bond issued there will be given $100.00 par value of the capital stock of the company as a bonus, and in addition thereto there will be placed in escrow with the Trustee additional stock which will be available to the bondholders at their option any time within a period of three years, the bondholder being entitled to surrender his bond any time within said period and receive in lieu thereof stock for every dollar of indebtedness to him on account of said bonds.

The Security Back of these Bonds

The company owns twelve claims situated in the district of Ures, State of Sonora, Mexico, free from mortgage or bonded indebtedness, except the present bond issue.

On one of these properties (The Ramona Mine) 1,600 feet of underground development work has been done, consisting of an inclined shaft to the depth of 400 feet with drifts in three levels to the North and South of the shaft.

An average value of ore worth $11.67 per ton is exposed throughout the mine, from the collar of the shaft to the extreme parts in the drifts, all of which is above water level.

The company has made surface improvements and mine improvements to the extent of $60,000.00 in the way of machinery, shafts, trams, steam hoists, mill and nearly everything necessary to make the mining camp complete.

In addition to the absolute ownership of these twelve valuable claims, the company has a lease on the San Jose Mine, adjoining its property, in which the company has been operating in high grade ore.

During the past sixty days the company has extracted and delivered to ore buyers and the bank at Hermosillo, $4,000.00 worth of ore and bullion, the ore having been reduced to bullion through the company's mill, with the exception of 1,455 pounds, which was sold to an ore buyer for $565.80.

The Money Derived from the Sale of These Bonds

This issue of bonds is made for the purpose of securing money at once in order to extend the development work more quickly than the company's present means will permit.

With the high grade ore in sight to the distance of 50 feet to the South of the shaft, the management is assured that within six months from date of making the improvements now necessary the company's properties will be on a self-sustaining and dividend-paying basis.

The Stock Whistle Given with these Bonds will be as Valuable as the Bonds when the Company has the ready capital to push operations

Men who invest in these bonds will have no cause or reason to regret their action, for the bonds afford an investment in a security which is absolutely safe—much better than ordinary city or country real estate, which is considered perfectly safe if the property put up to secure a mortgage is double the face of the loan. The security given on these bonds is better than 7 to 1, for the Ures Consolidated Mining Company has refused an offer of $300,000.00 for the property upon which this $100,000.00 worth of bonds is issued.

These bonds are an investment with all speculative risk eliminated —an investment with absolute security.

Make your reservation at once. This is small and promises to be quickly sold.

To whom it may concern:—

We hereby beg to state that The Ures Consolidated Mining Company has during the past five years made several deliveries of bullion to this bank, and it is the opinion of mining men here that they have the making of a fair mine, and further, that the properties owned and controlled by them hold promise of becoming paying properties.

From our knowledge of the men connected, we believe they are doing all in their power to bring about the results above mentioned.

1 CENT A 2 SHARE

Send us your name as a member in this new company, with your remittance for as many thousand shares as you can take at 5c per thousand.

This is a short-time offer on a hurry-up proposition. Our vice president is up at Rawhide now putting the miners at work. We want to raise the necessary funds for development as quickly as possible. Therefore we offer the first block of shares at 5c a thousand shares. Size of subscription must be stated. We want the money in bank. We mean to work without fuss-up, and we have made it an inverted rule not to run in debt. Cash counts now.

Our prospectuses are out. Send for one.

Make reservation of stock. If you do no more. But, remember, this present offer of shares at Half a Cent a Share is now open, and will be closed as soon as enough cash subscriptions are in hand. Don't wait, or you will get left.

The gold mining property owned outright by the company consists of 7 claims, 2 in the Rawhide district of Nevada, and 4 in the Dulzura district of Southern California.

The Rawhide district to-day is more famous than Goldfield, Tonopah, Bullfrog, or Death Valley were at the same stage of exploration and development. The Dulzura discovery is one of the most sensational in the history of California.

Ten samples of ore which were among the first assayed, run as high as $7,444.57 to the ton, and all ten averaged over $50 to a ton.

In both camps we handle easily, and our locations are choice. Our own officers will superintend the mining.

Appetite Gone Nerves Badly Run Down

A Strong Moral Well Exemplified in Mrs. Wilson's Case.

Like thousands of other people at this season of the year Mrs. E. P. Wilson was tired and worn out—winter sorely tried her health and vigor. But now she is rested and well, eats well, sleeps well, feels invigorated and braced. "For some years," writes Mrs. Wilson of Watmore, P.O., "I suffered from systematic weakness, biliousness and depressing headaches. I could take little nourishment and grew thin and pale. If I ate a hearty meal the result was dreadful. Pains started at my chest, and spread all through my body going across my stomach, back and right side. I was discouraged till a friend insisted on me taking Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They made a new woman of me, and for the past eight months my health has been perfect. For a good cleansing, rejuvenating medicine I urge every one to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

There is extraordinary and magic power in Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they bring vigor, tone, health and spirits—are compounded from the most wonderful and healing juices and essences in vegetable life—are safe for young and old, and guaranteed to kindle renewed activity and strength in every system that is weak, sickly or run down from kidney, liver, stomach or bladder trouble. Off to Camp

A number of boys left yesterday morning to attend the annual Y.M.C.A. camp at Sandy Point. They boarded the steamer Otonabee and went over the lift lock and up the canal. They expect to be joined by a large number of boys from the Port Hope and Lindsay "Ys."

Telephones in Rooms of Hotel

The Snowdon House is soon to have telephonic communication between the office and each room of the hotel. This will do away with the custom of ringing for a bell boy and will be much more convenient. A large switchboard will be placed in the office. It will contain a certain number of local advertisements handsomely printed. The Snowdon House will be the only hotel in the city having this system, which will be most modern and up-to-date.

Y.M.C.A. Medals on Exhibition

The medals for the winners of the Y.M.C.A. meet were received yesterday by Ware Bros. jewellers, and are on exhibition in their window. This is a very handsome exhibition of medals which have been greatly admired by those who have seen them. The following will receive medals:—T. Campbell, Chas Walsh, P. Walker, H. Hill, F. Dupuy, H. Munro, M. Davidson, J. McMurtry, B. Lees, J. Hughes, G. Fitzgerald, G. Fowler, Fred McGrath, F. O'Connor, Bruce Wilson, Chas. Thorpe, Dick Evans, R. Miller and P. Shilvidon.

C.P.R. Northwest Excursions

The next Homeseekers' excursion leaves on Tuesday, July 21st, by special train leaving Toronto at 3 p.m., carrying through colonist and tourist sleeping cars. To catch the special int mediate passengers should take morning trains to Toronto. C.P.R. excursions are run by the new Muskoka route, making a considerable saving in time, and the advantage of travelling by a through-car line, without trouble of transfers and possible delays, is obvious. The local C.P.R. agent will be glad to furnish free booklet giving rates and full particulars.

Reports from the West indicate early crops this year, and within the next two or three weeks' settlement will likely be made of the low rate Farm Laborers' Excursions.

Fell Into the Water While Fishing

While fishing off the Nassau dam yesterday afternoon, Gordon Freeland was pulled in, it is alleged, by a large "lunge," and was nearly drowned. He floated into the eddy below the dam and was there for about five minutes when he was noticed by his father, who came quickly to his rescue.

ADVERTISED IN THE TIMES.

Of Interest To Women.

To such women as are not seriously out of health, but who have exacting duties to perform, either in the way of household cares or in social duties and functions, which seriously tax their strength, as well as to nursing mothers, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has proved a most valuable supporting tonic and invigorating nervine. By its timely use, much serious sickness and suffering may be avoided. The operating table and the surgeons' knife, would, it is believed, seldom have to be employed if this most valuable woman's remedy were resorted to in good time. The "Favorite Prescription" has proven a great boon to expectant mothers by preparing the system for the coming of baby, thereby rendering childbirth safe, easy, and almost painless.

Bear in mind, please that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is not a secret or patent medicine, against which the most intelligent people are quite naturally averse, because of the uncertainty as to their composition and harmless character, but is a MEDICINE OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, a full list of all its ingredients being printed, in plain English, on every bottle-wrapper. An examination of this list of ingredients will disclose the fact that it is non-alcoholic in its composition, "chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine taking the place of the commonly used alcohol, in its make-up. In this connection it may not be out of place to state that the "Favorite Prescription" of Dr. Pierce is the only medicine put up for the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses and ailments, and sold through druggists, all the ingredients of which have the unanimous endorsement of all the leading medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice, and that too as remedies for the ailments for which "Favorite Prescription" is recommended.

A little book of these endorsements will be sent to any address, post-paid, and absolutely free if you request same by postal card, or letter, of Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Constipation is the cause of many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. Easy to take as candy.

HOUSEHOLD NOTES.

When a finger has been pinched, if it is at once immersed in boiling water the inflammation will be quickly allayed.

When a child is restless from teething it can often be quieted by giving it a warm bath. The water should be as hot as can be endured without burning. Do not allow the child to stay in the bath long or weakness will follow.

Tears have their use, apart from the crying aspect, inasmuch as they refresh and wash the eyes of animals and birds that live exposed to the dust. The eye requires to be kept clear and clean, and tears perform this duty. A striking example of this is shown when the eye is hurt. It at once commences to water, and often this natural method of cleansing relieves the pain and removes the cause of the discomfort.

The Toilet Table.

It is impossible to dress to look one's best unless the toilet table has a brilliant light above it.

It is mortifying to pass from a dim bedroom to a well lighted theater or a friend's house and to discover small wisps of straying hair and errors about one's attire which entirely escaped attention in the semidarkness at home.

A clever woman has her bedroom most cunningly lighted so that by means of another mirror opposite that on her dressing table she can see herself in every position.

This is one reason why she is rarely seen with "yawnings" between bodice and skirt, glimpses at petticoats through plackets and the back of collar badly adjusted.

Summer Candle Shades.

Nothing is daintier for the dining table, especially in the summer, if artificial light be needed, than the candle. It is a simple matter to make pretty shades at a small cost.

Buy the wire frames and make close fitting covers of linen colored pongee, stenciling on the four sides conventional designs.

Another pretty affair is a shade of white linen, also fitted to the wire frame and finished at the bottom with a frill of narrow valenciennes lace. To make the linen shades more elaborate a little hand embroidery may be added.

Shades made along these general lines have the added value of being easily laundered.

Answer Riddle.

The following anecdote is given by an Indian officer as illustrative of the manners and customs of the wily Pathan: A certain general and his staff, while wending their way through one of the narrowest valleys of Tirah, were annoyed by the attentions of a solitary marksman, who from time to time sent a bullet unpleasantly close. At last the general turned to his orderly—a Pathan sowar—and told him to dismount, take his carbine and try and stalk the mountaineer. The sowar started off, and presently there was a crack and a gray bearded old Afridi tumbled headlong down the mountain side. The sowar rejoined and fell into his place.

"Well done!" said the general. "But how on earth did you manage it so easily?"

"Oh," replied the sowar, "I knew his face. He was my father!"—London Answers.

TIME AT THE POLES.

It Is Practically Any Hour of the Day You Please.

Those who are conversant with the use of globes know that all the meridians of longitude starting from the equator converge toward and meet at the poles. They know, too, that longitude signifies time and that difference of longitude is difference in time. They know very well that when it is noon in London it is about 7 o'clock in the morning in Boston, and that when it is noon in San Francisco it is about a quarter past 3 in the afternoon in New York.

Now, as the meridian of London extends to the north pole, it necessarily ensues that when it is noon in the English capital it must also be noon at the north pole. In a similar manner when it is noon at Boston, or in San Francisco, or at Pekin, or any other place situated in the northern hemisphere, it follows that it must also be noon at the pole, because all the meridians of those places unite at the north pole. Therefore it is noon all day long at the pole.

Thus there is an entire absence of time at the pole. But it would be just as correct to say that it is a place where there is a preponderance of time, for it is practically any time of day during the whole twenty-four hours or, indeed, through the year. In fact, a resident at the north pole could make it any time of day he might choose to select, with the consciousness that it would be the right time.

A POET'S DIET.

Byron's Strenuous Efforts to Keep Himself From Getting Fat.

"You mention Browning's idea that starvation was the cure for all the ills of the flesh—his own, at any rate," says a correspondent. "Browning was not the only poet with peculiar views on the subject. One of Byron's chief fears was that of becoming fat, and to avoid it he often resorted to extraordinary systems of diet. At Athens he lived mainly on rice and vinegar and water. Later he confined himself to six biscuits a day and tea. In 1816 he had so restricted his diet that he was obliged to keep down hunger by chewing mastic and tobacco. 'Don Juan' was 'written on gin and water.'"

Byron, it has been pointed out, was one of those foredoomed by their constitutions to fatness in middle life, whether they eat much or little, and his victory over nature in this respect—for he succeeded in reducing himself by these violent methods—has been quoted as one of the most remarkable achievements of the human will, considering all the circumstances. It must have been bitter to him to see such a man as Beau Brummel, who ate and drank freely and took no exercise, retaining without an effort all the elegance of figure that was his greatest gift. No wonder Byron's was the poetry of gloom.—London News.

Tea Table Etiquette.

A hundred years or more ago there was a quaint tea table etiquette. It was considered a lack of courtesy to take much cream or sugar in one's tea. Etiquette demanded that the tea should be tasted from the spoon and that the hostess should then inquire, "Is your tea agreeable?" Modern women would be shocked by a fashionable lady of those days who cooled her tea with her breath, yet Young wrote of a certain bewildering Lady Betty:

Her two red lips affected zephyrs blow
To cool the Bohea and inflame the beau,
While one white finger and a thumb conspire
To lift the cup and make the world admire.

A City and Its Press.

In some respects a modern city resembles a vast commercial house. Is commerce advertisement is the secret of success, and the most successful coadjutors of the municipality in the development and puffing of a capital are the newspapers. And here Berlin is lacking. Her press is on a hopelessly low level, impoverished, without enterprise, under the thumb of the authorities. In London, New York and Paris the press has a voice in the running of the city.—London Outlook.

A Pitched Battle with a Band of Doukhobors

Yorkton, Sask., July 16.—Acting under instructions from the Provincial Government to have the Doukhobor ring leaders at the Arcadia Camp committed to jail, Inspector Jungert decided to make a raid last night, when ten constables of the R.N.W.M.P., under Sergt. Vickery, armed with warrants to arrest six men and women, proceeded to carry out their orders at midnight.

The Doukhobors fiercely resisted arrest, and the whole band of sixty in number turned to the assistance of the twelve. A pitched battle was then fought between the police and the Doukhobors, during which the latter made free use of sticks of cordwood and whatever weapons at hand. After three hours' fierce struggling the police effected the arrests and overpowered the Indians; and, leaving a strong guard at the camp, returned to Yorktown at 5 a.m. with the twelve prisoners. These were at once brought before Inspector Jungert, and each sentenced to six months imprisonment. The six women were immediately after receiving sentence were quietly despatched in wagons to Canora on their way to Prince Albert jail.

The six men will leave early tomorrow morning to be distributed throughout the different jails in the Province. This is a part of the agreement to see the effect on those left behind, and is thought to be the beginning of the breaking up of the whole band.

The Western Rains Worth Millions

Crop Prospects in Manitoba and Saskatchewan are Splendid and in Some Cases Phenomenal

Winnipeg, July 16.—The splendid rains which have swept over the West from Kenora to Edmonton will prove a most valuable asset. Hundreds of farmers attending the Winnipeg Exhibition called at the newspaper offices to ascertain the extent of the showers. The territory includes all of Manitoba as far north as Dauphin, and extending down into South Dakota, and rain has fallen at Regina, Saskatoon, Prince Albert, Medicine Hat, Calgary and Edmonton as well.

Grain men say that if they had ordered the distribution of moisture it could not have pleased them better, coming after a week of fine grain-growing weather, and their buoyant spirit is reflected on the Grain Exchange. At the Agricultural College it was said rain could not have come at a better time.

SOME FINE SAMPLES.

Reports from officials and men who have traveled through the country indicate that there was never such prospects for a bumper crop.

In the office of Mr. J. Bruce Walker, Commissioner of Immigration, are to be seen some wonderful samples, including a sheaf of fall rye wheat cut on the farm of J. J. English, at Maple Creek, Saskatchewan, on June 17th. It is six feet high, and the grain almost sufficiently developed for cutting. A sample of red Fife wheat almost four feet high is shown. A sample of Banner oats had attained a height of three feet, and the quality of the straw indicated a very heavy yield. A specimen of Brome grass shown by Mr. Walker, which came from Lethbridge, stood over six feet.

MAGNIFICENT WHEAT.

Mr. J. L. Doupe, assistant land commissioner for the C.P.R., whose duties take him constantly through the interior portions of the different provinces, endorses the general opinion, and anticipates a busy fall. He has just returned from a trip through the district between Carseholm and Lethbridge, on the Macleod ranch, and says the fall wheat there is magnificent, and the farmers in great spirits. In some instances farmers expect to harvest thirty to fifty thousand bushels of grain. This district is part of what was formerly known as the dry belt, but this year portions of the irrigation plant are being neglected as plenty of rain has fallen.

Mr. Doupe found the same favorable conditions prevailing between Hattleford and Moosejaw. There had been no apparent damage from hail, and the outlook was bright. Of the country along the new line of the C.P.R. from Moosejaw to the crossing of the South Saskatchewan nothing too good could be said, and the growth of grain in the Outlook district was phenomenal.

EXCITING MOMENTS AT OLD QUEBEC-- FIRST REHEARSAL

Quebec, Que., July 16.—The city is now wearing a decidedly festive appearance in anticipation of the approaching great fetes and the various preparations are fast nearing completion. The many arches throughout the city are being given their finishing touches, while the civic authorities have a great army of men employed to make even the rural streets as tidy and neat looking as possible.

Field Marshal Lord Roberts is expected in the city this evening, being a passenger on board the Empress of Ireland, which is due to port at seven o'clock. His presence will unquestionably add very materially to the coming festivities. It is expected that the two French warships, Leon Gambett and Admiral Aubin, which are to represent the French Republic during the celebration will arrive in Port tomorrow morning.

PAGEANT BULL BROKE AWAY.

His Excellency Earl Grey attended the rehearsal of the pageants on the Plains of Abraham last evening, when the Henry IV., and St. Lusson scenes were put through very effectively. During the performance there were two incidents which caused momentary excitement, but fortunately were attended by no mishap. The bull which had been yoked to the ox cart became unmanageable and crashed through the railings, but was soon recaptured and reharnessed in a manner to ensure his not repeating such a performance. Shortly afterwards the courtiers in France were imperilled by a runaway horse which dashed about, but was fortunately overtaken without having caused further damage than wrecking the calèche to which he was attached. Tonight there will be the first dress rehearsal of the pageants and no doubt the gorgeous costumes will add much to the scenic effect. The "Great White City" will, it is expected, be in a position to accommodate guests by tomorrow morning and will most likely be in full swing by Sunday or Monday.

FOR COMING THOUSANDS.

In the wooden structures will be located an information bureau, a post office, a railway office, a telegraph and telephone room. Two reception rooms and three dining rooms, each with a seating capacity, it is claimed, of 600, are located in the huge forement tents which were raised yesterday. A large barn on the rear of the property has been turned into a kitchen with provision houses, ice houses, and other necessaries to the feeding of a multitude on hotel lines. The plant covers forty-six acres. The tents are being put up at the rate of about 150 daily. The rents, in some for three, five and twelve persons, extend from the front of grande allee to the edge of the cliff overlooking the river. The prices ranges from $60 a small tent for the time of the festivities, with a few days over at each end, to $150 for the largest size.

MOB SHOT THE WRONG MAN

Beaumont, Texas, July 17.—Last night a posse of over 1,000 scoured the woods in this vicinity in an effort to capture an unidentified negro who attacked and beat into insensibility a thirteen year old white girl, Ada Bell Hopkins, inflicting injuries which may prove fatal.

It was the intention of the mob to inflict quick punishment. Late yesterday an aged negro was mistaken for the one sought and shot to death. Last night the mob burned two negro amusement resorts and threatened to destroy other buildings occupied by negroes in the vicinity of the scene of the crime.

DECLARES WAR ON USE OF OPIUM

Ottawa, Ont., July 17.—In the Upper House on motion for the second reading of the bill in respect to patent medicines, Senator Roy gave notice of an amendment declaring that no medicine containing opium should be sold. He said that the deaths of many children were caused by mothers giving them medicines containing Opium, and that a case for the drug was often begun in childhood. Mr. Lemieux's bill would not prevent this evil because it allows the use of opium for medicinal purposes. The bill was given a second reading, and the amendment will be considered in committee.

MRS. GOULD'S NARROW ESCAPE

Greenwich, Conn., July 17.— Mrs Frank J. Gould, who is suing her husband for a separation, and is only a few days out of bed from nervous troubles, had a narrow escape from possible death in an automobile collision. Her $9,000 machine and the touring car of a New Yorker, said to be named Lilley, were both almost completely wrecked.

Mrs Gould's escape from injury—she was wrecked but not hurt—is attributed to the coolness of her chauffeur, who, when he saw the smash was inevitable locked his wheels and received the impact on the heavy front part of the car instead of at the rear where it would in all probability have caused an explosion of the gasoline tank.

U. S. May Soon Own Aerial War Fleet

Washington, July 17.—According to plans being discussed by the Signal Corps office and Board of Ordinance of the army, one million dollars will be asked of the next Congress for fleets of durable airships, similar to that of Count Zeppelin, for coast defence. Rapid progress in aeronautics among foreign nations makes it imperative, they believe, that the United States should begin plans for aerial fleets. Should Congress make this appropriation, and signal officers urge the necessity of asking Congress for an appropriation of $10,000,000 in order to keep up with foreign countries in military aeronautics, stations on the Atlantic will probably be established at Boston, New Jersey coast, Norfolk, Charleston, and Mobile.

On the Pacific coast stations will be established at Fremonton, San Francisco and San Diego.

Even Her Blood Turned to Water

When Dying of Pernicious Anaemia Her Life Was Saved by

Ferrozone

Probably very few cases are on record in which an absolute cure has been made of pernicious anaemia.

But Ferrozone did cure Miss Elvina Stanhope—cured her absolutely, and her mother Mrs. G. Stanhope of Rothsay, Ont., says the following:

"My daughter complained of feeling tired. She was very pale and listless, and kept losing strength till too weak to attend school. The doctors prescribed different bottles of medicine but Elvina kept getting worse instead of better. She had Anaemia and we were afraid for a while that she might never rally. We read of a similar case, that of Miss Descent of Sterling, Ont., and we procured for Ferrozone, and then induced us to get it for Elvina. It took three boxes of Ferrozone to make any decided improvement, but when six boxes were used my daughter was beginning to be her old self again. It didn't take much longer to make a complete cure, and I am convinced that there is no better blood-maker than Ferrozone. It has made a new girl of Elvina. She has gained ten pounds in weight and looks the picture of perfect health. She can enjoy the best of sports. The credit of her recovery is entirely due to Ferrozone."

Stringent Rules for the Marathon Race

London, July 16.—Following are the rules by which competitors in the Olympic Marathon on July 24 must be guided;

1. The Marathon race of 40 kilometres will be run on a course marked out on public roads by the Amateur Athletic Association, and will finish on the running track in the Stadium, where the last one-third mile will be run (one lap equals 536 metres).

2. Each competitor must send with his entry a medical certificate of his fitness to take part in the race, and must further undergo a medical examination previous to the start by the medical officer or officers appointed by the British Olympic Council.

3. A competitor must at once retire from the race if ordered to do so by a member of the medical staff appointed by the British Olympic Council to patrol the course.

4. No competitor, either at the start or during the progress of the race, may take or receive any drug. The breach of this rule will operate as an absolute disqualification.

5. The station of each competitor at the start will be determined by lot, and in the event of the competitors being too numerous to be started off a single line, they will be started on two or more lines.

6. Each competitor shall be allowed two attendants, who shall wear on the arm the same distinctive number.

7. Attendants must, during the progress of the race, remain behind the competitor they are attending, or be sufficiently in front to prevent them giving pacing assistance. Non-observance of this rule will disqualify the competitor.

8. Attendants will not be permitted at the start of the contest, but must proceed to an appointed place about five miles (eight kilometres) from the start, and join their competitors as they pass. Upon arrival at the Stadium, the attendants must leave the competitors and enter at a different gate. No attendant will be allowed on the track.

No Trouble in Handling the Crop, Says Head Official of the C.P.R.

The Company Has Been Securing Reports and Prepared to Supply Sufficient Cars

Increased Rolling Stock

Montreal, July 17.—"The Canadian Pacific Railway knows the crop prospects of the West as well and probably better than anybody else, and there is not the slightest doubt that they will be in position to handle the business as far as their resources go when the time comes." This was the reply of Mr. G. M. Bosworth, fourth vice-president of the C.P.R., this afternoon to the despatches that have been repeatedly sent out from the West of late accusing the Canadian railroads of suppineness in connection with the anticipated big crop of wheat to be hauled out this fall.

Reports have been pouring into Montreal of a probable car shortage this fall when the wheat commences to move, and it is feared in the West that the railroads do not seem to appreciate the immensity of the harvest and are not making proper preparations to handle it. Asked as to this, Mr. Bosworth, who is in charge of the C. P. R. freight department, remarked: "The C.P.R. is always making preparations for any business offering, and is, in addition, taking every precaution to learn what is likely to offer in the future, so as to be able to get ready for anything that may turn up. So far as the Western crop is concerned, I think that we understand the crop position in the North-West at least as well as anybody else, since we are constantly securing reports from every section in order that our estimates may be carefully prepared. We know pretty well what is to be expected, and are making every necessary preparation to handle it."

In connection with this, Mr. Bosworth pointed out that the Canadian Pacific had largely increased their rolling stock, both engines and cars, since last year. In addition to this, the double-tracking operations between Port William and Winnipeg had been greatly advanced, to a point where the double tracks would prove very useful in forwarding traffic over this "spout", where the greatest congestion generally occurs in forwarding the grain collected at Winnipeg from all over the West to the lake ports. Under these circumstances, Mr. Bosworth said that the C.P.R. officials did not anticipate any unusual difficulty in handling the Western crop, the more so as other lines of traffic were not very pressing.

Tom Longboat Hurt Yesterday In Training

London, July 16.—Tom Flanagan wires me today that Longboat was hurt while training in Ireland. He, the Indian, ran into a wagon.

Flanagan says Longboat must stop all work till the Marathon race, which will take place a week from tomorrow.

WAS DODGING A CART.

London, July 16.—Tom Longboat, in trying to avoid a country cart, met with an accident today. His training has to be discontinued as result of the accident. He will be a starter next Friday, however. The bad news came in a telegram from Tom Flanagan to Lou Marsh, the Star correspondent.

Where Hanging Has Become an Industry

New York, July 16.—Count Leo Tolstoi has written another arraignment of the Czar, his agents of execution and the general demoralization of his countrymen. The count's letter was written in London. He was constrained to write this latest epistle by the news of the execution of a dozen of his fellow-countrymen for making an attack on the landed proprietors' estate. The aged novelist says; "I cannot be silent," and proceeds,

"What is most dreadful in the whole matter is that all this inhuman violence and killing, besides the direct evil done to the victims and their families, brings a yet more enormous evil on the whole people by spreading depravity—as fire spreads amid dry straw—among every class of Russians.

"A short time ago there were not two executioners to be found in all Russia. In the eighties there was only one. Not so now!

"A small shopkeeper in Moscow, whose affairs were in a bad way, having offered his services to perform the murders arranged by the government and receiving a hundred roubs, ($50) for each person hung, seemed minded his offer as well that he no longer required this additional business, and is now carrying on his former trade.

GOT RICH AT HANGING.

In Orel last month an executioner was wanted, and at once a man was found who agreed with the organizers of Governmental murders to do the business for fifty roubles per head. But the volunteer hangman, after making this agreement, heard that more was paid in other towns, and at the time of the execution, having put the shroud sack on the victim, instead of leading him to the scaffold, stopped, and, approaching the superintendent, said; "You must add another twenty-five rebules, your excellency, or I won't do it!" He got the increase and he did the job.

Of executions, hangings, murders, and bombs people now write and speak as they used to speak about the weather. Children play at hangings. Lads from the High schools, who are almost children, go out on expropriating expeditions, ready to kill, just as they used to go hunting.

CZAR WORSE THAN HANGMAN.

The executioner at first hand knows that he is an executioner and that he does wrong, and is therefore hated, and he is afraid of men; and I think this consciousness and this fear before men atone for at least a part of his guilt.

But you all—from the Secretary of the Court to the Premier and the Czar—you indirect participators in the iniquities perpetrated every day—do not even to find your guilt and this shame your participation in these horrors should evoke.

Therefore I think that, low as that unfortunate executioner has fallen, he stands morally immeasurably higher than you, participators in and part authors of these awful crimes.

And, being conscious of this, I can no longer endure it, but must free myself from this intolerable position.

It is impossible to live so! I, at any rate, cannot and will not live so.

That is why I write this and will circulate it by all means in my power, both in Russia and abroad, that one of two things may happen—either that these inhuman deeds may be stopped or that my connection with them may be snapped and I put in prison, where I may be clearly conscious that these horrors are not committed on my behalf; or, still better (as good that I dare not even dream of such happiness), they may put on me, as on those twenty or twelve peasants, a shroud and a cap and may push me also off a bench, so that by my own weight I may tighten the well-soaped noose around my old throat.

London, July 16.—There was some heavy work for the athletes participating in the Olympic games at the Stadium this morning. The program included the second heat of the 100 kilometre bicycle race, which brought out a field of 32 starters, of which Wentz was the only American, while Canada had three entries, Morton, Andrews and Young. France and Germany each started five men, Italy three, the United Kingdom six, and Belgium, South Africa, and Sweden one each. At the same hour the first heat of the ten-mile walk was started with just as cosmopolitan an entry list, except that the United States was not represented. Bonhag, who had entered, withdrawing. The second heat of this event was also run off.

DISCUS THROW FREE STYLE.

On the turf the athletes were busy all morning throwing the discus free style.

Owing to the withdrawal of a number of men, sections one and two were grouped, which Barroughs of United States won with a throw of 122 feet 9 1-2 inches.

This did not long stand as the best throw, however, Dearborn, who was in the third section, placing the discus 126 feet 4 1-2 inches from the circle, all the other competitors in his section being hopelessly behind.

Giffin carried off the honors in the fourth section with a throw of 128 feet 6 1-2 inches. Garrells, University of Michigan, did not qualify.

In the fifth section Horr made the best throw, 129 feet 9 inches. No throw in the sixth section counted, as all were below the previous throws and only the three best in all sections qualify for the final.

Sections seven and eight were grouped with representatives of the United Kingdom, Norway, Greece, Germany, Finland, United States and Sweden competing. Martin Sheridan, American, won, covering 132 feet 11-2 inches.

A Great Game Here on Saturday

Port Hope are right after the "Petes" and incidentally to retain the Midland League pennant. They have gathered in some of the most notable ball tossers playing the game and are coming here Saturday confident of defeating the "Petes".

So far, the two teams have had an even break, each having won a league fixture, so that it will be seen that they are evenly matched. Jeffries of London, who has been playing in the International League, will be behind the bat for the Port Hopers, and the infield will consist of Hislop 1b, Delany McGuire, last year with Chauncey Elliott's Oswego, Empire State League, champions, 2b; Dunn of London, ss., and Jack O'Toole, of last year's Grandview, Manitoba League team., 3b. That a team that t will be extremely hard to beat, and the Petes, realizing that they are up against a stiff proposition, will place a very strong team in the field. The fans will see a splendid game of ball, and no doubt there will be a big crowd on hand.

The new schedule of prices will prevail. Tickets entitling the holder to a seat in the grandstand will be sold for 25 cents, and the general admission will be 15 cents.

Programme for the Band Concert

By permission of Lieut.-Col Stevenson and officers, the band of the 57th regiment will give the following program in Victoria Park this evening under the direction of Bandmaster Gliddon;

March—71st Regiment.
Overture—Peque Dame.
Concert—Mazurka Amoureus.
Medley of Popular Songs.
Serenade—La Paloma.
Cakewalk.
Nareissus.
Waltzes—Homage to the Ladies.
Plantation Songs.
The Forge in the Forest.
God Save the King.

Was to Marry Girl Aged 13, but the Bridegroom was Hanging to a Tree

Found Near His Home with Marriage License in His Pocket--A Mysterious Tragedy.

RELATIVES OPPOSED TO THE MARRIAGE

Dover, Del., July 16.—The supposed murder of William Williams, the well-to-do farmer, who lived near the Maryland State line, and who was about to marry Elizabeth Walls, a 13-year-old girl, has aroused the entire Delaware peninsula. The authorities are sparing no efforts for a solution of the mystery. Williams, who was a widower, and resided with his sons and daughters, visited one of his daughters at Crumpton, Md., last Friday. After leaving her house he was not again seen until his body was found hanging to a tree between Marydell and Templeville Tuesday afternoon. Marks on the body indicated that he had been murdered, and this view was taken by the coroner's jury in Queen Anne County last night. The license to marry the girl was in William's pocket when the body was found.

NO SIGNS OF STRUGGLE.

There were no signs of a struggle where Williams' body was found, and it is believed that he was killed at some other place, and the body carried to the thicket and hanged to a tree as a subterfuge to conceal the fact that murder had been committed.

The remaining innings of the Y.M.C.A.—Strathcona game played last night, and the High Commissioners clinched it by a score of 22 to 13. The Straths played good ball all the time, but the "Y's made some bad muffings, especially Porter at short, who let every ball that came near him go by, and also dropped a couple of easy flies. Robertson in center, played a good game, and made a sensational catch in the 8th, which he ran from left field, and got a high fly with one hand.

London, July 16.—The management of the United States athletic delegates held a special meeting yesterday. James E. Sullivan presiding, and despatched a letter to Lord Desborough, chairman of the British Olympic Committee, asking him to rearrange the draw-bags for the heats so that two competitors of one nationality will not be drawn to compete with each other in the same heat.

The committee further requested that no restrictions be placed on the American pole vaulters digging a hole to assist their performance in the pole vaulting event, since the rules do not state anything to the contrary, and the Americans have dug holes in all the Olympic contests hitherto.

Finally, the committee protests against Tom Longboat, the Canadian runner on the ground that he is a professional. Mr. Sullivan adds;

"We are here as Great Britain's guests. We will run anybody they will bring against us. We won't run away, but we nevertheless object to competing with professionals.

Riding From Coast to Coast on a Bicycle

There arrived in the city yesterday a young man from Halifax, who is riding a bicycle from coast to coast. His name is Herbert Ramon, and he is about 18 years old. He left Halifax on May the 28th and says he is making good time. He was seen by a Times' representative yesterday afternoon, who had a short conversation with him.

He has had to have his wheel repaired several times since he started, and was delayed two or three days in Quebec owing to the rain and the bad roads then resulted. He expects to reach Vancouver early in September and will return to Halifax by train. He informed The Times that he intended traveling stretches of the way westward by train if he finds the conditions are not favorable for biking. So far, however, it has not been necessary for him to ride on a train.

Ramon who arrived in the city before noon, left about three o'clock on his journey. He will go to Toronto, and from there to North Bay, and then westward.

Ready for Her Trip Today

Yesterday the steamer Ozeandee met with a slight mishap which compelled her to go into dry dock. While coming up from Rice Lake, one of the propeller wheels in some manner worked loose. It took all day yesterday to get the boat out of the water and fasten the wheel and put the steamer into the river again. She is now however, ready for her trip to Stony Lake today.

THE WOMAN AND THE NATION.

The people of the United States will soon be in the throes of another Presidential election campaign, — if they are not quite so already—and a battle royal is promised between the candidates of the Republican and the Democratic parties. The progress and result of the campaign will be watched with great interest on this side of the line, as well as in the neighboring Republic.

While the Socialists, Prohibitionists and other parties will have candidates in the field for the Presidency the fight will unquestionably be between the Republican candidate, William Howard of Cincinnati, O., until recently secretary of War in President Roosevelt's Cabinet, and the Democratic candidate, William Jennings Bryan, of Lincoln, Neb., the peerless orator, who twice before has been the Presidential nominee of his party.

The campaign will be a vigorous one on both sides, with the result by no means a certainty. True, the Republicans have won more victories in Presidential campaigns than the Democrats, and for a long term of years have ruled that nation. It is also equally true that Mr. Bryan has twice before suffered defeat at the hands of the people. Mr. Bryan had then however, against him a man who both in private and public life, occupied a commanding position in the nation, and under whose leadership success was assured from the outset. Mr. Bryan, too, was then a man very little known. He had, it is true, swept the National Convention with his oratory, and captured the nomination, and conducted a remarkable campaign, had four years later been again nominated and had pursued a similar campaign, but his stand on the financial issue has caused the people to distrust him, and he consequently went down to defeat. Since that time he has made a tour of the world, and has been greeted as one of the greatest Americans. A man of wonderful magnetic personality he has likewise become a world, as well as a national figure, and his name is now apparently one to conjure with. Those who heard him speak in his former campaigns, and again in the recent past, noticed a great difference, and came away with the impression that they had heard a great man and a statesman in the best sense of the term.

As to Mr. Taft, he has occupied positions on the bench and in the Roosevelt Cabinet, has been Governor of the Philippines and has served his country in other capacities, and has given him a very efficient and satisfactory service. He is, however, comparatively unknown, is not magnetic in the least, and is certainly not yet the great national figure that Roosevelt, McKinley, or the other men have been who have occupied the White House. He will, of course, have the support of Roosevelt, and the people may be inclined to prefer Mr Bryan to an echo of the most energetic and honored occupant of the White House.

The religious convictions of the two Presidential candidates bids fair to influence the election also to a more or less extent. Mr. Bryan, like some of the men who have hitherto served as Presidents, is a Presbyterian. Mr. Taft is a Unitarian, and a certain section of the people of the United States seem to doubt whether it would be creditable to the country to send to the White House for four years at least Official Executive a man who does not believe in the divinity of Christ, even though he be strongly endorsed by an evangelical Churchman like President Roosevelt.

Other elements also will enter into the campaign to increase the uncertainty of the result. The contest will again be a white heat, and only the knowing ones will venture to predict the actual outcome.

THE PRESIDENCY

Like the importunate widow, the woman suffragist pursues her policy of frontal and flank attack on the Government. For her the law has no terrors and the purlieus of Downing Street possess an added dignity. If pertinacity, unchecked, by sense of the fitness of things, will win the day, women will vote at the polls before Mr. Asquith can escape from office. By courtly half-measures the Premier has sought to appease the feminine hunger for the vote, but the half-loaf of promises is futile to stay a ravening appetite. It but converts Mrs. Pankhurst and her allies into free daughters of Olympus. We rejoice to see that women of prominence in the social and literary world are using their influence against such futilities as evoked police interference on Tuesday. On this battle-ground the male man is virtually helpless, and the sex must be countered by the fine Stammtisch, as we have persistently, that woman's suffrage is undesirable, for the present at least, we fail with relief those arguments against the movement which find utterance in the United States. Admitting that conditions are not in every way similar, and that in certain parts of the Union Red Rose would run pretty close tenance of mothers, sisters, wives and daughters into the political life of the Nation must act as a handicap upon the conscientious endeavors of the lord of creation and at the same time detract from the woman's influence in her own peculiar sphere. There is no truer aphorism than that woman was created for one end; man for many. Reduce the incentives and the opportunities for woman fulfilling her God-ordained functions by the interpolation of interests foreign to her nature, physical and spiritual, and we weaken those elemental forces which are deeper-seated than many civilizations, and which stop the way to decadence.

The Mule's Between.

The pack mule is quite as much an institution as the team mule and is absolutely indispensable in the mountains. Mule packing is a fine art, and with a well trained animal and a skilful packer you can safely transport anything from a piano to a bag of oats. When the packer has finished his job in an artistic manner, the animal may buck or back, kick or rear or roll, but he cannot rid himself of his burden, and he finally gives it up in despair. After two or three experiences he will submit to his destiny and fall into line with the rest of the train every morning to receive his load from the packer. A well trained pack mule is always proud of his load, and if by any means it gets loose he will step quietly out of line and wait until the packmaster comes along to tighten it.

The most serious objection to the mule, which you sometimes find in human beings also, is the delusion that he can sing. One who has never heard a mule solo cannot appreciate the extent of his mistake; but, like everything else about a mule, his song is strictly original. It belongs to no other animal. No one can describe and no one can imitate it.—New York Mail.

Mixed Pickles.

Bishop Knox once explained that "Mr. McKenna's sword was an overloaded pistol which, being hung up in a tight corner lest it should burst, proceeded to be dead until it got up and trotted home on the friendly back of the bishop of St. Asaph." But it is in political debate, especially in the house of commons, that the mixed metaphor flourishes most luxuriously. "The flood-gates of irreligion and intemperance are stalking arm in arm throughout the land." "This bill affords such a chance that the last leap in the dark was a mere fun bite." "That is the marrow of the educational act, and it will not be taken out by Dr. Clifford or anybody else. It is founded on a granite foundation and speaks in a voice not to be drowned in sectarian clamor." "The question of nationalization in houses is a thorny subject and has long been a bone of contention."—Manchester Guardian.

Tulip Soup.

"What makes this vegetable soup taste so different?" asked the young husband of the pretty bride.

"Only the lamb you sent home," replied the bride. "You remember you said you were going to order lamb."

"I didn't order any lambs," growled the husband, but he finished his bowl of soup rather than disappoint her.

That afternoon he stopped at the grocery store.

"How did you come to send lambs up to my house this morning?" he demanded. "I didn't order them."

"Great Scott! Did you eat them?" exclaimed the grocer.

"Sure, we ate them."

"Oh, for land's sake. They were Miss Jackson's tulip bulbs. She left them on the counter and they got into your basket by mistake."—Detroit Free Press.

A Queer Practice.

A queer practice which is general throughout all the tribes of Australia is the ribbing of the skin. When the children are still young long cuts are made across the chest, down the upper arm and leg and even across the back and ribs. While the wound is quite fresh the cut is opened and a mixture of mud is grafted in, the skin being pulled as far as possible over it. The skin eventually grows completely round the mud filling and forms ridges varying in length and size from an ordinary lead pencil to the thickness of a man's little finger and extending from straight to zigzag. I am informed that while the healing process is going on the pain is exquisite, but the result seems to satisfy all parties concerned.—London Standard.

The Brave Butterfly.

Here is an unorthodox story of Mikado Solomon: One day a butterfly sat on the king's temple and taunted to his wife. "If I chose I could lift my wing and shiver this building to the ground," he swaggered. Solomon, overhearing, sent for the boaster. "How dare you?" he thundered. The butterfly grovelled. "I did it to impress my wife," he pleaded. The great monarch was instantly appeased and let him go. "What did Solomon say to you?" asked a quivering wife five minutes later. "Oh, he begged me not to do it," said the butterfly girlishly. And Solomon again worshipped unseen.—Oakland News.

Wifely Curiosity.

"Henry, dear, I tried on a suit of your clothes the other day, and it fitted me to perfection."

"May I ask your object in taking such a liberty with my garments?"

"Why, Hello Gramme told the board Tommy Tellver say that you wasn't much bigger than a shrimp, and I was just wondering how big a shrimp is."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Alike in One Way.

"He's quite wealthy and prominent now," said Mrs. Sterven, "and they say he rose practically from nothing."

"Well, well!" answered Mr. Bonder. "That's just what I rose from—at the breakfast table this morning."—London Answers.

Wild Animals and Medicine.

A writer in the British Medical Journal thinks that an interesting essay might be written on the addition to medical remedies made by animals. It is said that it is to dogs we owe the knowledge of the fever abating properties of bark, while to the hippopotamus is attributed the use of bleeding. The story as told in Philemon Holland's translation of Pliny is as follows: "The river-Horse hath taught physitions one deuice in that part of their profession called Surgerie, for he finding himself over-grosse and fat by reason of his high feeding so continually gets forth of the water to the shore, hauing spied afore where the reeds and rushes haue bin newly cut, and where he seeth the sharpest cane and best pointed hee sets his body hard on to it to pricke a certaine veine in one of his legs, and thus by letting himself bloud maketh evacuation, whereby his body, otherwise inclining to diseases and maladies, is well eased of the superfluous humor, and hauing thus done hee stoppeth the orifice against with mud and so stancheth the bloud and healeth the wound."

His Idea of the English.

The following illustrates Louis Philippe's idea of England and the English. He one day asked Hugo if he had ever been in England and on receiving a negative reply continued:

"Well, when you do go—for you will go—you will see how strange it is. It resembles France in nothing. Over there are order, arrangement, symmetry, cleanliness, well mowed lawns and profound silence on the streets. The passersby are as serious and as mute as spectera. When, being French and alive, you speak in the street these spectera look back at you and murmur with an inexpressible mixture of gravity and disdain, 'French people!' When I was in London I was walking arm in arm with my wife and sister. We were conversing in a not too loud tone of voice, for we are well bred persons, you know, yet all the passersby, hourgeois and men of the people, turned to gaze at us, and we could hear them growling behind us: 'French people! French people!'"—"Memoirs of Victor Hugo."

Rossini and the Drum.

When Rossini's "Gazza Ladra" was performed for the first time the drum in the orchestra not only excited much comment, but caused the enemies of the composer, whom they denounced as a "foolish inventor of unmusical novelties," to threaten Rossini with bodily violence. One young man, a pupil of Rolla's, gained admission to the composer's presence and declared that art had been so violently outraged by the invention that he must kill the offender. He drew a weapon, but consented to listen to argument. He had been a soldier, and when the composer asked him why there should not be a drum where there are soldiers he sheathed his knife. "Promise me, though," he said, "that you will put no drums in your future music." Rossini promised, but forgot.

The Retort Courteous.

A young man in a hurry went through the left side of a pair of swinging doors in the senate wing of the capitol at Washington last session and almost knocked over a senator who was about to push through the right side.

The young man apologized profusely. "I'm very sorry—I didn't know I was—I am in a great hurry."

"That's all right, son," said the senator. "But let me give you a piece of advice about going through doors like these. Always go through on the right side and turn to the right. Then if you meet anybody coming through and bump into him you needn't apologize. He'll be a darned fool, and it won't be necessary. Good morning."—Saturday Evening Post.

Greatly Underestimated.

"Bobby," asked his Sunday school teacher, "do you know how many disciples there were?" The little boy promptly said that he did and answered, "Twelve." Then he went on, "And I know how many Pharisees there were too."

"Indeed!"

"Yes'm. There was just one less than there was disciples."

"Why, how do you know that? It is nowhere stated how many Pharisees there were."

"I thought everybody knew it," said Bobby. "The Bible says, 'Beware of the leaven of the Pharisees,' doesn't it?"—Youth's Companion.

The Grandest.

"What is the grandest thing in the world?" asks Victor Hugo. "A clear sky," he answers and continues. "And what is grander than a storm at sea?" "The unclouded heavens on a starry, moonless night." "And what is grander than these midnight skies?" "The soul of man"—a spectacular climax such as Hugo loved and still, with all its dramatic effects, the picturesque statement of a vast and sublime and mighty truth.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nerve sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr Shoop in the crowding of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone, brought that nerve and flavor to Dr. Shoop's and his Restorative Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.

For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend

AN ISLAND OF QUIET.

Not Going Downtown in Madeira is an Exciting Event.

Madeira is populated, yet is one of the quietest as well as one of the most beautiful places in the world. Although the roads are paved with round beach stones, there is nothing to remind one of the fact, because, as David G. Fairchild, agricultural explorer of the department of agriculture, explains in the National Geographic Magazine, there are no horses or jolting wheels.

All vehicles in Madeira are on runners. If you go calling it is in a bullock sledge with canopy top and comfortable seats. If you move a bank safe or a steam boiler it is carried on a "stone boat," or sledge of poles, and you may have to get forty oxen to pull it. If you are in a villa on the hillside and want to get downtown you take a running car and slide down over the cobblestones.

Two strong men, each holding a guide rope, pull your car over a bag of grease to grease the runners and then give you a running shove and jump each on a runner behind as the car shoots down at a breakneck pace over the cobblestones.

The men yell, oxen and dogs scamper, fool passengers cling close to the wall of the narrow street, the runners get hot and fill the air with odor of burning wood as you shoot round sharp corners, down the long thoroughfare past gorgeous masses of flowering creepers which hang over the walls of the private villas that border your road.

But, oh, the change when you get to the bottom! You are obliged either to walk or take a cab drawn by slow moving bullocks squeaking and slipping over the stones.

ORIGIN OF THE HORSE.

The Modern Animal a Cross Between Two Ancient Breeds.

In Wissenschaftliche Prof. Dr. Koenig discusses in some detail the origin of the horse of to-day. He finds that the horse of neolithic times was not specifically distinct from the horse of the present. While it is no doubt that the horse of that period was used by man for food there seems to be no conclusive evidence as to whether it was domesticated or not. His own opinion however, is that it was probably do mesticated.

The horse of that time was closely allied to the tarpan or semi-wild horse that lived in Europe from up to a century ago. The was a "dog maned," short legged, little headed beast. It seems probable that the domesticated horses of the Germans of Caesar's time were derived from this breed.

The Egyptians had horses as early as 3000 B. C. These were long maned, more like the Arab horses, and came from Assyria. Where the Assyrians obtained their horses is unknown, but it was probably from southern Asia, where the long maned breed has been developed in all probability as the result of long continued domestication. The modern horse is a cross between these two breeds, with a further mixture of the Arab horse. The Arab horse, too, was itself a descendant of the earlier long maned horse.

The origin of the long maned horse is a matter of doubt, but Professor Koenig thinks it may have been from an extinct Indian species.

Women Who Marry at Thirty-five.

A German doctor lays it down as a well established fact based on close observation that women who do not marry until thirty-five or thereabout invariably achieve matrimonial success. Why women of this particular age should make more successful marriages than those who fall victims to love's young dream is fairly obvious. When a young woman marries between thirty and forty she either does so for companionship, choosing her mate accordingly, or from need, in which case she also chooses with a certain amount of care. She has no wild dreams of unalloyed bliss.—London Lady's Pictorial.

A Freak of the Lightning.

A curious case of lightning destruction took place some years ago at Gatchina, an imperial summer residence not far from St. Petersburg, where stood a stone column fifty feet high, held together by iron angles. When rain fell more or less water penetrated the stones in the interior of the monument. One day it was struck by lightning and instantly the column disappeared from view, killing a lone sentry on guard. The only explanation is that the heat of the lightning instantly generated steam on coming in contact with some of the water and the terrific explosion followed.

The Change of a Comma.

"Whenever she asks me to do anything," soliloquized Mr. Meekly pensively, "I always go and do it, like a fool."

"Yes," said Mrs. Meekly, who happened along in time to overhear him. "Whenever I ask you to do anything you always go and do it like a fool."

STOLEN BRIDE'S RETURN.

Wild Scenes at Reunion in Ireland—Light Hugs Bonfire.

Robert Flynn, of Ballinagleragh, county Leitrim, and his bride, who were boycotted because they were married before a registrar against the wishes of the priest, have been reunited after a two months' separation. After the marriage on March 16, a mob of thirty disguised men broke into Flynn's house and carried away the bride to her father's house. Since then bride and bridegroom have been kept apart, armed men maintaining a blockade of Flynn's house.

Recently the parish priest, Father King, called on Flynn and told him that the ceremony would take place the next day. The long-separated couple accordingly met and were united according to the rules of the Catholic Church. As Flynn's bodyguard there came a motley crowd mounted on mountain ponies and armed with every description of farming implement.

Another escort, also mounted and armed, accompanied the bride, but both escorts were ordered to remain outside the chapel while the ceremony was going on. They leant on their arms, eyeing one another with no friendly feelings, and apparently spoiling for a fight. The tension was relieved by the appearance of the married couple. Some of the rustic elders delivered speeches as to the necessity for a cessation of hostilities, as the Church and the people of the district had now been satisfied by the penance imposed on Flynn. Cheers were then given, the rival factions shook hands, and the guests adjourned to the bridegroom's house for the wedding feast.

About two o'clock in the morning, when the merrymaking was at its height, a score of masked men entered the house and indulged in the wildest display. They kissed the bride, drank freely, and, having practically cleared out the place and broken up the festivities, lit a huge bonfire outside the house, tearing down the greater part of the thatch of Flynn's house to feed the flames.

Flynn accepts all as the natural order of things, and counts proud of the victory he has gained over the forces arrayed against him.

STOLEN GEMS WERE PAWNED.

But Have Been Redeemed and Restored to Dublin Castle.

A recent London cable says:

Though Scotland Yard disclaims any knowledge of the transaction, and though Chief Secretary Birrell has diplomatically denied it in Parliament, it can be stated as a fact that the stolen regalian jewels are back in Dublin Castle.

The jewels whose theft from the safes of the Ulster King-at-Arms in Dublin Castle was discovered in July, 1907, have been released from a pawnshop in London for over $50,000—their value has been set down at $250,000—and have been taken to Ireland by the senior member of the firm of pawnbrokers.

It is understood that the money for the release of the stolen regalia was put up by a newly-created nobleman who has been given a household berth for the accommodation.

It was hoped that this transaction would definitely close the unhappy and mysterious affair. To the contrary, it seems to have given it new life, and now an Irish barrister, a kinsman of Sir Arthur Vicars, has applied to a magistrate for an examination of the Viceroy and Chief Secretary of Ireland on the charge of compounding a felony. Of course, the magistrate refuses to give the barrister a hearing, and the English papers do not even give his name.

Pierce O'Mahony, the half-brother of Sir Arthur Vicars, has never faltered in his belief that his kinsman, in addition to having been dismissed for negligence in office, has been allowed to die under a cloture of disgraceful and sordid conduct, and, further, that he has been made a scapegoat to shield a lot of disreputables who have brought shame to Dublin Castle circles.

Second Sight.

One night a party of soldiers were telling stories of thrilling adventures, unpolished spectacles, marvelous sight-seeing experiments, etc., gathered around the camp fire in the Transvaal. An Irishman had listened with open mouth, striking eyes and bated breath to the descriptions and subsequent escapes of his comrades in arms. Then, clearing his throat, the Irishman said:

"No doubt, me boys, ye have seen some wonderful sights, but me father used to exhibit us that when he wanted to read a newspaper she had to buy two and hold one in each hand, about the length of a hogshead apiece, and even then she has sometimes stood around her door looking like a crab after over the bridge of her nose."

Princesses Who Work.

The Duke of Sabbenig-Kobalo-Saalenburg-Gladsburg believes that every princess should be competent to earn her own living if necessary, and each of his daughters has a specialty for some trade or profession. The youngest, Princess Caroline Matilda, has just finished a course in typewriting and stenography. Her eldest sister, Victoria Adelaide, now the wife of the Duke of Saxe-Coburg, was graduated a few years ago from the Berlin Royal School of Cookery and has received a diploma in all that pertains to the kitchen. Princess Alexandria is a milliners pupil. Princess Helena is a trained nurse, and Princess Adelaide is a kindergarten teacher.

His Way Out.

A certain Irish member of Parliament, popular and a bachelor, had given public to the daughter of the house where he was visiting. When the time came for him to go the fair maiden nervously called him in for a serious talk. "I'm sure I don't know what to say," she went on. "The proposal all around that you are to marry Letitia."

"Then say that she refused me," quickly advised the Parliamentarian.

Both women were sentenced to fourteen days for "demonstrating" on the Prime Minister's doorstep.

London, July 13.—One of the most notable sales of rare autographs that London has known in years will begin to-morrow at Sotheby's. American collectors will be well represented at the auction and are likely to carry off many of the rarities.

Among the eminent authors whose letters or manuscripts will be auctioned off are Sir Walter Scott, Charlotte Bronte, Samuel T. Coleridge, Charles Dickens, Lord Alfred Tennyson, Robert Burns, and William M. Thackeray.

There is a very important series of ninety-five letters written by Sir Walter Scott to the Marchioness of Aberdeen between the years 1815 and 1830. They make a total of 353 pages of writing in Scott's hand. It is said that this will be the finest series of his letters ever offered at public auction. His friendship with the Marchioness is well known, and the letters are, as might be expected, of an unusually interesting character.

Chicago, July 14.—By the death-bed confession of George Downer, the first clue has been furnished to the fate of the Bender family, who terrorized Kansas in 1873. The daughter, Kate Bender, drew the victims herself, and was greatly feared by the people on a wish.

The undersigned has received an allotment of unsold portion of $150,000 of

7 Per Cent. First Mortgage Five-Year Gold Bonds

dated January 11, 1908, and maturing January 11, 1913. These Bonds are offered at par and accrued interest by Metropolitan Trust & Savings Bank, Chicago, trustees.

SECURITY—The Entire Property and Improvements Owned THE URES CONSOLIDATED MINING COMPANY in the District of Ures, State of Sonora Mexico, Free from Mortgage or Bonded Indebtedness except this present Bond Issue.

An Unusual Opportunity for Investment in Sound Security

The Ures Consolidated Mining Company offers $150,000.00 of First Mortgage Gold Bonds. This issue of bonds is the only mortgage or bonded indebtedness ever placed on the company's properties.

These bonds are in the denomination of $100.00, and bear interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, July and January, and are redeemable on or before five years from date at the company's option at $110.00 and accrued interest.

$100.00 Stock Bonus Given with Every $100.00 Bond

With each bond issued there will be given $100.00 par value of the capital stock of the company as a bonus, and in addition thereto there will be placed in escrow with the Trustee additional stock which will be available to the bondholders at their option any time within a period of three years, the bondholder being entitled to surrender his bond any time within said period and receive in lieu thereof stock for every dollar of indebtedness to him on account of said bonds.

The Security Back of these Bonds

The company owns twelve claims situated in the district of Ures, State of Sonora, Mexico, free from mortgage or bonded indebtedness, except the present bond issue.

On one of these properties (The Ramona Mine) 6,000 feet of underground development work has been done, consisting of an inclined shaft to the depth of 400 feet with drifts in three levels to the North and South of the shaft.

An average value of ore worth $11.47 per ton is exposed throughout the mine, from the collar of the shaft to the extreme parts in the drifts, all of which is above water level.

The company has made surface improvements and mine improvements to the extent of $60,000.00 in the way of machinery, shafts, trams, steam hoists, mill and nearly everything necessary to make the mining camp complete.

In addition to the absolute ownership of these twelve valuable claims, the company has a lease on the San Jose Mine, adjoining its property, in which the company has been operating in high grade ore.

During the past sixty days the company has extracted and delivered to ore buyers and the bank at Hermosillo, $8,000.00 worth of ore and bullion, the ore having been reduced to bullion through the company's mill, with the exception of 1,464 pounds, which was sold to an ore buyer for $468.80.

The Money Derived from the Sale of These Bonds

This issue of bonds is made for the purpose of securing money at once in order to extend the development work more quickly than the company's present means will permit.

With the high grade ore in sight to the distance of 50 feet to the South of the shaft, the management is assured that within six months from date of making the improvements now necessary the company's properties will be on a self-sustaining and dividend-paying basis.

The Stock which is Given with these bonds will be as valuable as the Bonds when the Company has the ready capital to push operations

Men who invest in these bonds will have no cause or reason to regret their action, for the bonds afford an investment in a security which is absolutely safe—much better than ordinary city or country real estate, which is considered perfectly safe if the property put up to secure a mortgage is double the face of the loan. The security given on these bonds is better than 7 to 1, for the Ures Consolidated Mining Company has refused an offer of $300,000.00 for the property upon which this $150,000.00 worth of bonds is issued.

These bonds are an investment with all speculative risk eliminated —an investment with absolute security.

Make your reservation at once. This is small and promises to be quickly sold.

To whom it may concern:—

We hereby beg to state that The Ures Consolidated Mining Company has during the past five years made several deliveries of bullion to this bank, and it is the opinion of mining men here that they have the making of a fair mine, and further, that the properties owned and controlled by them bid promise of becoming paying properties.

From our knowledge of the men connected, we believe they are doing all in their power to bring about the results above mentioned.

1 CENT A 2 SHARE

Send us your name as a member in this new company, with your remittance for as many thousand shares as you can take at 5c per thousand.

This is a short-time offer on a hurry-up proposition. Our vice president is up at Rawhide now putting the miners at work. We want to raise the necessary funds for development as quickly as possible. Therefore, we offer the first block of stock at 5c a thousand shares. This subscription must be all cash. We want the money in hand. We mean to work without let-up, and we have made it an ironclad rule not to run in debt. Cash counts now.

Our prospectuses are out. Send for one.

Make reservation of stock, if you do no more. But, remember, this present offer of stock at Half a Cent a Share is now open, and will be closed as soon as enough cash subscriptions are in hand. Don't wait, or you will get left.

The gold mining property owned outright by the company consists of 7 claims, 5 in the Rawhide district of Nevada, and 2 in the Dulzura district of Southern California.

The Rawhide district to-day is more famous than Goldfield, Tonopah, Bullfrog, or Searchlight were at the same stage of exploration and development. The Dulzura discovery is one of the most sensational in the history of California.

Ten samples of ore which were among the first assayed, run as high as $7,461.37 to the ton, and all ten averaged over $3,500 a ton.

In both camps we headed early, and our locations are choice. Our even millions will operate and the mining.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the Northwest Provinces, excepting 8 and 26 reserved may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father or mother.

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

Says This Medicine Has Mystic Powers

Will Assist Anyone in Weak, Pale, Nervous Condition to Robust, Hearty, Health.

It's in the spring that health gives out—that folks begin to feel draggy, weary, restless,—hate to eat, look pale, feel discouraged.

If you've reached this state, read what J. W. Jervell, well known in Morristown, has to say about the medicine that cured him. "Last winter I caught a heavy cold that settled in my back. My kidneys and liver were affected and my health failed. By spring I was in bad shape—couldn't sleep like I used to—felt tired in the morning—ate very little—was terribly depressed, pale and anxious looking. Twinges of rheumatism, frequent neuralgia attacks over the temples, made matters worse. The doctor prescribed three times, but didn't help. Then I heard of Dr. Hamilton's Pills.—They possess mystic power surely, for I gained and improved day by day and now am in perfect health again. I will praise and use Dr Hamilton's Pills till I die."

The ingredients in Dr. Hamilton's Pills are pure and wholesome—come right from the storehouse of Nature in the form of vegetable juices and extracts.—consequently this gentle invigorating laxative tonic and blood purifier is safe for old and young alike. We assure you of enormous benefit from Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which revitalize delicat glands, search out the seat of hidden disease, flood the body with vigor and health that has caused thousands of broken-down, despairing men and women to join in a mighty song of praise for the beneficient aid that comes from this king of all tonics. Get Dr. Hamilton's Pills today. 25c at all dealers.

Escaped Being Seriously Injured

Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Stuart and family of Young's Point, had a narrow escape from a serious accident one day last week. They were driving to Lakefield and had just alighted from the vehicle, when the horses bolted. The result was that the rig was badly smashed, the harness broken, and one of the horses so badly hurt that it may be found necessary to shoot it.

Rain Brings Thousands of Frogs

Keene, July 16.—Monday's rainstorm brought with it thousands of frogs, or, at any rate, they were numerous before the rain and were very numerous immediately afterwards. They cannot be called a plague of frogs. They are instead rather a blessing to the anglers as they provide bait and besides seem to bring lots of black and yellow bass into the river. Since the frogs came, good catches of bass have been made in the river.

Lindsay Boys at Y.M.C.A. Camp

The Y.M.C.A. boys left for their summer camp this morning with cap flying and cheers of enjoyment in anticipation of a good time down the lakes. The boys took their tents for Peterborough and accompanied by the Port Hope and Peterborough Y.M.C.A. boys, will continue their journey by boat to their destination. Owing to Mr. Cook, the local secretary, being unable to accompany the lads, four of them went than would other wise have gone. But without a doubt the camp will have a good time.—Lindsay Post.

Lived in Peterborough 57 Years Ago

Mr. William Johnson of Lancaster, N.Y., is in the city, renewing old acquaintances. He is staying at his nephew's, Dr. Johnston, Monaghan road. Mr. Johnson was in Peterborough 50 years ago, and was a passenger on the first train that left here for Lindsay. He notes the rapid progress of Peterborough as compared with the other towns he visited at that time, and congratulates her people on making such good use of their opportunities. Mr. Johnson is an expert with the kodak and has been commissioned by the Buffalo Courier to bring home some bright snap shots of our lakes and rivers.

Wedding Bells

Harris—MacKay

A very pretty wedding was celebrated at St. Mary's church when Miss Effie MacKay, daughter of Mr and Mrs. MacKay of town was united in marriage to Mr. Wm Gordon Harris. Rev. Mr. Collins officiated. The girlish bride was charmingly attired in white point d'esprit over silk with trimming valenciennes lace and baby irish point. The traditional bride's veil and orange blossoms completed the picture of girlish beauty.

She was attended by Miss Nettie O'Boyle who was daintily gowned in white organdie muslin. The groom was supported by Mr. David J. O'Brien of Peterborough.

After the ceremony the guests partook of a dainty wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's parents on Russell street. The dining room and tables were tastefully decorated with smilax, ferns and white carnations and marguerites.

Among the guests from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. J. Parcells, of Havelock, Miss McLenmount, of Toronto.—Lindsay Warder.

Low—Wood

A pretty and quiet wedding was solemnized this morning at 7.30 7 o'clock at the house of the and Mrs. J. W. Wood, Bond street, when their daughter, Miss Ethel May Wood, was united in marriage to Mr. James Low. The Rev. H. V. Mountaer, of Cannington, uncle of the bride, performed the ceremony. Only the immediate friends of the family were present.

The bride was unattended. She wore a charming travelling suit of champagne colored raw silk. Her headdress was a brown walking hat and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses, the gift of the groom.

Immediately after the ceremony the happy couple took the C.P.R. train for Winnipeg, from which point they will start on an extensive tour of the Canadian Northwest.

The gifts presented were numerous and handsome, betokening a wide circle of admiring friends.—Lindsay Warder.

A Most Valuable Agent.

The glycerine employed in Dr. Pierce's medicines greatly enhances the medicinal properties which it extracts from native medicinal roots and holds in solution much better than alcohol would. It also possesses medicinal properties of its own, being a valuable demulcent, nutritive, antiseptic and antiferment. It adds greatly to the efficacy of the Black Cherry-bark, Bloodroot, Golden Seal root, Stone root and Queen's root, contained in "Golden Medical Discovery" in subduing chronic, or lingering coughs, bronchial, throat and lung affections, for all of which these agents are recommended by standard medical authorities.

In all cases where there is a wasting away of flesh, loss of appetite, with weak stomach, as in the early stages of consumption, there can be no doubt that glycerine acts as a valuable nutritive and aids the Golden Seal root, Stone root, Queen's root and Black Cherry-bark in promoting digestion and building up the flesh and strength, controlling the cough and bringing about a healthy condition of the whole system. Of course, it must not be expected to work miracles. It will not cure consumption except in its earlier stages. It will cure, very severe, obstinate, hang-on, chronic coughs, bronchial and laryngeal troubles and chronic sore throat with hoarseness. In acute coughs it is not so effective. It is in the lingering hang-on coughs, or those of long standing, even when accompanied by bleeding from lungs, that it has performed its most marvelous cures.

Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Med. College, Chicago, says of glycerine:

"In dyspepsia it serves an excellent purpose. Holding a fixed quantity of the peroxide of hydrogen in solution, it is one of the best manufactured products of the present time in its action upon enfeebled, disordered stomachs, especially if there is ulceration or catarrhal gastritis (catarrhal inflammation of stomach). It is a most efficient preparation. Glycerine will relieve many cases of pyrosis (heartburn) and excessive gastric (stomach) acidity."

"Golden Medical Discovery" enriches and purifies the blood curing blotches, pimples, eruptions, scrofulous swellings and old sores or ulcers.

Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., for free booklet telling all about the native medicinal roots composing this wonderful medicine. There is no alcohol in it.

"There's a Reason"

A DRAMA OF VILLAINY.

Just Suppose That Johann Hoch and Mrs. Guinness Had Met.

"If the paths of Johann Hoch and Mrs. Belle Guinness had crossed and each had conspired to take the life and worldly possessions of the other, each ignorant of the other's plot, the psychological developments and result would have interested criminologists."

The above statement is the substance of a hypothetical proposition originated by Chief Deputy Sheriff Charles Peters, who finds what he considers striking parallelisms in the lives and records of these two persons.

"It would have been interesting," he said, "from a criminological viewpoint to watch a contest between Mrs. Guinness and Hoch had they met as a result of a matrimonial advertisement of the woman and their schemes had crossed wires.

"She was a female Hoch, and he was a male Guinness. He watched the death notices of men and found out who of them were insured and married the widows whenever he could, putting them out of the way to get the insurance money.

"Mrs. Guinness, according to the reports, advertised for well to do husbands, stating that she was comely and possessed of a fortune, and after getting one would put him out of the way for his money.

"Suppose, now, that Hoch had seen one of her advertisements, answered it and a meeting had been arranged. She would have had in her mind Hoch's money, and Hoch would have had in his mind her money. Then would have come the contest, each plotting, scheming with all of his or her cleverness to get the better of the other.

"It would have beaten, I believe, any drama of villainy ever produced on the stage. Who would have done the other? Which of them would now be under the ground, a victim of the other's treachery, and which enjoying the money of the other?"—Chicago News.

A Grotesque Ruler.

Possibly somewhere in the jungles of Africa or perhaps in the mystic east or on the planet Mars there is a president, potentate, shah, rajah, sultan or some other sort of ruler who is as strange and grotesquely impossible as President Nord Alexis of Haiti, but certainly there is none to compare with him in this hemisphere. Castro of Venezuela comes close perhaps, but Castro's style differs, and, while he defies the great powers of the earth, he does not approach in pure picturesqueness the venerable man who sits in the presidential palace at Port au Prince and runs the little black republic to suit himself. Imagine a typical Ethiopian between ninety and a hundred years of age, bloodthirsty and apparently only half civilized, a dealer of death to political enemies, a believer in voodooism, and you have a faint idea of what he is. For anything more one must go to Haiti and see for himself.—Argonaut.

Frozen In For Half a Century.

The old wooden English warship Investigator, which has been frozen in at Mercy bay, Baring island, since Sept. 24, 1851, has at last been freed from the ice. It seems almost incredible that the ice in Mercy bay has never melted before in the course of half a century, but nevertheless that is the truth. Last summer was, however, a mild one, and the ship was liberated, while the winter having been open, the vessel still remains free. There will be a general desire to have the ship brought to England, and this will be easy, for it appears she is in sound condition. Sir Robert McClure was commander of the Investigator during the search for the Franklin expedition. The vessel had to be abandoned, and it has been frozen in ever since.—London Mail.

Automatic Coin Assorter.

A recent issue of an Austrian journal gives an account of an automatic money assorter that will assort metal coins which have been thrown together regardless of their denominations, placing each denomination in a separate basket. The various coins are thrown indiscriminately into a funnel at the top of the machine, and from the funnel they slide downward, alighting on a spiral track. This track has a protecting edge or raised border containing slits corresponding to the various sizes of the coins. As the coins of various denominations glide downward on to the track through some peculiar mechanism of the machine they pass through the slits corresponding to their various sizes, entering their respective baskets at the bottom of the machine.

The Circus.

"The circus used to be an American institution," remarked an old time circus man the other day. "But things have changed. I went into the dressing room of a big show recently, and nearly all of the performers are foreigners. There are few good American circus performers any more. Old Bob Stickney was there. He does a 'manage act' with a team of horses, even though he's sixty-two years old now. He used to be the best bareback rider on the road outside of Jimmy Robinson. But there are mighty few of the old timers left, and there never will be any as good."

Three Strong Ones.

"With Mr. Onion running for congress in Texas and Mr. Leake already there, we only need Mr. Garlic to complete the trio," says the Augusta Herald. All right; here he is. Mr. Garlick is a candidate in Louisiana.—Washington Herald.

They should come in bunches—three for a scent.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Some cloudless day they will all be in the soup.—Judge.

Crocker Expects Simpson to Win--Will be Number 64

London, July 17.—The rainy weather and the high prices keep the crowds away from the games in the Stadium.

It was officially stated today that the prices will be lowered to prevent a financial failure.

Young, the Toronto cyclist, was fifth in his heat of the 62-mile race, but was not listed among the finalists. Andrews finished in sixth place.

Manager Crocker of the Canadian team has asked the Olympic Committee to have the mistake rectified, and Young placed in the finals.

London, July 17.—Tom Flanagan believes that the injury to Longboat's knee is not serious. His arm is alright. Last night Longboat walked half a mile. His knee will be examined by doctors this evening.

The first intimation of the accident to Longboat reached Canada in Lou E. Marsh's special cable to the Star. There was created consternation in local sporting circles, as it was feared the Indian might have hurt himself so badly as to prevent him starting in the Marathon, which is to be run a week from today.

However, the news today from over seas is more reassuring, and Longboat will likely be able to carry the Maple Leaf to victory next week.

London, July 17.—In the Marathon race, to be run a week from today, Canadians will be distinguished by the following numbers:

Simpson 64.
Lawson 65.
Goldsboro 66.
Goulding 67.
Wood 68.
Cotter 69.
Noseworthy 70.
Caffery 71.
Longboat 72.
Lister 73.
Burn 74.
Tait 75.

EXPECTS SIMPSON TO WIN

London, July 17.—Told of Longboat's accident, Manager Crocker of the Canadian team said that it would save him from defeat, as Simpson is going strong. He did 5 miles in 50 minutes last evening in a heavy rain.

CANADA'S CRACK SHOTS

London, July 17.—Ewing, Westover, and Fletcher of Canada shot well on the handicaps of the Clay Bird Shooting Association meeting. The first-named divided the Specie Handicap, and the others took places in the other events.

GORGEOUS PAGEANTS AT QUEBEC

Quebec, July 17.—The most gorgeous spectacles that Quebec, the Ancient City, have ever beheld were witnessed upon the stage of nature on the Plains of Abraham for three hours yesterday afternoon and evening. It was the first prop at the pageants, a rehearsal before the eyes of estimates are they could gaze of outsiders' criticism should fall upon them.

Fourteen thousand people packed the amphitheatre stand, four thousand more were a part of the pageantry, another five thousand thronged the plain outside unable to gain entrance. The city suddenly awoke and became en fete. Marked with the rest on crowded walks were the pageant players in red and gold, blue, green and purple, with flashing swords and plumes nodding from three-cornered hats. The street scene was a prelude to the animated ones that were to follow on the Plains of Abraham.

AN IMPRESSIVE SCENE.

Here from top to bottom, the stands were packed with people, and a line of one hundred recruits of the R.C.R. form a guard and border along the entire front. Here and there, amid the groves at the sides of the grassy foreground, flit bright-colored figures. But there is a deep silence over the hills, the broad river and the wide waiting land of plain and forest. Outlined on the edge of the cliff stand an Indian, motionless, gazing over the river, gazing into the future. The sound of singing reaches his ears; he utters a cry, for he has caught sight of three strange ships and out from their wigwams the Indians come gliding to see the white strangers—Jacques Cartier and his crew—some seventy years before Champlain. Soon they march up the hill, while the sailors chant. They are received gladly, the Indians bring their sick to be healed; Cartier makes over them the sign of the cross; then beads and other trinkets are thrown to them, and then religion enters into the pageant. Strong men raise on high a huge cross, thirty-five feet in length, and as it rises, a real priest invokes a blessing upon it, and the people on the stands, despite an urgent appeal of the directors raise a cheer.

Thus, in nearly all of these history repeating pageants worship mingles closely with the deeds of explorers and warriors, and stamps deep the impression upon the minds of the French-Canadians, who thus vividly read the early history of their church in Canada. The costumes in this are rather sombre, dark red and blue, a hint of the gloom from the danger and mystery of the new world. The whole scene is skilfully performed.

A PRESENTATION AT COURT

All pass off the stage and a scene follows that is dazzling in the brilliancy of its coloring and the breadth of the conception. It is Jacques Cartier presenting some of his Indians before the King of France. From the left there enter some fifty ladies of the court in rich robes of silk, and gaily colored. Far down the plains to the right is seen a cavalcade of courtiers in shoes of velvet and satins, and the King and his Queen, gorgeously apparelled in gold, ride under a canopy of silk. Golden isles of fruit are carried by pages in white and red, and a troupe of fawns.

Hon. Geo. A. Cox will Lay the Corner Stone

The corner stone of the new Methodist church at Lakefield, will be laid Wednesday, July 22nd. The ceremony will be performed by Hon. Geo. A. Cox. After the ceremony a grand social will be held on the parsonage grounds, commencing at five o'clock. At the conclusion of the social addresses will be delivered by the Rev. H. M. Manning, Rev. G. W. Henderson of Peterborough, Jas. Thompson, M.P.P., Havelock, and other prominent gentlemen.

Beaver Made Dam for the Government

The industry and skill of a colony of beaver saved the Dominion Government $2,000 or more on work on the Trent Canal.

Superintendent J. H. McClelland, of the Trent Canal, was a guest at the annual outing of the Toronto Engineers' Club in the Government tug Bessie Butler, on the Trent waterways yesterday, and told the remarkable happening. The Government, he said, placed a dam across Gull River last autumn for the purpose of raising and conserving the water in Little Mud Lake. On its completion it was found, however, that the water of the lake backed up and began running in the wrong direction. As a consequence it was decided to build a second dam at the northern outlet. To the amazement of all the engineers who proceeded to the spot to make the surveys, they found the work done. A perfect dam, 700 feet long and 7 feet deep, had been constructed by beaver during the frozen water months. There was not a leak discernible, and no likelihood of future leaks, at least for years to come.

Mr. McClelland ordered another stop log to be placed upon the first dam to raise the water an additional foot and send it flowing again northward over the beavers' obstruction. Instantly the ambitious little animals set to work and added another foot to the dam.

A Number of Buffalo Citizens in the City

While returning from Cobalt where they have been installing smelting machines in a number of mining mills, a number of the leading manufacturers of Buffalo, stopped in this city yesterday. The party consisted of J. Kenech, assistant chief of Buffalo Fire Department; George Gessir, president of the Gessir Smelting Co., Buffalo; Mr. Rant of Buffalo, and a number of other Buffalo men. They visited the fire hall yesterday afternoon and inspected the apparatus.

Mr. Kenech met with an accident at a fire recently in Buffalo, and had his collar bone broken, and as a consequence carries his arm in a sling.

19 Survivors of Kidnapped S.Sea Islanders Returning to Liberty

Britain Took Notic and Arranged for the Release of All that were Left of Them

In Slavery 18 Years

San Francisco, July 17.—Nineteen survivors of several hundred South Sea Islanders kidnapped 18 years ago from their native strand and sold into slavery among the coffee plantations of Guatemala, arrived here yesterday on the steamer City of Para. They are free, and homeward bound and in addition to this they are traveling as tourists with their Government paying expenses.

The natives were kidnapped by Captain Blackburn, now dead, who visited the islands in his steamer, the Montserrat, and enticing them aboard, sailed away. They were supposed to be contract laborers bound to their Guatemalan employers for three years. Ignorant of the language and in a land where the law is sometimes the dictators' will, it was easy to keep them on the plantations, where they slaved until their plight was made known to the British Government, which, however, was not until 18 years had passed.

Cape Town and Newfoundland to Send Phthisis Foes to Washington

Washington, July 16.—Speaking literally, the ends of the earth are to be represented at the international congress on tuberculosis to be held in Washington September 21 to October 12. Within the last few days Dr. John S. Fulton, the secretary general of the congress, has been notified of the formation of a committee of arrangements for Cape Colony, South Africa, and of the appointment of official delegates by the department of state of Denmark, Spain, Newfoundland, Russia, England, Scotland and France.

The chairman of the South African committee is Dr. A. Jasper Anderson of Cape Town, medical officer of health for that district and chairman of the council of the Association for the Prevention of Consumption and of other forms of tuberculosis in Cape Colony. The committee includes, in addition to a number of representative physicians, and laymen, Rev. A. P. Bender, rabbi of the Synagogue at Cape Town.

TO EXPLAIN BANG METHOD.

The official delegates from Denmark are Professor B. Bang, Professor Fibiger and Dr. H. Rordam, a military surgeon and a member of the Danish parliament. Dr. Bang will deliver a lecture to the congress on the method of immunization of cattle which has been adopted by the Danish government and which bears his name. The Bang method has attracted favorable attention in the United States and is being tried by some dairymen. The system is a welcome substitute for the plan of killing all infected cattle. Instead of resorting to extreme measures, tubercular cows are not required to be disposed of, but are separated from the main herd. The calves of these animals are removed from the infected herd, are carefully fed on sterilized milk, and if results justify it are finally placed with the healthy herd. In this way the healthy herd gradually increases in size and the diseased ones run out.

Dr. Casallo Calleja, of Madrid, the Spanish official delegate, is a writer on scientific topics and is the author of a number of well-known works. Dr. Ramony Cajal of Madrid, the winner of the Nobel medical prize awarded in 1906, is a member of the Spanish committee of arrangements for the congress.

FRENCH DELEGATES COMING.

The French official delegates reported so far include Professor L. Landouzy of the faculty of medicine at the University of Paris, the president of the French committee of arrangements for the congress; Mr. Leune, inspector of the academy, who will represent the department of public instruction of France, and Dr. Maurice Mignon of Nice, who will come from the Mediterranean Medical Society. Dr. S. S. Sterkapulo of Moscow will come as a delegate of the permanent Russian tuberculosis commission and K. J. Kaining of Riga will represent the Baltic Veterinary Society.

Dr. Henry B. Beyer, chairman of the committee on the exhibition to be held in connection with the congress, has been notified of the arrival in this country of the exhibits which have been assembled by the national committees of Germany, Sweden and Switzerland. The new national museum, in which the congress and the exhibition are to be housed, will not finish by the time the congress convenes. The first and second floors, however, will be put into such a state as to house the congress and the exhibits conveniently. These two floors have a combined space of about 150,000 square feet. The use of this building was authorized by congress and $40,000 was appropriated for the purpose of making it available for the meeting and to accommodate the exhibits.

The Justification of Imprisonment

Montreal, July 16—Mr. W. P. Archibald, Dominion Parole Officer, read an interesting paper on the "Parole and Proposed Indefinite Sentence System" before the Union of Canadian Municipalities here today.

The work of reformation, also the rehabilitation, of a criminal was one of the most arduous undertakings which could be conceived, he said. To strengthen repressive actions and at the same time to introduce more humanity into the operation of the laws—to sometimes ask for indulgence rather than rigor, without abandoning any of the indisputable guarantees of social order, and of justice—was the paramount principle and practical object of the parole system of Canada.

"On principle," said Mr. Archibald, "nothing justifies the imprisonment of a man except that satisfactory proof is forthcoming that his freedom is dangerous to society. Now, if we except this principle, two consequences follow logically from it.

First, that none should be imprisoned except those whose liberty would be a danger to society.

"Second, that these should be imprisoned, not for periods fixed in advance, but just as long as their freedom may be a danger to society.

"The second of these conclusions is embodied in the principle of the indefinite sentence system. Many are anxious to see it adopted in Canada in connection with the parole system, which is giving such good satisfaction at present.

OPPOSITION TO SYSTEM.

"The indefinite sentence system has met with some opposition from a few of the leading and prominent European jurists. It has also its strong advocates, and in the prison reforms of France, Russia, and Italy we find this system strongly urged and recommended.

THEORETICAL CRITICISM.

"I have read the various criticisms and find their opposition based on purely theoretical grounds. I firmly believe that it is only a question of time for this system to find a permanent place in the judicial system of all civilized countries.

"This system will make it clear enough to distinguish between the accidental and the professional criminal, to give the first-offender an opportunity to recover his footing, and show the second-offenders that while he is determined to lead a criminal life he can have no footing whatever.

CHRISTIAN ETHICS.

"The last analysis of the question of crime and the treatment of the criminal is the vital question of the supremacy of Christian ethics. If the Christian religion declines and its forces weaken, crime will inevitably increase. If the principles and the spirit of true Christianity gain added power in the life of our Canadian people, crime will surely decrease.

"A Christian faith, looking forward in confidence to the ultimate triumph of Christian ethics, can hardly fail to expect a progressive decline of crime, and in the future its final extinction."

Canada Greets Earl Roberts, the Idol of the British Army

Old Citadel Now Shelters the Field Marshall on His Visit to Canada

The Salute of Guns

Quebec, July 17. —" Earl Roberts came ashore today at 9.40, and the Citadel now shelters "Bobs," the idol of the British army, on his visit to Canada, and with him the Duke of Norfolk, premier Duke of England. Distinction thus early sits upon the Tercentenary.

ARRIVED LAST NIGHT.

The hero of Kandahar and of South Africa, and now Field Marshal of the British army, came over in the C.P.R. steamship Empress of Ireland, which, in spite of being detained by fog in the Gulf, made the passage from Liverpool to Rimouski in five days eighteen hours. It had been intended to receive the distinguished visitor last evening, but the late arrival of the steamer, 10.45, caused the military arrangements to be cancelled, and outside of a visit from a few military officers, Earl Roberts was undisturbed.

LORD ROBERTS' RECEPTION.

This morning the guard of honor, composed of fifty men from the Citadel regiment, the Royal Garrison Artillery, in command of Captain Clairemont, and headed by the regimental band, marched down to the steamer dock, but this inconvenient for such a reception, and a more ceremonial landing was made. A swift launch, the picket boat of the British flagship Exmouth, took him on board, and conveyed him to the King's wharf, where a floating stage, especially constructed for the Prince of Wales, received the great soldier. It was a combined naval and military ceremony, for on the dock were General Lake, Brigadier General Otter and Staff General Buchan, Lieut.-Col. Banbury-Williams, Lieut.-Col. Sherwood, and Lord Lugelles, aide-de-camp to the Governor-General, and the naval officers.

There were also Vice-Admiral Lord Curzon-Howe, Rear Admiral Sir John Gellicoe and their staffs. Most prominent among the citizens was Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. The change in the arrangements surprised the people, and few were there, but the terrace two hundred feet above was thronged.

THE SALUTE OF GUNS.

As the picket in charge of the Commander-in-Chief's Flag Lieut. Hordmen Jones, glided to the dock, the guns of the warship boomed out, and the smoke shot them for a moment from view. Then the salute of nineteen guns from the Citadel, and Earl Roberts stepped out, and was welcomed by General Lake, and was introduced to the other officers. He wore the full dress uniform of Field Marshal and his latest decorations.

DARK BROWN TASTE

Your Head Aches
Tongue is Coated
Mouth Tastes Bad
Stomach is Sick.

The Greatest Juxon Are Not Doing Their Duty and You're in the Grip of Nervous Dyspepsia.

A hot bitter taste, and sour indigested food rises in your mouth.

Your vision is obscured with specks that float before the eyes.

Very shortly you'll have nausea, rank breath, and sleepless nights.

What you need is Ferrozone.

It regulates the gastric juices, put new life into the stomach, braces digestive powers, gives the aid that's so badly required.

Ferrozone is the best treatment because it goes to the root of the trouble, remedies the conditions that cause dyspepsia and thereby cures permanently.

If you want proof, read the experience of Mr. E. P. Davidson, a well known resident of Portland, who writes: "Ferrozone is beyond doubt a most powerful cure for indigestion and weak stomach. Food so badly disagreed with me that I was almost afraid to eat. Pastry and starchy foods fermented, caused sour risings and gave me headache, brown taste and foul breath. I grew weak, my weight ran down fifteen pounds and my looks fully indicated all that was wrong. Ferrozone put me on my feet again. It braced me up, renewed my digestion and made me a well man."

Doctors and patents alike speak of the merit of Ferrozone; it is different from other remedies, different because it cures as you stay cured. Try it; sold everywhere in 25c. boxes.

Fitting Up New Billiard Parlour

Mr. M. Peppas, one of Peterborough's leading tobacconists, has now nearly ready the new pool and billiard room, which is situated just above his store. It is reached by a staircase in the old pool room, and will contain six pool tables and a billiard table. Mr. Peppas expects to have it all completed by the end of next week.

The "Champs" Here with an All-Star Aggregation

Port Hope, July 17.—The local baseball team leaves for Peterborough tomorrow morning with the strongest aggregation that has ever represented the town. Five new men will appear in the Greys uniform, and when they strap onto the diamond, Manager Johnston of the Potes, will sit up and take notice.

The new men are some of the snappiest ball players that could be secured, and the boys are out to give the Electric City also a good drubbing. The local management have had their eyes on a few of the good ones of the International League, and when that organization went to the wall the cream of the players were picked up. The boys will be accompanied by a few enthusiastic fans with a liberal supply of the long green. The team is out to win and win they must.

In the Realm of Sport

London, July 17.—A telegram received here from Kilmallock, County Limerick, where Tom Longboat, the Canadian Indian runner, is training, says the injury he sustained yesterday a slight. He slipped and injured a knee and arm, but his was able to continue the run in which he was engaged at the time, and did 14 miles in 75 minutes.

Chas. Burkholders, the fast outside wing of the Hamilton Tigers, who is now working on the new armories here, has been on nine championship teams, viz., three juniors, four intermediates and two seniors.

The secretary of the Peterborough Baseball team, has been trying to arrange a game with the Toronto Eastern League team, but President McCafferty says that the team will be unable to come here on account of not having an open date.

By the narrowest possible margin the Peterborough Cricket Club was defeated in a closely contested match at Nichols Oval Thursday afternoon, by an eleven representing Millbrook. The visitors won by 69 runs to 65 after a most interesting game which was enjoyed by spectators and players alike. That the grand old game is reviving in interest was shown by the number of people present to witness the game, a large attendance of the fair sex being noticeable.

W. G. Marshall of the local club was top scorer, putting on a fruitless innings for 22, while T. Allen of the visitors contributed a useful 14. Had it not been for the inland made by Marshall, Peterborough would have been badly beaten. Six wickets had fallen for 29, and his steady batting, his score consisting mainly of singles, was very useful.

Ball for Peterborough and Stephenson for the visitors both did good work with the ball, and in addition pulled off some pretty catches.

The visitors were entertained at dinner by the Peterborough club, and left for home on the 9.05 G.T.R. train.

Two New Battleships

Tokio, July 18.—Arrangements are rapidly progressing for the building of two additional battleships. The keel of one will be laid at Yokosuka during July, and the keel of the other at Kure before the end of the year. The displacement of these ships will be 20,800 tons, their speed 20 knots, their armor 12 inches.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a powerful, invigorating tonic, imparting health and strength in particular to the organs distinctly feminine. The local, womanly health is so intimately related to the general health that when diseases of the delicate womanly organs are cured the whole body gains in health and strength. For weak and sickly women who are "worn-out," "run-down," or debilitated, especially for women who work in store, office or schoolroom, who sit at the typewriter or sewing machine, or bear heavy household burdens, and for nursing mothers, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has proven a priceless benefit because of its health-restoring and strength-giving powers.

As a soothing and strengthening nervine, "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and curing nervous excitability, irritability, nervous prostration, nervous prostration, hysteria, spasms, chorea, or St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the womanly organs. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and worry.

Down chronic cases, "Favorite Prescription" is a positive cure for the most complicated and obstinate cases of "female weakness," painful periods, irregularities, prolapsus or falling of the pelvic organs, weak back, bearing-down sensations, chronic congestion, inflammation and ulceration.

Dr. Pierce's medicines are made from harmless but efficient medicinal roots found growing in our American forests. The Indians knew of the marvelous curative value of some of these roots and imparted that knowledge to some of the frontier whites, and gradually some of the more progressive physicians came to know and use them, and ever since they have grown in favor by reason of their superior curative virtues and their wide range of harmless qualities.

Your druggist sells the "Favorite Prescription" and also that famous alterative blood purifier and stomach tonic, the "Golden Medical Discovery." Write to Dr. Pierce about your case. He is an experienced physician and will treat your case as confidential and without charge by correspondence. Address him at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N.Y., of which he is chief consulting physician.

Y.M.C.A. Boys are Eight Hours Ahead of Time

Rochester, N.Y., July 17.—At 7.25 o'clock this morning the Y.M.C.A. runners on the New York to Chicago relay race arrived in Rochester, just eight hours and fifteen minutes ahead of the schedule as figured out yesterday. The local Y.M.C.A. had been told to have their runners in readiness at about 3.40 o'clock this afternoon. Then last evening they were warned the boys would arrive at 9 o'clock this morning.

This was cutting down the schedule with a vengeance, but during the night came another message, saying the runners would make Rochester before 9 o'clock, and they did by an hour and 35 minutes. The local runners were on duty at 7 o'clock sharp when Tecumseh's racer dashed up to the Y.M.C.A. building with the silver tube.

The Rochester relay reached Batavia at 11.15, where the tube was handed to Mayor Johnson and transferred to the Batavia relay, who dashed off to meet the Buffalo contingent.

"Mike" Kelly May Resign

Toronto, July 17.—President Jas. J. McCafferty of the Toronto Ball Club stated today that Manager Mike Kelly had not been released, nor had a meeting of the directors of the club been held to discuss the situation. Mr. McCafferty stated that he and Mr. Kelly had an understanding in regard to the handling of the club, and that if the team did not show improvement a change would have to be made in the interest of baseball in Toronto and the Toronto Ball Club in particular.

Mr. McCafferty says that Mr. Kelley resigned his position recently; that things haven't been breaking right for him with the Toronto Club, and that he felt like chucking the whole thing up. However, nothing has yet been done, but in view of the premature published statements, it would not be surprising for Mike to hand in his resignation.

Mr. Kelly has certainly had a discouraging experience in Toronto. His team has been disrupt with injuries most of the season, and the newspaper agitation have been yelping at his heels because he has not accomplished the impossible.

If Mr. Kelley quits Larry Schafly will be the logical successor.

Mr. Kelley personally, is one of the best of fellows, a quiet, refined gentleman, very popular with his players, and possessed of a thorough knowledge of baseball. If the team had remained intact as he placed them the first of the season there is no doubt they would have been now battling for the leadership.

THE WEIGHT OF BREAD

The weight and sale of bread has previously been under municipal control, but last session the Ontario Legislature passed a law, which came into effect on July 1st, now making the law in this matter uniform throughout the province. The following are the chief provisions of the new enactment:

No person shall make bread for sale or offer bread for sale outside the municipality where same was made, other than fancy bread, except in loaves weighing either one-and-a-half pounds or some pounds avoirdupois. Loaves of such weight shall be known as standard bread.

Any person making a batch in connection with the sale of standard bread must affix or attach such label to the bottom of each loaf before the baking of the same and such label shall show the name of the maker of the loaf, the weight, and that the bread is standard bread.

2. Fancy bread shall mean any bread which in addition to any ingredient in the flour consists of an extra two per cent. of more of sugar or an extra two per cent. or more of shortening, or an extra two per cent. or more of solids of milk, the percentage being in proportion to the weight of flour therein.

3. No person shall make fancy bread for sale, or offer fancy bread for sale, outside of the municipality where the same was made, except in loaves weighing either sixteen ounces or twenty ounces avoirdupois. Each and every person making fancy bread for sale shall affix or attach to the bottom of each loaf before or during baking of the same, a label showing the name of the maker, the weight of the bread and that the bread is fancy bread."

Thus the standard loaf becomes either one and a half or three pounds avoirdupois in weight and the label may or may not be used. Fancy bread must contain a certain additional percentage of sweetening and shortening and must carry a label so that the consumer may know its weight, which is not prescribed by law.

Inspection of bread in the municipality in which it is made, or anywhere else in said, is also provided for in a clause of the act, which also carries with it the following penalty clause: "Any person who contravenes any of the provisions of the act shall incur a penalty not exceeding $5, besides costs, which shall include any expenses incurred in procuring an analysis, and shall on conviction be liable to imprisonment not exceeding thirty days, unless such penalty and costs are sooner paid."

If at present the nerves in the system need a tonic to offset the customary hot weather. Nerve and Strength depression. You will feel better within 48 hours after beginning to take such a remedy as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Its prompt action in restoring the weak nerves is surprising. Of course, you won't get entirely strong in a few days, but each day you can actually feel the improvement. That tired, listless, spiritless, feeling will quickly depart when using the Restorative. Dr. Shoop's Restorative will sharpen a failing appetite; it aids digestion; it will strengthen the weakened Kidneys and Heart by amply rebuilding the worn-out nerves that these organs depend upon. Test it a few days and be convinced. Sold by all dealers.

Blind Snakes.

Among snakes there are four species on this continent which are practically blind. They are popularly known as "blind worms." They are the lowest as well as the smallest of snakes. An ordinary earthworm is gigantic when compared with some.

Spanish Are Charitable.

The Spanish are among the most charitable people on earth. Without a poor tax Spanish communities of 50,000 self supporters feed a pauper population of 5,000 or more.

The Swordfish.

The swordfish is utterly without fear and will, like a buffalo or rhinoceros, charge anything that offends it, often doing an amount of execution hardly to be believed did not the evidence exist. Combats between swordfish are most interesting and may be compared to a duel between two expert swordsmen.

Children and Fat.

Never press a child to eat fat. Many children have a constitutional loathing of this form of food. This distaste is given them by nature, as they cannot digest it.

Potato Bread.

Potato bread is used by the natives of Hindustan to feed their horses, especially when they are worked hard in very cold weather. The animals relish it, and their health and strength are excellent.

HOLDING THE BABY.

Introducing a Nice Point in Baby Carriage Etiquette.

"That fellow doesn't know the first thing about the etiquette of the baby carriage," remarked one of a group of men at Thirty-first and Main streets.

The comment was made to all in a general way. One of the group, the man with a frayed collar and a look of patient resignation, gazed anxiously at a couple about to board a car. The mother was quarreling in a desperate sort of way with one of those baby carriages which shop salesmen can open and close in a minute and the users in from five to thirty minutes.

"Don't see anything wrong with that," said the man with the frayed collar. "He's got to hold the baby even if she does have to wrestle with the carriage. You don't think he ought to hold the baby and take care of the carriage, too, do you?"

"Well, there's one thing sure," rejoined the objector—"the man doesn't know a thing about baby carriage etiquette. What you want to do it this: If the baby weighs more than the carriage, it's the man's place to hold the baby. If the carriage weighs more, he should hand the baby to his wife."

"Oh, piffle!" interpolated the man with the big black cigar. "You're way off. What he ought to do is to hand the baby to his wife and the carriage to the conductor."

POINTING THE BONE.

Queer Superstition of the Native Blacks of Australia.

The native blacks of Australia are steeped in superstition. A black fellow will on no account go near the spot where another black has been buried. He has a deep rooted aversion to one particular bird—the wagtail—because, he says, "him all day talk, talk along a white feller, tellum all about black feller," and no opportunity is lost of killing these little birds.

Many tribes "bury" their dead by sticking them up into the forks of trees and there leaving them till the flesh has either dropped or been taken, leaving the bones clean. These bones are then taken down, the larger ones buried and the smallest handed round as keepsakes to those nearly related to the deceased. Should one black fellow wish the death of a rival or enemy he points the bone at him. This means that he takes one of his late relation's bones from his dilly bag and points it, in the presence of witnesses, at the man he wishes to get rid of, all the time pouring forth threats and curses.

Strange as it may seem, the one pointed at will often languish and eventually die, perhaps in a month, perhaps in a year, for no sooner is the bone pointed than he makes up his mind to die, and there is no saving him.—London Standard.

Tennyson's Cure For Shyness.

It is recorded in "Tennyson's Life" that he used to recommend to a younger brother the thought of the stellar spaces, swarming with constellations and traversed by planets at ineffable distances, as a cure for shyness, and a lady of my acquaintance used to endeavor as a girl to stay her failing heart on the thought of eternity at such moments. It is all in vain. At the urgent moment one cares very little about the stellar motions of the dim vistas of futurity and very much indeed about the cut of one's coat and the glances of one's enemies, and the doctrines of the church and the prospects of ultimate salvation are things very light in the scales in comparison with the pressing necessities of the crisis and the desperate need to appear wholly unconcerned!—Arthur C. Benson in Putnam's and Reader.

A Terrific Tumble.

Most marvelous of all the stories of great falls is the account of Charles Woolcot's terrific tumble from a height of no less than 3,000 feet. It was in Venezuela, and he was making a parachute descent. The parachute refused to open till within 100 or 200 feet from the ground. Then it spread out suddenly and split. The unfortunate man crushed both ankles and both knees, broke his right thigh and hip, dislocated his spinal column and suffered other injuries. Yet after a year in a hospital he recovered sufficiently to write an account of what was probably the most fearful accident mortal man ever survived.

Spilled Mercury.

Mercury spilled on a table or floor is somewhat hard to collect unless special precautions are taken, owing to its tendency to divide into small globules, which roll away at the slightest touch. If a wet ring is made around the spilled mercury by the aid of a wash bottle or other similar means, it will be found that the globules of mercury cannot cross the ring. The mercury can then be collected in a small shovel made from a piece of thin card or even an ordinary envelope.

Race of Life.

There wouldn't be so very much fun in living if there were not a hurdle or two to jump over in this race of life. There always have been obstacles, and there always will be, and it is of no use to repine over them.

Our Neighbors.

STOLEN BRIDE'S RETURN.

Wild Scenes at Reunion in Ireland—Light Huge Bonfire.

Robert Flynn, of Ballinagleragh, county Leitrim, and his bride, who were boycotted because they were married before a registrar against the wishes of the priest, have been reunited after a two months' separation. After the marriage on March 18, a mob of thirty disguised men broke into Flynn's house and carried away the bride to her father's house. Since then bride and bridegroom have been kept apart, armed men maintaining a blockade of Flynn's house.

Recently the parish priest, Father King, called on Flynn and told him that the ceremony would take place the next day. The long-separated couple accordingly met and were united according to the rules of the Catholic Church. As Flynn's bodyguard there came a motley crowd mounted on mountain ponies and armed with every description of farming implement.

Another escort, also mounted and armed, accompanied the bride, but both escorts were ordered to remain outside the chapel while the ceremony was going on. They leant on their arms, eyeing one another with no friendly feelings, and apparently spoiling for a fight. The tension was relieved by the appearance of the married couple. Some of the rustic elders delivered speeches as to the necessity for a cessation of hostilities, as the Church and the people of the district had now been satisfied by the penance imposed on Flynn. Cheers were then given, the rival faction shook hands, and the guests adjourned to the bridegroom's house for the wedding feast.

About two o'clock in the morning, when the merrymaking was at its height, a score of masked men entered the house and indulged in the wildest display. They kissed the bride, drank deeply, and, having practically cleared out the place and broken up the festivities, lit a huge bonfire outside the house, tearing down the greater part of the thatch of Flynn's house to feed the flames.

Flynn accepts all as the natural state of things, and seems proud of the victory he has gained over the forces arrayed against him.

STOLEN GEMS WERE PAWNED.

But Have Been Redeemed and Restored to Dublin Castle.

A recent London cable says:

Though Scotland Yard disclaims any knowledge of the transaction, and though Chief Secretary Birrell has diplomatically denied it in Parliament, it can be stated as a fact that the stolen regalian jewels are back in Dublin Castle.

The jewels whose theft from the office of the Ulster King-at-Arms in Dublin Castle was discovered in July, 1907, have been released from a pawnshop in Dublin for over $50,000—the sum which has been set down at $250,000—and have been taken to Ireland by the senior member of the firm of pawnbrokers.

It is understood that the money for the release of the stolen regalia was put up by a newly-created nobleman who has been given a household berth for the accommodation.

It was hoped that this transaction would definitely close the unhappy and mysterious affair. To the contrary, it seems to have given it new life, and now an Irish barrister, a kinsman of Sir Arthur Vicars, has applied to a magistrate for an arraignment of the Viceroy and Chief Secretary of Ireland on the charge of compounding a felony. Of course, the magistrate refuses to give the barrister a hearing, and the English papers do not even give his name.

Pierce O'Mahony, the half-brother of Sir Arthur Vicars, has never faltered in his belief that his kinsman, in addition to having been dismissed for negligence in office, has been allowed to lie under a stigma of disgraceful and sordid conduct, and, further, that he has been made a scapegoat to shield a lot of disreputables who have brought shame to Dublin Castle circles.

Second Sight.

One night a party of soldiers were telling stories of thrilling adventures, wonderful spectacles, marvelous sightseeing experiences, etc., gathered around the camp fire in the Transvaal. An Irishman had listened with open mouth, staring eyes and bristling hair at the adventures and misadventures escapes of his comrades in arms. Then, clearing his throat, the Irishman said:

"No doubt, me boys, ye have seen some wonderful sights, but me sister used to squint so bad that when she wanted to read a newspaper she had to buy two and hold one in each hand, about the length of a bayonet apart, and even then she sometimes discovered her eyes looking into each other over the bridge of her nose."

Princesses Who Work.

The Duke of Schleswig-Holstein-Sonderburg-Glucksburg believes that every woman should be competent to earn her own living, if necessary, and each of his daughters has a certificate for some trade or profession. The youngest, Princess Caroline Mathilda, has just finished a course in typewriting and stenography. Her eldest sister, Victoria Adelaide, now the wife of the Duke of Saxe-Coburg, was graduated a few years ago from the Berlin Royal School of Cookery and has received a diploma in all that pertains to the kitchen. Princess Alexandria is a miniature painter. Princess Helena is a trained nurse, and Princess Adelaide is a kindergarten teacher.

His Way Out.

A certain Irish member of Parliament, popular and a bachelor, had been polite to the daughter of the house where he was visiting. When the time came for him to go the too anxious mamma called him in for a serious talk. "I'm sure I don't know what to say," she went on. "I'm reported all around that you are to marry Letitia."

"Just say that she refused me," quietly advised the Parliamentarian.

Stop That Cold

To check early colds or Grippe with "Preventics" means sure defeat for Pneumonia. To stop a cold with Preventics is safer than to let it run and be obliged to cure it afterwards. To be sure, Preventics will cure even a deeply seated cold if taken early—at the sneezing stage—they "break up" head off these early colds. That's surely better. That's why they are called Preventics.

Preventics are little Candy Cold Cures. No Quinine, no physic, nothing sickening. Nice for the children—and thoroughly safe too. If you feel chilly, if you sneeze, if you ache all over, think of Preventics. Promptness may also save half your usual sickness. And don't forget your child, if there is feverishness, night or day. Herein probably lies Preventics' greatest efficiency. Sold in boxes for the pocket, also in 25c boxes of 42 Preventics. Insist on your druggists giving you

An Unsought Pardon.

Among the stories of that former governor of Texas familiarly known as Sam Houston is more than one amusing tale.

There was a financial agent of the penitentiary who had warmly opposed the election of Governor Houston, but was particularly anxious to retain his own pleasantly lucrative position. Consequently the new governor was soon in receipt of a petition in which the man's years of faithful service and special qualifications for the place were set forth in glowing terms by himself.

The governor sent for him and said gravely, "It appears from this petition that you have been in the penitentiary eight years."

"I have," was the reply.

"And during that time you have performed faithfully every duty that has come in your way to the best of your ability?"

"I have," answered the agent, his courage swiftly rising.

"Then, sir," said the governor, with the air of one conferring a priceless favor, "I pardon you out."

Put Out of Commission.

Abernethy was supposed to influence people by a brusqueness amounting to absolute rudeness It is related that one day a very voluble lady took her daughter, who was ill, to see him.

"Which of you two wants to consult me?" said Abernethy.

"My daughter," replied the elder woman.

Abernethy then put a question to the girl. Before she had a chance to reply her mother began a long story Abernethy told her to be quiet and repeated his question to the girl. A second time the woman began a story, and a second time he told her to be quiet. Then she interrupted him a third time.

"Put your tongue out," he said to the mother.

"But there's nothing the matter with me," she exclaimed

"Never mind, put your tongue out," he commanded

Thoroughly overawed, the woman obeyed.

"Now, keep it out," said Abernethy, and he proceeded to examine the girl.—Grand Magazine.

A Queer Complication.

In Sydney, a town of 600,000 inhabitants, one can get nothing to eat on a Sunday Certain restaurants supply food surreptitiously, but the whole time the guests are in danger of being arrested Once an Italian was in such a restaurant on Sunday when suddenly the police entered. The Italian was promptly pushed by the proprietor into a room where a waitress happened to be standing in negligee. Even this room the police invaded, but the waitress saved the situation by declaring that the young man was her fiance The young man, by the way, had been married some time. He thought that he had deceived the policeman; but, as a matter of fact, he had got out of the frying pan into the fire. One fine day the waitress called him before the courts and claimed $2,500 for breach of promise The Italian had to pay. And then came the worst of all. His wife sued for a divorce and shortly after married another man.

Tackle This One.

The following paragraph of a hundred words is an excellent test in pronunciation Try it first, and then go over it again, every word, in company with a good dictionary:

"Cleopatra, isolated in the coats, soon became acclimated and had ample leisure to contemplate all the economic details of her inextricable sword. The wound resisted the allopathic misogynist, who gave a courteous diagnosis and humbly craved precedence for a tiny bijt in the form of a vase with an aesthetic accounting apparatus. This told the news like a book, but it might have been a dog living in squalor from the look she launched at him when he wrote down his address. She ate her breakfast and then fraternized with a national expert in appendicitis, who attended the obsequies."

A Plot That Failed.

A story of a plot to kidnap Queen Victoria and turn England into a republic is told in Peter Latouche's book, "Anarchy; Its Methods and Exponents" This coup d'etat was planned to take place in 1898, the year of the great dock strike in London, but was frustrated by the cautious of the strikers and the unexpected sympathy and help shown them by the moneyed classes. This did much to consolidate the masses, on whose help the revolutionists relied.

Capital Punishment.

Bride (throwing her arms about the bridegroom's neck)—You are my prisoner for life! Bridegroom—It's not imprisonment for life, love; it's capital punishment.—Sydney Town and Country Journal.

The Villain.

Critic—The villain in your story is a perfect masterpiece. Where did you get the character? Novelist—I imagined a man possessed of all the forms of wickedness which my wife attributes to me when she is angry.

—J. B. Patterson of Toronto, is visiting friends in the city.

News in Brief

Washington, July 14.—Eight hundred thousand dollars have just been distributed by the interior department among the Indians of the Missouri and Wahpeton tribes in South Dakota.

St. Louis, July 13.—Radical changes in the marriage laws of Missouri were recommended by Charles F. Joy, recorder of deeds of St. Louis, in an address before the Missouri Recorders' and Clerks 'Association, in session here to-day. The convention will be asked to indorse a marriage reform bill to be presented to the next legislature.

Statistics presented at the meeting of the United States National Board of Fire Underwriters showed that the property loss from fire in the United States last year was just short of two hundred million dollars. Such a sum means a heavy tax on even a rich country. This continent would profit much from learning to be careful, first in building and then in taking care of what is built.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 14.—Indianapolis to-day is a-werring o' the green, in honor of the Irish hosts now gathering in the city for the next week's national convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. This order is the largest Irish-Catholic organization in the world and the meeting here is expected to be the most noteworthy in its history.

Kansas City, Mo., July 14.—Members of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, an interdenominational organization which has nearly a thousand missionaries in foreign fields, met here today for a session of three days. Many returned missionaries from Asia and Africa are in attendance.

Nelson, B.C., July 15.—The city council has decided to put the clock on forty-one hour, and next Sunday mountain time, in place of Pacific Coast time, will be adopted.

Joseph Chapman, aged 65, an old prospector, shot himself through the heart in his cabin to the west of the city, yesterday. No cause was given for suicide.

New York, July 15.—A dynamite bomb exploding in the areaway of a fashionable apartment house in West 140th street, today hurled scores of the occupants from their beds, shattered many windows and threw the tenants into a panic. No one was hurt.

There were 42 families living in the apartment house, but as far as the police could learn, none of them had received threatening letters. The only clue that the police have is one furnished by a hall boy of a nearby apartment house. He said that immediately before the explosion he saw three men carrying a small bundle and walking in the direction of Watts Court, where the bomb later exploded. A moment later he heard the crash of the explosion, and says three men ran swiftly down the street and disappeared.

Detectives working on the assumption that the attack proves to be the work of the Black Hand it will be the first in New York directed toward the wealthier class

Quebec, July 16.—To-day marked the gathering in this city of the advance guard of the tremendous throngs which will next week welcome the Prince of Wales to Canada and celebrate the tercentenary of the momentous battle between the French and the British on the Plains of Abraham. The hotels and residences of the city will be wholly inadequate to entertain the crowds and thousands will spend the week in the "tent cities", which have sprung up in the vicinity of Quebec. Every effort has been made to make the pageant and other festivities the most noteworthy of their kind ever held in America. Preliminary exercises will be held on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, but the great events of the tercentenary celebration will follow the arrival of the Prince of Wales on Wednesday.

Montreal, July 15.—With an address of welcome by His Worship Mayor Payette, who gave a cordial greeting to the delegates gathered here from the Atlantic to the Pacific, the eighth annual convention of the Union of Canadian Municipalities was opened in the City Hall yesterday. The day's programme includes the presidential address of L. A. Lapointe and consideration of reports from other officers and from the various provincial unions.

The feature of the session will be a general debate this evening on "City Government by Board of Control" and "City Government by Commission," in which the Mayors of Toronto, Ottawa, Winnipeg, Edmonton, Victoria and Charlottetown are scheduled to take part.

Various other topics connected with municipal government will be taken up to-morrow, including police, billboard legislation, railway level crossings, and municipal accounting. The session will conclude its business Friday morning.

London, July 15.—At Christie's 200 guineas was bid for a cap-a-pie suit of armor of the middle of the sixteenth century.

CRICKET BALL BLOW.

A young man named Cedric Page, aged 19, died at Kettering from injuries received by being struck on the back of the head by the ball while playing cricket.

CONSUL I. AT THE DERBY.

The famous chimpanzee "Consul I." from the Hungarian Exhibition, went to the Derby in an automobile, and put his money on the favorite, taking several bets. He received numerous invitations from dancing parties.

MELBA'S OFFER.

At the quarterly general court of the London Hospital it was announced that Mme. Melba, who is to have a complimentary concert given her, at which the King and Queen and members of the Royal Family will attend, had intimated her intention of giving the proceeds to the London Hospital. The quinquennial appeal fund now amounts to £60,000.

GREAT LINER'S TRIP.

The mammoth liner built by Messrs. Harland & Wolff for the Holland American Line—the Rotterdam—left Belfast Lough for her trial trip, which was most successful, 18 knots being accomplished. The Rotterdam is the largest vessel afloat, being 658 feet long and 77 1-2 feet across the beam, while her gross tonnage is 25,000.

BOOKSTALL MANAGER HONORED

Mr. J. Pelton, the oldest bookstall manager on the Brighton Line, who has just retired, was presented by the Mayor of Croyden, with a cheque for £100, the gift of local residents in appreciation of his 38 years' service at East Croyden Station. Mr. Pelton was with Messrs. W. H. Smith & Son for 44 years.

SUFFRAGISTS RELEASED.

Dr. Elizabeth Knight and Miss Gibb, members of the Women's Freedom League, have been released from Holloway. They were met at the prison gates by several friends and ex-prisoners and Mrs. Fenwick Miller, whose daughter Irene is still in prison, presented each of them with a bunch of red roses. Both women were sentenced to fourteen days for "demonstrating" on the Prime Minister's doorstep.

London, July 16.—One of the most notable sales of rare autographs that London has known in years will begin to-morrow at Sotheby's. American collectors will be well represented at the auction and are likely to carry off many of the rarities.

Among the eminent authors whose letters or manuscripts will be auctioned off are Sir Walter Scott, Charlotte Bronte, Samuel T. Coleridge, Charles Dickens, Lord Alfred Tennyson, Robert Burns, and William M. Thackeray.

There is a very important series of ninety-five letters written by Sir Walter Scott to the Marchioness of Aberdeen between the years 1821 and 1830. They make a total of 351 pages of writing in Scott's hand. It is said that this will be the finest series of his letters ever offered at public auction. His friendship with the Marchioness is well known, and the letters are, as might be expected, of an unusually interesting character.

New York, July 15.—A search of many months for Mrs. Clifford W. Hartridge, wife of a prominent lawyer, who disappeared from her home as suddenly and mysteriously as if the earth had opened and swallowed her, has ended at the Little church yard at Canton, N.Y. There the body of the young matron was buried yesterday in the presence of her husband and her mother, following her death in a Pittsburg hospital last Monday. Even in death her whereabouts was for a time so completely concealed from the public as it had been during all the long period since she suddenly dropped out of sight so long ago. The husband and mother had known of her illness and when death came they took the body to the Little New York town and there it was consigned to the grave before an intimation that the long search for her had reached an end became public.

Almost every corner of the earth had been searched for Mrs. Hartridge since she walked out of her home in this city a year and a half home in this city a year ago and failed to return. Clue after clue which it was believed might lead to a solution of the mystery of her going, was traced to its end without result. At last, however, the persistent efforts of the missing woman's relatives were rewarded with success. Where she was found, or when or where she had been in the meantime has not been learned. Her health was in a pitiable condition, and from that time until her death she was given the most tender care. The end came at the Homeopathic Hospital in Pittsburg last Monday, the immediate cause of death being cerebro spinal meningitis.

The undersigned has received an allotment of unsold portion of $100,000 of

7 Per Cent. First Mortgage Five-Year Gold Bonds

dated January 11, 1908, and maturing January 11, 1913. These Bonds are offered at par and accrued interest by Metropolitan Trust & Savings Bank, Chicago, trustees.

SECURITY—The Entire Property and Improvements Owned THE URES CONSOLIDATED MINING COMPANY in the District of Ures, State of Sonora Mexico, Free from Mortgage of Bonded Indebtedness except this present Bond Issue.

An Unusual Opportunity for Investment in Sound Security

The Ures Consolidated Mining Company offers $100,000.00 of First Mortgage Gold Bonds. This issue of bonds is the only mortgage or bonded indebtedness ever placed on the company's properties.

These bonds are in the denomination of $100.00, and bear interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, July and January, and are redeemable on or before five years from date at the company's option at $110.00 and accrued interest.

$100.00 Stock Bonus Given with Every $100.00 Bond

With each bond issued there will be given $100.00 par value of the capital stock of the company as a bonus, and in addition thereto there will be placed in escrow with the Trustee additional stock which will be available to the bondholders at their option any time within a period of three years, the bondholder being entitled to surrender his bond any time within said period and receive in lieu thereof stock for every dollar of indebtedness to him on account of said bonds,

The Security Back of these Bonds

The company owns twelve claims situated in the district of Ures, State of Sonora, Mexico, free from mortgage or bonded indebtedness, except the present bond issue.

On one of these properties (The Ramona Mine) 5,000 feet of underground development work has been done, consisting of an inclined shaft to the depth of 400 feet with drifts in three levels to the North and South of the shaft.

An average value of ore worth $11.67 per ton is exposed throughout the mine, from the collar of the shaft to the extreme parts in the drifts, all of which is above water level.

The company has made surface improvements and mine improvements to the extent of $40,000.00 in the way of machinery, skids, trams, steam hoists, mill and nearly everything necessary to make the mining camp complete.

In addition to the absolute ownership of these twelve valuable claims, the company has a lease on the San Jose Mine, adjoining its property, in which the company has been operating in high grade ore.

During the past sixty days the company has extracted and delivered to ore buyers and the bank at Hermosillo, $8,000.00 worth of ore and bullion, the ore having been reduced to bullion through the company's mill, with the exception of 1,000 pounds, which was sold to an ore buyer for $600.00.

The Money Derived from the Sale of These Bonds

This issue of bonds is made for the purpose of securing money at once in order to extend the development work more quickly than the company's present means will permit.

With the high grade ore in sight to the distance of 50 feet to the South of the shaft, the management is assured that within six months from date of making the improvements now necessary the company's properties will be on a self-sustaining and dividend-paying basis.

The Stock which is Given with these bonds will be as valuable as the bonds when the Company has the ready capital to push operations

Men who invest in these bonds will have no cause or reason to regret their action, for the bonds afford an investment in a security which is absolutely safe—much better than ordinary city or country real estate, which is considered perfectly safe if the property put up to secure a mortgage is double the face of the loan. The security given on these bonds is better than 7 to 1, for the Ures Consolidated Mining Company has refused an offer of $750,000.00 for the property upon which this $100,000.00 worth of bonds is issued.

These bonds are an investment with all speculative risk eliminated —an investment with absolute security.

Make your reservation at once. This is small and promises to be quickly sold,

Banco de Sonora,
Hermosillo, Mex.,
Feb. 11th, 1908.

To whom it may concern:—

We hereby beg to state that The Ures Consolidated Mining Company has during the past five years made several deliveries of bullion to this bank, and it is the opinion of mining men here that they have the making of a fair mine, and further, that the properties owned and controlled by them bid promise of becoming paying properties.

From our knowledge of the men connected, we believe they are doing all in their power to bring about the results above mentioned.

Respectfully,
BANCO DE SONORA,

1 CENT A 2 SHARE

Send us your name as a stockholder in this new company, with your remittance for as many thousand shares as you can take at $5 per thousand.

This is a short-time offer on a hurry-up proposition. Our vice president is up at Rawhide now putting the miners at work. We want to raise the necessary funds for development as quickly as possible. Therefore, we offer the first block of stock at $5 a thousand shares. This subscription must be all cash. We want the money in hand. We mean to work without let-up, and we have made it an ironclad rule not to run in debt. Cash counts now.

Our prospectuses are out. Send for one.

Make reservation of stock. If you do no more. But, remember, this present offer of stock at Half a Cent a Share is now open, and will be closed as soon as enough cash subscriptions are in hand. Don't wait, or you will get left.

The gold mining property owned outright by the company consists of 7 claims, 3 in the Rawhide district of Nevada, and 4 in the Dulzura district of Southern California.

The Rawhide district to-day is more famous than Goldfield, Tonopah, Bullfrog, or Searchlight were at the same stage of exploration and development. The Dulzura discovery is one of the most sensational in the history of California.

Ten samples of ore which were among the first accepted, run as high as $1,468.57 to the ton, and all ten averaged over $3-000 a ton.

In both camps we located early, and our locations are choice. Our own officers will superintend the mining.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the Northwest Provinces, excepting 8 and 26 reserved may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father or mother.

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

What every Woman Requires for Headache Langour

Mrs. Mary Flannigan Gives Advice that is Sound, Useful and True.

Has your strength given out?

Do you feel languid and tired this spring?

Are you pale, somewhat nervous, finding it hard to do your housework?

Thousands feel just the same,—feel the enervating influence of spring, whether that brings out latent symptoms of disease and weakness. You should do like Mrs. Flannigan of Essex Junction — here is her experience.

"I will never again suffer the tortures of deadening spring illness — never will I have headaches, such sleepless nights, such pale cheeks and lack of appetite. I lived through it all several times, but now I know the medicine that cures. I urge every person, young and old, to try the invigorating effect of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. When I was so played out, listless,—Dr. Hamilton's Pills gave me appetite—I relished my meals and grew strong. Rosy color came to my cheeks, every day I felt brighter and better. All my old strength has been restored and the great tonic, blood purifying powers of Dr. Hamilton's Pills did it all."

Women who are continually pale, tired and sick headaches, faint and dizzy spells, aching muscles, bearing down pains, lack of sleep and loss of appetite—they are the poor women that surely need Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut, 25c at all dealers.

Havelock Resident Passes Away

Miss Eliza Spinks passed away on Tuesday morning after a long illness from dropsy. She was the relict of the late Jacob Spinks and was over 73 years of age. The funeral took place from the residence of Mr. Robert Wrighetly, Concession street, at 4 o'clock on Wednesday to the Maple Grove cemetery, the services being conducted at the Methodist church.—Havelock Standard.

Broke Her Pipe

Lindsay, July 18.—Yesterday afternoon while on her regular trip between Bobcaygeon and Burleigh, the steamer Manita broke the "L" pipe in front of the boiler. After floating around the lake for nearly an hour a steamer came along and gave them a helping hand. She was brought into dock and is now being repaired.

Escaped from the Shelter

Charlie Cook, an inmate of the Children's Aid Shelter, escaped yesterday afternoon from that institution, and made his way to H. Lee Brun's store, where he abstracted from a box a number of shipping bills. He was soon recaptured by Superintendent Henry, and brought to the police station where Chief Rossel gave him some good advice.

Cramp Rings.

Formerly it was customary for kings of England on Good Friday to hallow certain rings, the wearing of which prevented cramp or epilepsy. They were made from the metal of decayed coffins and consecrated with an elaborate ceremony, some details of which are still preserved. They were "highly recommended by the medical profession" about 1557, for Andrew Boorde in his "Breviary of Health," speaking of cramp says, "The kynge's majestie hath a great helpe in this matter in hallowing cramps rings without money or petition." Occasionally cramp rings played a persuasive part in diplomacy. Lord Berners, our ambassador at the court of Charles V., wrote in 1508 "to my lorde cardinall's grace" for some "crampe ryngs," with trust to "bestowe them well, by God's grace."—Westminster Gazette.

Persian Burials.

In Persia two sticks a foot long are placed in the coffin to prop up the arms of the corpse when it rises from the grave and is being questioned by the angel Gabriel. After it has satisfied the angel that it is the body of a true Mussulman it will receive strength to stand alone. A glance from a dog is necessary to drive away the spirit of dedilement, and for this purpose a street cur is brought into the room of death and its eyes led to the corpse by a tempting bit of bread laid on the still breast.

SUFFERED FOR YEARS

Says Peruna Completely Restored Health.

MRS. CHAS. GROS LOUIS.

MRS. CHAS. GROS LOUIS, Indian Lorette, Quebec, Can., writes:

"For years I suffered from a disease that the doctors did not understand.

"One day I read in the paper about your excellent remedy, Peruna. I procured a bottle of it and took it according to directions. It was not long until I observed a change for the better.

"I can say that Peruna has cured me. I could not take any nourishment except milk.

"I will at all times say a good word for Peruna. I hold it in the highest esteem."

Not only women of rank and leisure praise Peruna, but the industrious, useful women engaged in manual toil would not be without Dr. Hartman's world-renowned remedy.

The doctor has prescribed it for many thousand women every year and he never fails to receive a multitude of letters like the above, thanking him for his advice, and especially for the wonderful benefits received from Peruna.

The Retort Courteous.

A young man in a hurry went through the left side of a pair of swinging doors in the senate wing of the capitol at Washington last session and almost knocked over a senator who was about to push through the right side.

The young man apologized profusely. "I'm very sorry—I didn't know I was—I am in a great hurry."

"That's all right, son," said the senator. "But let me give you a piece of advice about going through doors like these. Always go through on the right side and turn to the right. Then if you meet anybody coming through and bump into him you needn't apologize. He'll be a darned fool, and it won't be necessary. Good morning."—Saturday Evening Post.

Greatly Underestimated.

"Bobby," asked his Sunday school teacher, "do you know how many disciples there were?" The little boy promptly said that he did and answered, "Twelve." Then he went on, "And I know how many Pharisees there were too."

"Indeed!"

"Yes'm. There was just one less than there was disciples."

"Why, how do you know that? It is nowhere stated how many Pharisees there were."

"I thought everybody knew it," said Bobby. "The Bible says, 'Beware of the leven of the Pharisees,' doesn't it?"—Youth's Companion.

The Grandest.

"What is the grandest thing in the universe?" asks Victor Hugo. "A storm at sea," he answers and continues, "And what is grander than a storm at sea?" "The unclouded heavens on a starry, moonless night." "And what is grander than these midnight skies?" "The soul of man"—a spectacular climax such as Hugo loved and still, with all its dramatic effects, the picturesque statement of a vast and sublime and mighty truth.

Crazy.

Wigwag—I believe there's a thage of insanity in all religious enthusiasts. Henpeckke—Yes; take the Mormons, for instance. Any man that wants more than one wife is plumb crazy.—Philadelphia Record.

The Spoor.

"I'm gunning for railroads," announced the trust buster.

"Then come with me," whispered the near humorist. "I can show you some of their tracks."—Southwestern's Book.

Beware of the man who does not return your blow; he neither forgives you nor allows you to forgive yourself.—George Bernard Shaw.

ORANGE LILY

Women Cured At Home

Women's disorders always yield, from the very beginning of the treatment to the mild but effective action of Orange Lily.

Within two or three days after commencing its use the improvement becomes noticeable, and this improvement continues until the patient is completely cured. Orange Lily is an applied or local treatment, and acts directly on womanly organs, removing the congestion, toning and strengthening the nerves, and restoring perfect circulation in the diseased parts.

In order to convince all suffering women of the value of this remedy I will send a 25-cent box enough for ten days' treatment, absolutely FREE to each lady sending me her address.

Hon.N.Monteith to Remain Minister of Agriculture

The Toronto Sunday World says;

Hon. Nelson Monteith will remain minister of agriculture in the Ontario Government.

The Sunday World is in possession of information which makes the statement almost official and several days ago this paper intimated that there would probably be no change.

It is known that the premier dislikes the thought of any break in the ranks of the executive members of his cabinet, and he has had a profound admiration for Mr. Monteith's modest but effective methods in advancing the work of the department.

The premier and Hon. Nelson Monteith will go together to the Quebec centennial

Mr. James Torrance, who carried North Perth by over 200 majority over his Liberal opponent, Wellington Hay, will become registrar, thus giving the minister of agriculture his opportunity.

Hon. Mr. Monteith has had in hand for some time plans for the improvement of the agricultural interests of the province, and both the premier and the minister were reluctant that the fortunes of an election should interfere with their realization.

Three New Paper and Pulp-Wood Mills for Canada

Montreal, July 18.—The announcement was made today by the C.P.R. industrial department that three new paper and pulp establishments were likely to be the outcome of negotiations now in progress with leading capitalists in the United States.

It is asserted by these authorities that not one, but several, are now in progress of formation within a few miles of Montreal, but it is yet too early to give specific details as to the location and extent of particular plants.

It is understood that Sir William Van Horne is interested in this special field and that the C.P.R. magnate will shortly have the control of other industries than those of which have grown up at Grand Mere during the past few years.

Sir William regards Canada as the greatest pulp and paper producing country in the world, exceeding by far Norway, which has the greatest output of paper making spruces known in the world.

Distemper Prevalent Among Horses

Reports from various parts of the province is to the effect that scarlet fever is prevalent among horses.

Speaking to Dr. Broad regarding the matter, a Post reporter was informed that the local doctors had had a few cases of something similar, but only an odd case one in a while. He said he would call the disease influenza or distemper. "This is our busy season," said the doctor "When the farmers are busy we are sick of work." When asked if the beat brought on the distemper, Dr Broad said it had a good deal to do with it. A farmer should take good care of his horses in the summer and not work them too hard. Some farmers work their horses to death and then do not feed them half enough It was no wonder they had distemper. —Lindsay Post.

Severe Pains in the Groin

Trying Experience of a Well Known Citizen in St. John, N. B.

The case of Mr. Chas. F. Olive, for years foreman in the "Gazette" of St. John, N.B., is a striking evidence of the power of Ferrozone.

No remedy has such a record for restoring sufferers from acute stomach and kidney trouble; it invariably does cure.

"For several years" writes Mr. Olive, "I have had kidney trouble and could quite recently I suffered torture. A few months ago my condition assumed a very serious form. I consulted several city doctors, used different pills, but without the slightest benefit. I suffered from an intense pain in the groin, and the increasing seriousness of my trouble prompted me to try Ferrozone. It gave me quick relief, and a half-a-dozen boxes cured. Ferrozone I can recommend as a specific for disordered kidneys."

Won't you try Ferrozone too. 50c per box at all dealers in medicine.

Prize for Name of New Steamer

The North Navigation Grand Trunk route announce the launching of a new ship this year, and have offered a prize for a name. She will run between Sarnia, Port Arthur, Port William and Duluth. It is intended that this steamer will be the largest and finest steamer in the Lake Superior trade, and her interior decorations will be most elaborate and complete.

The following are the conditions to be observed in this contest.

"Name to consist of one word of not more than ten letters."

"It must end in the Line's characteristic termination of 'ia'"

"It is desired that the name selected have some bearing on the history or geography of the territory she will serve."

Contestants must give their name and addresses clearly in sending in their suggestions."

"The decision will be made by an impartial committee appointed for the ppurpose, from which the names of the contestants will be withheld.

The contest will be closed on July 31st and the decision announced by August 10th and a prize to the successful competitors will be given of two round trip tickets including meals and berth from Collingwood or Sarnia to Duluth, available any time during this season, or for a trip next year on the new steamer itself.

All communications should be addressed to C. H. Nicholson, Traffic Manager, Northern Navigation Co. Barrie, and envelopes marked "Name Contest."

Charged with Firing Barn and Attempting Suicide

Orangeville, July 17.—With a couple of gashes in his throat, Joseph Dammana, of Mulmurthen, was brought into the county jail this evening by Provincial Constable Hughes, of Orangeville. The injured man was committed to the county jail by Magistrates Keys and Dever, of Corbetton, on two charges, one of setting fire to the barn of his son, John Dammana, on Friday last, and the other of trying to commit suicide

When interviewed, the accused said that he tried to end his life with a razor, because he was starving, but denies having had any connection with the burning of his son's barn Dammana is a man over 60 years of age. All his family but his son live in the West.

No Strife Between the Dutch and the British in Transvaal

Chief Justice de Villiers Talks of the Land of Recent War

Represents Four Countries

Quebec, July 18.—Past the Parliament's span of life, and a true type of the fathers of Confederation, Hon. J. H. de Villiers, South Africa's representative at the Tercentenary, talked to the press at the Chateau last night of the land that the ties of shed blood will always bind to Canada. He had not hobnobbed with the Empress of Ireland's noble guests, for the reason that he accepted a friend's advice, and took another boat.

As the parliaments in that land are now in session, the premiers were unable to come, and he was deputed to represent all four. And surely he can do it; a member of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council for the Dutch people, Chief Justice of Cape Colony, and President of its legislative council. Of good omen is his visit, coming to a union of two races over past struggles, and telling of a another unity after more recent bloodshed.

STRIFE IS OVER

"The strife between the Dutch and the British in the Transvaal is settled, I am happy to say," was his declaration. "The granting of all political rights to the Boers has rendered them completely satisfied, and General Botha, the premier, is carrying out his promise to give full justice to the British minority."

"And for the future?"

"In the future we look to a union, a confederation that will wipe out the last of enmity and prejudice, and make of the whole of South Africa a prosperous portion of the Empire. A convention will be held in October, and to it I must hasten back. Representatives will be on hand from Cape Colony, Natal, Orange River Colony and the Transvaal to draw up a basis of union. Whether this will be one parliament for all or a federal parliament and provincial parliaments I do not know, but it will probably be based on Canada's Confederation.

A NEGRO PROBLEM.

"One difficulty presents itself, and that is the negro question, for we have it in Africa as they have it in the Southern States. In Cape Colony the blacks have votes conditional on a small property qualification, and the educational test of being able to read and write. In the other three the negroes are not recognized politically. Would the three hold out and force the disfranchisement of the Cape's blacks, or would the Canadian principle of the Provincial franchise lists be adopted? Probably the latter."

While in Canada Chief Justice de Villiers will go to Ottawa, and confer with Sir Wilfrid Laurier in regard to the Canadian system.

Collision at Corner of Sherbrooke and Aylmer

The residents from King street to Dalhousie street on Aylmer, have been complaining for a year or more of the extreme darkness, owing to there being no electric light along the above section of that street, still the council take no action.

Only a few weeks ago, Mr. H. P. Kennedy wrote that body complaining of the danger owing to the heavy traffic in that part of the city. Some evenings over 100 rigs pass up and down that portion of the street mainly because of the good condition of the road. There are not as many pedestrians because the street is so poorly lighted. Ladies will not venture to travel along it without an escort, as it is utterly impossible to see a few yards ahead. Mr. Kennedy's letter was either sent back to the committee, which reported to the council, or else was shelved. However, no action has been taken.

Last night two rigs collided at the corner of Sherbrooke and Aylmer streets, and had it not been for timely assistance rendered by residents nearby a most serious accident would have occurred. The occupants of one of the vehicles, Mr. and Mrs. Robinson were badly shaken up. Mrs. Robinson was thrown from the rig to the hard road and received many bruises, while the buggy and harness were badly damaged. The drivers were unable to see until it was too late to prevent a collision, owing to there being no electric light along the street.

The Best Guaranty of Merit is Open Publicity.

Every bottle of Dr. Pierce's world-famed medicines leaving the great laboratory at Buffalo, N. Y., has printed upon its wrapper all the ingredients entering into its composition. This fact alone places Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines on a class all by themselves. They cannot be classed with patent or secret medicines because they are neither. This is why so many unprejudiced physicians prescribe them and recommend them to their patients. They know what they are composed of, and that the ingredients are those endorsed by the most eminent medical authorities.

The further fact that neither Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the great stomach tonic, liver invigorator, heart regulator and blood purifier, nor his "Favorite Prescription" for weak, overworked, broken-down, nervous women, contains any alcohol, also entitles them to a place all by themselves.

Many years ago, Dr. Pierce discovered that chemically pure glycerine, of proper strength, is a better solvent and preservative of the medicinal principles residing in our indigenous, or native, medicinal plants than is alcohol; and, furthermore, that it possesses valuable medicinal properties of its own, being demulcent, nutritive, antiseptic, and a most efficient antiferment.

Neither of the above medicines contains alcohol, or any harmful, habit-forming drug, as will be seen from a glance at the formula printed on each bottle wrapper. They are safe to use and potent to cure.

Not only do physicians prescribe the above, non-secret medicines largely, but the most intelligent people employ them —people who would not think of using the ordinary patent, or secret medicines. Every ingredient entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's medicines has the strongest kind of an endorsement from leading medical writers of the several schools of practice. No other medicines put up for like purposes has any such professional endorsement.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Constipation is the cause of many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. One "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. Druggists sell them, and nothing is "just as good." Easy to take as candy.

Rich Strike of Oil and Gas at Kinmount

Kinmount, July 18.—There has been a good amount of talk about money in this part of the country a considerable amount of prospecting being done but the mines have not been very profitable as yet. However, there is something in the air at present which is causing some little talk among those who are interested in the matter. Experts have been about here a short time ago and have found good indications of petroleum and gas. A company has been formed Lindsay Gas and Coal Oil Co'y and an agent sent to lease the land the oil field is on. There are quite a number of lots that the field runs across. Starting from the river about three miles from Kinmount it runs through Mr. Jas. Osbourne's lot and west through Watson. The field will not be large like the Pennsylvania oil fields, but there will be over two thousand acres in all. The company leases the land for five years and commences operations inside eighteen months. They will bore for oil and gas.

Dropped Coffee

Doctor Gains 20 Pounds on Postum

A physician of Washington, D.C., says of his coffee experience,

"For years I suffered with periodical headaches which grew more frequent until they became almost constant. So severe were they that sometimes I was almost frantic. I was shallow, constipated, irritable, sleepless; my memory was poor, I trembled and my thoughts were often confused.

"My wife, in her wisdom, believed coffee was responsible for these ills and urged me to drop it. I tried many times to do so, but was its slave.

"Finally Wife bought a package of Postum and persuaded me to try it, but she made it same as ordinary coffee and I was disgusted with the taste. (I make this emphatic because I fear many others have had the same experience.) She was distressed at her failure and we carefully read the directions, made it right, boiled it full 15 minutes after boiling commenced, and with good cream and sugar, I liked it—it invigorated and seemed to nourish me.

"That was about a year ago. Now I have no headaches, am not sallow, sleeplessness and irritability are gone, my brain clear and my hand steady. I have gained 20 lbs. and feel I am a new man.

"I do not hesitate to give Postum due credit. Of course dropping coffee was the main thing, but I had dropped it before, using chocolate, cocoa and other things to no purpose.

"Postum not only seemed to act as an antigerant, but as an article of nourishment, giving me the needed phosphates and albumens. This is no imaginary tale. It can be substantiated by my wife and her sister, who both changed to Postum and are hearty women of about 70.

"I write this for the information and encouragement of others, and with a feeling of gratitude to the inventor of Postum."

Names given by Postum Co., Battle Creek Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

AMERICANS TRIED TO RUN THE SHOW-- TROUBLE AHEAD

Boasted They Would Win Everything, which, of Course They are Not Doing-- Trouble Begins

London, July 6.—The American team is here, and it owns the Stadium!

At least it descended in force upon the Stadium today and tried to own that spot.

The Swedish, English and Canadian athletes who were there backed up and let the Statesmen take possession, until Billy Sherring lost his patience and called a halt. The Americans had taken possession of the cinder path with their sprinters, swarmed all over the field, hurling discs, putting the shot, and swinging the hammer. They took the starting work in relays, moved the hurdles about all over the track, and generally owned things, and right in the center was Matt Halpin, the manager of the team, over whose appointment there was such a commotion, shouting around like a hawker on a side street, ordering the men around like a schoolmaster does unruly pupils.

THE TROUBLE BEGINS.

Then out came the pole vaulters. As soon as they arrived they commenced to kick about the width of the uprights, the size of the landing pit, and Gilbert of Yale, who has done 12 feet 6 inches in competition, and is credited with 13 feet in practice, pressured a spade, and, without permission, commenced to dig what Jack Tait called "a young grave." He dug a trench a foot deep and sloping up to the surface three feet away, and was proceeding to dig a couple more, when Sherring took a hand in the affair.

"Say, young fellow, let up!" he cried. "Do you thank you own the place?"

"No, but we are going to dig holes if we want 'em," replied Gilbert.

"Well, I guess you are not," returned Sherring. "Our men uses a spiked pole and no hole, and we don't want him breaking his neck in your pet falls."

The Americans persisted, but Sherring called Mr. Perry, the groundkeeper, and he called a halt.

THE KNOW-IT-ALLS.

The Americans were told they would have to do their leaping from the level ground.

"These are the Olympic games and we'll vault from a hole if we like," was the reply. "You English are 50 years behind the times in athletics. We'll show you how to run things. We'll jump from holes."

"You will, eh?" enquired Sherring, sarcastically. "You've run Olympic games for the first time. We'll have a say here."

"Where's Matt Halpin? He'll see!" called out Jacobs, the Chicago vaulter.

"Mat Halpin will find he does not do as he pleases here," returned Sherring, amid the applause of the Englishmen. The Swedes and Frenchmen stared a surprise at the little tiff, but were tickled to death.

The Yanks certainly took possession of everything, but they are a fine body of men. To hear them talk you would think it was all over but the shouting. They concede the other nations nothing but a possible looking in the five-mile race, the steeplechase, and the walks.

They even have the Marathon picked for Sidney Hatch of Chicago, or J. P. Sherring of New York. They are full of bombast, these Americans, and went right at the Canucks and proceeded to tell them all about how and where they were going to clean up.

KERR AND RECTOR

It was funny to see Bobby Kerr and J. Alcorn Rector the young Yankee creek sprinter, get together.

Rector proceeded to tell Kerr how he was running the hundred in 9 3-5, and how he run crouched over, took short strides at first, and all that sort of stuff. Kerr's brown eyes sparkled, and he took it all in without letting it shake his own confidence.

America has some grand athletes. There is no getting away from that. Men like M. P. Sheridan, John Flanagan, Ralph Rose in the weights, Garrels in the hurdles, Harry Sullivan and the negro, J. B. Taylor in the 400 metres, Mel Sheppard in the 1,500 metres, Gilbert of Yale, Jacobs of Chicago, and Bellah of California, in the pole vault, Porter, the high jumper, Rector, Robertson, Huff, and half a dozen more famous sprinters are all top-notchers, but there is no excuse for their bombast.

It was a spectacle to see them swarm out upon the field, white men and black men, a couple of red men, big men, little men, lean fellows and fat, bow-legged men and knock-kneed, they were busy everywhere. They chafed against the British regulation about knee-length pants, and promptly carved their new ones down to mid-thigh length, much to the horror of the Englishmen.

RECTOR A GOOD MAN.

The new sprinter, Rector, will give Bobby Kerr trouble, but Kerr should beat him. Rector is a well built fellow, a trifle lighter than Kerr, but as cleanly built, runs with a pronounced crouch. He does not show form getting away from the mark, but gets speed early, and when he get going went away from his team mates. One of the American runners is a Hopi Indian from Arizona way. Down in that country these cliff dwellers frequently run 50 miles, and rumor has it that they are speedy. The Hopi here is a little weazened up rat of a man, who runs flat-footed and rolls over when he is under way. He is said to be tireless, however, he will have to have more than endurance to win this Marathon. Sidney Hatch of Chicago, and Morrissey of New York were out too. Hatch is a dangerous-looking fellow, a little ball of muscle, quiet mannered, but a chap who will hang on like grim death. Morrissey is a fighting, scrapping style of a chap —I don't mean a rowdy—but a chap who will go right after a man who tries to harry him on the road.

Gilbert, Jacobs, and Bellah, the pole vaulters, had a work-out. Gilbert is the pick of them, a stylish lad—when he goes over. He made 11 feet 6 easily, but couldn't negotiate 12 feet, and the Canucks, who were watching with much interest, heaved a sigh of relief.

"Make Gilbert vault from the level ground, and he will be no for Archibald," they said as they went away. Archibald is going grandly. He vaults three times a week, and takes arm exercise and sprints the rest of the time.

Billy Sherring, trainer of the Canadian Olympic team, in a letter home, makes the following selections, some of which have already gone wrong;

Bobby Kerr is my selection for the 100 metres; Rector will be the runner-up.

For the 200 metres I will not look farther than Bobby Kerr for the winner, with Cartmill for second.

In the 400 metres, Halswell, the English championship winner, will be the man to beat, with Taylor or Hellman, the Americans, fighting out for second.

In the 800 metres, I look for Meiver Shepherd, the American, or Just of England to breast the tape first.

In the 1,500 metres, Webster will be the man to beat. He can do 3.58 for this distance, and that I look to win.

In the five-mile event, Voigt will be hard to beat. He can do well under 25 minutes, and has a fine finish.

For the hurdles, I look for Smithson or Shaw, the Americans, to win.

America will win the weight events.

For the pole vault I look for Ed. Archibald and Gilbert to fight it out. Both can do well over 12 feet.

For the broad jump, I look for Calbreder or Dan Kelly to go nearly 24 feet, and that will about win.

Larner, the English champion, will likely win all the walks.

I will leave my selection for the Marathon winner off for a few days. At present Lawson and Simpson look the best.

Harry Porter will win the high jump, with Con. Leahy close up.

Con. Leahy may win the hop, skip, and jump.

Roy Ewry will win the standing long and high jumps.

The javelin event will likely go to the Swede, Lemming.

The discus will likely go to Garrels, who has beaten Martin Sheridan.

Well, all our boys are doing fairly well, and all are trying hard, but they are hardly all of championship calibre.

Lacrosse games played on the N. L.U. on Saturday, resulted in a win for Tecumsehs and Nationals.

2,500 Soldiers Passed through the City Yesterday

About 2500 soldiers bound for Quebec, passed through Peterborough yesterday afternoon. Hundreds of people were at the depot to see them. OLD AGE PENSIONS

In the opinion of the Investor's Review, of London, the old age pensions scheme recently approved by the British House of Commons is merely a step towards the adoption of a universal pension system by Great Britain.

The Review expresses fear of the effect the scheme will have on the national finances. The opposition leader says, not without ground for the afterfair as to the bearing the measure may have on the fate of the army and navy, and the Review itself says the meeting of civil pension claims and the like expenditures will leave the exchequer without funds to draw upon for future wars; great or small. It is impossible, it is declared, for the nation to remain a dominating influence in world politics and at the same time to be a spendthrift in domestic affairs."

In France conditions are similar to those existing in Great Britain. There, too, the Government is endeavoring to meet the demands of Socialists who are calling for liberal State aid to ameliorating conditions, at home, and of the military party, which insists upon maintaining a position among the great powers abroad. The result is that the national expenditure of France has been increasing at the rate of some $10,000,000 a year for three years past, and the strain of the burden imposed by Government has become almost intolerable.

It may be that the cause of peace has more to hope for from the impossibility experienced by governments in finding all the money required for armaments on the one hand and the improvement of social conditions on the other, than it has from the horrors which the perfection of aerial navigation threatens to add to war. It is hardly possible, now that the masses have obtained such political power in France and Great Britain, coupled with the knowledge of how to use that power, that there will be any reduction in the calls upon the Governments of those countries for improvement in domestic conditions. Rather the reverse, and every dollar spent in this way means so much less available for forts and guns. It is certain, too, that present conditions in Germany, under which an antiquated and restricted franchise prevents a full expression of popular opinion, cannot long continue, and just as soon as political power there passes into the hands of the people we shall see in Germany a repetition of the social history of the adjoining countries. And the ultimate result promises to be for the good of humanity.

If the demand for old age pensions and other like schemes had nothing else to recommend them than the influence they are likely to exert towards banishing the specter of war from Europe, they would be worth while for that alone.

ADVANCING THE CLOCK

Rather surprising and very interesting is the news that a committee of the British House of Commons has recommended a bill to "advance the clock" an hour in April of each year for a period of six months.

The idea is to lengthen the amount of time available in daylight after work. A work-day which before April 1st would be from 8.00 a. m. to 5.00 p. m. and which, at present is the same after April 1st, would if this bill should become law in England, be advanced an hour. It would become a workday of from 7.00 a. m. to 5.00 p. m. on the clock now goes. But, as the clock would be put forward an hour, it would read as now, 9.00 a. m. to 6.00 p.m.

Instead of three hours of daylight in summer after working hours, people would have four. The scheme is simply one to help people get up earlier in summer. To our mind, the plan is a good enough one. If there are any practical drawbacks, they will be heard from speedily, now that the proposal seems to be as parliamentary likelihood [illegible]

Heat prostrates the nerves. In the summer one needs a tonic to offset the customary hot weather Nerve and Strength depression. You will feel better within 48 hours after beginning to take such a remedy as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Its prompt action in restoring the weakened nerves is surprising. Of course, you won't get entirely strong in a few days, but each day you can actually feel the improvement. That tired, lifeless, aguishess, feeling will quickly depart when using the Restorative. Dr. Shoop's Restorative will sharpen a failing appetite; it aids digestion; it will strengthen the weakened Kidneys and Heart by simply rebuilding the worn-out nerves that these organs depend upon. Test it a few days and be convinced. Sold by all druggists.

STRANGE FANATICS.

Ascetic Customs and Practices of the Doukhobors of Canada.

Of the many strange sects which find followers in some portion or other of the globe there is none more eccentric or more Spartan in self-discipline than the Doukhobors. It is a sect which responds to a call that breaks no caviling, no hanging back.

The people who voluntarily accept its obligations impose upon themselves a penance which is calculated to test the limit of their endurance. Humiliation of the flesh is part and parcel of their creed. To such extremes do they carry their fanatical beliefs that they are frequently to be seen marching through scorching heat or bitter cold with practically no clothing beyond a loin cloth to cover them.

The Doukhobors make sacrifices which surpass in severity those of the most rigid ascetic. They have been ordered by their leaders to sell their cattle. They have done so. Now their children are dying for want of sustenance. Last autumn they were ordered to sell their sheep, and they disposed of 15,000. They then sold their chickens. Now they are paupers.

Their leaders have abolished time. Nearly $3,000 worth of watches and clocks have been taken away from the people by their head men. Mirrors have been forbidden; to make sure, special agents have collected all the looking glasses. Tea, coffee, sugar and pancakes are under the ban, and their food is now narrowed down to potatoes, carrots, onions and turnips.

According to the statement of a correspondent who has studied their customs, 500 Doukhobors live in two houses. Every man and woman has a space allotted, which is just four feet wide. They have to get into their beds from the foot, so cramped are their quarters. All eat at big tables in the centre.

The young men sleep like sardines in the garret. And, under a new rule, no Doukhobor may own more than one shirt. So poor and indigestible is their food now that most of the Doukhobors are really ill and diseased.

They let the law go as a dead letter, and births, deaths and marriages go unrecorded.

They live in northwestern Canada, these strange fanatics. Only a little while ago they were Russians—Quakers in reality. Like some of the earlier English Quakers, they were forced by persecution to leave their country and flee to North America. Their English prototypes went to Pennsylvania more than two centuries ago; the Russians went to Canada in 1898. They settled near Lake Winnipeg, and there they are now, where 300,000 acres are reserved for their colonization.

DELIGHTS OF THE PRAIRIE.

Young Englishwoman Describes Life on a Canadian Farm.

We have heard a lot of the experiences of the usual British immigrant who takes up land in British America, but it has remained for The World's Work in its "all round the world" May issue to give us the vivid picture of a young Englishwoman who runs a Canadian farm. Miss Blande-Clark, in telling her story, says: The sun was my clock. I was due to leave my bed the moment it escaped the lingering embrace of the horizon. My room faced east; white muslin curtains veiled the window, but no blind. The hired men were supposed to put in an hour's work before six o'clock breakfast—feeding, milking, grooming. The Canadian always turned out at dawn, it was his strong point; the Englishman hated early rising and shrilled to a man, her one, and he was endowed with the conscience of an Arthurian knight; the Irishman had a deplorable weakness of not being able to awaken, but he was so convincingly sorry for it; he had a way of excusing himself in the true Hibernian turn of the tongue, with the true Hibernian smile to help it out, so that it was not until duck shooting started—when I undertook to provide cartridges for shooting before or after work hours—that I started to understand the way of the awakening and some other ways of the Irishman. On Sunday mornings I was as a rule the solitary human in residence.

I must acknowledge that the sun often soared from crimson nearness to distant gold before I obeyed the vivacious message from my four-footed friends assembled at the paddock gate to urge the fact that the golden rule of oats for breakfast was not to be cancelled even by the well-appreciated delight of sleeping out on summer Saturday nights. Now and again I obeyed the summons ungraciously enough, with the deliberate intention of turning in again the moment I had secured up breakfast, but if the fine air of the Canadian prairie is the special quality of Canada, the early morning air is the essence of the quality; day by day it revives one physically and mentally to the somewhat arduous duties of the daily round, and it even stimulates to that inspiring degree of life which may only be written down as the purely pagan joy of being alive; so that, although I have turned in again after preparing kidneys on breakfast for the household, never after possessing up stable breakfast for the beasts.

Apples and Insomnia.

A medical writer declares that the apple is such a common fruit that very few persons become familiar with its medicinal properties. The best thing just before going to bed, he says, is to eat an apple. "Persons unfamiliar with the medicine of the fruit," he continues, "are likely to throw up their hands in horror at the visions of dyspepsia which such a suggestion may summon up, but no harm can come even to a dyspeptic orphan by the eating of a ripe and juicy apple before going to bed. The apple is excellent brain food, because it has more phosphoric acid in easily digested shape than any other fruit. It excites the action of the liver, promotes sound and healthy sleep and thoroughly disinfects the mouth. This is not all; the apple prevents indigestion and throat diseases."

CANADA'S NARROW ESCAPE.

Might Have Been Republic if Fenian Plans Had Succeeded.

If in 1868 the Fenians had acted on the advice of William Wilkerson and attacked Manitoba, instead of attacking from St. Alban's, Vermont, Canada might now have been in their possession. Western Canada, at least, would have been theirs. This is the firm opinion of former Police Justice Thomas S. King of Buffalo.

"But for the stubbornness of Gen. John O'Neil, the Fenian leader, and the majority of his associates in the Fenian senate," declared Justice King, "Manitoba would, almost beyond the possibility of a doubt, have become the realization of that Utopian dream, an Irish republic.

"'I've a scheme which beats O'Neill's pet idea all hollow, and is sure to win,' said Wilkerson to King, then Associated Press correspondent in Buffalo. 'It's to assemble all the Fenians we can at St. Paul, and from there march on to Winnipeg and take that place, and the capture of the rest of Manitoba will be easy. But before the Fenians are concentrated at St. Paul, I want you to go to Louis Riel, the revolutionist, who is itching for trouble, and give him $10,000, which I will hand you. Have Riel promise his direct co-operation in the taking of Winnipeg, and when that is done to issue bonds in the name of the new Irish republic, as well as his own. Send the bonds to me and I will dispose of them to the end that the new republic will be well financed, so that it will have no difficulty in finding the necessary arms and with which to defend itself.'

"Saturated with the impression that everybody interested in the success of the Fenian movement must look upon his project with eyes the same as his own, Wilkerson proceeded to the room where the Fenian senate was in session. He tapped lightly. Frank Gallagher answering the call. When the door was opened Gen. O'Neill was seen at the head of the council table. Wilkerson took hold of Gallagher and pulled him out into the hall and into the corner where I stood. Then he told him of his scheme, just as he had told me. Gallagher also thought well of it, and went back into the conference to lay is before those about the table. Shortly after Wilkerson was invited in.

"There was a long debate. O'Neill didn't seem to like the plan. In vain did Wilkerson dilate upon its sure success. He said that St. Paul was but a hundred miles from Winnipeg, and the Fenian forces could march there without any undue fatigue.

"On the other hand, the British regulars—there was no Canadian militia then—were no closer than Toronto, and would have to march the whole of that long, weary distance, as the United States would not permit any armed body of men to pass through its territory, even if they were aboard the cars. When they did arrive at Winnipeg they would be worn out by their long hike, and would be in no condition to cope with the fresh troops of the Fenians. The latter, in a large measure, were as good soldiers as the British regulars, as many of them had served in either the Union or Confederate armies in the civil war, ended but two years before.

"Wilkerson assured them he would furnish the $10,000, and had a man who he knew could secure the co-operation of Riel, telling them about me. Many, if not all, know me, and wanted by opinion. I seconded what Wilkerson said, as did Gallagher.

"Some of them doubted the practicability of disposing of bonds issued by Riel, so that at last the determined opposition of O'Neill won, and Wilkerson's proposal was defeated.

CORNPLANTER MEDAL.

Given to David Boyle, Curator of Ontario's Provincial Museum.

The Cayuga (N.Y.) County Historical Society recently bestowed upon David Boyle, curator of the Provincial Museum of Ontario, the Cornplanter medal, in recognition of his achievement in Iroquois Indian research. This honor has been conferred upon but two other persons distinguished for original researches connected with the Six Nations. A short time ago Mr. Boyle was made an honorary member of the Anthropological and Ethnological Society, of Italy, one of the most exclusive of European scientific bodies.

Mr. Boyle was born in Greenock, Scotland, in 1842 and came to this country with his father at the age of 14 years. He worked his way up, teaching school near Guelph for ten years and was principal of Flora public school for another ten years. About 1890 he opened a book store on Yonge street, Toronto, and devoted all his spare moments to archaeology. He founded the collection which formed the nucleus of the present Provincial Museum in Toronto, which is at present the largest and best of its kind in Canada and is a monument to the industry, knowledge and public spirit of its founder and first curator.

In recognition of his deep interest in the Iroquois race he was on the Queen's birthday, 1883, formally adopted by them as a "full-blooded" Indian Mohawk of the turtle totem and the name bestowed on him was Ri-ri-wa-no-neh, which signifies one appointed to do intertribal business. In 1884 he, in company with two distinguished scientists from Ireland, investigated the ancient dwelling sites along the valley of the Charles river, Massachusetts. His services on this occasion were spoken of very highly by the late Horatio Hale, F.R.S.C. For many years Mr. Boyle has been the official correspondent in Canada of the Anthropological Institute, of Great Britain and Ireland, and his annual report as curator of the Provincial Museum is eagerly sought for by scientific men the world over.

Hon. James Dunsmuir Appointed.

The appointment of Hon. James Dunsmuir, Lieutenant-Governor of B.C., to the directorate of the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. is very favorably commented upon, and is regarded as indicating an increased interest on the part of that company in the development of the province.

Weak Kidneys

Weak Kidneys surely point to weak kidney Nerves. The Kidneys, like the Heart, and the Stomach, had their weakness not in the organs itself, but in the nerves that control and guide and strengthen them. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a medicine specifically prepared to reach the controlling nerves. To doctor the Kidneys alone, is futile. It is a waste of time, and of money as well.

To the constitution as adopted in 1787 ten amendments were added in December, 1791; an eleventh in January, 1798; a twelfth in September, 1804; the thirteenth amendment was added December, 1865; the fourteenth, July, 1868, and the fifteenth, March, 1870.

Fireproof Paper.

To make paper fireproof nothing more is necessary than to saturate the paper in a strong solution of alum water, and when thoroughly dry it will resist the action of flame.

Alligator.

"Alligator" is merely another form of the Spanish "el lagarto," the lizard. Shakespeare classed the alligator as a fish, to judge from Romeo's description of the contents of the apothecary's shop "An alligator stuff'd and other skins of ill shaped fishes."

Taliaferro.

Queer Eggs.

Perhaps the most curious and bizarre of all fish eggs are those of the carcharous sharks and rays, which have quadrangular horny cases with two or three inches long filaments at the corners which coil about seaweed and other objects. These horny cases in the Port Jackson shark of the Pacific are twisted into a spiral form.

Tory.

Tory is an Irish word for a "big runner." It originally applied to the Irish outlaws in Ireland and then to all Jacobites prior to becoming a political designation.

"Alexandria, Egypt."

All correspondents with Egypt in all parts of the world should be warned that it is necessary to put the word "Egypt" on all communications addressed to Alexandria, as a great deal of trouble and annoyance has been caused owing to communications addressed to the Egyptian city being delivered to Scotland, Canada, New South Wales, Cape Colony, Italy, the United States of America and other countries where towns of the same name exist.—Egyptian Gazette, Alexandria.

The Berliner.

On the theory that might goes before right the Berliner fights his way past old ladies and tired women into crowded tram cars and ruthlessly jostles from his path the passerby in the streets with an obstinate insolence that goads the visitor accustomed to the higher civilization of other capitals to impotent fury.—Berlin Cor. London Outlook.

A Good Carriage.

Never neglect to go through some daily exercises which will keep the muscles in order, the head erect, the shoulders well thrown back. Carriage stands you in good stead even in old age.

Summer Gauze Shades.

Nothing is daintier for the dining table, especially in the summer, if artificial light be needed, than the candle. It is a simple matter to make pretty shades at a small cost.

Buy the wire frames and make close fitting covers of linen colored pongee, stenciling on the four sides conventional designs.

Another pretty affair is a shade of white linen, also fitted to the wire frame and finished at the bottom with a frill of narrow valenciennes lace. To make the linen shades more elaborate a little hand embroidery may be added.

Shades made along these general lines have the added value of being easily laundered.

HIT THE WRONG BANK

Story of the Man Who Wanted to Open a Small Account.

A WALL STREET EXPERIENCE.

The Would Be Depositor of Modest Means Found Himself In a Place For Millionaires—An Official's Courteous Explanation and Advice.

"When," said the man who writes pieces for magazines and things, "by some strange and unprecedented chance, I had got hold of a matter of $350 all at one and the same time it looked big to me. By an even more curious chance there wasn't anything that I really needed to do with the money, so I decided that I'd bank it.

"Now, I knew in a general way that in order to put money in a bank you've got to be known and give your pedigree and look respectable, and all that, and I hated to approach a bank without any sort of credentials. Therefore I went to the business manager of a certain magazine which occasionally prints pieces that I write and asked him what I'd better do.

"'Simplest thing in the world,' said he. 'I'll give you a note to our bank.'

"That sounded fine to me. He wrote me the note, and I started for the bank a good deal tickled over how easy the little depositing proceeding had been made.

"The bank to which I had the note is in Wall street. I asked the uniformed man who was standing around where I'd find the receiving teller's window, and he pointed that window out to me. I got into line and watched the teller take in money.

"I must own that I was a bit stalled to note the great size of some of the deposits he was receiving. Why, fellows were giving the money to him by the satchelful. But I had my note in my pocket, and I remained complacent enough with that consciousness.

"When I reached the receiving teller I passed in my note, and the receiving teller, a decidedly civil young man, opened it and read it. Then he looked at me, after which he read the note again, this time with a sort of puzzled expression on his countenance. I didn't see why the receiving teller should be puzzled over such a simple matter, but puzzled he seemed. He rang a bell, and the uniformed man who'd directed me to that window appeared.

"'Show this gentleman to the office of the cashier,' said the receiving teller to the uniformed man, at the same time regarding me with a pleasant smile, and the uniformed man led me down the passageway and took me behind a railing where there was a handsome gray haired gentleman sitting at a desk.

"The handsome gray haired gentleman received me cordially and invited me to be seated. I handed him my note, which the receiving teller had returned to me, and he leaned back in his chair and read it carefully. Then he, too, looked puzzled after he'd read the note a second time. Then he looked at me pleasantly over the tops of his spectacles.

"'Ahem!' said the handsome gray haired gentleman, not disagreeably, but in a nice, banker-like way. 'Might I—er—inquire, Mr. Penphist, without seeming to be unduly inquisitive, as to how—er—large a—er—balance you would usually be carrying?'

"Well, that was a civil enough question, nothing inquisitive about it.

"'Why, sir,' I said to the handsome gray haired gentleman, 'I am opening an account with a matter of some $350, but I shall no doubt make some additions to that within the next two months, and probably I shall carry a balance of—well, say, $500 or $600 right along.'

"The kindly cashier with the gray hair fairly beamed upon me.

"'Ha—just so, just so,' said he, twiddling his thumbs. 'We feel complimented, Mr. Penphist, we really do, that you should have come to us. And it is unfortunate—er—really unfortunate, that we are so utterly lacking in facilities for taking care of accounts of such a character.'

"'You see, Mr. Penphist, our institution is of—er—a sort of special character. It is used as a depository by—well, perhaps I should put it in a clearer manner. I say it to you quite in confidence, you understand, Mr. Penphist, but we have only 1,600 depositors on our books, and these 1,600 depositors' aggregate balances amount all the time to a matter of $110,000,000.'

"Well, that was about enough. I saw the light then. I'd drifted into a millionaires' bank on the careless credentials of a business manager who'd written me that note no doubt in a thoughtless mood.

"The gray haired cashier acted fully about it. He recommended a fine bank to me—'one that combines perfect responsibility with the necessary facilities for handling accounts like—er—yours, Mr. Penphist,' he added.

"For all of the cashier's politeness I walked out of there into the cold gray light of Wall street feeling like a good deal of a human caterpillar.

"I didn't go to the bank recommended to me by the cashier; didn't have the nerve to visit any more banks. I've got $62 left now of the $350, but I'm going to use that as a nest egg, and maybe some day even yet I'll have a bank account."

NEW WOMAN OF INDIA.

Education Is Freeing Her From the Shackles of Old Customs.

As a result of the propaganda work that is now being carried on by the East Indians in behalf of women, womanhood all over Hindostan is becoming awakened. The members of the "weaker" sex are beginning to insist upon being allowed to come into their own. In many parts of Hindostan women are no longer confined in their houses and early marriage has entirely been done away with in educated cities. The people have commenced to realise that if a boy is educated, just one man is educated; but, on the contrary, if a girl is enlightened it means the uplift of the whole family. India has begun to find that the East Indian women are the country's best asset. They mold and fashion the destiny of the nation and fix its character.

The present generation has produced women of whom India is proud. Into the learned professions Hindostan has sent her daughters. As doctors of religion, law, literature, medicine, philosophy, music and art, there are East Indian women who can hold their own not only with the women but also with the men of other countries of the world. True they are few numerically; but they are like the yeast which, though proportionately very small in amount, leavens the whole mass. The masses are still backward and much remains to be done; but a beginning his been made. Once proper provision is made for her education her evolution will proceed apace. The East Indian woman, no matter how illiterate she may be, is usually able to recite from memory scores of pages of religious and epic poems, not merely like a parrot, but with understanding. The women of Hindostan is quick in intelligence and perception and the metaphysical and religious training she has had for generations make her an apt and willing student.

DEAF AND DUMB ACTORS.

Extraordinary Scene In London Theatre Where Deaf Mutes Acted.

To demonstrate their remarkable facility of communication, the deaf and dumb people in London arranged an entertainment recently at the St. Saviour's Social Club, Oxford street. A one-act play was staged in which actors, scene sifters and stage manager were all deaf and dumb, as were the audience who witnessed the performance. Sir Arthur H. Fairburn, the deaf and dumb baronet, who was one of the spectators, had interested himself greatly in the project.

The scene was an extraordinary one. Not a sound broke the stillness of the hall during the whole time the play was on, both action and dialogue being accomplished in silence. The actors, with mobile faces, gesticulated quaintly under the limelight, reeling off their parts upon fingers which moved with a lightning-like rapidity.

But the audience was the more interesting study. Looking forward in their seats, they were engrossed in the unfolding of the plot, following every movement of the players on the stage. But they watched the actors' fingers instead of their faces, and turned quickly to each other, now and again, to exchange a smiling gesture of comprehension.

When an important point in the dialogue arose, the actor who happened to be "speaking" faced his audience directly, and moderated the speed at which his fingers moved. Then, pausing a moment, he waited until the emphatic nods of his "audience" told him that his observation had been understood.

The Pirates of Hong Kong.

The fact that several cases of piracy in British waters and in the immediate vicinity of Hong Kong have been reported is causing quite a stir in the city. It is to our credit that we remember the tremendous fuss we have made about the depredations of pirates in the Chinese waters of the Canton river—we could hardly find language strong enough to denounce the apathy or the weakness or the faulty administration of the Chinese Government in allowing such outrages to take place—and now, behold! the pirates—perhaps the same men who were driven out of the Canton river by British gunboats—are at their work on our own shores right under our eyes. We must sweep our waters clear of these evil-doers, or make up our minds to become the laughing-stock of South China. Shau-ki-wan, where the acts of piracy are reported, was once a favorite haunt and centre of operations for some of the most desperate of the gangs of sea robbers which used to infest the coast of Southern China.

An Annual Opportunity

For Seven Per Cent. Investment of a Sound Security

and at the same time receive shares in a mining enterprise free and clear without cost to you. This enterprise is conducted by men of the highest character and the administration of the company is along lines which are bound to bring the results sought. The money received from the Bond Issue will be used for development and extension of the company's vast interests, and it is the opinion of experts that the company can pay large returns from the property, the ores to be extracted being of sufficient value to pay the interest on the bonds as well as permit of a sinking fund to carry on further improvements and for dividend paying purposes. Send in your order and make reservations for 7 per cent. bonds, these take 30 days in which to make investigation before making your payment, as we want to have you thoroughly satisfied before investing a dollar of your money. Here is this opportunity that has been long sought and we don't think has ever been offered before.

For complete information, detailed description of the property, record of title, bank references, etc., address Thomas Patterson & Co.

To Canadian Investors

The undersigned has received an allotment of unsold portion of $100,000 of

7 Per Cent. First Mortgage Five-Year Gold Bonds

dated January 11, 1908, and maturing January 11, 1913. These Bonds are offered at par and accrued interest by Metropolitan Trust & Savings Bank, Chicago, trustees.

SECURITY—The Entire Property and Improvements Owned THE URES CONSOLIDATED MINING COMPANY in the District of Ures, State of Sonora Mexico, Free from Mortgage of Bonded Indebtedness except this present Bond issue.

An Unusual Opportunity for Investment in Sound Security

The Ures Consolidated Mining Company offers $100,000.00 of First Mortgage Gold Bonds. This issue of bonds is the only mortgage or bonded indebtedness ever placed on the company's properties.

These bonds are in the denomination of $100.00, and bear interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, July and January, and are redeemable on or before five years from date at the company's option at $110.00 and accrued interest.

$100.00 Stock Bonus Given with Every $100.00 Bond

With each bond issued there will be given $100.00 par value of the capital stock of the company as a bonus, and in addition thereto there will be placed in escrow with the Trustee additional stock which will be available to the bondholders at their option any time within a period of three years, the bondholder being entitled to surrender his bond any time within said period and receive in lieu thereof stock for every dollar of indebtedness to him on account of said bonds.

The Security Back of these Bonds

The company owns twelve claims situated in the district of Ures, State of Sonora, Mexico, free from mortgage or bonded indebtedness, except the present bond issue.

On one of these properties (The Ramona Mine) 6,000 feet of underground development work has been done, consisting of an inclined shaft to the depth of 400 feet with drifts in three levels to the North and South of the shaft.

An average value of ore worth $211.67 per ton is exposed throughout the mine, from the collar of the shaft to the extreme parts in the drifts, all of which is above water level.

The company has made surface improvements and mine improvements to the extent of $60,000.00 in the way of machinery, skids, trams, steam hoists, mill and nearly everything necessary to make the mining camp complete.

In addition to the absolute ownership of these twelve valuable claims, the company has a lease on the San Jose Mine, adjoining its property, in which the company has been operating in high grade ore.

During the past sixty days the company has extracted and delivered to ore buyers and the bank at Hermosillo, $8,000.00 worth of ore and bullion, the ore having been reduced to bullion through the company's mill, with the exception of 1,450 pounds, which was sold to an ore buyer for $662.38.

The Money Derived from the Sale of These Bonds

This issue of bonds is made for the purpose of securing money at once in order to extend the development work more quickly than the company's present means will permit.

With the high grade ore in sight to the distance of 30 feet to the South of the shaft, the management is assured that within six months from date of making the improvements now necessary the company's properties will be on a self-sustaining and dividend-paying basis.

The Stock which is Given with these bonds will be as valuable as the bonds when the Company has the ready capital to push operations

Men who invest in these bonds will have no cause or reason to regret their action, for the bonds afford an investment in a security which is absolutely safe—much better than ordinary city or country real estate, which is considered perfectly safe if the property put up to secure a mortgage is double the face of the loan. The security given on these bonds is better than 7 to 1, for the Ures Consolidated Mining Company has refused an offer of $700,000.00 for the property upon which this $100,000.00 worth of bonds is issued.

These bonds are an investment with all speculative risk eliminated—an investment with absolute security.

Make your reservation at once. This is small and promises to be quickly sold.

Banco de Sonora, Hermosillo, Mex., Feb. 15th, 1908.

To whom it may concern:—

We hereby beg to state that The Ures Consolidated Mining Company has during the past five years made several deliveries of bullion to this bank, and it is the opinion of mining men here that they have the making of a fair mine, and further, that the properties owned and controlled by them bid promise of becoming paying properties.

From our knowledge of the men connected, we believe they are doing all in their power to bring about the results above mentioned.

1 CENT A 2 SHARE

Send us your name as a member in this new company, with your remittance for as many thousand shares as you can take at $5 per thousand.

This is a short-time offer on a hurry-up proposition. Our vice president is up at Rawhide now putting the miners at work. We want to raise the necessary funds for development as quickly as possible. Therefore, we offer the first block of stock at $5 a thousand shares, while subscription must be all cash. We want the money in hand. We mean to work without let-up, and we have made it an ironclad rule not to run in debt. Cash counts now.

Our prospectuses are out, send for one.

Make reservation of stock, if you do no more. But, remember, this present offer of stock at Half a Cent a Share is now open, and will be closed as soon as enough cash subscriptions are in hand. Don't wait, or you will get left.

The gold mining property owned outright by the company consists of 7 claims, 5 in the Rawhide district of Nevada, and 2 in the Dulzura district of Southern California.

The Rawhide district to-day is more famous than Goldfield, Tonopah, Buttfreg, or Bonanza were at the same stage of exploration and development. The Dulzura discovery is one of the most sensational in the history of California.

Ten samples of ore which were among the first assayed, run as high as $7,400.37 to the ton, and all ten averaged over $2,500 a ton.

In both camps we located early, and our locations are choice. Our own officers will superintend the mining.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the Northwest Provinces, excepting 8 and 26 reserve may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father or mother.

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

Clean Up Inside

Blood and System Cleansing in the Spring Makes Good Health all Summer.

In spite of all your careful habits, it's safe to say that in the spring you feel poorly—have a throbbing sensation in the head—skin is pale or yellow, with dark rings under the eyes. If not absolutely bilious the system is so full of bile that you feel heavy and tired all day long.

Clean up, work off the winter's accumulation of waste, purify your blood. Do this and you'll feel fresh as a prize-fighter. "For ten years, says W. B. Sangster, of Concord, "I suffered greatly from impure blood, which made me feel debilitated and unfit for work. I had no appetite suffered from indigestion and gas, had some pains in the back, caused by poor kidney action. Spring was the hardest time of all, and many a time I felt despondent and languid enough to throw up the sponge. I was impressed by the marvellous work done by Dr. Hamilton's Pills and tried them. They suited me exactly. In one week I felt like new. I was braced up, got rid of blood weakness, gained in flesh, got back my old time appearance and spirits. Dr. Hamilton's Pills will clean all the sickness out of a man in short order and I urge young and old to use this grand tonic medicine."

Dr. Hamilton's Pills are a perfect spring medicine; they destroy germs and poisons of every description and strength whereby the system rallies and the patient quickly enjoys the blessings of Perfect Health. Get Dr. Hamilton's Pills—to-day—25c at all dealers.

SCARED THE ROBBER.

How a Determined Man Prevented a Holdup.

"The fact that a determined stand is all that is needed," continued the western man, "was illustrated a good many years ago by a peculiar little incident which took place on the old stage line running out of Tombstone, A. T. Holdups used to be frequent on that route; but, strange to say, nobody took any precautions against such a contingency. One day the stage was carrying an unusual number of passengers, and while it was going over an extremely desolated section of the road a masked man stepped from behind a rock, leveled a shotgun at the driver and ordered him to pull up.

"He obeyed at once, and the robber began the usual programme by telling everybody to get out and range himself in line with his hands above his head. There were several nervy men on top, but none of them cared to court death by taking the initiative, and it was impossible, moreover, to say how many additional ruffians might be lurking behind the rocks. At any rate, all hands were clambering down when suddenly the door of the stage was flung violently open and out leaped a big, fierce looking man with a cocked revolver in each fist.

"At the sight of him the robber took an involuntary backward step and fell sprawling over a round stone. Both barrels of his gun went off in the air, and in the confusion he picked himself up and ran like a deer for cover. He had a horse on the other side of the rocks, and in less time than it takes to tell it he was in the saddle and 'burning the wind' across the prairie. He got away, and now comes the funny part of the story.

"While the robber was beating his retreat the big man snapped both pistols ineffectually at least half a dozen times and then discovered in blank amazement that neither one of them was loaded. He was glaring dumfounded into the empty cylinders when his wife stuck her head out of the coach and burst into vociferous weeping.

"'Oh, John,' she sobbed, 'I took the cartridges out of them guns this morning and forgot to tell you about it!' As she spoke she held out a handful of brass shells.

"'What the mischief did you do that for?' he roared.

"'I was skeered that they might go off in the coach and shoot the baby—boohoo-hoo!' she replied."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

SUNSET AT GUAYAQUIL.

There Is No Twilight, No Interval Between Daylight and Dark.

The days and nights at Guayaquil are of equal length. The sun knocks off promptly at 6 o'clock in the evening and gets up at 6 in the morning with equal regularity the whole year around. There is no twilight, no gloaming, no interval whatever between daylight and darkness, only a brilliant illumination, the sudden disappearance of a red ball into a blue ocean, a spread of flame color over all the western sky for a few minutes and a purple haze in the east.

Then the surface of the ocean, like the heavens, is lighted with millions of strange and shifting stars, for the water is so impregnated with phosphorus that each tiny wave is tipped with light, and the foam that follows in the wake of the vessel is often like a stream of fire. Sometimes you can see porpoises swimming along the bow of the vessel filled with phosphorescent light and followed by a streak of sparks like a comet's tail.

The Southern Cross, with the right arm tipped out at proper angle, lies straight ahead in the midst of myriads of unknown worlds that look strange to those accustomed to the northern constellations. Under the left arm is a large black spot in the heavens brightened by only a single modest star, which the sailors call "the devil's dinner bag." Over the stern of the vessel in the early evening you can plainly distinguish the familiar constellation of the Great Bear, but it goes to bed with the children.

HIS SERVICES.

What Became of All the Bills He Introduced in Congress.

"Yes, my fellow citizens," said the political candidate, "if you have paid any attention to the work of congress you will have noticed that during the past session I introduced twenty-two bills, each of which was intended to benefit this community. I stand before you today with the proud consciousness of having served you faithfully and to the best of my ability. Those twenty-two bills would, if they had been passed, have made this one of the most favored districts on God's green earth, and"—

"Oh," yelled a man in the gallery, "we know you introduced 'em all right, but what happened to 'em after that?"

"Gentlemen, I appeal to your sense of honor. Do you consider it fair that I should be interrupted in this manner? Is it right that I should"—

"There ain't no harm in answerin' the question, is there?" asked another of the statesman's hearers.

"Well, Mr. I will tell you what became of those bills, my fellow citizens. Every one of them was printed in the Congressional Record, where, if you will look over the files, you may find them today. But to revert to the seed question, gentlemen, I do not hesitate to promise that no man living in this, the most splendid district in our grand old state, shall appeal to me in vain if you shall deem it best to send me back to Washington, where I have served you with such signal ability."

Funerals in Peru.

According to social usage, women in Peru cannot attend funerals, and they do not appear at weddings unless they are very intimate friends. When a funeral procession passes through the streets the coffin is carried upon the shoulders of the pallbearers, who are followed by an empty hearse drawn by two, four or six horses, according to the means of the mourners and their desire for display. All the male members of the family and friends of the deceased follow on foot, with a line of empty carriages behind them. As long as they are in the presence of the dead it is considered a proper and necessary evidence of respect to walk. After the body has been committed to the grave those who attend the funeral are brought home in carriages.

Sealed Tenders addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for supplying Coal for the Dominion Buildings," will be received at this office until 4.30 p.m. on Monday, August 3rd, 1908, for the supply of Coal for the Public Buildings throughout the Dominion.

Combined specification and form of tender can be obtained on application at this office.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed form supplied and signed with their actual signature.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, made payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works equal to ten per cent (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering declines to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or if he fails to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

PRINCE GIVES 100 POUNDS FOR POOR IN CITY OF QUEBEC

Thanks Mayor Garneau for the Hospitality Extended to Him, and Congratulates All Connected with the Planning of the Celebration

Quebec, July 28.—A large number of servants and junior officers at the Citadel shared in the largesse distributed by the Prince. The principal presents were pins and cuff links.

The following letter was received by Sir George Garneau, Mayor of Quebec, this morning, from Sir Arthur Bigge, the Prince's private secretary:

"Citadel, Quebec, July 28, 1908.

"Dear Mr. Mayor—

"Before leaving Quebec, the Prince of Wales is anxious to convey to you and the citizens of Quebec the expression of his deep appreciation of the splendid reception accorded him, and to thank you and the municipality for all the admirable arrangements made in connection with his visit. He noted with satisfaction that the police duties were carefully sustained, and he is glad to learn that very few accidents occurred during week.

"His Royal Highness was particularly pleased with the effective and tasteful manner in which the city was decorated, also with the illuminations, the splendor of which was so much enhanced by the beauty of the natural surrounding. In the pageant itself the Prince was greatly interested and indeed impressed by the magnificent scenes illustrative of many of the memorable and stirring events in the history of Quebec.

"His Royal Highness knows that the work involved has been a labor of love to all concerned, but he sincerely congratulates all the men, women, and children who played a part and the organizers, whose efforts have been crowned with such conspicuous success.

"To you, Mr. Mayor, personally, and to the municipality, his Royal Highness desires to express his sincerest thanks for your kindness and consideration.

"The Prince has very much pleasure in forwarding to you for the relief of the poor the sum of one hundred pounds. In bidding you farewell his Royal Highness fervently trusts that under the blessing of Providence, Quebec may, for all time, enjoy the fullest measure of prosperity and happiness.

"Believe me, dear Mr. Mayor,

"Yours very truly,

(Signed) "Arthur Bigge."

BRILLIANT NAVAL DISPLAY.

Quebec, July 28.—The naval display given by the British fleet last night aroused intense enthusiasm among the thousands of spectators. It was among the best of the many spectacular events of the celebration, and, to those from inland points particularly, was a revelation. Prior to the commencement the ships were in total darkness, even the headlights not showing, and the outline of the ships could be barely distinguished. Suddenly a light was fired from the deck of the flagship Exmouth, and instantly powerful rays from the searchlights of all the ships swept clear, wide lanes of light in every direction. Eerie in its commencement and its effect was this part of the display. Hither and thither darted the lights, just as those in charge willed, and everything in their path was revealed in its minutest outline. On the shores, on the water, among the wharves or to the topmost height of the Citadel the lights played with bewildering swiftness. At times they were dazzling in intensity, particularly if one happened to get in the direct path of a light.

Youth Disappeared with $92.50

Monday morning Jas. Armstrong, a 14-year-old youth, employed by H. T. Elliot, baker, absconded with $92.50 of his employer's money. He was sent to deposit the money in the Bank of Ottawa, but instead of doing so went to the Otonabee boat house, where he rented a skiff and rowed down the river. He then left the boat and walked to Fraserville, where he boarded the train for Port Hope. The police at the latter place have been notified, and he will no doubt soon be placed under arrest.

To Make Change in New Railway Line

Yesterday Mr. Killaly of the engineering department of the C.P.R. was in the city, to make some changes on the proposed line of the Georgian Bay road. The line was surveyed several years ago, but some changes have been found necessary and these Mr. Killaly's party will make. The men with him are Messrs. A. Norton, Geo. A. Browne and A. E. Ramsperger, all of Toronto. They were registered at the National Hotel. They arrived on the local, and will begin work at once at a point about four miles north-west of the city. They will be engaged at different points along the line where the changes have been found necessary. It is understood that Mr. Killaly will be in the Peterborough district about a month.

Change in Mail Service

The change in the mail service to Springville has at last arrived. Hence forth the people of that place will send and receive their mail by way of Kendry aiding on the C.P.R. In the past it was taken to Springville from Fraserville on the G.T.R., and the service was very unsatisfactory. The Springvillians have put up a hard fight for the change in the service and have at last succeeded. The C.P.R. has erected an apparatus at Kendry whereby they will be able to put off and take on the Springville mail without stopping. It is expected that the change in the service will go into effect immediately.

The Dairy Industry a Profitable One

The Lindsay Free Press says;—

That the dairy industry in Peterborough county as a profitable one cannot be disputed. The farmers of the district are making money out of this vast asset, which appears to be but only well begun. These statements are substantiated by the figures from the first five sales on the Peterborough Cheese Board, which show prosperity on the farm, and illustrate the large amount of money distributed through here in a little more than a month.

At these sales 17,470 cheese were boarded, which represent in the neighborhood of a million and a half pounds. Figuring at 11 cents per pound, which is an under average, that quantity would be approximately worth $146,000, all of which is distributed among many of Peterborough county's most prosperous farmers. At the various sales 979, 2,643, 4,561, 4,873 and 4,13 cheese were boarded. The highest prices were respectively, 10 14-16c., 10 15-16c., 11 5-16c., 11 3-16c. and 11 3-4c., showing a gradual increase.

In 1907 a comparison shows that at the first five sales the quantity of cheese boarded was 609, 2,987, 3,918, 4,316 and 5,000, making a total of 17,030, or 440 less than last year. The best prices last year for the first five sales were 11 1-2c., 11 5-8c., and 11 5-16c.

Laundry Destroyed by Fire

Yesterday morning at 9.20 a fire broke out in the laundry occupied by Mr. J. S. Farlong. The alarm was sent in from box 21, and the firemen were soon on the scene. When they arrived the whole building was in flames and the heat was intense.

How the fire started cannot be ascertained. The first alarm given was by the employes who rushed into the office and gave the alarm.

LET BRITONS KNOW CANADA'S GREATNESS

Dominion Has a Royal Press Agent in the Prince of Wales

London, July 28.—The Prince of Wales told a special correspondent of The Times that he was profoundly moved by his experiences in Canada. The visit had made him feel more than ever the absolute necessity of increased efforts to make the people of Great Britain understand the tuntess in Canada, as well as the other great colonies.

The unbounded hospitality shown made him wish that Canadians in England were not so much swamped in the vortex of London's social life. The Prince hoped that efforts would be made to overcome this and strengthen the social links which grow more important every day.

Howard Mallory Drowned in Stony Lake Yesterday while in Bathing

Stony Lake, July 28.—The unconstrained pleasure of the population of Stony Lake today received a sudden shock when it was learned that Howard Mallory, a well known Peterborough young man of about twenty-one years of age, met death in a watery grave. The accident occurred about mid-day, when he and other friends were bathing off "Kenmore"—Mrs. Leech's island—and having a jolly time in the pleasant waters.

Dismay, however, soon broke in upon the astonished swimmers, when in the midst of their merriment it was observed that young Mallory was on the brink of death and was about to sink. Apparently he had been seized by cramps, as he was considered a good swimmer.

His companions noticed the look of awakened terror in his face, and they immediately went off to his assistance. But in this blind struggle for life he almost pulled his friends beneath the surface. Everything possible was done to save him, but he sank to the bottom and could not be located in time.

About a short time later young Mallory's body was recovered, and the afternoon left on the Steamer Empress for Lakefield, where it will be conveyed by Grand Trunk to his home in Peterborough. The unfortunate young man was camped with others on Juniper Island. His home is at 584 Park street, being a son of Mr. Wm. W. Mallory, carpenter, of Peterborough.

The Prince Says Farewell

Quebec, July 28.—The Prince will virtually say farewell to the citizens of Quebec tonight. He finally leaves the citadel, which has been his home for a week, at six o'clock. He will drive through the streets lined by troops and the public to the King's Wharf, where he will embark for the Indomitable. A half hour later a naval guard will be stationed on the wharf.

At eight o'clock the Prince will give a dinner on board the flagship Exmouth.

The Indomitable's crew say they will sail at daylight tomorrow, but the Government steamer Montcalm, which will escort the Prince fifty miles down the river with newspapermen and others on board, is not scheduled to leave till eight o'clock. The farewell at Quebec will be made as impressive as possible.

Leamington Chief of Police Shot a Prisoner

Chatham, July 28.—Crown Attorney H. D. Smith received word this morning that Chief of Police Kimball, of Leamington, shot and killed a man at Tilbury named Healey. It is found Healey was charged with a fraud, and will go to Tilbury this afternoon to hold an inquest.

Chief Kimball attempted to arrest Healey when the prisoner tried to escape by running away. Kimball pulled his revolver and shot the fleeing man. Shortly afterwards Healey died. Dr. McKeough, coroner, has been notified.

Healey was charged with obtaining goods under false pretences.

Three Hundred Drowned on a Chinese Steamer

St. John, N.B., July 28. — James Cannay of Fredericton, was instantly killed last evening while engaged on the construction of a new steel bridge across the St. John River at Pokiok. While wheeling a barrow he lost his balance and fell fifty feet, landing on a pile of rocks. His body was terribly mangled. Cannay was aged 38, and unmarried.

THREE HUNDRED DROWN.

Canton, July 28.—The Chinese steamer Yng King, engaged in the local passenger trade, foundered yesterday during the typhoon. Three hundred Chinese on board are known to be drowned. Only twelve of those on board were rescued. The Yng King was of 798 tons, 200 feet long, and owned in Hong Kong.

STEAMERS FOUNDERED.

Hong Kong, July 28.—As the result of a typhoon last night, which lasted two hours, the steamers Schuyler, Perak, Powhattan, Lai Sang, Charles Hardoun and the British torpedo boat Whiting are ashore. An unknown steamer and several lighters foundered. Fifteen houses in the town collapsed. There were casualties ashore and afloat, but few among the shipping, as the ships had been forewarned of the storm.

Glace Bay, July 28.—Michael White, aged forty, unmarried, and a native of Ireland, was killed in the Reserve mine by being crushed under a mass of coal which fell on him while he was waiting for a cutting to be cleared.

FOUND DEAD IN THE WOODS.

Bristol, N.B., July 28. — William Campbell, aged 75, who left his son's home in Oakland, Carleton County, about five weeks ago to go through the woods to a neighboring settlement, was found dead in the woods. From the appearance of the body, he must have died soon after leaving home. He was in the habit of roaming from place to place, and his disappearance did not cause his friends any anxiety.

CHILD BURNED TO DEATH.

Estevan, Sask., July 28.—Mary Labrosse, aged three, was burned to death while playing with matches. Her clothing caught fire.

FOUND BODY IN A WELL.

Moosomin, Sask., July 28 — The body of Fred Simpson, a widower, aged 48, was discovered yesterday in a well on the farm of George Avery. It is thought that he committed suicide.

Estimated Attendance at Opening of Normal School Sept. 15 will be Over 150

Word has been received from the Department of Education at Toronto that the estimated attendance at the opening of the Normal school at Peterborough will be over 150. Principal Walker says that there will be at least that number in attendance when the school opens on September 15th. Nearly all the students will be from out of town and they will have to secure boarding houses in the city. And just here arises an important point in connection with the success of the school. If the students are able to secure good accommodation in Peterborough and receive hospitable treatment here, the attendance at the school will steadily increase. If, on the other hand, they cannot secure good boarding houses, and are charged unreasonable rates, the reputation of Peterborough in this connection will spread throughout the province, and Normal students will attend the schools at other points. The Normal students should have no difficulty in securing desirable accommodation as they will all be of good character, a certificate to the effect certifying they are such before they can enter the school. It is a very desirable that citizens should do what they can towards providing the students with rooms and board. Handily furnished rooms, as long as they are clean and good plain board, will be what the majority of the students will want.

A Square Deal

Is assured you when you buy Dr. Pierce's family medicines—for all the ingredients entering into them are printed on the bottle-wrappers and their formulas are attested under oath as being complete and correct. You know just what you are paying for and that the ingredients are gathered from Nature's laboratory, being selected from the most valuable native medicinal roots found growing in our American forests—and while potent to cure are perfectly harmless even to the most delicate women and children. Not a drop of alcohol enters into their composition. A much better agent is used both for extracting and preserving the medicinal principles used in them, viz.—pure triple-refined glycerine. This agent possesses intrinsic medicinal properties of its own, being a most valuable antiseptic and antiferment, nutritive and soothing demulcent.

Glycerine plays an important part in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in the cure of indigestion, dyspepsia and weak stomach, attended by sour risings, heart-burn, foul breath, coated tongue, poor appetite, gnawing feeling in stomach, biliousness and kindred derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels.

Besides curing all the above distressing ailments, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a specific for all diseases of the mucous membranes, as catarrh, whether of the nasal passages or of the stomach, bowels or pelvic organs. Even in its ulcerative stages it will yield to this sovereign remedy if its use be persevered in. In Chronic Catarrh of the Nasal passages, it is well, while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" for the necessary constitutional treatment, to cleanse the passages freely two or three times a day with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. This thorough course of treatment generally cures the worst cases.

In coughs and hoarseness caused by bronchial, throat and lung affections, except consumption in its advanced stages, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most efficient remedy, especially in those obstinate, hang-on coughs caused by irritation and congestion of the bronchial mucous membranes. The "Discovery" is not so good for acute coughs arising from sudden colds, nor must it be expected to cure consumption in its advanced stages—for no medicine will do this—but for all the chronic, chronic coughs, which, if neglected, or badly treated, lead up to consumption, it is the best medicine that can be taken.

THE LAND OF GRAVES.

Ancient Egyptians Believed In Constant Reminders of Death.

To the Egyptian death was but the beginning of a career of adventures and experiences compared with which the most vivid emotions of this life were tame. He lived with the fear of death before his eyes. Everything around him reminded him of that dreadful initiation into the mysteries of the tremendous after life for which his present existence was but a preparation. His cemeteries were not hidden away in remote suburbs; his dead were not covered with mere grassy mounds or a slab of stone. The whole land was his graveyard; its whole art was of the mortuary. "Are there no graves in Egypt that thou hast brought us into the wilderness to die?" asked the Israelites in derision, and we may believe that Moses winced at the sarcasm.

Egypt is the land of graves, and the whole energy of the people that could be spared from keeping life together was devoted to death. The mightiest tombs in the world—the pyramids—were raised upon the deaths of multitudes of toiling slaves. The hills were honeycombed passages and galleries, chambers, pits, all painfully excavated in honor of the illustrious dead and sculptured and painted with elaborate skill to make them fit habitations for his ghost.

Wherever he looked the Egyptian beheld preparations for the great turning point of existence. The mason was squaring blocks for the tomb chamber; the potter molded images of the gods or bowls and jars to be placed in the grave for the protection or refreshment of the Ka, exhausted with the ordeals of the underworld; the sculptor and painter were at work upon the walls of the funeral chamber, illustrating the scenes through which the ghost was to pass or depicting the industrious life of the departed.

The very temples which cluster along the levels beside the Nile were in a sense but vestibules to the tombs in the hills behind. The sacred lake, now the weedy, picturesque haunt of waterfowl, was then the scene of solemn ferryings of the dead. The temple walls were covered with the terrors of the judgment to come. The houses of the living, indeed, were built of perishing mud, but the homes of the dead and the shrines where supplication was made to the gods who ruled their fate were made to last forever. On these all the strength, the science and the artistic skill of the ancient Egyptians were cheerfully lavished.—London Saturday Review.

A Preserve Owner's Sick Trout.

A man whose experience as a sportsman had been limited to an occasional day's fishing in the mountains bought for himself a place with a fine trout preserve on Long Island. He looked forward with great interest to the first opening day, as that would be his first opportunity to fish in his own pond, and when the day at last arrived the first streak of daylight found him leaving his house, rod in hand.

A day or two later a sportsman friend inquired as to what luck he had had.

"I caught plenty of fish, and big ones, too," responded the owner of the preserve. "There are plenty of trout in the pond, but they all seem to be sick."

"Why, what's the matter with them?" asked the sportsman.

"Well," answered the preserve owner, "to tell the truth, we were afraid to eat them. Their flesh is pink, and I never saw a brook trout that color before."

"Don't you know, man," exclaimed the sportsman, with a laugh, "that any trout will turn pink if it lives in salt water? Your pond empties into the sound, and of course the trout run in and out. The next time you have any of that sort of stick trout just send them in to me, and I'll eat them for you with pleasure."

A Tiny State.

The miniature republic of San Marino is a mere dot on the map of Europe, being the smallest state in the world as well as the oldest independent republic. Its area is thirty-eight square miles, only little less than twice that of the island of Manhattan. It lies entirely in Italy, but is wholly independent. Its situation is on the easterly side of the Etruscan Apennines and about twelve miles from Rimini, on the Adriatic sea. The frontier is only twenty-four miles in length, and the population would make only a small city ward, numbering less than 12,000. There is no public debt, and the annual expenses met by taxation amount to $90,000. The country has bronze and silver currency, coined by Italy, 158,000 lire of the latter and 105,000 of the former. The principal exports are wine, cattle and stone. The military force of the republic numbers 38 officers and 950 men.

The Wild Boar.

The wild boar is a most courageous animal. The element of luck counts for a great deal in pig sticking, as in most other forms of sport, and it often happens that the foremost sportsman who by dint of hard riding or thanks to the fastest horse has come up with the quarry is deprived of the coveted honor of "first spear" by a sudden "jink" or turn of the pig. The boar, in spite of his clumsy appearance, is not only possessed of a great turn of speed, but is extraordinarily active. He will turn and twist like a hare, putting every obstacle in the shape of bushes, rocks, water, etc., between himself and his pursuers, but all the time making for the nearest patch of jungle and safety. The pace after pig is faster than the best of runs with hounds, but is sooner over.—Illustrated Sporting and Dramatic News.

Committee Appointed to Procure Options on Sites for New Public Library

At the next meeting of the City Council the Property Committee will recommend that no action be taken at the present time regarding the isolation hospital. This decision was reached at a meeting of the committee last night and was arrived at on account of the heavy civic expenditure and the absence of contagious disease.

The public library question was also discussed and a committee was appointed to procure options on sites for the proposed new institution. Apparently the committee does not intend utilizing the Richard Hall site on Simcoe street.

There were present at the meeting, Ald. Bradburn, chairman; Mayor Rush, Aldermen Gillespie, Morgan and Johnston.

A letter was read from Robt. Wilson, caretaker, asking that his salary be increased to $600. On motion of Ald. Johnston and Ald. Morgan, it was decided to increase the salary to $575 per year, dating from July 1st, 1908.

It was moved by Ald. Morgan and Gillespie that the committee report to the council that they have been unable to obtain information in regard to a public abattoir, as they have no information that there is one operated in Canada and are not in a position to make any recommendations as to the establishment of such an abattoir in Peterborough.—Carried.

Ald. Morgan moved, seconded by Ald. Gillespie, that the chief constable be instructed to take such action as may be necessary to have the old raceway on the east side of the river immediately cleared out and put in proper sanitary condition—Carried.

It was moved by Ald. Johnston and Ald. Morgan, that the committee recommend to the Board of Works that they have the watering trough on Hunter street east connected with the sewer.

On motion of Ald. Johnston and Morgan, it was decided, in view of the heavy expenditure at the present time and the absence of contagious disease, it is not advisable to erect an isolation hospital at present, and that the Board of Health be ordered to have the hospital tent ready to be put up for use should the necessity arise.—Carried.

It was moved by Ald. Gillespie and seconded by the mayor, that Ald. Johnston and Morgan be a sub-committee to procure options on property for a site for a public library.—Carried.

County Police Court

Yesterday before County Magistrate Edmison, Michael Anderson was charged with a promise of marriage to Pearl Johnston.

Both parties reside near Havelock, and the small court room was well filled, chiefly by people from that town. The plaintiff, Miss Johnson, was the only witness examined. She swore that she had returned from Toronto to Havelock on the 8th of June, 1907, having been employed in Toronto as a domestic during the previous half year. The defendant, Anderson, had proposed marriage to her at her father's house on the 25th of June, and she had accepted his proposal of marriage. On the following day the plaintiff was bridesmaid at the wedding of Anderson's sister and it was at the conclusion of the dance following the wedding that the defendant had illicit relations with her. Up to that time she had been virtuous and the birth of a child on the 28th of May, 1908, without any move on his part to marry her had taken place.

Cross-examined by Mr. Gordon, counsel for the defendant, the witness told practically the same story. Mr. Gordon called the attention of his worship to the fact that since the charge was not laid within one year of the time of the offence the defendant should be dismissed, as that requirement is essential before a case can be made out.

Some discussion was entered into and the magistrate concluded this by an adjournment until three o'clock in the afternoon.

In the afternoon at three o'clock Magistrate Edmison dismissed the charge on the technical grounds above mentioned. Although his worship held that the defendant was under moral obligation to the plaintiff, providing that the allegations of the latter were true, he pointed out that several cases of almost identically the same nature had been disposed of in the same way.

FULL OF YEARS AND HONOR

We congratulate Sir Charles Tupper, Bart., on having entered the eighty-eighth year of his age. He was born on July 2nd, 1821. Far past the usual span, Sir Charles retains almost to the full those characteristics of a public man, which in him have been so closely interwoven with the history of Canada. His natural force is not abated, and he is to-day, as he was in 1867, a factor in the fortunes of the Dominion. Though he has laid aside the active participation in affairs which engaged his energies for several decades, his name and reputation stand yet as a power in the councils of the Conservative Party and therefore in the policies of the nation. Sir Charles may look down the vista of the years and feel that his talents have not been buried. As a father of Confederation his name stands as one of that galaxy of statesmen which assured unity to Britain's greatest Colony. His influence was profound in the inception of the Canadian Pacific Railway. In a word the name of Tupper is synonymous with the fortunes of the Dominion since its birth.

CANADA'S STANDING TIMBER

We Canadians talk of our inexhaustible forests, says the News. The people of Michigan used to roll this pleasant phrase off their tongues. To-day the State is cutting the last of its pine areas. It was once loosely estimated that the forests of the Dominion embraced eight hundred millions of acres. Now Dr. Fernow thinks that we cannot count on more than three hundred million acres of commercially valuable timber land. Mr. H. M. Campbell, superintendent of Forestry for the Dominion Government, places the area at five hundred and thirty-five million acres, divided amongst the Provinces as follows: British Columbia, 182,000,000 acres; the three prairie Provinces and the unorganized territories, 150,000,000; Ontario, 40,000,000; Quebec, 120,000,000; New Brunswick, 7,500,000, and Nova Scotia, 5,000,000. The need of forest preservation and reforestation throughout Canada is apparent.

A Trying Moment.

Professor Leopold Schroetter was called to see the Crown Prince Frederick in 1887 before Sir Morrell Mackenzie had reached San Remo. The prince, evidently suspecting the worst, turned to Schroetter after the examination and said, "I request the truth as to my ailment." Schroetter hesitated and made an effort to direct the conversation in another direction, but Frederick insisted. "I am a soldier," he said, "and can look death in the eye. I ask you now plainly, to the point, is my complaint cancer?" Schroetter could hardly contain himself, and years after the scene when he recalled it he spoke of it as the most painful in his life. He conducted the crown prince to a chair and asked him to be seated. Then he said, "Your imperial highness, you are suffering from a serious complaint, and it is possible that it may develop into carcinoma, but that cannot be determined positively at this moment." Frederick became deathly pale, but never for a moment lost his self control and smiled grimly when he thanked the physician for his honesty.

Coming to an Understanding.

In the amiable way of villagers they were discussing the matrimonial affairs of a couple who, though recently wed, had begun to find the yoke of Hymen a burden.

"'Tis all along o' these hasty marriages," opined one caustic old gentleman, who had been much to the fore in the discussion. "They did not understand each other. They'd seldom knowed each other for a matter o' seven year."

"Well, that seems long enough," said an interested lady listener.

"Long ene'! Bah! Ye're wrong! When a body's courtin' he canna be too careful. Why, my courtship lasted a matter o' nineteen year!"

"You certainly were careful," agreed the lady listener. "And did you find your plan successful when you married?"

"To jump to conclusions," said the old man impatiently. "I understood her then, so I didna marry her!"—St. James' Gazette.

Heat penetrates the nerves. In the summer one needs a tonic to off-set the customary hot weather Nerve and Strength depression. You will feel better within 48 hours after beginning to take such a remedy as Dr. Sheop's Restorative. Its prompt action in restoring the weakened nerves is surprising. Of course, you won't get entirely strong in a few days, but each day you can actually feel the improvement. That tired, lifeless, spiritless, feeling will quickly depart when using the Restorative. Dr. Sheop's Restorative will sharpen a failing appetite; it aids digestion; it will strengthen the weakened Kidneys and Heart by simply rebuilding the worn-out nerves that these organs depend upon. Test it a few days and be convinced. Sold by all druggists.

RISE OF JOHN BURNS.

Engineer's Apprentice Who Became a Member of Parliament.

Some people are laboring under the belief that England is less democratic than a republic. They should study the rise of John Burns, now president of the local governing board. Thirty-five years ago he was an engineer's apprentice at $2 a week. This position in England is far more menial than in this country, because a lad has little hope of rising to an earning point beyond 6 or 8 shillings a day. But John Burns kept going.

He acquired an education by self study, because the common school system, as we understand the words, does not exist in Great Britain. He developed the ability to talk upon his feet. He stood for parliament, although he hadn't a shilling besides his earnings as an expert workman.

Members of the British parliament are not paid anything for their services. Friends came to Burns' assistance, and he took his seat with nearly forty other representatives of labor. Today he is a member of the government and as privy councilor may, if he chooses, draw $25,000 per year for the rest of his life, whether in or out of office.

Of course it is not considered regular to take the salary when one is out of office, but some cases of the kind are well remembered. Benjamin Disraeli always drew the money. He needed it, he asserted.

But what I started to say is that a workman has as great a chance in England as here if he makes something of himself beyond a drudge. Such successes are more exceptional there than here, if reference be had to the American born workman, because the foreign born laborer does as little work as he can here or elsewhere. His indolence is infectious, and many formerly earnest toilers have become imbued with the continental belief in shirking duty.

Had Burns felt thus he would still be a mechanic and carrying a dinner pail. — Julius Chambers in Brooklyn Eagle.

Pronounce It Lose Ang-el-ess.

Mayor Harper may ask concerted action toward promulgating the official pronunciation of the name Los Angeles. Repeatedly inquiries have come to city officials asking for the true pronunciation, which queries have been usually referred to experts for reply.

The latest, from Horace G. Adams of Fort Smith, was turned over to Librarian Charles F. Lummis, an authority on southwestern words and customs, who sent to Mayor Harper a copy of his reply, with a suggestion that some official action be taken to get the correct pronunciation firmly established. This is Mr. Lummis' answer to Mr. Adams:

"The word is pronounced 'Loce' (to rhyme with dose) Ang-el-ess approximately—the most vital thing in the hard 'g.' There is no jolly sound in Spanish. I take pleasure in answering your query, which is referred to me by his honor A. C. Harper, mayor of this city."—Los Angeles Herald.

First Dining Car.

"Just forty years ago," said T. C. Newton, a Chicago railroad man, "the Chicago and Alton railroad put on the first dining car ever operated on any railway train in the world. This was on the run between Chicago and St. Louis. If that car could be exhibited now it would create universal merriment. It had oilcloth table covers, the seats were screwed to the floor, and its illumination depended on candles.

"Think of the contrast between that primitive affair of 1868 and the modern dining car, finished in solid mahogany, with gorgeous furniture and a menu as elaborate and cooking as dainty as those supplied by any of the foremost hotels of America. Verily we have been 'going some' in the four decades that have gone by since the Alton's first crude experiment."—Baltimore American.

Camera Eye and Index Brain.

What would you say of a gentleman who having looked once into the face of each of those soldiers that made up the grand army which Napoleon took to Russia and being told the soldier's name would know him, name and face, two years, ten years, twenty years later? Think of a gentleman who could thus have called the muster roll of an army of 100,000 men. Such, however, would seem to be the full power of eye and memory which belongs to Detective William P. Sheridan of Mulberry street, New York, the "man with the camera eyes," and a low estimate declares that he has filed away in his brain, each tagged with the proper name, the pictures of no fewer than 100,000 men.—Broadway Magazine.

Wrecking Windmills a New Industry.

The passing of the windmill in England, antiquated by such recent power producers as the gas engine and electric motor, has given life to a new industry—windmill wrecking. The old windmill builders understood their business and meant their handiwork to last, and so the demolishing of such structures is no simple task. Many of the old mills stood 100 feet high and had eight or nine floors fitted with four runs of stones and contained tons upon tons of brick. Often these huge mills stand close to other buildings, and accidents would be inevitable if the wreckers did not have experience in their tasks.—Popular Mechanics.

Filial Plant Covers.

When Sir Humphry Davy was a boy about sixteen, a little girl came to him in great excitement:

"Humphry, do tell me my these two pieces of cane make a tiny spark of light when I rub them together?"

Humphry was a studious boy, who spent hours in thinking out scientific problems. He patted the child's curly head and said:

"I do not know, dear. Let us see if they really do make a light, and then we will try to find out why."

Humphry soon found that the little girl was right. The pieces of cane if rubbed together quickly did give a tiny light. Then he set to work to find out the reason, and after some time, thanks to the observing powers of his little friend and his own kindness to her in not impatiently telling her not to "worry," as so many might have done, Humphry Davy made the first of his interesting discoveries. Every reed, cane and grass has an outer skin of flinty stuff, which protects the inside from insects and also helps the frail looking leaves to stand upright.

Table Manners in Old France.

Could we restore for half an hour the dinner table of old France and obtain half a dozen instantaneous photographs of a royal banquet at any era between the reigns of Francis I and Louis Quatorze such a "cataract of laughter" would be heard as might disturb the serenity of Louis in paradise. The duchess, her napkin tied securely round her neck, would be seen mumbling a bone, the noble marquis surreptitiously scratching himself, the belle marquise, withdrawing her spoon from her lips to help a neighbor to dance with it, another fair creature scouring her plate with her bread, a gallant courtier using his doublet or the tablecloth as a towel for his fingers and two footmen holding a yard of damask under a lady's chin while she emptied her goblet at a draft. During a feast of inordinate length it was sometimes necessary to substitute a clean cloth for the one which the carelessness or bad manners of the guests had reduced to a deplorable condition. —"An Idler in Old France."

The Midget Snakes.

"I see by your paper," says a correspondent, "that you want to find a man who can tell a snake story with the sound of originality to it. Here it is: Nearly forty years ago in the woods of Indiana I captured three snakes, each less than three and one-fourth inches in length, a combined length of less than ten inches, a little longer and a little larger in the middle than an old fashioned wool darning needle. Although these snakes were so small they would crawl around with their heads up and dart out their tongues like larger snakes, I put these reptiles in an eight ounce bottle, and they had plenty of room to crawl around on the bottom of it without crowding. These were not the kind of snakes generally seen in bottles, but genuine snakes. Among those who saw them was a minister of the gospel, and he had not been taking anything to make him see snakes either."—Emporia Gazette.

The Pirates.

The Chicago News fails to name the hero of this story, but has it that the visitor to the home of a well known Hoosier State author found his three youngsters romping in the hallway.

"What are you playing, boys?" he inquired.

"We are playing pirates," elucidated the smallest.

"Pirates? Why, how can you play pirates in Indiana? There are no seas bordering on this state."

"Oh, we don't need any seas. We are literary pirates, like pa."

And five minutes later a chorus of yells from behind the barn told that the hand that wields the pen can also wield the shingle.

Outside of His Practice.

"All that is the matter with you, sir," said the eminent physician after a thorough examination, "is lack of nutrition. You don't eat enough."

"I eat all I can hold, doctor," said the attenuated caller.

"Then you need to have your capacity enlarged, and that's a case for a surgeon. Five dollars, please. Good morning."—Chicago Tribune.

Overstudy.

Books are pleasant, but if by being overstudious we impair our health and spoil our good humor, two of the best pieces we have, let us give it over, I, for my part, am one of those who think that no fruit derived from them can recompense so great a loss.—Montaigne.

She Was Safe.

Little four-year-old Mabel was running downhill, holding her dress tightly.

"Be careful," called her mother, "or you will fall."

"Oh, no, I won't," replied Mabel, "'cause I'm holding tight to myself."

GEORGE STREET PETERBOROUGH

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the Northwest Provinces, excepting 8 and 26 reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his residence duties by living with the father or mother.

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible, but I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, I unfailingly cure all curable cases of this horrid-to-endure disease. Those sand-like granular wastes, found in Rheumatic Blood seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer with pain. We sell, and in confidence recommend

"ALL DEALERS"

An Unsought Pardon.

Among the stories of that former governor of Texas familiarly known as Sam Houston is more than one amusing tale.

There was a financial agent of the penitentiary who had warmly opposed the election of Governor Houston, but was particularly anxious to retain his own pleasantly lucrative position. Consequently the new governor was soon in receipt of a petition in which the man's years of faithful service and special qualifications for the place were set forth in glowing terms by himself.

The governor sent for him and said gravely, "It appears from this petition that you have been in the penitentiary eight years."

"I have," was the reply.

"And during that time you have performed faithfully every duty that has come in your way to the best of your ability?"

"I have," answered the agent, his courage swiftly rising.

"Then, sir," said the governor, with the air of one conferring a priceless favor, "I pardon you out."

Put Out of Commission.

Abernethy was supposed to influence people by a brusqueness amounting to absolute rudeness. It is related that one day a very voluble lady took her daughter, who was ill, to see him.

"Which of you two wants to consult me?" said Abernethy.

"My daughter," replied the elder woman.

Abernethy then put a question to the girl. Before she had a chance to reply her mother began a long story. Abernethy told her to be quiet and repeated his question to the girl. A second time the woman began a story, and a second time he told her to be quiet. Then she interrupted him a third time.

"Put your tongue out," he said to the mother.

"But there's nothing the matter with me," she exclaimed.

"Never mind, put your tongue out," he commanded.

Thoroughly overawed, the woman obeyed.

"Now, keep it out," said Abernethy, and he proceeded to examine the girl.—Grand Magazine.

A Queer Complication.

In Sydney, a town of 500,000 inhabitants, one can get nothing to eat on a Sunday. Certain restaurants supply food surreptitiously, but the whole time the guests are in danger of being arrested. Once an Italian was in such a restaurant on Sunday when suddenly the police entered. The Italian was promptly pushed by the proprietor into a room where a waitress happened to be standing in negligee. Even this room the police invaded, but the waitress saved the situation by declaring that the young man was her fiance. The young man, by the way, had been married some time. He thought that he had deceived the policeman, but, as a matter of fact, he had got out of the frying pan into the fire. One fine day the waitress called him before the courts and claimed $2,500 for breach of promise. The Italian had to pay. And then came the worst of all. His wife sued for a divorce and shortly after married another man.

Tackle This One.

The following paragraph of a hundred words is an excellent test in pronunciation. Try it first, and then go over it again, every word, in company with a good dictionary:

"Cleopatra, isolated in the castle, soon became acclimated and had ample leisure to contemplate all the economic details of her inextricable ennui. The wound resisted the allopathic misogynist, who gave a courteous diagnosis and humbly craved precedence for a tiny idyl in the form of a vase with an aesthetic accounting apparatus. This held the nerve like a book, but it might have been a dog living in squalor from the look she launched at him when he wrote down his address. She ate her breakfast and then fraternized with a national expert in appendicitis, who attended the obsequies."

A Plot That Failed.

A story of a plot to kidnap Queen Victoria and turn England into a republic is told in Peter Latouche's book, "Anarchy; Its Methods and Exponents." This coup d'etat was planned to take place in 1858, the year of the great dock strike in London, but was frustrated by the success of the strikers and the unexpected sympathy and help shown them by the monopoly classes. This did much to conciliate the masses, on whose help the revolutionists relied.

Capital Punishment.

Bride (throwing her arms about the bridegroom's neck)—You are my prisoner for life! Bridegroom—It's not imprisonment for life, love; it's capital punishment.—Sydney Town and Country Journal.

The Villain.

Critic—The villain in your story is a perfect masterpiece. Where did you get the character? Novelist—I imagined a man possessed of all the forms of wickedness which my wife attributes to me when she is angry.

—J. B. Pujmanns of Kladsko, in victorious Bohemia, has been sentenced to a year's imprisonment for having had the audacity to call his dog Franz Josef.

Why We Are All Mimics.

"If we did not cough in church, the human race would not exist." And the professor, twiddling a piece of chalk in his hand, regarded the sophomores with a quizzical smile.

"What I mean," he continued, "is that the cause of coughing is the cause of our survival. That cause is mimicry. Mimicry is a better life preserver than fleetness or strength. For by mimicry we manage not to attract attention, and in prehistoric times they who attracted attention were hunted down by the tribe and roasted for dinner or hunted down by the saber tooth tiger and taken raw.

"Since those dark days mimicry has been instinctive with us. Mimicry is what causes us to follow the fashions. It causes us, when in England, to say 'cawn't' and 'lawf.' If your friend yawns, you yawn—that's mimicry. If he laughs, you laugh—mimicry again. If he sneezes, you sneeze—mimicry. And if he coughs in church, straightway you and all the rest of the congregation cough, the reason being the same one which saved our forefathers from extermination."—New York Press.

Famous Floggers.

Among English schoolmasters whose names have come down to posterity with the dubious reputation of great floggers Dr. Busby of Westminster school is the generally acknowledged chief.

Of him it is recorded that, one of his head boys having insulted a young French viscount who came to the school to demand satisfaction, he flogged the viscount first for the bloodthirsty intentions and next his friend who was the bearer of his challenge.

Dr. Valpy, too, who edited an edition of the classics, was a potent wielder of the rod. Archdeacon Groom, who was a pupil of his, tells a story in illustration of his prowess. One of the boys had been flogged by the redoubtable dominie, and the lad's father came to complain.

"Sir," said Valpy to him, "I flogged your son because he richly deserved it. If he again deserves it, I shall flog him again, and," rising, "if you come here, sir, interfering with my duty I shall flog you."

The parent fled.

A Famous Architect's Trick.

When Sir Christopher Wren was building the town hall of Windsor, a fidgety member of the corporation, so the story goes, insisted that the roof required further support and desired the architect to add more pillars. In vain did Sir Christopher assure him that the danger was imaginary. He knew better. The alarm spread, and the great architect was worried into adding the desired columns.

Years passed, and in later times, when architect and patrons were dead, cleaning operations in the roof revealed the fact that the supposed additional supports did not touch the roof by two inches, though this was not perceptible to the gazers below.

By this ingenious expedient did Wren pacify his critics, while vindicating his own architectural skill to future generations.

I'm Telling You.

Pat Murphy, who was in lodgings, was greatly annoyed by the landlady helping herself to his provisions. She began by taking a piece of his butter, and when Pat came home she said:

"Pat, I'm taking a little of your butter, but I'm not like other landladies—I'm telling you."

Next day it was an egg, and so on. Every day there was something taken and met off with the remark, "I'm not like other landladies—I'm telling you."

Of course there was never any reduction in Pat's bill. One Saturday his bill came to a larger amount than usual. Pat looked at it, bundled up a few things in his handkerchief, walked to the door and said:

"Landlady, I'm sloping. I'm not like other lodgers—I'm telling you."—London Answers.

Beautifully Arranged.

Brown—Well, you've got the quarter. Is your sister coming down?

"I've arranged it beautifully, old chap. I told her it was you first, and she said to tell you she was out, and then I said I was fooling and that it was Charley Jones, and you ought to have seen her hustle to get into a clean shirt waist! She'll be right down!"

Not Surprised.

Skipper—I am inordinately sensitive to uncongenial surroundings, so much so that the very sight of some people will give me a nervous shudder. Chipper—Oh, well, there are very few of us that do not shrink from meeting our creditors.

No Hitch.

"How did the wedding come off today?"

"Without a hitch."

"Glad to hear it."

"I said without a hitch. The bride backed out at the last minute."

Not Written.

"How do you write 'horn?'" asked the teacher of a small boy at the blackboard.

"A horn isn't written at all," answered the little fellow. "It's blowed."—Exchange.

Like a Bicycle.

"What does the doctor say is the matter with Mirandy?"

"He says she has pneumatic tendencies and that she is threatened with spiral trouble."—Baltimore American.

News in Brief

Puerto Cortes, Spanish Honduras, July 12, via New Orleans July 17. —A train, which has just arrived from San Pedro, brings the news that General Gutierez has arrived at Chuluteca and that fighting has begun between the Government soldiers and the revolutionists. According to the advices brought by the train crew, the attack upon Chulutexa followed the capture of the town of Ocotlas by Government forces. Recruiting for the Honduran cities continues and preparation is being made for extensive operations against the revolutionists in case it develops that they are really receiving material aid from other Central American republics.

New York, July 17.—Thomas D. Jordan, former controller of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, died suddenly in a downtown subway station. Mr. Jordan was well known in Wall Street, as he was a director and officer in many large corporations. It was in the course of the Armstrong committee insurance investigation that his name came prominently before the public. It was thought then that comptroller Jordan had secured loans aggregating $5,000,000 for himself and James W. Alexander, former president of the Equitable, from the Mercantile Trust Company, and that these loans had been covered up on the books of the company. This $5,000,000 came to be known as the "yellow dog" fund.

Calcutta, July 14.—The Yugantar, the notorious native paper, has broken out afresh with a series of seditious articles of unabated virulence. For several weeks it had not been published and when it came out one morning in the form of a half sheet at a reduced price, it sold "like hot cakes", every Bengali being seen with a copy, which he read with much gusto as he passed along and returning home handed to his wife or mother, thus helping to spread the revolutionary ideas. The Yugantar is a favorite with Bengali ladies, and the paper writes: "The detectives are perfectly unable to discover where and in what form the Bengali ladies are preparing bombs in obscure kitchens or bedrooms — sisters and brothers, mothers and daughters all uniting in preparing bombs." The articles call upon the population to loot the treasuries, and to engage in war with the enemy. They state that the whole country and all Bengalis are ready, and that the handful of police soldiers will never be able to withstand this ocean of revolutionists.

Oklahoma City, Okla., July 16.—Will Johnston, a negro youth, who committed a brutal assault upon an aged white woman near Shawnee, causing her death, is under sentence to be hanged on Friday.

The crime of Johnson was but one of dozens that have been committed by negroes in Oklahoma during the last few months and which have at times threatened to result in a general race war. In some instances pitched battles have taken place between the whites and blacks, and over a dozen persons have been killed and many wounded as the result of trouble caused directly or indirectly by the colored "Jim Crow" law of the new state.

Johnson, who is to be executed on Friday next, strenuously maintained his innocence until his trial, when he created a sensation by suddenly jumping to his feet and loudly declaring that he was guilty. To this the jury was instructed to bring in a verdict of guilty, which it did and added the death penalty. The date for the hanging was originally set for May 31, but was later changed to July 17.

Montreal, July 16.—The fleet of British warships which is preceding H.R.H. The Prince of Wales, to Quebec, is today well up the River St. Lawrence, and if necessary, could reach Quebec by to-morrow. It is probable, however, that the whole six vessels will come to anchor at a sheltered spot in the lower river and there await the arrival of the three war vessels of France and those of the other nations which are to be represented at the Tercentenary celebrations.

In this advance guard are four warships, the Exmouth, Albemarle, Russell and Duncan, and the two cruisers Arrogant and Venus. They passed inward at the Straits of Belle Isle early yesterday morning and then just before noon to-day were signalled passing Pame Point, only 35 miles from Quebec.

The three French vessels will probably leave Sydney to-day and make their way up towards Quebec. In this fleet there are the Leon Gambetta and the Admiral Aube and the cruiser Desaix, from the West Indian fleet.

Dream Troubles.

"Once when I was blue," said a business man, "a friend told me I was worrying over imaginary troubles. He cheered me up with a yarn about his little nephew. This little fellow's story said one morning:

"'Oh, Gamie, I had such a lovely dream last night! I dreamed I was at a cake shop, and I had such loads of good things—ice cream, pie, strawberry shortcake, chocolates, jelly sandwiches, bisons and lots of other things besides.'

"The little boy's eyes glistened. He smiled with delight.

"'And what was I eating?' he asked eagerly.

"'Oh, you weren't there, Gamie.'

"Then, overwhelmed with sorrow, little Gamie hid his face in his hands and wept bitterly."

Restlessness.

Mere restlessness is not a matter for which physicians are often consulted. It is on the face of it an unimportant malady, but when it exists in sufficient intensity to form the subject of complaint and to induce the sufferer to seek advice it is usually found to be the superficial indication of a grave underlying condition.—Shingled.

Change of Heart.

To Canadian Investors

The undersigned has received an allotment of unsold portion of $100,000 of

7 Per Cent. First Mortgage Five-Year Gold Bonds

dated January 11, 1908, and maturing January 11, 1913. These Bonds are offered at par and accrued interest by Metropolitan Trust & Savings Bank, Chicago, trustees.

SECURITY—The Entire Property and Improvements Owned THE URES CONSOLIDATED MINING COMPANY in the District of Ures, State of Sonora Mexico, Free from Mortgage of Bonded Indebtedness except this present Bond issue.

An Unusual Opportunity for Investment in Sound Security

The Ures Consolidated Mining Company offers $100,000.00 of First Mortgage Gold Bonds. This issue of bonds is the only mortgage or bonded indebtedness ever placed on the company's properties.

These bonds are in the denomination of $100.00, and bear interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, July and January, and are redeemable on or before five years from date at the company's option at $110.00 and accrued interest.

$100.00 Stock Bonus Given with Every $100.00 Bond

With each bond issued there will be given $100.00 par value of the capital stock of the company as a bonus, and in addition thereto there will be placed in escrow with the Trustee additional stock which will be available to the bondholders at their option any time within a period of three years, the bondholder being entitled to surrender his bond any time within said period and receive in lieu thereof stock for every dollar of indebtedness to him on account of said bonds.

The Security Back of these Bonds.

The company owns twelve claims situated in the district of Ures, State of Sonora, Mexico, free from mortgage or bonded indebtedness, except the present bond issue.

On one of these properties (The Ramona Mine) 5,000 feet of underground development work has been done, consisting of an inclined shaft to the depth of 400 feet with drifts in three levels to the North and South of the shaft.

An average value of ore worth $11.67 per ton is exposed throughout the mine, from the collar of the shaft to the extreme parts in the drifts, all of which is above water level.

The company has made surface improvements and mine improvements to the extent of $40,000.00 in the way of machinery, skids, trams, steam hoists, mill and nearly everything necessary to make the mining camp complete.

In addition to the absolute ownership of these twelve valuable claims, the company has a lease on the San Jose Mine, adjoining its property, in which the company has been operating in high grade ore.

During the past sixty days the company has extracted and delivered to ore buyers and the bank at Hermosillo, $2,000.00 worth of ore and bullion, the ore having been reduced to bullion through the company's mill, with the exception of 1,000 pounds, which was sold to an ore buyer for $600.00.

The Money Derived from the Sale of These Bonds

This issue of bonds is made for the purpose of securing money at once in order to extend the development work more quickly than the company's present means will permit.

With the high grade ore in sight to the distance of 50 feet to the South of the shaft, the management is assured that within six months from date of making the improvements now necessary the company's properties will be on a self-sustaining and dividend-paying basis.

The Stock which is Given with these bonds will be as valuable as the bonds when the Company has the ready capital to push operations

Men who invest in these bonds will have no cause or reason to regret their action, for the bonds afford an investment in a security which is absolutely safe—much better than ordinary city or country real estate, which is considered perfectly safe if the property put up to secure a mortgage is double the face of the loan. The security given on these bonds is better than 7 to 1, for the Ures Consolidated Mining Company has refused an offer of $200,000.00 for the property upon which this $100,000.00 worth of bonds is issued.

These bonds are an investment with all speculative risk eliminated —an investment with absolute security.

Make your reservation at once. This is usual and promises to be quickly sold.

To whom it may concern:—

We hereby beg to state that The Ures Consolidated Mining Company has during the past five years made several deliveries of bullion to this bank, and it is the opinion of mining men here that they have the making of a fair mine, and further, that the properties owned and controlled by them hold promise of becoming paying properties.

From our knowledge of the men connected, we believe they are doing all in their power to bring about the results above mentioned.

1 CENT A 2 SHARE

Send us your name as a member in this new company, with your remittance for as many thousand shares as you can take at $5 per thousand.

This is a short-time offer on a hurry-up proposition. Our vice president is up at Rawhide now getting the miners at work. We want to raise the necessary funds for development as quickly as possible. Therefore, we offer the first block of stock at 1c a thousand shares. This subscription must be all cash. We want the money in hand. We mean to work without let-up, and we have made it an ironclad rule not to run in debt. Cash counts now.

Our prospectuses are out. Send for one.

Make reservation of stock, if you do no more. But, remember, this present offer of stock at Half a Cent a Share is now open, and will be closed as soon as enough cash subscriptions are in hand. Don't wait, or you will get left.

The gold mining property owned outright by the company consists of 7 claims, 5 in the Rawhide district of Nevada, and 2 in the Dulzura district of Southern California.

The Rawhide district to-day is more famous than Goldfield, Tonopah, Bullfrog, or Searchlight were at the same stage of exploration and development. The Dulzura discovery is one of the most sensational in the history of California.

Ten samples of ore which were among the first accepted, run as high as $7,631.37 to the ton, and all ten averaged over $1,500 a ton.

In both camps we landed early, and our locations are choice. Our own officers will superintend the mining.

Will Instal Filtration Plant

Lindsay, July 27.—At a special meeting this afternoon the Town Council gave the water commissioners the power to issue $10,000 debentures for the purpose of purchasing the Boston filtration plant, which is being installed by its inventor, Mr. J. Edward Bridge, of Philadelphia, who puts it in at his own expense. If, after a three months' trial, it proves satisfactory, the commissioners are bound to buy it for the sum of $4,500. The plant will be ready for the first test inside of nine months.

Malcolm McCallum, East Hawkesbury, Is Now in Fear of His life---Will Go Hard with the Scoundrel if Caught

Vankleek Hill, July 29.—On June 7th Mr. Malcolm McCallum, of East Hawkesbury, had been in Vankleek Hill on business. He returned home about dark, and was putting up his horses for the night when he noticed his stable on fire. He was right on hand with water, and soon put out the flames. He could not imagine how the fire started. A few days later one of his cattle died, acting as though it had some strange disease. A few days later two more cows died. Dr. McLeslie, Vankleek Hill, took some of the blood of the animals, and had it examined for anthrax. The blood was pronounced good.

LOST HIS LAST HORSE.

A horse followed, and on this case the stomach was opened, and positive evidence of poisoning by paris green was discovered. Since that time two other horses have been poisoned. The last horse owned by Mr. McCallum died on Tuesday.

On Saturday night last a search was made of the pasture field, where paris green and oats were found mixed ready for the stock. Another pasture field was also examined, but was found free from poison, so the remaining stock was turned into the field. On Monday night, however, a large quantity of the poison was placed in this second field.

On Saturday night, July 25th, the gates on Mr. McCallum's farm leading to the C.P.R. tracks were all opened, so that the stock would wander on the track. It also found a note nailed to a gate near the track making fun of him and his efforts to save the stock, and letting him know that further trouble was in store for him, and that his own life was not safe. Mr. McCallum also examined his pump, and found evidence that the drinking water had been tampered with.

COMMUNITY IS AROUSED.

The whole community, which is a wealthy and peaceable one, composed of the best farmers in Prescott county, is enraged, and it will go hard with the scoundrel if he is caught. Neighbors are almost afraid to sympathize with Mr. McCallum for fear this unknown enemy will vent his spite on them. Mr. McCallum was married only a few weeks ago, and neither he nor his wife know of any enemies in the county. They are both of respectable people of good families.

The matter is in the hands of the County Crown Attorney, who has communicated with the Ontario Justice Department, and a detective is expected here at any time. In the meantime, Mr. and Mrs. McCallum do not know what to do, as they feel their lives are in danger.

Mr. McCallum married a daughter of Mr. Alex. McKenzie, of St. Anne de Prescott, a few weeks ago, and it is reported that prior to the wedding she was told that if she married McCallum she would have no luck.

Young Englishman Beat in the Heads of Women with a Heavy Hammer

Kenora, July 29.—One of the most horrible crimes in the history of Canada, occurred here last night about six o'clock, when a young Englishman named George E. Johnson, attacked and probably fatally injured Mrs. Jas. Humphreys, and her sister, Mrs. Ackerman, in the former's home. The fiend first attacked Mrs. Humphreys with a boot-maker's hammer, hitting her on the skull and jaw with the heavy instrument. Mrs. Ackerman, hearing her sister's cries, went to her assistance and was also struck down in the same way, the injuries being, if anything, more terrible. There is little hope that either of the two women will recover.

Just at the moment of the attack, Mr. Humphreys returned from his work, and was met by his little boy, telling that his mother was being murdered. He rushed upstairs, only to be struck by Johnson with the hammer on the head, and the hand. Half dazed, he made his way out to yell for the police.

Johnson then went below and attacked the mother of the two women, Mrs. Wolseley, hitting her on the jaw, but fortunately a neighbor, Blare, rushed in and caught the man by the throat, just as he had the hammer raised for a second blow at Mrs. Wolseley, who is 70 years of age.

Arthur Jarvis, who was passing, also rushed in at this instant, and assisted Blare to hold the infuriated man. The police arrived quickly and had the man arrested and taken to the station before a crowd gathered.

The injured women were at once taken to the hospital. Johnson had been boarding with the Humphreys and it is said had been out of work, and got behind with his board bill. This is the only known motive for the crime.

Had Arm Broken.

A serious accident befell Master Austen Forsythe, son of Mr. Carl Forsythe, Tuesday evening. He was playing with a number of other children when he tripped and fell on his left arm. When he picked himself up his arm was very sore and he was at once taken to Dr. Clarke's office, where it was found that a bone had been broken. The arm was at once set and is now doing nicely.—Lindsay Post.

Making Good.

There is no way of making lasting friends like "Making Good;" and Doctor Pierce's medicines well exemplify this, and their friends, after more than two decades of popularity, are numbered by the hundreds of thousands. They have "made good" and they have not made drunkards.

A good, honest, square-deal medicine of known composition is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It still enjoys an immense sale, while most of the preparations that have come into prominence in the earlier period of its popularity have "gone by the board" and are never more heard of. There must be some reason for this long-time popularity and that is to be found in its superior merits. When once given a fair trial for weak stomach, or for liver and blood affections, its superior curative qualities are soon manifest; hence it has survived and grown in popular favor, while scores of less meritorious articles have suddenly flashed into favor for a brief period and then been as soon forgotten.

For a torpid liver with its attendant indigestion, dyspepsia, headache, perhaps dizziness, foul breath, nasty coated tongue, with bitter taste, loss of appetite, with distress after eating, nervousness and debility, nothing is so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It's an honest, square-deal medicine with all its ingredients printed on bottle-wrapper—no secret, no hocus-pocus humbug, therefore don't accept a substitute that the dealer may possibly make a little bigger profit. Insist on your right to have what you call for.

Don't buy Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription expecting it to prove a "cure-all." It is only advised for woman's special ailments. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. Less advertised than some preparations sold for like purposes, its sterling curative virtues still maintain its position in the front ranks, where it stood over two decades ago. As an invigorating tonic and strengthening nervine it is unequaled. It won't satisfy those who want "booze," for there is not a drop of alcohol in it.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, the original Little Liver Pills, although the first pill of their kind in the market, still lead, and when once tried are ever afterwards in favor. Easy to take as candy—one to three a dose. Much imitated but never equaled.

The Tax Collector Has a Busy Week

The local tax collector has had a busy time this week, these being the last days for the paying of taxes. During this week Mr. Green has received in the neighborhood of $50,000 and expects altogether about $110,000, as the full amount of the first division. The majority of the people are paying only the half as required.

Saturday will be the last day on which one may receive the discount for prompt payment. Mr. Green, therefore, expects a busy week-end at his office. He now makes three and four bank deposits daily.

POLICE

Yesterday morning at the police court John Williams was accused of allowing his cow to run at large on Hunter street. The trouble seemed to be over a defective fence, which Mr. Williams stated was all right on the morning of the day on which he was charged with allowing his cow to run at large. The fence, he claimed, was destroyed by a calf belonging to another party.

Acting Magistrate Armstrong maintained he should have entered a complaint against the calf, and that he was to be censured for the presence of the cow on other property.

He was assessed $2, to be paid within ten days. The money was handed over.

MEEHAN AN ABSENTEE.

The name of George Meehan was called three times, but that person did not appear before the magistrate. His case was enlarged until Saturday morning, when the witnesses will be asked to appear again.

New Bowling Alleys will be Ready in Sept.

This fall the members of the local Y.M.C.A. will have two of the finest regulation bowling alleys in the country. Yesterday the Property Committee of the building awarded the contract to Reid Bros., of Toronto, who were the lowest tenders. At present Mr. E. Skipper has a number of men at work making a large room for the alleys and will have it ready by the last of next week. Mr. J. Reid was in the city yesterday looking over the work, and says he will have them ready for use by Sept. 1st. This will be one of the largest sources of amusements the members will have and no doubt the members will take an interest in the game. There should be some fine bowling teams by next spring.

Brutal Assault Committed on Miss Kate Shafer Last Night

At a late hour last night considerable excitement was caused throughout the city from a report that a tramp had attempted the murder of a young girl at the residence of Mr. Jas. Hallsall, Otonabee. The police were informed, and P.C.'s Newhall, McHarry and Maugher wheeled down to Mr. Hallsall's, and found that a young girl had been brutally attacked with a hatchet by a man named Kennedy.

It was learned that Kennedy called to see the girl, whose name is Kate Schafer, and attempted an indecent assault. He was foiled in his attempt by the young lady, who put up a desperate struggle to protect herself. The ruffian then hit her on the side of the neck and head with a hatchet. The screams of the girl brought Mr. Hallsall to her rescue and the man fled towards the lumber where he was afterwards captured by P. C. Maugher and brought to the city.

Dr. Carmichael was called to attend to the girl's wounds, which required a number of stitches to close the gash in her head.

The girl is a Scotch immigrant, and has been in this country about a year. She is 17 years of age, and has up to a short time ago been employed at Temperance House on Hunter street.

The prisoner is a young man about 22 years of age, and is well known about the city. He will appear before Magistrate Dumble this morning.

Death for a Flirt

Lover Shoots Girl Who Had Trifled with His Affections

Cleveland, Ohio, July 30.—Having already allied the party in this state with those active in the temperance reform movement which is sweeping through the Middle West, Ohio Republican leaders have little fear that the prohibition party will draw any appreciable number of voters away from their party, but in the other states in this section of the country, the situation is different, and prohibitionists may make large inroads in the ranks of the Republicans in some of the commonwealths. Whether or not this defection will be sufficient to weaken the party materially, we

Horrible Tragedy at Smith's Falls--Children Were Burned to Death

Smith's Falls, July 29.—The home of Conductor Robert Howard was destroyed by fire at 830 o'clock this morning, and two little children, Dorothy, aged 5 years, and Cecil, aged 4 years, burned to death.

Mrs. Howard and the little two-year-old baby had gone next door to a neighbor's house for a few minutes' visit, and left the two children in bed upstairs over the kitchen. The house was near the C.P.R. track, and the section men noticed the fire and gave the alarm.

When Mrs. Howard began looking about to see where the fire was she was horrified to find that her own home was in flames less than thirty feet away. At once she thought of her babes, and in agony called on the men to save them, but the fire had gained too much headway, and they could not get near them.

In a few minutes it was too late, and the mother was carried unconscious into a neighbor's house. When the firemen drowned out the blaze, the little bodies were found among the debris, burned to a crisp, and merely the forms of their bodies left.

Lorne Fitzgerald, a junior member of the local "Y" vaulted 5ft. 5in last night.

Toronto, July 29.—Manager Charlie Querrie of the Tecumseh Lacrosse Club returned today from Montreal. He is enthusiastic in his praise of the New Westminster team, which won the Minto Cup yesterday from the Shamrocks.

Charlie says they are very fast on their feet, pass quick and accurately, and work well together, both on home and defence. Their defence is very strong, backing right into the mouth of the goal, an almost impregnable barrier to the opposing scoring end.

The home division, Charlies says, is the most daring and clever bunch seen East in some years. They circle around and take their time about shooting, never letting the ball go until they see an opening. They all play to Alex. Turnbull, the Grand Old Man of Lacrosse, who is said by Querrie to be the finest individual lacrosse player in the world today.

"Father" or "Old Man" Turnbull, as he is called, is a great general, and whenever a corner needed strengthening he was there. Although forty-four years of age and bald, he raced around like a two-year-old, and at one time led the home in their desperate and persistent boring in on Shamrocks' goal, then he rushed back to help out his own defence or raced up and down centre as if running meant nothing to him. His playing was superb, and brought forth rounds of applause.

Turnbull will be 45 years of age next September, but must have tasted of the elixir of life. He is full of what the baseball players call "pepper," and has wonderful endurance, to say nothing of a very brainy method of handling his players.

Turnbull will be one of the members of the Canadian Olympic team, which sails for England on October 1. Until then Turnbull will remain in Toronto and practice with the Tecumsehs. He will be here on Saturday, and will direct the New Westminster team in their match with the Tecumsehs at the Island.

Turnbull was battered to pieces by the Shamrocks yesterday. His face and head were cut severely, and his countenance looked like a piece of raw beefsteak. He played most of the game with blood streaming from his face.

The New Westminster team let all the money they had with them, and won handsomely on yesterday's game. Manager Welsh received over 1000 congratulatory telegrams after the game.

Mourned as Dead for Six Years, Comes Home with His Fortune

Glad News for Wife and Child--Made His Fortune in Fruit Raising.

Toronto, July 29.—Missing for six years, and long ago mourned as dead, H. E. King, a former Toronto man, has turned up in Seattle, and writes to his relatives here that he has made his fortune in fruit raising in California. He is a brother of Mr. Montague King, the well known head agent for Scott and Walmsley here, and a son of Lieut. Charles T. King, of King's Park, Lake Rosseau.

Six years ago Mr. King was a young man of twenty-seven with a wife and three-year-old son. He was living at Calgary, where he had disposed of his interest in a large ranching proposition. One day he got on a train to go to Fort William. He was known to be sick at the time. As he never arrived there, it was presumed that he had left the train at some intermediate point. No word came from him, and he was mourned as dead.

His brother and other relations made inquiries all over the continent, but no clue was found. Now his father has received a letter, which states that he is well and sound, and coming home with enough money to live comfortably the rest of his life. It does not explain the circumstances of his disappearance, but merely says he has been in California. He writes from Seattle.

His wife is a niece of Col. George T. Denison, of Toronto, and it is feared to such her with news of her husband's home-coming.

Lindsay's New Skating Rink

Lindsay, July 28.—That the young people will be furnished with plenty of high-class amusement this coming fall and winter, is quite evident from the fact that Mr. Joe. Parkin is taking in the improvement of the rink. The town has truly got a rink in the full sense of the word—not the one that was here last winter or the winter before, but a brand new one. There is nothing about the new rink whatever, to remind one of the old one, with the exception that it stands in the same place.

High-class accommodation and good skating facilities seem to be uppermost in the mind of the architect. Lindsay has now a rink that compares favorably with the best rinks in Ontario, and is an improvement on the most of them. The accommodation rooms on the first flat are made up of a ladies' general waiting room, a gentleman's general waiting room, a manager's office, ticket office and checking room. The second flat consists of properly furnish d apartments on one side for ladies and on the other for gentlemen, there being a private suite to each apartment. There is also a hockey room and a trainer's room, which will be a great boon to the hockey players.

Best prostrates the nerves. In the summer one needs a tonic to offset the customary hot weather horror and strength depression. You will feel better within 48 hours after beginning to take such a remedy as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Its prompt action in restoring the weakened nerves a surprising. Of course, you won't get entirely strong in a few days, but each day on can actually feel the improvement. That tired, lifeless, spiritless, feeling will quickly depart when using the Restorative. Dr. Shoop's Restorative will sharpen a failing appetite; it aids digestion, it will strengthen the weakened kidneys and Heart by simply rebuilding the worn-out nerves that these organs depend upon. Test it a few days and be convinced. Sold by all dealers.

Mr. C. N. Routley, the energetic west end grocer, is enlarging his store. He has a number of men at work removing the old residence at the back, and excavating a cellar. It will have it completed by the 1st of October.

Sealed Tenders addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Supplying Coal for the Dominion Buildings," will be received at this office until 4.30 p.m. on Monday, August 24, 1908, for the supply of Coal for the Public Buildings throughout the Dominion.

Combined specification and form of tender can be obtained on application at this office.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed form supplied, and signed with their actual signatures.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, made payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works equal to ten per cent. (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or if he fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By Order,

R. C. DESROCHERS,
Asst. Secretary.

Kelly--Caldwell

Port Hope, July 29.—A house wedding of much interest was celebrated here this afternoon at two o'clock at "Burna Vista," King street, the pretty residence of Mr. and Miss Jane Caldwell, when their youngest daughter, Miss Helen, was married to Mr. James Wilfrid Kelly, principal of the east side school, Peterborough. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. E. Abraham of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, in the presence of the relatives and friends of the bride and groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelly left on the International Limited for Muskoka, where they will spend their honeymoon, and on their return will reside in Peterborough.

The Prohibition Vote

It May Cause Serious Defections from Ranks of Republicans

New York, July 30.—The opinions expressed by a number of representatives of unions who were seen yesterday indicate that many of the people who would have voted for Bryan in case there had been no third party are likely to vote for the Independence party ticket. S. P. Pancoast, delegate of the Paperhangers Union said:

"A third party has now a great opportunity to go working people's vote. Nothing can, in my opinion, benefit labor as the result of the election of Bryan, and the chance for a third party is better than it has been for years."

William Tuck, delegate of the Compressed Air Workers' International Union, said:

"The Independence party will certainly get the votes of large numbers of dissatisfied Democrats. A great many are not at all pleased with the labor planks in the Democratic platform. They are not anything like what the labor unions want."

"There is a rebellious element in the Democratic party which is not satisfied with either of the old parties. There is not a doubt that Independent of the regular Hearst men, many of these dissatisfied Democrats will vote for the Independent party ticket."

Labor Dispute in Dublin

Montreal, July 30.—It is stated that a difficulty involving the possibility of a strike which may affect more than 4,000 workers, has arisen between the Dublin Coal-Masters' Association and Dublin Dockers' Union. The Union demands recognition by the local coal merchants and general carriers, and has informed the masters that none of its members will work with men who do not wear the accepted badge of the society. The merchants have replied with a notice that any man who objects to work with a non-union laborer will not be retained.

Tired, Off Color, Lacking in Strength

You feel real seedy.

No snap, ambition or spirit.

You've noticed your color is miserable.

Noticed that your blood is thin, that you feel the cold, that trifles bother and worry you.

You ought to be vigorous and ruddy.—you eat enough, sleep fairly well—but still that listless feeling hangs right on.

To overcome this condition all the vital functions must be stimulated.

You accomplish this by taking Ferrozone.

How it makes the appetite jump.

There follows as a natural consequence an abundant supply of rich red blood.

Vitality and strength you'll soon find throbbing within you, because your food is digested so thoroughly that it's readily assimilated.

You soon notice that your color is coming back, and endurance too, and soon the joy of life, health, vigor, strength—and with these come the old-time zest for everything that makes life worth living.

Ferrozone is a marvelous body-builder, blood-former and strength-giver.

Ferrozone, by supply the aid the body needs to build up, gives the recuperative power that will enable you to do your work easily, and to maintain strength.

See if you don't find it just the thing you need to make you strong. Not a man, woman or child, who needs more strength, better nerves and surer health who won't find it in Ferrozone. This nourishing tonic makes you feel like new—brings back the feeling of spirit and ambition you had years ago. Try Ferrozone, sold everywhere in 50c. boxes.

HOG RAISING.

The export trade in Canadian cured meats is rapidly falling off, and an industry which at one time seemed more promising is in danger, if not of extinction of sinking to insignificant proportions. Packers say the cost of producing bacon in Canada is altogether out of proportion to the basis ruling in other countries. Prices in England are below what Canadian packers can manufacture for. "Denmark is selling bacon in London cheaper than we can produce it here, and the exporters in the United States can also undersell us in the British markets, as the cost of the live stock is much lower on their markets than it is here."

It is easy enough to discover the cause of the shrinking of the Canadian trade, namely, the high cost of production here compared with that in other countries. It is not so easy to discover why the cost should be so much greater in Canada than elsewhere.

One difficulty, of course, is that in the United States — especially in such prairie states as Illinois and Iowa — hogs are fed on corn, and corn can be grown there to greater advantage than anywhere else in the world. Canadian farmers could not feed corn to anything like the same extent without importing it, and, of course, the nearer the animal is to the place where its feed is produced the better economically. But it is well known that grass fed hogs, such as can be raised, and are being raised in comparatively limited quantities in central Ontario, made a grade of hogs admittedly superior in quality to that produced from the corn fed hogs of the United States. Such bacon brings a higher price, and has a reputation which could be turned to great account if only the production were on an unlimited scale.

Another difficulty is that the average Canadian farmer only raises a few hogs as a side line, largely from force of habit, and without realizing the traits of profit. There is a certain amount of labor necessary in preparing good bacon for market, and as there seems to be less labor in the dairy industry, the latter is preferred. Hog-raising, indeed, is carried on everywhere along with intelligent dairying as a means of utilizing surplus whey; but still it is looked upon merely as an adjunct, and not of much account in itself. Hence, although farmers have had every encouragement from the enormously high prices that have been ruling for the past three or four years, the production of hogs is smaller to-day than for a long period.

What is wanted is a steady supply of the right kind of stock. Packers are hardly to be blamed if they do not put up and operate a costly plant incapable of taking care of any sudden increase, when within a few weeks that plant may be idle for the want of material. Given a constant supply of such hogs as can easily be produced in Canada from home-grown feed, and the plants will soon be forthcoming to take them regularly at remunerative prices. Once a regular trade is established, it will surely grow in proportion to the extent and regularity of the supply of suitable animals. The packers may be trusted to push their end of the business, and others abroad for Canadian bacon will increase till another very lucrative industry has been opened up for the agricultural portion of the community.

The main thing, as has been hinted, is regularity in the supply. The only way to secure this is to impress upon the minds of the farmers the importance and profitableness of hog-raising as that even if they pursue it as a side line, they will never neglect it, but will rather be disposed to develop it as far as convenient. There would seem to be no reason why those who have the inclination and the locality should not make a specialty of this or branch of agriculture. If western American farmers can do so and get rich out of it, Canadian farmers can do likewise. All they need is to plan particularly to capture the specially good prices commanded by the best class of Canadian bacon.—Hamilton Spectator.

A BAD PLAN OF TRAVEL.

The Scheme That Worried One Woman on Her Trip Abroad.

"When I hear of people joyfully making plans for their first trip abroad," said a man who has made many a transatlantic voyage, "I am tempted to give them a little bit of advice, based, of course, on my own observations, but particularly upon a remark made to me by a middle aged woman whose seat in the saloon was next to mine on my return trip last summer. This woman had a husband, and it was to him that she referred in answering my question one day. I asked her what she had been doing on the other side. She looked half quizzically, half reproachfully, at her spouse and said, 'Well, my principal occupation was trying to keep track of John.'

"It developed that her concern was not over what John might do in European capitals, but simply related to the difficulty each had in meeting the other after pursuing their several ways in a strange city, she to browse among the shops and he, an inveterate sightseer, to visit this, that and the other spot of interest. Their general scheme, as I was informed, was to diverge, say, in the morning, following their respective bents and arranging to meet at a certain place at a certain time. The plan sounds feasible, but it is experimental, and, as both of them found, it was an experiment that didn't work well. First one would be delayed and then the other, and if you have ever waited for a person in a foreign city you can appreciate the particular variety of anxiety that comes in about ten minutes. There's a feeling that something has happened to the missing person, for one thing, and, for another, there's an increasing realization that you yourself are wasting time. If you start out to look up the delinquent, the case becomes practically hopeless. The needle in the haystack is easy compared to that search. When the reunion does come at dinner time in the hotel or pension, explanations are received with tears or haughty disdain. Oh, I know; I've been through it."

A Kaleidoscope of Fashions.

For my part I commend a quick changing fashion and could I have chosen my period would have fixed on the fickle years of the first empire, when fashions shifted from week to week, and that, too, with such fine shades of difference that only the most frivolous could follow them. Then the great conqueror brought to Paris finery from the ends of the earth, muslins from India, garlands of roses from Bengal, stuffs shining with gold and silver from Cairo; from Turkey, of course, turbans, and from the far east shawls—shawls from Kashmir, from Persia and from the Levant; shawls particolored, blue—bright blue—and red and green and black and the clear yellow of the sun; shawls patterned with all the interlacings of Asian caprice and fit not only to hang from the shoulders of the fair, but to give a coquette of eastern fancy day long visions of the orient. From the past, for all time as well as all the earth was then Napoleon's, came the fashion of the troubadours—chapeaux a Creneaux, sleeves a la mameluk, cheveux a l'enfant, lending to a very modern period who can say what charming Gothic airs? How do not such revolutions of fashion enlarge the feminine heart and teach it to live in all ages and all climates!—Lucy M. Donnelly in Atlantic.

The Adored One.

He is a confirmed bachelor. In fact, his attitude toward women is almost that of a misogynist. His particular bete noire is a new acquaintance of his sister, Miss Blank.

He met her in the street the other day and, seeing no way out of it, stopped and spoke to her. She saw how he was fidgeting to get away and said:

"You seem very preoccupied. Ah, I know! You are thinking of the one you adore."

"I adore no one," was his stiff rejoinder.

"You can't deceive me. I know you are deeply in love. Besides, your sister showed me a photo of the object of your devotion only last night. It isn't a type I admire. But, there, every one to his taste. I won't tell any one. Goodby."

And before he could reply she was gone.

When he reached home he said to his sister:

"What girl's photo did you show Miss Blank last night?"

Then it dawned upon him what Miss Blank was driving at.—London Scraps.

Automatic Salt Works.

About a hundred miles north of Lima, near the town of Huacho, is one of the great curiosities of nature, a salt factory on an automatic plan. When the tide comes in it fills a lot of shallow basins, and the water is prevented from flowing back into the sea by closing the gates. The atmosphere is so dry that the water evaporates rapidly and leaves a sediment of salt in an almost pure state, which is scraped up, packed into sacks and shipped to market. Within the coast a little farther the percolation of sea water through the porous rocks into pits and hollows has caused immense deposits of salt to accumulate. The salt is taken out in blocks six or eight inches square and sold in that form. As soon as the salt is excavated the water comes in again and in a year or two has solidified and is ready for the market. Wells driven into the sand disclose strongly impregnated water at a depth of twenty-five feet, which seems to be a great deal heavier than the sea water, and is drawn off into vats for evaporation.

SAILORS' UNIFORMS.

Copied From England and Not Representative of America.

All are familiar with the American man-of-war sailor's suit, but has any one ever stopped to consider how he comes by it and what the origin of it is? With the exception of the fit itself and the stars in the corner of the collar the whole suit is copied from the English. One would have thought that by this time the American nation would have fallen upon some original costume for its navy in some way more representative of America.

In the early days of the British navy it was still the custom to tie the hair in a cue after well greasing it, but much annoyance was felt by the men in consequence of the oil getting on the rough serge of their jumpers or blouses. This caused the blue collar of the same material as the jumper to be added, but without much success, as the collar looked quite as untidy, so at length the idea of putting the blue drill one over the serge was adopted, the drill collar being a separate appendage and therefore easily washed and kept clean. The lanyard was worn to represent the ropes and rigging of the ship, and the jackknife indicated that (to be paradoxical) the bluejacket's object in life was death to his enemy.

In those days the neck was exposed, but as time went on and more thought was given to the welfare of the men this was found to be injurious to the health; hence the substitute of the white neck flannel, white being used to give the effect of the uncovered neck.

The two rows of white braid at the top of the cuff represent England and Ireland, the one row at the bottom showing that Scotland had not become annexed. The rows of braid on the collar represent wholly and solely the victories of Nelson.

At the opening of Lord Nelson's grand career and his first great victory at Aboukir the first row of braid was put on the collar, and Jack was a proud and happy man, and he became still prouder and happier when Aboukir was followed by Nelson's greater victory at Copenhagen, and the second row was added. But he became the proudest and happiest man and, alas, also the most sorrowful and grief stricken, when that great hero and magnificent example of naval courage lost his life in his last victory at Trafalgar, and so the third row of braid went on, but there was no more to come after it, for "the last pipe" had sounded for the gallant sailor, his last fight fought, his last victory won. To signify the mourning which filled the hearts of all English sailors the black scarf was added. This was the origin of the British tar's uniform, which is both historical and biographical and dear to the heart of all English people.

If the Earth Should Stop.

The stopping of a projectile always results in the generation of heat. The velocity and weight of a projectile being known, the amount of heat developed by its stoppage can be calculated. In the case of large bodies moving rapidly the result of the calculation is something astounding. For example, the earth weighs 6,000,000,000,000 tons and travels in its orbits at the rate of over eighteen miles a second. Should it strike a target strong enough to stop its motion the heat developed by the shock would be sufficient not merely to fuse the earth, but also to reduce a large portion of it to vapor. It has been calculated that the amount of heat generated by a collision so colossal would equal that obtained from the burning of fourteen globes of coal each equal to the earth in size. And should the earth after its stoppage fall into the sun, as it certainly would do, the amount of heat developed by its impact on the sun would be equal to that generated by the combustion of 5,000 earths of solid carbon.

Dream Troubles.

"Once when I was blue," said a business man, "a friend told me I was worrying over imaginary troubles. He cheered me up with a yarn about his little nephew. This little fellow's sister said one morning:

"'Oh, Gussie, I had such a lovely dream last night! I dreamed I was at a cake shop, and I had such loads of good things—ice cream, pie, strawberry shortcake, chocolates, jelly macaroons, kisses and lots of other things besides.'

"The little boy's eyes glistened. He smiled with delight.

"'And what was I eating?' he asked eagerly.

"'Oh, you wasn't there, Gussie.'

"Then, overwhelmed with sorrow, little Gussie hid his face in his hands and wept bitterly."

Restlessness.

Mere restlessness is not a matter for which physicians are often consulted. It is on the face of it an unimportant malady, but when it exists in sufficient intensity to form the subject of complaint and to induce the sufferer to seek advice it is usually found to be the superficial indication of a grave underlying condition.—Hospital.

The Greatest Man.

Who is the greatest man who has ever lived? The question went round a dinner table, and controversy raged from the fish onward. There were two who plumped for Julius Caesar, two more for Napoleon; one, thinking of statues, said Shakespeare, and somebody else, who did not get a hearing at all, murmured Buddha at intervals, while most of the people present who did not know Greek said Aeschylus. But Aristotle won easily. It was not a particularly scholarly assemblage, and one wondered rather how many of Aristotle's enthusiastic devotees could have quoted accurately from him—had ever read him, indeed since they left college. And all the while probably the greatest man of all ages is pegging away among us unnoticed, unrecognized, while we snapshot and interview all the little men or go back to some one who has been dead long enough for us to find out that we may safely praise him.—London Chronicle.

The Mighty Amazon.

The estimated length of the Amazon from its source in the Andes to where it debouches in a mouth forty miles wide into the Atlantic is 4,000 miles. The story is told of a wrecked vessel which was drifting, with her crew on board suffering intense torment for lack of fresh water, which entered the mouth of the Amazon and the sufferers could have had fresh water simply by putting a bucket over the side, but did not know where they were until they got in sight of the land. This mighty river, up which the tide goes 600 miles, is known in the upper part of its course near the Andes as the Maranon, then in the middle course, from Tabatinga to the mouth of its chief affluent, the Rio Negro, as the Solimoes, while for the rest of its course its name is Amazonas or Amazon. A thousand miles from the sea it is four miles in width. Vast and often impassable forests line most of its banks.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism, but now, at last, it unfailingly cures all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. These sand-like granular wastes, found in Rheumatic blood seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. We sell, and in confidence recommend

FOIBLES OF MUSICIANS

Eccentric Moods and Manners of the Great Composers.

THE MADNESS OF GENIUS.

Beethoven's Strange Abstraction and Queer Habits—The Odd Contract That Mozart Insisted on Signing. Meyerbeer Inspired by Thunder.

When listening to the wonderful trains of Beethoven's immortal symphonies and sonatas it is difficult to imagine that they could come from the soul of such an eccentric man. Though musicians are, as a rule, men with many peculiarities, Beethoven was probably the most extraordinary of men all.

He wrote his music in all sorts of places when dining, walking or conversing with a friend. Often in the midst of a crowded street he would stop and write furiously for a few minutes on the back of a letter or an envelope, oblivious to the bustling crowd about him. Some of his greatest themes were composed when he was walking along in the pouring rain, or in the worst weather he was a familiar figure in the streets of Vienna, and, though often the object of much ridicule and many jibes, he was commonly inattentive to his surroundings, as his mind was wholly occupied with his music. His friends were not unaccustomed to have him break off in the midst of a conversation and begin to write rapidly some motif which had presented itself to him.

This great composer would play for hours at a stretch, and in order to cool his hands, which often became feverish, he would seize a water jug and walk about the room, pouring the water first on one hand and then on the other, utterly ignoring the fact that there was no receptacle to catch it. This was the cause of many of his hasty retreats from his lodgings, for the slightest complaint would cause him to give notice to quit, so puerile was he at times. As a result he sometimes was paying for no fewer than three different lodgings at the same time, which, after engaging for a month, he had abruptly left in a day.

Though Haydn ranks next to Beethoven on the list of eccentric musicians, still their peculiarities were very unlike. Beethoven lived in the midst of disorder and confusion, while Haydn averred that he could not compose a line unless everything in his study was in its exact place. Even every ornament must be where it belonged.

He always rose early to write, for he found his greatest inspiration when the birds were singing in the dewy morning hours. His most extraordinary characteristic, however, was to don his full court dress, with bob wig, hat and ruffles, and put on his finger a certain ring before he wrote a line, for he declared that he had not a musical idea unless so attired.

Mozart cannot be called eccentric in the same sense as the two mentioned, for they were very retiring in fact, reclusive—while he was to a great extent a man of the world. To him, however, must be credited one of the strangest documents that perhaps have ever been written.

He became engaged to a young woman, and at the request of his future mother-in-law he drew up in the presence of an attorney a contract which bound him to marry one of the woman's daughters within three years, the said daughter always having the liberty to refuse the composer if she wished to marry another. But in case Mozart was unable to carry out his intention through lack of the necessary funds or through the woman's refusal he pledged himself to support her in the condition of a stranger, no matter where or how she lived, all her life. This support was to be a fixed sum paid quarterly or half yearly.

Wagner, too, was not exempt from peculiar fancies. His mind seemed to run to the grewsome, and during his lifetime he had his grave constructed. It was in the garden back of his home, and he would often go and look at it that he might not forget its existence. But the worst of it was that he constantly insisted that his friends should remember it, too, and when he was entertaining them at dinner he would suddenly break off the conversation and begin declaiming on eternity and the grave.

"My friends," he would say, "in the midst of life we are in death. Death is a lot that we all must face, even so great a man as myself. I, too, must die. I should like very much to show you my grave, if you will allow me."

And, starting from the dinner table, he would lead the way, followed by his guests, to the corner of the garden where his grave was, and there he would give his companions further dissertations on eternity.

Meyerbeer gathered his thoughts amid the rumble of thunder, the flash of lightning and downpour of rain. In order more fully to expose himself to the stimulating effects of the elements he had constructed for himself at the top of his house a room whose walls were entirely of glass, and here he would hasten at the approach of a storm and amid its fury would have a rush of musical thoughts.

There is a story about him to the effect that once when entertaining friends at dinner he heard a distant rumble of thunder just as the soup course was served, and to the astonishment of his guests he hastened from the room to his musical chamber and left them to take care of themselves for the rest of the evening.

The Italian composer Donizetti courted inspiration by a means which proved so injurious that it caused the premature decay of his faculties. He was accustomed to shut himself in a room with a quantity of music paper, pens and ink and three or four pots of strong coffee. He would then begin to write and drink, and when this supply of coffee was exhausted he would order more and continue to drink it as long as he wrote.

He asserted that the coffee was necessary for his inspiration. The result of this pernicious habit was a yellow, parchment-like complexion, with lips almost jet black and a nervous system which soon caused his breakdown and death.

Rossini was perhaps the laziest of all musicians whose names are famous. He would rarely rise until midday, and often when he woke and the weather was dull or the muse did not inspire him to write he would turn over again and after directions to his servant to be called the following day would sleep blissfully for another twenty-four hours.

He did most of his writing in bed, and before retiring for the night he would place music paper and a pencil near his bedside so that he would not have to move in order to have the means at hand for writing down the musical thoughts which came.

It is told of him that after writing part of a beautiful duet for an opera the sheet on which he was writing fell to the floor and, caught by a puff of wind, was soon beyond his reach. He was too lazy to get up and get it and thereby disturb the nicely arranged bedclothes, so he set to work and wrote another melody, as he could not remember how the first one went. Thus in the opera "Il Turco in Italia" there are two duets for one situation, and singers can choose the one which pleases them best.

Liszt was probably the vainest of great composers and also one of the most capricious. It was only when in the mood that he would play, and if pressed to do so against his will he would often become almost insulting.

It is told of him that after being entertained at dinner he was asked by his hostess to perform on the piano, and on refusing and again being asked he stalked to the piano and after dashing off a short but brilliant composition he hurried from the room, saying as he went: "There, madam! I have paid for my dinner!"

On a similar occasion, after a dinner party, he was pressed by his host to play. Not being in the mood, however, he refused; but, no doubt thinking that genius needed urging, his host insisted. The musician then walked to the piano and, turning his back to the keyboard, favored the company with one of the popular airs.—Mary Hamilton Talbott in New York Tribune.

A Rather Novel Complaint.

An English traveler once met a companion sitting in a state of the most woeful despair and apparently near the last agonies by the side of one of the mountain lakes of Switzerland. He inquired the cause of his sufferings. "Oh," said the latter, "I was very hot and thirsty and took a large draft of the clear water of the lake and then sat down on this stone to consult my guidebook. To my astonishment, I found that the water of this lake is very poisonous! Oh, I am a gone man; I feel it running all over me. I have only a few minutes to live! Remember me to"—

"Let me see the guidebook," said his friend. Turning to the passage, he found, "L'eau du lac est bien poisonneuse" (The water of this lake abounds in fish).

"Is that the meaning of it?"

"Certainly."

The dying man looked up with a radiant countenance. "What would have become of you," said his friend, "if I had not met you?"

"I should have died of imperfect knowledge of the French language."

A Great Man's Simple Speech.

I was lately told a delightful story of a great statesman staying with a humble and anxious host who had invited a party of simple and unimportant people to meet the great man. The statesman came in late for dinner and was introduced to the party. He made a series of old fashioned bows in all directions, but no one felt in a position to offer any observations. The great man at the conclusion of the ceremony turned to his host and said in tones that had often thrilled a listening senate: "What very convenient jugs you have in your bedrooms. They pour well." The social frost broke up, the company was delighted to find that the great man was interested in mundane matters of a kind on which every one might be permitted to have an opinion, and the conversation, starting from the humblest conveniences of daily life, melted insensibly into more liberal subjects.—Arthur C. Benson in Putnam's and the Reader.

An American Admirer.

In a small way an American figures in the journal kept by Rosalie Lamorliere during the revolutionary days of 1793 in France and published under the title, "The Last Days of Marie Antoinette."

Rosalie Lamorliere, a girl of Picardy, was servant to the queen in the conciergerie. "One day," Rosalie has recorded, "M. de Saint Leger, the American, who was coming from the register's office, noticed that I was carrying a glass half filled with water.

"'Did the queen drink the water that has gone from the glass?' he asked.

"I answered that she did.

"With a quick gesture he uncovered his head and drank the water that remained with every indication of respect and pleasure."

WORKING WITH GLASS

The Way the Different Color Effects Are Produced.

FREAKS OF THE BLOWPIPE.

Quaint Specimen Shapes That Are Sometimes Dropped From the Puntil. How Bottles Are Made by the Clever and Dexterous Workmen.

If a stranger enters the glass works on a dark night he will find not only beauty in the blowing operations, but a great deal of humor, with an uncanny weirdness in flame and shadow that must affect his imagination to some extent. The building is circular, with a chimney sticking up through the middle of it, from the top of which a peculiar intermittent light is flickering. In the center of this building, underneath the chimney, stands a conical furnace of brick containing perhaps no fewer than eight holes which are like fiercely glaring suns and from which pour expanding broad rays of orange colored light. If your eyes are strong enough to look through the holes from which the orange beams of light emerge you see several hundredweight of molten metal shining silvery green in as many earthen dome shaped melting pots.

The nature of different kinds of glass is dependent upon the quality of the raw material, called "batch," put into the melting pots. "Batch" is a mixture of such materials as Calais sand, or common river sand abounding in silica, salt cake, or sodium carbonate and much lime. Blue colors may be obtained by adding oxide of cobalt, green by means of a chrome, black by manganese and amber. The mass of molten metal got from this opaque, earthy looking "batch" has frequently to be skimmed of impurities, but it is nevertheless a problem whence comes that wonderful and enduring transparency which everybody likes to see in glass.

Until the hour strikes for the workmen to commence operations you may find them experimenting for amusement or profit with the blowpipe. You will see many an enormity produced in glass the like of which can scarcely ever have been dropped from a puntil before. Specimens are blown out to the thinness of a tissue paper bag, which another puff of wind explodes with a crack, or a glowing glass pear is for very wantonness knocked off the puntil so that it may vanish with a report on the floor, its hue and heat being extinguished immediately. The floor all around the furnace chamber is covered with brittle shining splinters and particles of glass, which crackle underfoot at every step. One of the men may bring you a mass of metal on a blowpipe and ask you to expend a few cheekfuls of wind upon it. The pipe takes no more blowing than a trombone, though it lacks a mouthpiece, and you may expand the bubble until it is black and cold, so fragile that it will break into a myriad pieces if you touch it. The molten glass is so ductile that it may be spun out into a thread, and the men often vie with each other to see who can make the longest and thinnest strand.

At the signal to commence work the men, already partly stripped to the waist, poke their four foot blowpipe through the hole of the crucible opposite to which they work, twisting it round until it has taken up sufficient of the ropy and viscid glass for one bottle. The man who is clever at his work will, of course, gather up neither too much nor too little for the thickness of the bottle required. He can tell without looking through the furnace holes when he has enough by the weight added to his pipe. Thus all around the fiery furnace there are figures moving continually across the lurid light, most of them dexterously wielding their blowpipes and balancing at the end of each one the exact quantity of vitrified matter to make a bottle. The amateur would find it difficult to balance the molten mass. The chances are that it would drop on the floor, never to be picked up again.

At the same moment you will see bottles in all stages of growth—some glittering gold, others cooling down to orange or red, some in the forms of plummets or dazzling pears, others as incandescent bosses threatening to become fragile bladders. It is all as charming as a pyrotechnic display. You will see the black blowpipe twirled round, blown down, held up like a gun barrel, then in the form of an incandescent lamp globe turned round on a beeswaxed cast iron implement called a marker, on whose edge the bottle neck is formed. It is held up once more, blown into, then shut up in a cast iron mold placed at the operator's feet somewhat below the level of the ground. This mold is opened and closed by a wire spring, which the operator presses with his feet, and directly the red hot bottle is inclosed he blows down the pipe once more so as to fill it completely.

A man goes round from mold to mold inserting a rod into the neck of each bottle and collecting a trayful to go to the annealing chamber. Here the bottles are stacked up for a gradual cooling process, which may possibly last thirty-six hours. This gives them the desired strength. The annealing process is a cure for their natural fragility and enables them to stand the test of boiling water.—London Globe.

To Canadian Investors

The undersigned has received an allotment of unsold portion of $100,000 of

7 Per Cent. First Mortgage Five-Year Gold Bonds

dated January 11, 1908, and maturing January 11, 1913. These Bonds are offered at par and accrued interest by Metropolitan Trust & Savings Bank, Chicago, trustees.

SECURITY—The Entire Property and Improvements Owned THE URES CONSOLIDATED MINING COMPANY in the District of Ures, State of Sonora Mexico, Free from Mortgage of Bonded Indebtedness except this present Bond issue.

An Unusual Opportunity for Investment in Sound Security

The Ures Consolidated Mining Company offers $100,000.00 of First Mortgage Gold Bonds. This issue of bonds is the only mortgage or bonded indebtedness ever placed on the company's properties.

These bonds are in the denomination of $100.00, and bear interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, July and January, and are redeemable on or before five years from date at the company's option at $110.00 and accrued interest.

$100.00 Stock Bonus Given with Every $100.00 Bond

With each bond issued there will be given $100.00 par value of the capital stock of the company as a bonus, and in addition thereto there will be placed in escrow with the Trustee additional stock which will be available to the bondholders at their option any time within a period of three years, the bondholder being entitled to surrender his bond any time within said period and receive in lieu thereof stock for every dollar of indebtedness to him on account of said bonds.

The Security Back of these Bonds.

The company owns twelve claims situated in the district of Ures, State of Sonora, Mexico, free from mortgage or bonded indebtedness, except the present bond issue.

On one of these properties (The Ramona Mine) 5,000 feet of underground development work has been done, consisting of an inclined shaft to the depth of 600 feet with drifts in three levels to the North and South of the shaft.

An average value of ore worth $11.47 per ton is exposed throughout the mine, from the collar of the shaft to the extreme parts in the drifts, all of which is above water level.

The company has made surface improvements and mine improvements to the extent of $50,000.00 in the way of machinery, skids, trams, steam hoists, mill and nearly everything necessary to make the mining camp complete.

In addition to the absolute ownership of these twelve valuable claims, the company has a lease on the San Jose Mine, adjoining its property, in which the company has been operating in high grade ore.

During the past sixty days the company has extracted and delivered to ore buyers and the bank at Hermosillo, $2,000.00 worth of ore and bullion, the ore having been reduced to bullion through the company's mill, with the exception of 1,464 pounds, which was sold to an ore buyer for $562.10.

The Money Derived from the Sale of these Bonds

This issue of bonds is made for the purpose of securing money at once in order to extend the development work more quickly than the company's present means will permit.

With the high grade ore in sight to the distance of 50 feet to the South of the shaft, the management is assured that within six months from date of making the improvements now necessary the company's properties will be on a self-sustaining and dividend-paying basis.

The stock which is Given with these bonds will be as valuable as the bonds when the Company has the ready capital to push operations

Men who invest in these bonds will have no cause or reason to regret their action, for the bonds afford an investment in a security which is absolutely safe—much better than ordinary city or country real estate, which is considered perfectly safe if the property put up to secure a mortgage is double the face of the loan. The security given on these bonds is better than 7 to 1, for the Ures Consolidated Mining Company has refused an offer of $700,000.00 for the property upon which this $100,000.00 worth of bonds is issued.

These bonds are an investment with all speculative risk eliminated—an investment with absolute security.

Make your reservation at once. This is small and promises to be quickly sold.

We hereby beg to state that The Ures Consolidated Mining Company has during the past five years made several deliveries of bullion to this bank, and it is the opinion of mining men here that they have the making of a fair mine, and further, that the properties owned and controlled by them bid fair to becoming paying properties.

1 CENT A 2 SHARE

Send us your name as a member in this new company, with your remittance for as many thousand shares as you can take at $5 per thousand.

This is a short-time offer on a hurry-up proposition. Our vice president is up at Rawhide now putting the miners at work. We want to raise the necessary funds for development as quickly as possible. Therefore, we offer the first block of stock at $5 a thousand shares. This subscription must be all cash. We want the money in hand. We mean to work without let-up, and we have made it an ironclad rule not to run in debt. Cash counts now.

Our prospectuses are out. Send for one.

Make reservation of stock. If you do no more. But, remember, this present offer of stock at Half a Cent a Share is now up n, and will be closed as soon as enough cash subscriptions are in hand. Don't wait, or you will get left.

The gold mining property owned outright by the company consists of 7 claims, 3 in the Rawhide district of Nevada, and 4 in the Dulzura district of Southern California.

The Rawhide district to-day is more famous than Goldfield, Tonapah, Bullfrog, or Searchlight were at the same stage of exploration and development. The Dulzura discovery is one of the most sensational in the history of California.

Ten samples of ore which were among the first assayed, run as high as $7,461.87 to the ton, and all ten averaged over $1,668 a ton.

In both camps we located early, and our locations are choice. Our own officers will superintend the mining.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the Northwest Provinces, excepting 8 and 26 reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such proprietor may perform the said residence duties by living with the father or mother.

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

Weary, Worn-Out, Tired

If You Feel Poorly this Spring this Article is worth Considering.

Nothing in life keeps people from advancement like poor health. If the nerves are weak, if the stomach, liver, bowels or kidneys fail to work properly, health surely suffers. Spring is the hardest time on health—the season when the system calls for active cleansing medicine.

The best plan is to entrust your condition to a physician of reputation like Dr. Hamilton, who has had years of experience in compounding tonics. For the ills and tired feeling of spring Dr. Hamilton says nothing is better than Mandrake and Butternut Pills, and this is well proven in the case of James Burton, of Lewistown. "I had grip and it left me very weak. The disease settled in my back and side, which ached day and night. I had a nagging cough. My appetite was all gone. My nerves unstrung. I could not sleep well. I struggled against growing pale, thin and weak—but it was no good. Spring brought depression, overpowering weakness and bad headaches. But my life was spared, simply because I learned of the wonderful merit in Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. The result was marvelous. I gained rapidly, became strong, ruddy, vigorous, perfectly well. I urge every man and woman to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly."

You'll brighten up, have clearer blood, stronger nerves, better spirits after using Dr. Hamilton's Pills. 25c at all dealers. Guaranteed safe, sure helpful for old and young.

An attempt was made Monday by some unknown person to burglarize the Salvation Army barracks. A pane of glass was removed from a window at the rear of the building, but the would-be robbers secured nothing of any value.

Will Sing Here

Master Percy Mulhern of Lindsay, will be the vocalist at the Crystal today. He is one of the most excellent singers in the province. The play which is being presented, is the great Shakespearean play "Macbeth."

Large Excursion from Oshawa

There is a large excursion being run to the city today from Oshawa. About 700 people are expected and the local aldermen will see that they have a good time.

Pain will depart in exactly 20 minutes if one of Dr. Shoop's Pink Pain Tablets is taken. Pain anywhere. Remember! Pain always means congestion, blood pressure — nothing else. Headache is blood pressure; toothache is blood pressure on the sensitive nerve. Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets—also called Pink Pain Tablets—quickly and safely coax this blood pressure away from pain center. Instant relief. 20 Tablets 25c.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, marked on the envelope "Tender for Construction," will be received at the office of the Commissioners of the Transcontinental Railway, at Ottawa, until twelve o'clock noon of Thursday, the 20th day of August, 1908, for the work or specifications of the Commissioners, required for the construction, in accordance with the plans, profiles and of the following sections of the Transcontinental Railway, viz.,—

(1) District "C."—From a point designated on the plans of the Commissioners near Weymontachie, in the province of Quebec, 196.38 miles west of the north abutment of the Quebec bridge, (such point being on the boundary between Districts "C" and "D") westerly for a distance of about 107 miles. Date of completion, 31st December, 1910.

(2) District "C."—From a point designated on the plans of the Commissioners, about 107 miles west of Weymontachie, in the Province of Quebec, westerly to the end of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company's contract, a distance of about 114.87 miles. Date of completion, 31st December, 1910.

(3) Districts "D" and "E."—From a point designated on the plans of the Commissioners, being at the western end of Fauquier Bros.' Abitibi contract, in the Province of Ontario, in a westerly direction for a distance of about 104.24 miles. Date of completion, 31st December, 1910.

(4) District "E."—From a point designated on the plans of the Commissioners, about sixty miles west of the easterly boundary of District "E," in the Province of Ontario, easterly to the end of Fauquier Bros' contract, north of Lake Nequgon, a distance of about 160 miles. Date of completion, 31st December, 1910.

(5) Districts "E" and "F."—From a point designated on the plans of the Commissioners, at the western end of Fauquier Bros' contract north of Lake Nequgon, in the Province of Ontario, westerly to a point at or near Dog Lake, a distance of about 128 miles. Date of completion, 1st September, 1910.

(6) District "F."—From a point designated on the plans of the Commissioners at or near Dog Lake, in the Province of Ontario, to a point at or about mile 26 west of what is known as Pinancia Crossing, by alternative routes as shown on the plans, a distance of about 2576 miles by the northerly route, and 2413 miles by the southerly route, the decision of the route to be at the option of the Commissioners. Date of completion, 1st September, 1910.

Plans, profiles and specifications may be seen at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Commissioners at Ottawa; also at the offices of the following District Engineers, viz;—John Ayles, Acting District Engineer, North Bay, Ont.; T. S. Armstrong, Nepigon, Ont.; and S. R. Poulin, St. Boniface, Man.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made in duplicate, and on the printed forms supplied by the Commissioners.

A separate tender must be submitted for each section.

Tenderers shall not be in any way entitled to rely upon the classification, or any other information given by any person on behalf of the Commissioners; and before submitting any tender, bidders should make careful examination of the plans, profiles, drawings and specifications, and read the forms to be executed, and fully inform themselves as to the quantity and quality of materials, and character of workmanship required; and are understood to accept, and agree to be bound by, the terms and conditions in the form of contract, specifications, etc., annexed to the form of tenders.

Each tender must be signed and sealed by all the parties to the tender, and witnessed, and be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank of the Dominion of Canada, payable to the order of the Commissioners of the Transcontinental Railway as follows;—

Sec No 1., District "C" $150,000
Sec. No. 2, District "C" 150,000
Sec No 3, District "D & E"... 150,000
Sec No 4, District "E" 150,000
Sec. No. 5, District "E & F"... 200,000
Sec. No. 6, District "F" 100,000

Any person whose tender is accepted shall within ten days after the acceptance thereof furnish such additional approved security as may be required by the Commissioners; sign the contract, specifications, and other documents required to be signed by the said Commissioners; and, in any case of refusal or failure on the part of the party whose tender is accepted to complete and execute a contract with the said Commissioners, and to furnish the additional approved security within ten days after the acceptance of the tender, the said cheque shall be forfeited to the Commissioners as liquidated damages for such refusal or failure and all contract rights acquired by the acceptance of the tender shall be forfeited. The cheques deposited by parties whose tenders are accepted will be deposited to the credit of the Receiver General of Canada as part of the security for the due and faithful performance of the contract according to its terms. Cheques deposited by parties whose tenders are rejected will be returned within ten days after the signing of the contract.

Attention is called to the following clauses in the form of contract;—

"All mechanics, laborers, or other persons who perform labor for the purposes of the construction of the works hereby contracted for, shall be paid such wages as are generally accepted as current for competent workmen in the district in which the work is being performed, and if there is no current rate in such district, then a fair and reasonable rate; and, in the event of a dispute arising as to what is the current or a fair and reasonable rate, it shall be determined by the Commissioners, whose decision shall be final."

"This agreement is subjected to the regulations now in force or which may at any time hereafter be in force during the construction of the works hereby contracted for, made under the authority of the Department of Labor, and which are, or shall be, applicable to such works." (The schedule of minimum wages determined upon by said Department will form part of this contract).

"The contractor shall in connection with the whole of the said work, as far as practicable, use only material, machinery, plant, supplies and rolling stock manufactured or produced in Canada, providing the same can be obtained as cheaply, and upon as good terms, in Canada as elsewhere, having regard to quality and price."

The contractor shall conform to the fire regulations adopted by the Commissioners, and also to the laws and regulations respecting fires in the different provinces wherein the work is being performed.

The right is reserved to reject any or all tenders.

By order,

P. E. RYAN, Secretary.

The Commissioners of the Transcontinental Railway.

Lord Roberts Takes Ill at Montreal Yesterday

Montreal, July 31.—The hot weather has proved too much for Lord Roberts. He is indisposed this morning and all of his Montreal engagements have been called off. He went for a drive this morning, and was at the Board of Trade at noon, but no public function was held, and he will be entertained privately during the remainder of his stay here.

Wages Have Taken a Big Jump Out West --Now Harvesting

Farmers will Pay Experienced Men $2.50 a Day, or $35 to $40 a Month With Board

Americans Going West

Winnipeg, July 31.—Following the anticipated scarcity of harvest hands wages have taken a big jump, and today experienced men who are being engaged through immigration officials are being paid from $35 to $40 per month or $2.50 per day. Commissioner Walker believes that is the prevailing rate throughout the country. Inexperienced men are paid according to what they can do, the rate running from $15 to $18 per month with board.

The crop will likely run to 115,000,000 bushels, though some authorities believe that figure is below the possible aggregate by at least five or six million bushels. The lack of rain has done a lot of damage.

HARVESTING NEAR MORDEN.

Winnipeg, July 31.—J. Johnson, who has a farm seven miles south of Morden, Man., started harvesting wheat on Wednesday.

"Multiply the number of applications of other years by five and you'll have about the number who have inquired concerning the harvesters' excursion this year," said Mr. James Bartley, Manitoba Immigration Agent, today.

"I won't try and give a definite estimate. That's been tried other years and both the C.P.R. and I have found ourselves wrong. But without doubt we'll get enough men. The great majority of the men are from the British Isles, and many have never done any farm work before. However, they have to get their experience somewhere, and, if they are willing and strong, they'll get good wages.

"The number of unemployed in the city accounts for the great increase in applications, and a greater proportion, I believe, will stay in the West than in other years, because of the scarcity of work here.

"Out there we're always exhausting the supply and increasing the demand. Two men can grow enough grain to keep six busy harvesting. Then some who go out take up farms, and that means more help needed for the next year.

"There are many Italians going out. They intend to stay and farm. It is surprising, too, the great number of Americans who are going out West."

Mr. Bartley, who lived in Manitoba for twenty-seven years, takes a great interest in the crop, and prides himself on being able to make a close estimate of the yield. This year he puts it at one hundred millions.

Do Not Overstep Your Rights

During the last week a large amount of water has been consumed and as the water commissioners are going to enforce their laws a little more severely. Those who have lawn sprays will have to use the water from 5 to 9 in the morning, and from 4 to 9 at night, and the merchants who use the water for washing windows will have to do so before 8 in the morning, and after 5 at night.

Frank J. Gould on the Witness Stand

New York, July 30.—Frank Jay Gould was placed on the witness stand before Magistrate Corrigan in the Criminal Court at 10 o'clock last night in the case against Mrs. Ben Tal and others charged with attempting to induce a witness to swear falsely.

The fruitless efforts of the defense to force admissions from the young millionaire provided entertainment for the great crowd, which had awaited his appearance through two sessions of the court.

Mr. Gould who speaks in a very mild tone, fidgeted with his Panama hat as he faced his questioners. He admitted his name, and said in answer to questions that he knew Miss Bessie De Vee, the actress, but the objection of Assistant District Attorney Hart, sustained by Magistrate Corrigan, relieved him from answering questions about alleged visits to the apartments of the actress in the Hotel Gleamore.

WOULDN'T STAND UP.

The crowd, including E. Berry Wall, who sat on a spectators' bench surrounded by a smiling crowd, was hugely amused, shortly after Mr. Gould left the stand, when the millionaire ignored a request by one of the defendants' lawyers that he stand up to be examined by the negro elevator boy at the Gleamore.

"Your honor, I ask the court to make Mr. Gould stand up," shouted the attorney.

"Why, I can't make Mr. Gould stand up," retorted the court, and laughter followed.

The indignant attorney at once ordered the colored boy to go over to the young millionaire, who sat on the front row of benches reserved for witnesses. The negro was escorted to a position directly in front of Mr. Gould, but he raised another laugh when he said.

"No, sir, I never seen him. I don't see nobody what goes in there, because I only watches my levator."

MRS. GOULD'S PETITION

The production of the State as an exhibit of evidence of the divorce petition filed by Helen K. Gould against her millionaire husband on July 7, laid bare the facts alleged against him, which had been so jealously guarded. The name of Miss Bessie De Vee, the actress, does not appear in the petition. No names of women appear.

Mrs. Gould alleges a certain act of immorality and demands the custody of the two children—Helen Margaret, aged 5 years, and Dorothy, aged 4. She makes no specific demand for alimony, that being covered by these concluding words of the petition; "That she, Mrs. Gould, have such other and further relief as may be just."

The only accusation made in the complaint relates to a visit by Mr Gould on his yacht Atlanta to North Sydney, Cape Breton, Dominion of Canada. It is alleged that certain acts of immorality took place at the town while he was on the company of women, but names and addresses are not given. The date is set at or about July 25, 1908, and Mrs. Gould states that she has refused to live with her millionaire husband since that date.

Mr. Gould refused to discuss his wife's charges, but said that he had no objection to the publication of the facts alleged. The couple were married December 2, 1901.

FANS OPPOSING LAWYER.

District Attorney Jerome took charge of the hearing at the late afternoon session and appeared to take the whole proceedings as a joke. During most of the time that Mr. Blumenthal was cross-examining Mabel MacCauslan, the chief witness for the State, Mr. Jerome stood at the side of the lawyer, fanning him.

Excursionists were not Exactly Pleased

The Peterborough people who took in the Rochester excursion had to go down on their dip for more cash than they expected. The trip cost more than advertised, for when the excursionist left the boat, they found they were a long distance from Rochester, and had to pay their car fare. The St. George church people at Grafton are not blamed for this but the ferry managers.

Cardinal Gibbons is Seventy-Four Today

CARDINAL GIBBONS.

Eminent Prelate is Still in Good Health—A Very Modest Man.

Is Dearly Beloved

Baltimore, August 1.—Cardinal Gibbons, the "grand old man" of the Roman Catholic Church in America is 74 years of age to-day. Friends, colleagues and admirers of the primate of the American hierarchy all over the world sent messages of congratulation.

The Cardinal was born in Louisiana July 23, 1834. In his infancy, he was taken to Ireland, where he received his early education. Returning to America, he graduated from St. Charles' College, and on June 30, 1861, was ordained a priest. He made rapid advancement, and in 1868 was consecrated bishop and vicar apostolic of North Carolina. In 1877 he succeeded to the see of Baltimore. In late he received the crowning honor of his life, and tribute was paid to the American Church, by his elevation to the college of cardinals.

With all his learning and attainments, Cardinal Gibbons is one of the most modest of men, and is dearly beloved by the priests under his charge and thoroughly admired and esteemed by citizens of every creed. The personal habits of the cardinal are of the simplest character. His daily life is one of incessant activity, and viewing his age and slight frame, the wonder is how he can accomplish so much. He is an early riser, getting up about 5.30 in the summer and not later than 6 in the winter. He usually says the 7 o'clock mass, celebrating almost every day, even when he is at the seaside in warm weather. After his mass he spends a short time in thanksgiving and then goes to breakfast. After words he reads his newspapers, and he never neglects the baseball column and then he attends to his correspondence. When this is finished he gives an hour or two to his literary work. Notwithstanding his frequent interruptions, the cardinal manages to accomplish a great deal.

Hon. Frank Oliver Says the Frontier will be Guarded

"Keep Out" Sign for Unemployed---No Bulgarian Invasion

Quebec, July 31.—"Canada need have no fears of another Bulgarian invasion this fall," said Hon. Frank Oliver, Minister of the Interior, in speaking of the problems of immigration. "We were not responsible as a matter of fact for their making this country a dumping ground last winter; it was the work of steamship companies, but we will be prepared for them if anything of the kind is attempted again. If the present condition of business continues we will make a regulation declaring that all immigrants who come in before February must have $50 in cash, and those from February to the spring $25. This will not necessarily apply to all, but will give us a chance to refuse undesirable cases. We had a similar provision last winter, but a large number got in before it went into force.

"Another provision we have added within the last few weeks is to require each immigrant's fare to be paid by himself or his relatives. That gives us power over those agencies. If a man has just enough to get his fare he's bound to do something in Canada."

The Immigration Department has become alive to a new danger—from the United States. A wholesale immigration of the unemployed is indicated and this movement has already begun.

"We are taking steps now to prevent Canada being flooded with men who cannot obtain work in the United States," declared Mr. Oliver. "Special instructions have been issued to our men on the borders to keep a sharp lookout and special officers are being appointed. It is an enormous undertaking to guard 3,000 miles of a frontier, but at all events we will look after all points where trains or boats cross from the one country to the other. If necessary we will stop every train or vessel and go through it. If the Americans become ugly and retaliate—well, we can't help it. We must look after our own interests."

Many Misfortunes to the Lindsay People

Lindsay, July 31.—This town and vicinity has been visited by a number of accidents in the past few days.

W. Andrews and K. Grandill, two young Lindsayites, were upset from their canoe by getting into the wake of the steamer Enterprise.

William Hartley was partly run over by a thresher last evening, and his foot was badly crushed.

Mrs. A. Dunn, Melbourne street, was overcome by the excessive heat. Her condition was very critical, and the attendance of two doctors were required.

Mr. Geo. Carew is suffering from a slight attack of blood-poisoning in the foot, the result of stepping on a rusty nail.

Mr. Jas. Mark, employed at Carew's new sawmill, was struck on the head by a falling plank.

Master Austin Forsythe, son of the organist at the Methodist church, broke his arm in a bad fall.

Mr. J. McEwan fell off a ladder while picking cherries and sustained many injuries about the head, including a broken nose.

Master Levese Johnston, 14-year-old son of Mr. W. Johnston, of Franklin, became overheated by riding his bicycle, and died a few hours after dismounting.

Mat Carlin, driver of the steamer Bonnie Doon, was seized with a paralytic stroke, and slight hopes are entertained for his recovery.

Mr. Dennis Callaghan, Reaboro, met with a sad accident Wednesday morning while at work in his barn. He was charged by one of the cows, knocked down on the cement floor and gouged by the sharp horns of the mad animal. His shoulder blade was seriously injured.

Mr. J. Gibbons, North Ops, fell off a high ladder, and was picked up in an unconscious condition.

$100 Reward, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

In Our New Quarters

Times is Now Occupying Its Own Premises on Hunter St

For about three weeks or more The Times staff has been engaged in removing the plant to our splendid new quarters on Hunter street. It will require about another week to complete the work of removal, after which the press and machinery will have to be adjusted and put into running shape. We have already three or four presses in operation, as well as some of the foundry machinery, so that the wants of our customers are being attended to. About September 1st, the paper will be greatly improved. In the meantime we ask the indulgence of our subscribers.

How is Your Vitality?

Are You Physically Strong and Able to Work As You Used To?

Perhaps you lack courage? But to start with everything? Society is an exacting thing with your neighbor.

Dr. U. C. Gowan will Give an Address

At the annual meeting of the Canadian Dental Association to be held at Ottawa next Tuesday, an interesting address will be given by U. C. Gowan, D.D.S., of this city. His subject will be "Instrumentation within root canals." A lengthy and important program has been prepared. The delegates will be banqueted at the Russell, and will be shown through the House of Commons, entertained in several ways. The officers of the association are; James Magee, D.D.S., St. John, N.B., president; John Robertson, D.D.S., Ottawa, vice-president; W. G. L. Spaulding, D.D.S., Toronto, secretary-treasurer; E. M. Doyle, D.D.S., Calgary, registrar.

OPEN PUBLICITY THE BEST GUARANTY OF MERIT.

When the maker of a medicine, sold through druggists for family use, takes his patients fully into his confidence by frankly and fearlessly publishing broadcast as well as on his bottle wrappers, a full list of all its ingredients in plain English, this action on his part is the best possible evidence that he is not afraid to have the search light of investigation turned full upon his formula and that it will bear the fullest scrutiny and the most thorough investigation. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for the cure of the weaknesses, periodical pains and functional derangements of the organs distinctly feminine, is the only medicine put up for sale through druggists for woman's special use, the maker of which is not afraid to take his patients into his full confidence by such open and honest publicity.

A glance at the published ingredients on each bottle wrapper, will show that it is made wholly from native, American, medicinal roots, that it contains no poisonous or habit-forming drugs, no narcotics and no alcohol—pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength being used instead of the commonly employed alcohol, both for extracting and preserving the active medicinal properties found in the roots of the American forest plants employed. It is the only medicine for women's peculiar diseases, sold by druggists, that does not contain a large percentage of alcohol, which in the long run is so harmful to woman's delicate, nervous system. Now, glycerine is perfectly harmless, and serves a valuable purpose by possessing intrinsic value all its own, and besides it enhances the curative effect of the other ingredients entering into the "Favorite Prescription."

Some of the ablest medical writers and teachers endorse these views and praise the several ingredients of which "Favorite Prescription" is composed—recommending them for the cure of the very same diseases for which this world-famed medicine is advised. No other medicine for women has any such professional endorsement—worth more than any number of ordinary testimonials. If interested, send name and address to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for his little book of extracts from the works of eminent medical writers and teachers, endorsing the several ingredients and telling just what Dr. Pierce's medicines are made of. It's free for the asking.

A New Roller Skating Rink For Peterborough

A new roller skating rink will be opened on September 1st, by Prof. Gino, who has been travelling as a successful fancy skater for the past four years, and has been manager of some of the best rinks in Montreal, Toronto and New York. Prof. Gino, an old Peterborough boy, has secured the old bridge works building on George street, and will make this building one of the best in Canada, and have the same completely overhauled and made into an up-to-date roller rink. The new rink will be a credit to the City. The floor space will be 150x75 feet.

Peterboro Lubricating Co. Receiving Many Orders

The Peterborough Lubricating Company has now taken over the factory occupied by Mr. Thomas Oke as a furniture establishment, and will soon be working. They have now entered on their company some of the ablest financial men in the city. The new company has been receiving large orders from some of the large manufacturers in Canada, and have enough on hand to keep them busy for six months. These large concerns have sent representatives to interview Mr. Horsefield, managing director, and have not left till they gave large orders. Yesterday a man from Hespeler, called at the office and gave an order for 400 cups.

One of the features of this company is the fact that they will not be hampered by the lack of capital, but will not start until enough money is subscribed to put them on a strong financial basis. Mr. Horsefield is a man who does not believe in a company being backed by a certain individual or a bank, but to have their authorized capital on hand. The company have placed a large sign on their new building, that can be noticed by every one passing that point.

The company's office for the present are at 387 Water street.

In The Realm of Sport

The game this afternoon between the Athletics and Petes will no doubt attract a large crowd as it will be the best game of the season. Both teams are confident of winning and a most exciting struggle may be looked for. The line ups are.

BOWLING.

Mr. C. Adams broke his own record for the cigars at the Peterborough Bowling Club last night at duck pins. He bowled 162 last week but has now made it 175.

Henley on the Thames, July 31.—The Leander crew beat the Belgians in the final of the eight-oared race held here today in connection with the International Olympic regatta.

LEANDERS WON EASILY.

London, July 31.—In the eight-oared final, Leander beat the Belgians easily.

The victory of the Leanders today over their old rivals, the Belgians, will be the occasion of great joy in England, and a source of satisfaction to the Argonauts, who will know that it took the best crew in the world to beat them and that after the finest race of the regatta.—The Belgians, who defied all rowing traditions by their mode of training and their style of rowing, won the eight-oared race at Henley in 1906 and 1907, and it was expected that they would make their third straight victory today after winning from the crack Cambridge crew yesterday.

The Leanders' crew were picked from the best oarsmen in England, and their victory will be considered a great triumph for the English style of rowing.

BLACKSTAFFE WINS.

London, July 31.—In the final of the championship singles today, H. T. Blackstaffe beat McCulloch one and a quarter lengths in 9 mins. 26 secs.

The defeat of McCulloch by Blackstaffe was another surprise for the talent. McCulloch won the Diamond Sculls this year and was considered to be the finest sculler in England. Blackstaffe also competed in the Diamonds this year, but was disqualified on his heat for fouling Stuart, whom he defeated by 10 lengths.

Blackstaffe evidently was the class of the regatta, his time in the final being the best of the week, being 21 seconds faster than the heat in which Von Garza, the German beat Loubet and Blackstaffe won easily yesterday from Von Garza, the German not finishing.

Blackstaffe is a veteran sculler, having won the Wingfield Sculls in 1901, 1905, and 1906 in the last named year he also won the Diamond Sculls.

London, July 31.—The Canadian athletes, Brown, Lister, Keith, Burn, Elliott, and Savage, sailed for home on the Victorian today. All are well.

Bobby Kerr had great trouble to get the British championship cups through.

Program of Sports for the Printers' Picnic

Another twelve months have rolled around and the announcement again made of the PRINTERS' Picnic to Idyl Wyld. This is their eighth annual, and as the circus bills always say, will be "Bigger and better than ever."

On the occasion of the Printers' picnic last year the steamer Otonabee carried a record crowd to Idyl Wyld, and the excursion was voted the best of the season. Encouraged by this and other successes, the local "typos" are working energetically to score another victory for this year.

The excursion, as usual, will be held on Peterborough's Civic Holiday, August 10th, and the program, which as follows, won't be a card drawing card, as good prizes are offered, among them being a $10 gold piece, donated by Mr. J. H. Burnham, for the winner of the single blade canoe race;

1. Boys' race (under 15).
2. Girls' race (under 15).
3. Married men's race.
4. Young Ladies' race.
5. 100 yards dash.
6. Married Ladies' race.
7. Running broad jump.
8. Running hop, step and jump.
9. Fat man's race.
10. Reporters' race.
11. Hoot racer.
12. Tug of war, Examiner vs. Review and Times.
13. Tie casting contest.
14. One mile canoe race.
15. Ball game, Examiner vs. Times and Review.

Large Crowd Attend Band Concert

The largest crowd of the season listened to the 57th Regimental Band last night and showed their appreciation of the excellent concert by their applause. The following program of music was played.

March, Twelfth Regiment.
Overture.
Cornet solo, selected, Sergeant Hughes.
Reminiscences of all Nations.
American Sketch.
Waltzes, Homage to the Ladies.
Medley of popular songs.
Idyl, the Fergus in the Forest.—By request.

THE NEXT EUROPEAN WAR

These who imagine that the German emperor and his military chiefs are constantly planning attacks on England or France and thinking of war in the near future will be rather puzzled by a bulletin that has just been issued by the general staff of the kaiser's army. The document is the work of an authority, General Blume, and it is full of interest. Exactly why it is issued just at this time has not been explained, but perhaps the intention is to give the jingoes and fire-eaters food for reflection.

The bulletin declares that the next European war would be a veritable orgy of blood; that each of the powers concerned would lose 500,000 men, killed and wounded, if the war lasted as long as the Russo-Japanese conflict; that the cost in treasure would amount, in Germany's case, to $1,500,000,000 a year, and that the indirect cost, through financial depression and the paralysis of industry, would be far greater.

General Blume adds that in view of existing alliances and understandings any war in Europe would involve four or even more powers. For the triple alliance is now opposed by a "triple understanding, and to all intents and purposes France and England are allies. Hence the cost to one nation must be multiplied by four at least, and when that is done the result is too appalling to contemplate.

Finally the expert suggests that such a war could only benefit the United States in its capacity as a world power and industrial competitor. The paralysis of others would prove its opportunity to invade and capture markets, to acquire supremacy in many directions, and so on.

If France or England had authorized the publication of such a bulletin by its general staff the military party would have accused the government of fear, cowardice and weakness. Germany is so powerful and so "military" that nothing of the sort can or will be said. What the bulletin sets forth is as true, doubtless, as it is terrible, and the terrible truth should make for sanity, for peace, for care in diplomacy and international dealings.

WILL TURKEY JOIN THE PROCESSION?

After Russia and Persia, Turkey. The circumstances under which the "sick man" of the near East has granted a constitution to his heterogeneous subjects—or has revived the constitution which had a brief and troubled career in the late 70s of the last century—plainly resemble in many respects those under which the czar was "stampeded" by [illegible] and a few other liberal advisers into giving Russia a measure of representative and parliamentary government. The Muscovite bureaucracy and court clique were driven to make concessions to progressive sentiment by the disasters and disgraces of the Manchurian war and the insurrections in many parts of the empire; the sultan was compelled to grant constitutional government by mutiny, assassination, disaffection among troops long considered absolutely "safe", conspiracies in the highest circles, and complications in Macedonia that threatened the intervention of the powers.

For weeks dispatches from Constantinople, from Albanian and Macedonian centres, from Paris, the headquarters of the Young Turk movement, had foreshadowed some momentous developments in Turkey. But not even the most hopeful and bold of the conspirators could have expected so sudden and apparently so complete a surrender on the part of the obstinate, crafty and treacherous Abdul Hamid. The very completeness of the success of the reform movement suggests the need of the wisdom of the serpent. The sultan knows what reaction has done in Russia and Persia; he would not hesitate to play the same game in an even more ruthless way. A long spoon is needed in supping with him, and the leaders of the Young Turks, according to report are fully aware of that and, while ready to resist and if [illegible] will be in no hurry to disarm.

Yet there are grounds for a more optimistic view of the situation than at first blush one is disposed to take. After all, neither Russia nor Persia has gone all the way back to autocracy and tyranny. The duma is functioning in the former country and extending its power gradually. The shah has had to promise an early election and another parliament, and to disavow all desire to wipe out the constitutional experiment. In Turkey, also, the constitution may "stick" this time, for Europe will support the reformers morally, and the troops are weary of serving without pay and without honor. Things have changed since 1876, and Turkey has its quiver of trouble and worry. [illegible] the time for real advance is ripe, and she has joined the procession "for good".

EDITORIAL NOTES

Canada is one of the few countries which can be depended on to produce more timber than is sufficient for its needs. Such is the opinion of a great French authority, M. Mélard, who has made a careful study of the source of the world's timber supply. There are only seven countries in the world which now export wood in any quantity. Besides Canada, these are the United States on the continent and in Europe, Austria-Hungary, Norway, Sweden, Russia and Finland in Asia, only Russia has more than enough for her own use; Africa and South America can send little or no timber suitable for ordinary use, and Australia can supply little. Of the seven exporting countries mentioned, the United States, Russia and Austria-Hungary have been increasing in population and developing their resources so rapidly that they must soon cease to rank among exporting countries. Norway is over-cutting her forests and must soon decrease her export. Only three countries remain, Canada, Sweden and Finland, as sources that can be depended on for the timber supply. Canada's forest area has been estimated at 800,000,000 acres, but so much of this is of little value naturally, or has been burned over that more recent estimates fall much below this, even less than half. The amount of wood produced annually is no doubt much in excess of what is now being cut each year. It is important, however, if Canada is to hold her position as a timber producing country, that her forests be protected from fire and so managed as to ensure the greatest amount of timber being cut year after year, and so to keep them producing in perpetuity, and it is to this end that efforts are being made to secure better care of her forests. The demand for wood is sure to keep up and increase; it is wanted for building, for furniture, for tools, and for a multitude of other uses; and as a nation progresses so the amount of wood used for each individual of its population increases, and so the country which can supply the demand for this commodity has a resource of ever increasing importance, and one that will repay considerable expenditure in its care.

The third reading of the old-age pension bill was passed in the British House of Commons a few days ago. By the measure every man and woman of seventy or over who is not in receipt of an annual income of over £21 shall receive from the Government a weekly pension of five shillings. Persons in receipt of relief under the poor law will not receive a pension. It was intended at first that when two or more persons in receipt of pensions resided in the same house, as, for instance, a man and his wife, the pension should be reduced to 3s 9d weekly, but at the earnest solicitation of the Labor members and many others the Government decided to abandon the reduced pension. It is estimated that the cost of the concession will be £300,000. The sliding scale introduced by Mr. Lloyd George provides that for every £2 12s 6d which a pension income is in excess of £21 yearly, the pension shall be reduced by one shilling weekly. The total cost of the pensions to the country will be about £8,000,000 annually. The bill met with very little opposition in the House of Commons, but of course must yet run the gauntlet of the Lords.

The export trade in Canadian cured meats is rapidly falling off, and an industry which at one time seemed more promising is in danger, if not of extinction of sinking to insignificant proportions. Packers say the cost of producing bacon in Canada is altogether out of proportion to the basis ruling in other countries. Prices in England are below what Canadian packers can manufacture for. "Denmark is selling bacon in London cheaper than we can produce it here, and the exporters in the United States can also undersell us in the British markets, as the cost of the live stock is much lower on their markets than it is here."

It is easy enough to discover the cause of the shrinking of the Canadian trade, namely, the high cost of production here compared with that in other countries. It is not so easy to discover why that cost should be so much greater in Canada than elsewhere.

One difficulty, of course, is that in the United States — especially in such prairie states as Illinois and Iowa — hogs are fed on corn, and corn can be grown there to greater advantage than anywhere else in the world. Canadian farmers could not feed corn to anything like the same extent without importing it, and, of course, the nearer the animal is to the place where its feed is produced the better economically. But it is well known that grain fed hogs, such as can be raised, and are being raised in comparatively limited quantities in central Ontario, made a grade of hogs admittedly superior in quality to that produced from the corn-fed hogs of the United States. Such bacon brings a higher price, and has a reputation which could be turned to great account if only the production were on an unlimited scale.

Another difficulty is that the average Canadian farmer only raises a few hogs as a side line, largely from force of habit, and without realizing the ratio of profit. There is a certain amount of labor necessary in preparing good bacon for market, and as there seems to be less labor in the dairy industry, the latter is preferred. Hog-raising, indeed, is carried on everywhere along with intelligent dairying as a means of utilizing surplus whey; but still it is looked upon merely as an adjunct, and not of much account in itself. Hence, although farmers have had every encouragement from the enormously high prices that have been ruling for the past three or four years, the production of hogs is smaller to-day than for a long period.

News in Brief

Berlin, July 25.—Of late years Berlin has been trying to rival Paris in regard to places of amusement. In the last five years a couple of score each more magnificent than the other have up like mushrooms. The latest addition is an ice palace, which will be the largest thing of the kind in the world. There will be several thousand square metres of ice, twelve centimeters thick, which will permit of 4,000 persons skating at one and the same time.

Quinisiwali, July 30.—The relief expedition sent out yesterday returned today with the mangled bodies of two Germans ourists, Albert Crimmensen and Heinrich Ohlder, who attempted the ascent of the Wetterhorn without guides.

They were seen by a party of English climbers when near the summit to slip on a rock. They were roped together and bounded from crag to crag, finally disappearing over a precipice, furnishing a never to be forgotte nspectacle to the Englishmen.

The bodies were discovered to-day on the Kiensen glacier far below. All their clothes had been stripped off in the fall. The bodies were scarcely recognizable.

New York, July 30.—Entrapped in quicksands, in a hole into which she had fallen in her back yard, Angelina Evangelista, an Italian girl, living on Coney Island avenue, lost her life after a long struggle in the treacherous sand, in which she was aided by three policemen. One of the patrolmen, Oscar Rothman was taken to teh hospital, suffering from exhaustion, in fighting the sinking sand to save the girl, who died shortly after being drawn from the pit. The girl was hanging clothes in the back yard, and, making a mis-step, fell into a hole, about 12 feet deep, and which contained about five feet of water. Rothman heard the girl's cries and leaped into the pit. The sands slowly gave way under their feet, and trying to secure a grasp on the sides of the wall brought down upon the struggling pair a slide of mud and and earth. Rothman and the girl were nearly engulfed when two other policemen heard a despairing shout and ran to the yard. Ropes were lowered and the girl and policeman were brought to the surface.

London, July 30.—In a brochure published in Leipsig, under the title "Banzai", the author, who conceals his identity, paints a lurid picture of a coming Japanese-American war.

The American fleet is on its homeward voyage when the cables are cut to Manila. This is explained by a steamer which arrives with a Hong-Kong newspaper describing how a typhoon has interrupted telegraphic communication. Not till two days later do the American garrison discover that war has broken out, and simultaneously the American aviator Mosenbruck is blown up by a Japanese tramp. The Philippines are hocked and San Francisco is seized by an army of Japanese, who "land mysteriously from various ships."

A fearful financial panic in the United States follows, and yellow men are generally massacred when they show themselves. The American fleet while manoeuvring is attacked by a Japanese force, which sinks every ship, Admiral Sperry going down last with his flagship. Finally, the Americans assemble a great army and expel the Japanese. England is represented as treacherously aiding Japan, while the final victory of the United States is declared to be due to German officers.

Winnipeg, July 31.—The Canadian Northern Railway expect to be able to move 7,500 cars on their system in the West.

The Grand Trunk Pacific will also be a new factor in getting the wheat out, and will have quite a considerable amount of rolling stock.

The double-tracking of the Canadian Pacific Railway between here and Port William will also be an important factor in facilitating the crop movement over the road.

Nowadays, in spite of all his equipment, railways realize the greatness of their task, and are asking lumber and fuel dealers to assist them by having their stocks shipped and cleared before the rush begins.

This can be done without interfering with trade, but if left till the last, like other years, may seriously complicate matters.

At present there does not seem to be any reason for uneasiness in the situation generally.

Heat prostrates the nerves. In the summer one needs a tonic to off-set the customary hot weather Nerve and Strength depression. You will feel better within 48 hours after beginning to take such a remedy as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Its prompt action in restoring the weakened nerves is surprising. Of course, you won't get entirely strong in a few days, but each day you can actually feel the improvement. That tired, lifeless, spiritless, feeling will quickly depart when using the Restorative. Dr. Shoop's Restorative will sharpen a failing appetite; it aids digestion; it will strengthen the weakened Kidneys and Heart by simply rebuilding the worn-out nerves that these organs depend upon. Test it a few days and be convinced. Sold by all dealers.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential. Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional.

The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane sympathetic remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments.

The "Night Cure", as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, eases nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

The Greatest Man.

Who is the greatest man who has ever lived? The question went round a dinner table, and controversy raged from the fish onward. There were two who plumped for Julius Caesar, two more for Napoleon; one, thinking of statues, said Shakespeare, and somebody else, who did not get a hearing at all, murmured Buddha at intervals, while most of the people present who did not know Greek said Aeschylus. But Aristotle won easily. It was not a particularly scholarly assemblage, and one wondered rather how many of Aristotle's enthusiastic devotees could have quoted accurately from him—had ever read him, indeed—since they left college. And all the while probably the greatest man of all ages is pegging away among us unnoticed, unrecognized, while we snapshot and interview all the little men or go back to some one who has been dead long enough for us to find out that we may safely praise him.—London Chronicle.

The Mighty Amazon.

The estimated length of the Amazon from its source in the Andes to where it debouches in a mouth forty miles wide into the Atlantic is 4,000 miles. The story is told of a wrecked vessel which was drifting, with her crew on board suffering intense torment for lack of fresh water, which entered the mouth of the Amazon and the sufferers could have had fresh water simply by putting a bucket over the side, but did not know where they were until they got in sight of the land. This mighty river, up which the tide goes 900 miles, is known in the upper part of its course near the Andes as the Maranon, then in the middle course from Tabatinga to the mouth of its chief affluent, the Rio Negro, as the Solimoes, while for the rest of its course its name is Amazonas or Amazon A thousand miles from the sea it is four miles in width Vast and often impassable forests line most of its banks.

A Trying Moment.

Professor Leopold Schroetter was called to see the Crown Prince Frederick in 1887 before Sir Morrell Mackenzie had reached San Remo. The prince, evidently suspecting the worst, turned to Schroetter after the examination and said, "I request the truth as to my ailment." Schroetter hesitated and made an effort to direct the conversation in another direction, but Frederick insisted. "I am a soldier," he said, "and can look death in the eye. I ask you now plainly, to the point, Is my complaint cancer?" Schroetter could hardly contain himself, and years after the scene when he recalled it he spoke of it as the most painful in his life. He conducted the crown prince to a chair and asked him to be seated. Then he said, "Your Imperial highness, you are suffering from a serious complaint, and it is possible that it may develop into carcinoma, but that cannot be determined positively at this moment." Frederick became deathly pale, but never for a moment lost his self control and smiled grimly when he thanked the physician for his honesty.

Coming to an Understanding.

In the amiable way of villagers they were discussing the matrimonial affairs of a couple who, though recently wed, had begun to find the yoke of Hymen a burden.

"'Tis all along o' these hasty marriages," opined one caustic old gentleman, who had been much to the fore in the discussion. "They did not understand each other. They'd not bothered knowed each other for a matter o' seven year."

"Well, that seems long enough," said an interested lady listener.

"Long enough! Bah! Ye're wrong! When a body's courtin' he canna be too careful. Why, my courtship lasted a matter o' nineteen year!"

"You certainly were careful," agreed the lady listener. "And did you find your plan successful when you married?"

"Ye jump to conclusions," said the old man impatiently. "I understood her then, so I didna marry her!"—St. Louis Republic.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, marked on the envelope "Tender for Construction," will be received at the office of the Commissioners of the Transcontinental Railway, at Ottawa, until twelve o'clock noon of Thursday, the 20th day of August, 1908, for the work and specifications of the Commissioners, dated for the construction, in accordance with the plans, profiles and of the following sections of the Transcontinental Railway, viz;—

(1) District "C"—From a point designated on the plans of the Commissioners near Weymontachingue, in the province of Quebec, 196.38 miles west of the north abutment of the Quebec bridge, such point being on the boundary between Districts "C" and "D" westerly for a distance of about 107 miles. Date of completion, 31st December, 1910.

(2) District "C"—From a point designated on the plans of the Commissioners, about 107 miles west of Weymontachingue, in the Province of Quebec, westerly to the end of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company's contract, a distance of about 114.97 miles. Date of completion, 31st December, 1910

(3) Districts "D" and "E."—From a point designated on the plans of the Commissioners, being at the western end of Fauquier Bros.' Abitibi contract, in the Province of Ontario, in a westerly direction for a distance of about 104.24 miles. Date of completion, 31st December, 1910.

(4) District "E."—From a point designated on the plans of the Commissioners, about sixty miles west of the easterly boundary of District "E," in the Province of Ontario, easterly to the end of Fauquier Bros' contract, north of Lake Nipigon, a distance of about 100 miles. Date of completion, 31st December, 1910.

(5) Districts "E" and "F."—From a point designated on the plans of the Commissioners, at the western end of Fauquier Bros' contract north of Lake Nipigon, in the Province of Ontario, westerly to a point at or near Dog Lake, a distance of about 126 miles. Date of completion, 1st September, 1910.

(6) District "F."—From a point designated on the plans of the Commissioners at or near Dog Lake, in the Province of Ontario, to a point at or about mile 26 west of what is known as Peninsula Crossing, by alternative routes as shown on the plans, a distance of about 2376 miles by the northerly route, and 211 miles by the southerly route, the selection of the route to be at the option of the Commissioners. Date of completion, 1st September, 1910

Plans, profiles and specifications may be seen at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Commissioners at Ottawa; also at the offices of the following District Engineers, viz;—John Ayles, Acting District Engineer, North Bay, Ont.; T. S. Armstrong, Nipigon, Ont.; and S. R. Poulin, St. Boniface, Man.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made in duplicate, and on the printed forms supplied by the Commissioners.

A separate tender must be submitted for each section.

Tenderers shall not be in any way entitled to rely upon the classification, or any other information given by or any person on behalf of the Commissioners; and before submitting any tender, tenderers should make a careful examination of the plans, profiles, drawings and specifications, and read the forms to be executed, and fully inform themselves as to the quantity and quality of materials, and character of workmanship required, and are understood to accept, and agree to be bound by, the terms and conditions in the form of contract, specifications, etc., annexed to this form of tenders.

Each tender must be signed and sealed by all the parties to the tender, and witnessed, and be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank of the Dominion of Canada, payable to the order of the Commissioners of the Transcontinental Railway as follows;—

Sec. No 1,. District "C"	$150,000
Sec. No. 2, District "C"	150,000
Sec No. 3, District "D & F"	150,000
Sec No. 4, District "E"	150,000
Sec. No 5, District "E & F"	200,000
Sec. No. 6, District "F"	100,000

Any person whose tender is accepted shall within ten days after the acceptance thereof furnish such additional approved security as may be required by the Commissioners; sign the contract, specifications, and other documents required to be signed by the said Commissioners; and, in any case of refusal or failure on the part of the party whose tender is accepted to complete and execute a contract with the said Commissioners, and to furnish additional sureties, and to furnish the additional approved security within ten days after the acceptance of the tender, the said cheque shall be forfeited to the Commissioners as liquidated damages for such refusal or failure and all contract rights acquired by the acceptance of the tender shall be forfeited. The cheques deposited by parties whose tenders are accepted will be deposited to the credit of the Receiver General of Canada as part of the security for the due and faithful performance of the contract according to its terms. Cheques deposited by parties whose tenders are rejected will be returned within ten days after the signing of the contract.

Attention is called to the following clauses in the form of contract;—

"All mechanics, laborers, or other persons who perform labor for the purposes of the construction of the works hereby contracted for, shall be paid such wages as are generally accepted as current for competent workmen in the district in which the work is being performed, and if there is no current rate in such district, then a fair and reasonable rate; and, in the event of a dispute arising as to what is the current or a fair and reasonable rate, it shall be determined by the Commissioners, whose decision shall be final."

"This agreement is subjected to the regulations now in force, or which may at any time hereafter be in force during the construction of the works hereby contracted for, made under the authority of the Department of Labor, and which are, or shall be, applicable to such works." (The schedule of minimum wages determined upon by said Department will form part of the contract).

"The contractor shall in connection with the whole of the said work, as far as practicable, use only material, machinery, plant, supplies and rolling stock manufactured or produced in Canada, providing the same can be obtained as cheaply, and upon as good terms, in Canada as elsewhere, having regard to quality and price."

The contractor shall conform to the fire regulations adopted by the Commissioners, and also to the laws and regulations respecting fires in the different provinces wherein the work is being performed.

The right is reserved to reject any or all tenders.

By order,
P. E. RYAN,
Secretary.

Dream Troubles.

"Once when I was blue," said a business man, "a friend told me I was worrying over imaginary troubles. He cheered me up with a yarn about his little nephew. This little fellow's sister said one morning:

"'Oh, Gussie, I had such a lovely dream last night! I dreamed I was at a cake shop, and I had such loads of good things—ice cream, pie, strawberry shortcake, chocolates, jelly macaroons, kisses and lots of other things besides.'

"The little boy's eyes glistened. He smiled with delight.

"'And what was I eating?' he asked eagerly.

"'Oh, you wasn't there, Gussie.'

"Then, overwhelmed with sorrow, little Gussie hid his face in his hands and wept bitterly."

A Rather Novel Complaint.

An English traveler once met a companion sitting in a state of the most woeful despair and apparently near the last agonies by the side of one of the mountain lakes of Switzerland. He inquired the cause of his sufferings "Oh," said the latter, "I was very hot and thirsty and took a large draft of the clear water of the lake and then sat down on this stone to consult my guidebook. To my astonishment, I found that the water of this lake is very poisonous! Oh, I am a gone man; I feel it running all over me. I have only a few minutes to live! Remember me to"—

"Let me see the guidebook," said his friend. Turning to the passage, he found, "L'eau du lac est bien poisonneuse" (The water of this lake abounds in fish).

"Is that the meaning of it?"

"Certainly."

The dying man looked up with a radiant countenance. "What would have become of you," said his friend, "if I had not met you?"

"I should have died of imperfect knowledge of the French language."

A Great Man's Simple Speech.

I was lately told a delightful story of a great statesman staying with a humble and anxious host who had invited a party of simple and unimportant people to meet the great man. The statesman came in late for dinner and was introduced to the party. He made a series of old fashioned bows in all directions, but no one felt in a position to offer any observations. The great man at the conclusion of the ceremony turned to his host and said in tones that had often thrilled a listening senate: "What very convenient jugs you have in your bedrooms. They pour well." The social frost broke up, the company was delighted to find that the great man was interested in mundane matters of a kind on which every one might be permitted to have an opinion, and the conversation, starting from the humblest conveniences of daily life, melted insensibly into more liberal subjects.—Arthur C. Benson in Putnam's and the Reader.

An American Admirer.

In a small way an American figures in the journal kept by Rosalie Lamorliere during the revolutionary days of 1793 in France and published under the title, "The Last Days of Marie Antoinette."

Rosalie Lamorliere, a girl of Picardy, was servant to the queen in the conciergerie. "One day," Rosalie has recorded, "M. de Saint Leger, the American, who was coming from the register's office, noticed that I was carrying a glass half filled with water.

"'Did the queen drink the water that has gone from the glass?' he asked.

"I answered that she did.

"With a quick gesture he uncovered his head and drank the water that remained with every indication of respect and pleasure."

To Canadian Investors

The undersigned has received an allotment of unsold portion of $100,000 of

7 Per Cent. First Mortgage Five-Year Gold Bonds

dated January 11, 1908, and maturing January 11, 1913. These Bonds are offered at par and accrued interest by Metropolitan Trust & Savings Bank, Chicago, trustees.

SECURITY—The Entire Property and Improvements Owned THE URES CONSOLIDATED MINING COMPANY in the District of Ures, State of Sonora Mexico. Free from Mortgage of Bonded Indebtedness except this present Bond Issue.

An Unusual Opportunity for Investment in Sound Security

The Ures Consolidated Mining Company offers $100,000.00 of First Mortgage Gold Bonds. This issue of bonds is the only mortgage or bonded indebtedness ever placed on the company's properties.

These bonds are in the denomination of $100.00, and bear interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, July and January, and are redeemable on or before five years from date at the company's option at $110.00 and accrued interest.

$100.00 Stock Bonus Given with Every $100.00 Bond

With each bond issued there will be given $100.00 par value of the capital stock of the company as a bonus, and in addition thereto there will be placed in escrow with the Trustee additional stock which will be available to the bondholders at their option any time within a period of three years, the bondholder being entitled to surrender his bond any time within said period and receive in lieu thereof stock for every dollar of indebtedness retired on account of said bonds.

The Security Back of these Bonds

The company owns twelve claims situated in the district of Ures, State of Sonora, Mexico, free from mortgage or bonded indebtedness, except the present bond issue

On one of these properties (The Ramona Mine) 5,000 feet of underground development work has been done, consisting of an inclined shaft to the depth of 400 feet with drifts in three levels to the North and South of the shaft.

An average value of ore worth $11.47 per ton is exposed throughout the mine, from the collar of the shaft to the extreme parts in the drifts, all of which is above water level.

The company has made surface improvements and mine improvements to the extent of $80,000.00 in the way of machinery, skids, trams, steam hoists, mill and nearly everything necessary to make the mining camp complete.

In addition to the absolute ownership of these twelve valuable claims the company has a lease on the San Jose Mine, adjoining its property, in which the company has been operating in high grade ore.

During the past sixty days the company has extracted and delivered to ore buyers and the bank at Hermosillo, $2,400.00 worth of ore and bullion, the ore having been reduced to bullion through the company's mill, with the exception of 1,484 pounds, which was sold to an ore buyer for $562.50.

The Money Derived from the Sale of these Bonds

This issue of bonds is made for the purpose of securing money at once in order to extend the development work more quickly than the company's present means will permit.

With the high grade ore in sight to the distance of 80 feet to the South of the shaft, the management is assured that within six months from date of making the improvements now necessary the company's properties will be on a self-sustaining and dividend-paying basis.

The stock which is Given with these bonds will be as valuable as the bonds when the Company has the ready capital to push operations

Men who invest in these bonds will have no cause or reason to regret their action, for the bonds afford an investment in a security which is absolutely safe—much better than ordinary city or country real estate, which is considered perfectly safe if the property put up to secure a mortgage is double the face of the loan. The security given on these bonds is better than 7 to 1, for the Ures Consolidated Mining Company has refused an offer of $750,000.00 for the property upon which this $100,000.00 worth of bonds is issued.

These bonds are an investment with all speculative risk eliminated —an investment with absolute security.

Make your reservation at once. This is small and promises to be quickly sold.

Feb. 11th, 1908.

To whom it may concern:—

We hereby beg to state that The Ures Consolidated Mining Company has during the past five years made several deliveries of bullion to this bank, and it is the opinion of mining men here that they have the making of a fair mine, and further, that the properties owned and controlled by them bid promise of becoming paying properties.

From our knowledge of the men connected, we believe they are doing all in their power to bring about the results above mentioned.

1 CENT A 2 SHARE

Send us your name as a member in this new company, with your remittance for as many thousand shares as you can take at 35 per thousand.

This is a short-time offer on a hurry-up proposition. Our vice president is up at Rawhide now putting the miners at work. We want to raise the necessary funds for development as quickly as possible. Therefore, we offer the first block of stock at 35 a thousand shares. This subscription must be all cash. We want the money in hand. We mean to work without letup, and we have made it an inviolate rule not to run in debt. Cash counts now.

Our prospectuses are out. Send for one.

Make reservation of stock. If you do no more. But, remember, this present offer of stock at Half a Cent a Share is now open, and will be closed as soon as enough cash subscriptions are in hand. Don't wait, or you will get left.

The gold mining property owned outright by the company consists of 7 claims, 3 in the Rawhide district of Nevada, and 4 in the Dulzura district of Southern California.

The Rawhide district to-day is more famous than Goldfield, Tonapah, Bullfrog, or Searchlight were at the same stage of exploration and development. The Dulzura discovery is one of the most sensational in the history of California.

Ten samples of ore which were among the first assayed, ran as high as $7,461.87 to the ton, and all ten averaged over $1,500 a ton.

In both camps we located early, and our locations are choice. Our own officers will superintend the mining.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the Northwest Provence, excepting 8 and 26 reserved may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his residence duties by living with the father or mother.

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

Appetite Gone Nerves Badly Run Down

A Strong Moral Well Exemplified In Mrs. Wilson's Case.

Like thousands of other people at this season of the year Mrs. E. P. Wilson was tired and worn out—winter surely tried her health and vigor. But now she is robust and well, eats well, sleeps well,, feels invigorated and dressed. "For some years," writes Mrs. Wilson of Watmers, P.O., "I suffered from systematic weakness, biliousness and depressing headaches. I could take little nourishment and grew thin and pale. If I ate a hearty meal the result was dreadful. Pains started at my chest, and spread all through my body going across my stomach, back and right side. I was discouraged till a friend insisted on me taking Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They made a new woman of me., and for the past eight months my health has been perfect. For a good cleansing, rejuvenating medicine I urge every one to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

There is extraordinary and magic power in Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they bring, vigor, tone, health and spirits —are compounded from the most wonderful and healing juices and essence in vegetable life—are safe for young and old, and guaranteed to kindle renewed activity and strength in every system that is weak, sickly or run down from kidney, liver, stomach or bladder trouble. Consolation! Look This Over

One of the features of the Pratts Peace on Civic Holiday to Idyl Wyld, will be a small, blade mahogany canoe, hunting canoe, for a $10 gold piece, donated by J. H Burnham, editor of the Review.

Great Fishing at Rice Lake

The fishing at Rice Lake this season is said to be the best in years. Everyday a number of large lunge are caught. A local gentleman stated yesterday that when it comes to summer resorts, Idyl Wyld is one of the best in the country.

Two Fire Calls

The new fire brigade were busy for a while yesterday afternoon. About three o'clock they called to answer an alarm sent in from box 59, but when they arrived at the scene they found it to be nothing but a false alarm. They had just entered the hall when they were called to Parkin's Dye Works, but the employes had the fire out.

The Otonabee Inspected

The steamer Donabee was inspected yesterday by Mr. Thomas P. Thompson, Registrar of boiler inspector. The boiler was put to a test of 350 pounds, and was shown to be in first class condition. All the other appointments of the steamer are in excellent shape. Inspector Evans who looks after the hull and equipment of inland steamers gives the Otonabee very high praise the boat being extra strong and absolutely safe.

Pains are easily and quickly checked with Dr. Shoop's Magic Ointment. To prove it I will mail a small trial box as a convincing test. Simply address Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. I surely would not send it free unless I was certain that Dr. Shoop's Magic Ointment would stand the test. Remember it is made expressly and alone for swollen, painful, bleeding or itching piles, either external or internal. Large jar 50c. Sold by all dealers.

Fell from Waggon

While removing a load of ladders for Richard Sheehy, from the new College building to the new Catholic church, Wm. Grant of Stewart street, was injured by falling off the front of the wagon, and having the vehicle pass over his body. He was hurt internally and will be confined to his bed for a couple of days. The accident occurred on the corner of Brock and Bethune yesterday afternoon about 2.30.

The Grand Trunk Passenger department are in receipt of a letter from a prominent New Yorker, complimenting the road on their excellent dining car service. He says, "My wife and I left New York on your train at 5.40 p.m. last Monday; yesterday morning we had breakfast on your dining car and everything was an super or food, cuisine, service and attention that I think it my duty to commend the road on this branch of the service.

Praise for the Otonabee

The Fenelon Falls Gazette says; The Union Sunday school picnic to Buckhorn on Tuesday of this week was a grand success in every way. The weather was threatening in the morning but turned out fine and very warm, and the crowd of between four and five hundred people on the good ship Otonabee had the time of their lives. The run to Buckhorn was made in a little over four hours, and, after lunching under the trees, resting in the shade, visiting the Indian encampment, buying souvenirs, viewing the work on the fine new concrete dam being built across the river, and enjoying themselves in other ways, the crowd re-embarked at 4 p.m., reaching home about 9 o'clock. This was the Otonabee's first excursion from this end of the lake, and she was voted by all on board to be the best excursion steamer that ever sailed the local waters.

In order to be in a position to participate in the movement of this year's wheat crop, the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway management is collecting cars in the West. As often as a new G.T.P. car can be loaded for the West it is wheeled westward, unloaded and held there for the threshing time when it is expected everything on wheels will be busy. Already 500 of these splendid big box cars have been gathered and distributed along the line west of Winnipeg.

Mr. Doughty is a man who has done his work well.

The fleet of the twenty locomotives being built at Toronto for the Grand Trunk Pacific have been turned out. Already there are employed west of Winnipeg along the line of locomotives. As the company expect to assist in the movement of the present crop which promises to be a record breaker, there will in all probability be at least 100 locomotives working on the prairie section by the end of this autumn.

SUNSET AT GUAYAQUIL.

There Is No Twilight, No Interval Between Daylight and Dark.

The days and nights at Guayaquil are of equal length. The sun knocks off promptly at 6 o'clock in the evening and gets up at 6 in the morning with equal regularity the whole year around. There is no twilight, no gloaming, no interval whatever between daylight and dark—only a brilliant illumination, the sudden disappearance of a red ball into a blue ocean, a spread of flame color over all the western sky for a few minutes and a purple haze in the east.

Then the surface of the ocean, like the heavens, is lighted with millions of strange and shifting stars, for the water is so impregnated with phosphorus that each tiny wave is tipped with light, and the foam that follows in the wake of the vessel is often like a stream of fire. Sometimes you can see porpoises swimming along the bow of the vessel livid with phosphorescent light and followed by a streak of sparks like a comet's tail.

The Southern Cross, with the right arm tipped out at proper angle, lies straight ahead in the midst of myriads of unknown worlds that look strange to those accustomed to the northern constellations. Under the left arm is a large black spot in the heavens, brightened by only a single modest star, which the sailors call "the devil's dinner bag." Over the stern of the vessel in the early evening you can plainly distinguish the familiar constellation of the Great Bear, but it goes to bed with the children.

HIS SERVICES.

What Became of All the Bills He Introduced in Congress.

"Yes, my fellow citizens," said the politician candidate, "if you have paid any attention to the work of congress you will have noticed that during the past session I introduced twenty-two bills, each of which was intended to benefit this community. I stand before you today with the proud consciousness of having served you faithfully and to the best of my ability. Those twenty-two bills would, if they had been passed, have made this one of the most favored districts on God's green earth, and"—

"Oh," yelled a man in the gallery, "we know you introduced 'em, all right, but what happened to 'em after that?"

"Gentlemen, I appeal to your sense of honor. Do you consider it fair that I should be interrupted in this manner? Is it right that I should"—

"There ain't no harm in answerin' the question, is there?" asked another of the statesman's hearers.

"Well, sir, I will tell you what became of those bills, my fellow citizens. Every one of them was printed in the Congressional Record, where, if you will look over the files, you may find them today. But to revert to the real question, gentlemen, I do not hesitate to promise that no man living in this, the most splendid district in our grand old state, shall appeal to me in vain if you shall deem it best to send me back to Washington, where I have served you with such signal ability."

Young Armstrong Captured

Jas. Armstrong, the young boy who stole $95 from H. T. Elliot, a baker, was captured in Toronto Thursday afternoon. He was found enjoying home if at the Island, and was placed under arrest. Chief Rossel was telegraphed, and left yesterday morning to get the prisoner. He was confined in the Toronto Children's Aid Society over night. Armstrong will most likely appear for trial next week.

Women Cured At HOme

Women's disorders always yield, from the very beginning of the treatment to the mild but effective action of Orange Lily.

Within two or three days after commencing its use the improvement becomes noticeable, and this improvement continues until the patient is completely cured. Orange Lily is an applied or local treatment, and acts directly on womanly organs, removing the congestion, toning and strengthening the nerves, and restoring perfect circulation in the diseased parts.

In order to convince all suffering women of the value of this remedy I will send a 25-cent box enough for ten days' treatment, absolutely FREE to each lady sending me her address.

Mr. I. Barton Yourex, 110 Carlton street, Toronto, Canada, widely known throughout Canada as agent for the Equity Fire Insurance Company, Toronto, Canada, and who is also a local preacher and was for over twenty years a successful school teacher, writes an interesting letter to Peruna.

I. BARTON YOUREX.

"It is only fair to give praise where it is due. Some time ago I contracted a cold, which being repeated caused catarrh in my head. I had seen Peruna advertised frequently, and upon inquiry was advised by a friend to try it. The help it gave proved its merit beyond a doubt, very beneficial indeed."—MR. I. BARTON YOUREX.

It may seem a small matter to some people to cure a cold. But experienced physicians not only realize the importance of neglecting a cold, but the difficulty that sometimes attends upon the curing of one.

Colds are the cause of more acute diseases than all disease germs combined.

More people lose their lives as the direct result of catching cold than from all other causes put together.

Hence, the importance of curing a cold.

Peruna has been tried under all circumstances, all times of year, and by all classes of people in the civilized world, and found to be a reliable remedy for colds.

There is no time of year when such a remedy should not be kept conveniently at hand, but it is especially necessary during the winter months that Peruna be kept in the house, convenient to meet the first symptoms of colds.

ADAMS, HAMILTON AND GRAINY, THE THREE CIRCUS DAY PICK-POCKETS, GET CENTRAL PRISON

Were Sentenced on Saturday Evening by Judge Weller

23 Months for Hamilton

The three pick pockets, Adams, Hamilton and Grainey, who were a week ago, convicted for picking the pocket of Mr. McTaggart, were sentenced Saturday afternoon by Judge Weller. Mr. D. O'Connell, the prisoners' counsel put up a strong plea for leniency, and stated that on previous convictions the prisoners were all given light sentences, in one case Grainey receiving three months for stealing $35.

Judge Weller in giving sentence, said he felt sorry for the men, as they were in the prime of life, and after looking at their records he thought they had time to reform. He considered Hamilton the worst of the three, having the largest list of convictions against him, and the one who P. C. Nuttall stated picked McTaggart's pocket. The sentence which he imposed on Hamilton was twenty-three months in the Central Prison at hard labor.

Adams was the next sentenced, although the judge stated, he was not as bad as Hamilton, he was found guilty of picking pockets, he therefore sentenced him to be confined in Toronto Central Prison for a period of one year. Grainsep had no previous bad record, but he had been convicted here, and so he gave him the same as Adams, one year in the Central.

Mr. O'Connell then asked for a new trial, but the judge would not grant it.

Disease Fights Disease Cancers Cured

New York, August 1.—Following news from St. Louis that two men have been cured of cancer in the City Hospital there by the use of a fluid discovered by Dr. William B. Coley, of New York, it has transpired adhat nearly New York, it has transpired that nearly 100 cases of what supposedly is incurable disease have been cured in this city during the last few years, all through the use of the fluid discovered by Dr. Coley.

This fluid, which is known to medical men as "mixed toxins of erysipelas and bacillus prodigiosus," has saved many lives all over the world, medical men say. It has in recent years come to be used in almost every country where the medical profession is in an advanced state of progress. A peculiarity of its effect is that it gives the patient a mild form of erysipelas, and the system in struggling against the new disease, throws off the other and more serious disease. There is no secret about the remedy, for, following his discovery, Dr. Coley, gave its benefit to the medical world at large. That was about fifteen years ago. Since then the fluid has been improved upon and its effects is now more sure and safe than in its earlier use.

In speaking of the work accomplished here through the use of the mixed toxines, Dr. Coley said:

"The use of the toxins has been followed by complete disappearance in 47 personal cases and nearly 100 cases reported by other surgeons and physicians. If, however, we count as cures only those cases in which there is known to have been no recurrence for at least three years, there have been 28 cures in cases under my own treatments, and upward of 40 cures in cases treated by other medical men."

Wondered Why

Found the Answer was Coffee

Many pallid sickly persons wonder for years why they have to suffer so, and eventually discover that the drug—caffeine—in coffee is the main cause of the trouble.

"I was always very fond of coffee and drank it every day. I never had much pain and often wondered why I was always so puny, thin and weak.

"About five years ago my health completely broke down and I was confined to my bed. My stomach was in such condition that I could hardly take sufficient nourishment to sustain life.

"During this time I was drinking coffee, didn't think I could do without it.

"After awhile I came to the conclusion that coffee was hurting me, and decided to give it up and try Postum. I didn't like the taste of it at first, but when it was made right—boiled until dark and rich—I soon became very fond of it.

"In one week I began to feel better, I could eat more and sleep better. My sick headaches were less frequent, and within five months I looked and felt like a new being, headache spell entirely gone.

"My health continued to improve and today I am well and strong, weigh 148 lbs. I attribute my present health to the life-giving qualities of Postum."

"There's a Reason."

An Enemy Did This

It is not the province of this section to meddle with politics or concern itself about the opinions of citizens on matters of government or national policy, but when a newspaper, claiming to represent the national spirit and sentiment of two million of our fellow citizens, deliberately falsifies the facts and vilifies its countrymen to make itself notorious and popular with the rabble and scum of its own offspring, it is time to cry out, "Shame."

Le Nationaliste during the closing days of the great tercentenary celebration at Quebec, after the visitors had left the city, published an open letter to the Prince of Wales, the gist of which was that the demonstration at Quebec was nothing more than a huge imperial parade, gotten up by Lord Grey to foster imperialism, and that the heart of the French-Canadian people had no sympathy at all with the doings at the ancient capital.

The writer of that scandalous, libelous, fabulous article knew what he was writing it that he was falsifying the facts. Why the very thing that was so evident to all the English visitors, viz., the enthusiasm of the French-Canadian over every thing in the program, and specially those numbers that were saturated in French sentiment, this traducer of his fellow countrymen denies with the effrontery of a maddened maniac.

What means the preponderance of French names and manners and customs in the magnificent pageantry designed by an educated, loyal Frenchmen, a man of vastly superior judgment and finer fare than the editor of the inflammable organ of the French malcontents, what does all this mean if as this fire-brand says, the festivities sanctioned by the Prince were an outrage to two million of his subjects? Why didn't the traitor say this earlier in the day, when the hospitable city was full of loyal French and English subjects? Why did he wait till the last day of the Prince's visit and the important functions enthusiastically carried out before he addressed his impudent letter to the future King of the realm?

A LAUGHING STOCK.

Whatever may be the motive that inspired the attack on our popular governor-general, it will not affect his standing with the people of Canada, French and English alike. The Prince will only laugh at the editor's impudence, the loyal French will hold him in derision, while all Canada will regard him and his party as disturbers of its peace.

Lynched Four Negroes who Approved a Murder

Mob Quietly Raids a Jail and Townspeople are Much Excited

Four Bodies Strung to Tree

Russellville, Ky., Aug. 1. — Four negroes, Virgil, Tom and Robert Jones and Joe Rice, were taken from jail here early today and hanged to a tree on the edge of the town.

No shots were fired by the mob, which was composed of about 50 men, and the people of the town knew nothing of the affair until daylight revealed the four bodies dangling from a tree just outside Russellville on the Nashville pike. The following note was pinned on one of the bodies:

"Let this be a warning to you niggers to let white people alone or you will go the same way. Hugh Rogers better shut up or quit."

The negroes who were lynched were members of a lodge and at a meeting recently it is said that they approved of the murder of James Cunningham, a white farmer, by his negro tenant Rufus Browder. The murder occurred in the southern part of Logan county and it is supposed here that the mob was made up of men from that part of the county.

The negroes had been in jail several days and while there had been considerable unrest since the attempt on the part of the mob to take Browder, the slayer of Cunningham, from the jail some nights ago, no real trouble was anticipated and there was no guard around the prison. The effort to get Browder failed because he was spirited out of jail by the sheriff and sent to Bowling Green and later to Louisville, where he is now confined, awaiting trial.

The mob came into town so quietly that not one of the residents of the city was aroused from slumber. Proceeding at once to the county jail, the men called Jailer Bates to the door and ordered him to turn over the keys or be shot down. The mob entered the jail and took the four negroes—two of whom not being given time to dress, went in their night shirts—to a tree on the outskirts of the city on the Nashville pike, where the negroes were strung up in a row.

Contrary to the usual custom of mobs no shots were fired at the swinging victims, and the mob dispersed as soon as it had finished at work. There is no clue to the members of the band.

A Case of Kill or be Killed

Montreal, July 31. — The "shoot-room murder on Lagauchetiere St. one month ago, is likely to become a cause celebre in the history of the Montreal courts. Mr. R. A. E. Greenshields, K.C., is now preparing the defence, and if what "Cooked Nick" Smith says is true, the jury will have to decide whether or not a man has a right to return to a hotel for 24 hours after a row, and kill on sight because the man had threatened to kill him.

Smith killed "Mickey" Malone, alias Enright, without the latter having a chance to defend himself, but he declares that he felt he had to do so or he would have been killed by his erstwhile friend, who, just before the killing, held a revolver at his back and made him disgorge some of the ill-gotten gains by which the gang made their living. They were all pickpockets and burglars.

New Factory to Locate in Port Hope

Port Hope, July 31.—The Canada Neckwear, Limited, late of Toronto, with Mr. C. A. Brodigan as president and manager, commenced operations yesterday. The company manufacturing gents' neckwear, fancy waistcoats and summer underwear. The factory building is a three-storey structure situated on Mill street. The company expects to employ between 85 and 100 hands in the near future. The machines are operated by electricity. The company was established in Toronto early in April and at present has rooms and offices at 40 Scott street. It also has a branch factory in Oakville. These will be closed as soon as the factory here can develop a sufficient number of employees to fill the orders.

$100 Reward, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Daylight Burglars Enter F.G.Patterson's Residence

Saturday afternoon a daring attempt was made to rob the residence of Mr. F. G. Patterson. Had not a visitor called at the house, the robbers would no doubt have made a great haul, but thinking that Mr. Patterson had returned, made their way out by the back lane with their sack full with booty. There were two men, and the younger of the two after leaving the house made his way towards St. Peter's Cathedral, where he was caught by Mr. Walter Stocker, and taken to the police station. The police were telephoned, and the other man was captured by P. C. Meagher at the corner of Brock and Dorgal streets. He was taken to the police station and there searched and revealed several colored handkerchiefs and a number of ties.

The younger man gave his name as George Forbes and said he was only 19 years of age. He stated that he came from Chicago where his mother lived, and being unable to get work he left home to tramp it. He denied being in the house but several articles were found on him that made his statement untrue. The prisoners will most likely appear for trial today.

Johnston Now Faces Murder Charge

Kenora, July 31.—Mrs. Ackerman died this morning from the terrible injuries received at the hands of G. O. Johnston, the English emigrant, and he will now have to face a murder charge. His other victim, Mrs. Humphreys, has not regained consciousness, but some hopes is held out for her recovery. Johnston refuses to talk and of Mrs. Humphreys do not recover the real motive of the horrible crime may never be known.

12-Year-Old Girl Raises a Cheque

Kingston, Ont., August 1.—A remarkable case of child depravity has come to light. A little girl, twelve years of age, named Christmas, the daughter of a washerwoman, was given the task of taking home a bake of clothes belonging to Mrs. Torrance, formerly of Montreal. For the past two or three months the child did so and was paid by the lady in question. However, the money so badly needed in the little home, was never given to the mother, but spent by the girl for candies. Finally she let the money accumulate till it reached $5, and one day asked Mrs. Torrance if she would give it to her in a cheque so she could take it to the bank. The former, thinking to instill a business method in the child's head, readily consented and made out a cheque for $5 on a local bank. With a craftiness not often met with in childhood the girl "raised" the amount to $75 and presented it at the bank. The teller was suspicious, and investigated before accepting the cheque and found out the child's guilt. Owing to the youth in the case it is not likely that Mrs. Torrance is leaving town there will be no prosecution.

Five Men in Ontario Ended Life with Rope Last Week

Gruesome Record for the Past Week in This Province---Victims All Advanced in Years

Toronto, Aug. 2. Five men, all upwards of 65 years, have during the past week ended their lives by hanging. They were:

Lev. Wedge, well-to-do farmer of Fonthill, aged 75, who on Tuesday went to town, purchased a rope, and returning by electric car went at once to a bush on his own property and ended his life.

Peter Pass, aged 76, and "somewhat of a character" in Napanee, who on Wednesday hanged himself by a rope attached to a nail in his room, stepping from a small box into eternity.

James Rhodes, aged 65, of Toronto, who, having met with financial losses by investing his savings in employer's enterprise, becoming impoverished, hanged himself from the bed post.

Alex. Robinson, aged 55 and friendless, whose body was found on Thursday last in a bush near Gorrie.

John Nicholson, aged 77, of Sunbury, near Kingston, who on Friday afternoon hanged himself from a tree at the rear of his home, after having been working all morning and had shortly before left his son in apparent good spirits. The hot weather is supposed to have affected his mind.

Fell Off the Wolfe St. Wharf Into the River, Now in the Hospital

While walking along Wolfe street last Saturday night, waiting for the tramp Rainbow to pull out on her return trip down the river, Mr. Stevenson of Alnwick, accidentally stepped off the landing into the water. He could not swim, but after a hard struggle he was hauled out. In the fall he struck his head against the side of the wharf and inflicted a nasty gash. The ambulance was called and he was removed to Nicholls hospital, where he is doing nicely.

Plot Against the Sultan's Life

Constantinople, July 30.—Street demonstrations here have now practically ceased, but public indignation is growing at the delay in removing the Ibnoux monsters and other government officials. Many reports are current of the dismissals, and the flight of various officials, but it is impossible to ascertain the details.

It is confirmed, however, that the Minister of Marine, Rami Pasha, has been forced out of office and replaced by Hamdi Pasha.

Izzet Pasha, was yesterday appointed president of the commission for the inauguration of the Hejaz Railway. He will have Constantinople for that region at once.

It is stated that Zekki Pasha, Inspector of military schools, has been dismissed, while Selim Pasha, Minister of Mines and Forests, has fled with his family to Brindisi. The attorneys further demand the dismissal of Tahsin Pasha, one of the chief advisers in the palace, and Abdul Houda, the Sultan's astrologer.

Petes Take Another from the Athletics

In the Midland League Baseball game on Saturday at Riverside Park between the Athletics and the Petes the latter team proved themselves, without a shadow of a doubt, to be the superior team. The Johnston tea have defeated the Athletics three times this season, losing one game to them Saturday's game was a decisive victory, the score being seven to one.

From the initial innings the Petes played winning ball and as the game progressed they added to the score. The Athletes saved a shut out by Pilling getting over the plate for their only run in the fifth innings. In the fourth, Crowley of Chicago, replaced Rutteray behind the bat, but was unable to hold Quinlan and was taken out, Shea doing the receiving and Rutteray going to short. Clements carried off the pitching honors, but Quinlan twirled a good game. Anderson the Petes' big 2nd sacker touched him up for a homer early in the game. "Prunes" support in the field was not of the best, while Clements had the team behind him. Jerry Edmunds played his usual brilliant game backing up second preventing many runs from being scored. Bill Shaw of the Stratheonas made a satisfactory umpire. The line up was:

Crimes of Violence in Large Cities

(Writing the Popular Science Monthly" on "Crimes of Violence in Chicago and in Greater New York," Maynard Shipley says,

"Human life is the cheapest thing in Chicago, recently declared Judge Ireland. 'This city,' he asserted, 'witnesses a murder for every day in the year.' Now 365 homicides a year would mean, for Chicago, that one out of every 5614 of her citizens is destined to be murdered each year; or, in other words that 17 in each 100,000 of the population would annually meet death at the hands of a fellow-citizen. This would place Chicago on a criminal level with Lexington, Ky., where nearly 39 per cent of the population are negroes. In Chicago the negro element forms scarcely 2 per cent. of the total inhabitants. As a matter of fact, however, Lexington stands first in this scale of American cities in respect to the ratio of deaths by homicide to total population. Chicago stands about eighth in the list, showing a lower record for homicides than either San Francisco or Los Angeles.

CRIMES GROW FAST.

The annual average rate of deaths by homicide in Chicago is, for the six years 1901-06, 7.30 per 100,000 of inhabitants. The minimum for these years was 5.23, in 1901; the maximum was 9.26 in 1905; the ratio for 1906 being 9.17. The maximum for San Francisco was 11.90 in 1902; and for Cleveland, 8.57, in 1906. From these figures it may be seen that the "carnival of crime" in Chicago in 1906, did not by any means place the Windy City in the lead as a "Scarlet City." While it is true that crimes of violence are increasing in Chicago faster than the growth of population, the augmentation has been gradual and no greater relatively, than in Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Louisville, Los Angeles and many other cities. If the number of homicides in proportion to population was much higher in 1905 than in 1901 than in 1901 and 1902, such an increase is by no means unprecedented, nor are such annual variations from the average usual either in Chicago or elsewhere. Already in 1888, the proportion of murders to the number of inhabitants was almost as alarming as in 1905, and the ratio was even then higher than it was to be as late as 1904 being 8.08 in the year 1888, and but 5.88 in 1902. As late as 1904 the ratio was only 6.72. Again while the ratio was 9.17 in 1906 it was 8.36 as far back as 1893, and 7.24 in 1886, which is just about equal to the average for the six years ending with 1906. Taking a period of 30 years, the increase in deaths by homicide has been as follows; for the period 1873-1903 eight years, the annual average ratio was 3.20, for the 14 years 1890—1903, 7.19 homicides per one hundred thousand of population. The maximum ratio of any one year of the three periods was 5.00 1873, 8.09 in 1888, and 9.23 in 1906. Of grave crimes in general, the increase of arrests was from an annual average of 243.0 per one hundred thousand of inhabitants for the three years 1904-06, an augmentation during the last three years of 201 in each 100,000 of the population. The increase consists almost entirely of arrests for assaults with a deadly weapon and for assaults with intent to kill. There has been little or no increase in the proportion of arrests for burglary and robbery.

BREEDS VIOLENCE.

That the increase in crimes of violence in Chicago is due to the presence of a large foreign born element of an inferior economic and social status is amply attested by the available statistics. For instance the police records for 1905 show that whereas the ratio of arrests per 100,000 of population among native whites for murder and murderous assaults was 94.16, among the foreign white population this ratio was 146.65 per 100,000. Among the negroes the ratio was 107.52.

In considering the above statistics, the fact should be borne in mind that the greater frequency of crimes of violence among certain elements of the foreign-born population does not imply an inherent and ineradicable viciousness or criminality among these unfortunate immigrants, but merely a lawlessness due to unfavorable environment and inadequate education, mental and manual. Crime is twin brother to poverty, and both are the children of ignorance and greed.

It may be said, in conclusion, that while crimes of violence have increased in Chicago during the past 35 years, the increase has not been so great as has been represented, and that the alarming reports sent out about the "carnival of crime" in Chicago are usually without especial significance, since crimes of violence occur in all great cities sporadically, generally in quick succession. At the end of the year it is found, as a rule that no unusual increase for the 12 months has taken place, or that even an actual decrease has occurred as was the case in Chicago during the year 1906.

IMMIGRANT MOVEMENTS.

For the past four or five years, the American public has been startled by semi-annual reports regarding "the terrible increase of crime in New York city."

The contract for the building of the new curling rink was awarded to the Bapty Bros. of Lakefield. They were successful out of five tenders. The new building will be built on the ground of the one destroyed by fire. Work will be commenced at once.

WATERY BLOOD

Nerves are Weak
Face is Pallid
You Lack Strength
You Look Sickly.

Until You Build and Fortify the Blood There's No Hope of Cure.

Thousands of tired workers need the invigoration, the strength, the nerve-force which Ferrozone can supply.

Ferrozone imparts strength because it nourishes.

Ferrozone is able to nourish because it supplies to the blood the elements it lacks.

Once the blood is vitalized, its tonic influence is circulated to every nook and corner of the body, carrying new life with it.

Cases on record prove that Ferrozone builds up when all else fails. Mr. Alonzo W. Douglas of Woodbridge, Ont., says; "I desire to state the results I derived from the use of Ferrozone. Two years ago I was stricken with pneumonia. So severe was the attack and so reduced was my strength that myself was denied attention, but made no progress ahead of. I had the very best medical towards recovery. When reduced to practically a skeleton, a kind friend told me of the remarkable powers of Ferrozone. An improvement began almost at once. I gained steadily in weight and strength until Ferrozone made me a new man. I will gladly answer inquiries from other sufferers if they care to have further particulars about my recovery. Ferrozone deserves to great measure of success."

When a man is Mr. Douglas' low condition can be quickly cured, aren't the chances good for you? Don't fail to try Ferrozone. Price 50c. per box at all dealers.

Are You Tired, Nervous and Sleepless?

Nervousness and sleeplessness are usually due to the fact that the nerves are not fed on properly nourishing blood; they are starved nerves. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes pure, rich blood, and thereby the nerves are properly nourished and all the organs of the body are run as smoothly as machinery which runs in oil. In this way you feel clean, strong and strenuous—you are toned up and invigorated, and you are good for a whole lot of physical or mental work. Best of all, the strength and increase in vitality and health are lasting.

The trouble with most tonics and medicines which have a large, booming sale for a short time, is that they are largely composed of alcohol holding the drugs in solution. This alcohol shrinks up the red blood corpuscles, and in the long run greatly injures the system. One may feel exhilarated and better for the time being, but in the end weakened and with vitality decreased. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery contains no alcohol. Every bottle of it bears upon its wrapper The Badge of Honesty, in a full list of all its several ingredients. For the druggist to offer you something he claims is "just as good" is to insult your intelligence.

Every ingredient entering into the world-famed "Golden Medical Discovery" has the unanimous approval and endorsement of the leading medical authorities of all the several schools of practice. No other medicine sold through druggists for like purposes has any such endorsement.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" not only produces all the good effects to be obtained from the use of Golden Seal root, in all stomach, liver and bowel troubles, as in dyspepsia, biliousness, constipation, ulceration of stomach and bowels and kindred ailments, but the Golden Seal root used in its compounding is greatly enhanced in its curative action by other ingredients such as Stone root, Black Cherrybark, Bloodroot, Mandrake root and chemically pure triple-refined glycerine.

"The Common Sense Medical Adviser," is sent free in paper covers on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay the cost of customs and mailing only. For 50 stamps the cloth-bound volume will be sent. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation, biliousness and headache.

Appetite Gone Nerves Badly Run Down

A Strong Moral Well Exemplified in Mrs. Wilson's Case.

Like thousands of other people at this season of the year Mrs. E. P. Wilson was tired and worn out—winter sorely tried her health and vigor. But now she is robust and well, eats well, sleeps well, feels invigorated and braced. "For some years," writes Mrs. Wilson of Watmore, P.O., "I suffered from systematic weakness, billiousness and depressing headaches. I could take little nourishment and grew thin and pale. If I ate a hearty meal the result was dreadful. Pains started at my chest, and spread all through my body going across my stomach, back and right side. I was discouraged till a friend insisted on me taking Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They made a new woman of me, and for the past eight months my health has been perfect. For a good cleansing, rejuvenating medicine I urge every one to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

There is extraordinary and magic power in Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they bring vigor, tone, health and spirit—are compounded from the most wonderful and healing juices and essence in vegetable life—are safe for young and old, and guaranteed to kindle renewed activity and strength in every system that is weak, sickly or run down from kidney, liver, stomach or bladder trouble. Praise for the Otonabee

The Fenelon Falls Gazette says; The Union Sunday school picnic to Buckhorn on Tuesday of this week was a grand success in every way. The weather was threatening in the morning but turned out fine and very warm, and the crowd of between four and five hundred people on the good ship Otonabee had the time of their lives. The run to Buckhorn was made in a little over four hours, and, after lunching under the trees, resting in the shade, visiting the Indian encampment, buying souvenirs, viewing the work on the fine new concrete dam being built across the river, and enjoying themselves in other ways, the crowd re-embarked at 4 p.m., reaching home about 9 o'clock. This was the Otonabee's first excursion from this end of the lake, and she was voted by all on board to be the best excursion steamer that ever sailed the local waters.

SUNSET AT GUAYAQUIL.

There Is No Twilight, No Interval Between Daylight and Dark.

The days and nights at Guayaquil are of equal length. The sun knocks off promptly at 6 o'clock in the evening and gets up at 6 in the morning with equal regularity the whole year ground. There is no twilight, no gloaming, no interval whatever between daylight and dark—only a brilliant illumination, the sudden disappearance of a red ball into a blue ocean, a spread of flame color over all the western sky for a few minutes and a purple haze in the east.

Then the surface of the ocean, like the heavens, is lighted with millions of strange and shifting stars, for the water is so impregnated with phosphorus that each tiny wave is tipped with light, and the foam that follows in the wake of the vessel is often like a stream of fire. Sometimes you can see porpoises swimming along the bow of the vessel livid with phosphorescent light and followed by a streak of sparks like a comet's tail.

The Southern Cross, with the right arm tipped out at proper angle, lies straight ahead in the midst of myriads of unknown worlds that look strange to those accustomed to the northern constellations. Under the left arm is a large black spot in the heavens, brightened by only a single modest star, which the sailors call "the devil's dinner bag." Over the stern of the vessel in the early evening you can plainly distinguish the familiar constellation of the Great Bear, but it goes to bed with the children.

HIS SERVICES.

What Became of All the Bills He Introduced In Congress.

"Yes, my fellow citizens," said the political candidate, "if you have paid any attention to the work of congress you will have noticed that during the past session I introduced twenty-two bills, each of which was intended to benefit this community. I stand before you today with the proud consciousness of having served you faithfully and to the best of my ability. Those twenty-two bills would, if they had been passed, have made this one of the most favored districts on God's green earth, and"—

"Oh," yelled a man in the gallery, "we know you introduced 'em, all right, but what happened to 'em after that?"

"Gentlemen, I appeal to your sense of honor. Do you consider it fair that I should be interrupted in this manner? Is it right that I should"—

"There ain't no harm in answerin' the question, is there?" asked another of the statesman's hearers.

"Well, sir, I will tell you what became of those bills, my fellow citizens. Every one of them was printed in the Congressional Record, where, if you will look over the files, you may find them today. But to revert to the seed question, gentlemen, I do not hesitate to promise that no man living in this, the most splendid district in our grand old state, shall appeal to me in vain if you shall deem it best to send me back to Washington, where I have served you with such signal ability."

Young Armstrong Captured

Jos. Armstrong, the young boy who stole $95 from H. T. Elliot, a baker, was captured on Toronto Thursday afternoon. He was found enjoying home life at the Island, and was placed under arrest. Chief Ronzel was telegraphed, and left yesterday morning to get the prisoner. It was confined in the Toronto Children's Aid Society over night. Armstrong will most likely appear for trial next week.

Women Cured At HOme

Women's disorders always yield, from the very beginning of the treatment to the mild but effective action of Orange Lily.

Within two or three days after commencing its use the improvement becomes noticeable, and this improvement continues until the patient is completely cured. Orange Lily is an applied for local treatment, and acts directly on womanly organs, removing the congestion, toning and strengthening the nerves, and restoring perfect circulation in the diseased parts.

In order to convince all suffering women of the value of this remedy I will send a 25-cent box enough for ten days' treatment, absolutely FREE to each lady sending me her address.

Mr. I. Barton Yourex, 110 Carlton street, Toronto, Canada, widely known throughout Canada as agent for the Equity Fire Insurance Company, Toronto, Canada, and who is also a local preacher and was for over twenty years a successful school teacher, writes an interesting letter to Peruna.

I. BARTON YOUREX.

"It is only fair to give praise where it is due. Some time ago I contracted a cold, which being repeated caused catarrh in my head. I had seen Peruna advertised frequently, and upon inquiry was advised by a friend to try it. The help it gave proved its merit beyond a doubt, very beneficial indeed."—MR. I. BARTON YOUREX.

IT may seem a small matter to some people to cure a cold. But experienced physicians not only realize the importance of neglecting a cold, but the difficulty that sometimes attends upon the curing of one.

Colds are the cause of more acute diseases than all disease germs combined.

More people lose their lives as the direct result of catching cold than from all other causes put together.

Hence, the importance of curing a cold.

Peruna has been tried under all circumstances, all times of year, and by all classes of people in the civilized world, and found to be a reliable remedy for colds.

There is no time of year when such a remedy should not be kept conveniently at hand, but it is especially necessary during the winter months that Peruna be kept in the house, convenient to meet the first symptoms of colds.

PAIN

Pain in the head—pain anywhere, has its cause. Pain is congestion, pain is blood pressure—nothing else usually. At least, so says Dr. Shoop, and to prove it he has created a little pink tablet. That tablet—called Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablet—causes blood pressure away from pain centers. Its delicate charming pleasingly delightful. Gently, though safely, it surely equalizes the blood circulation.

If you have a headache, it's blood pressure.

If it's painful periods with women, same cause.

If you are sleepless, restless, nervous, it's blood congestion—blood pressure. That surely is so. Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets stop pain at once, and the tablets simply distribute the normal blood pressure.

Bruise your finger, and doesn't it get red, and swell, and pain you? Of course it does. It's congestion, blood pressure. You'll find it where pain is always. It's simply Common Sense.

We sell at 25 cents, and cheerfully recommend

PRINCE'S DEPARTURE MUCH REGRETED

Quebec, July 29.— The Prince of Wales has gone, and his departure is sincerely regretted on all sides, for during his stay here he has greatly impressed citizens and visitors, and has added to the popularity he earns everywhere by his graciousness and tact, which is displayed in his apparent desire to be like other men There was no unnecessary formality when he departed from the King's wharf at 7 o'clock last evening, and sailed to H.M.S. Indomitable, which pulled anchor during the small hours of this morning, and started on to return to England, it is said, to beat all records for an Atlantic passage.

THE LAST DAY.

The last day of his Royal Highness in Quebec was quite a busy one. He spent the morning at a tree planting ceremony in Victoria Park, lunched at the citadel, and arrived a little after four o'clock at the Quebec Athletic Grounds, where a program of naval and military sports, in which many British tars participated, was in progress. Just before the Prince's arrival Lord Roberts and Lady Grey had received a grand ovation.

From the athletic grounds the Prince proceeded to the pageant stand on the Plains of Abraham, and seemed to enjoy himself better than he has done at any function during his stay. The vast stand contained 10,000 children engaging daylight fireworks. The Prince was immensely amused at the unsuccessful efforts of the police to keep the youngsters corralled when they set out to capture flimsy trophies as mementos of the great occasion. He walked among the children for a short time, and then departed for the garden party at Spencerwood, the residence of Sir Louis Jette, the Lieutenant-governor.

THE FAREWELL.

From Spencerwood his Royal Highness was driven direct down the Grand Allee to the citadel, and after a short pause proceeded to the King's Wharf. From St. Louis Gate to the wharf the route was lined with troops six paces apart, Royal Military College Cadets having the post of honor near the gate. Below them was a composite regiment from No. 2 military district.

At the wharf the Prince, who was accompanied by Earl Grey, inspected the guards of honor, composed of marine infantry from the British warships, and shook hands with Generals Otter, Macdonald, Lessard, admirals of the French and United States warships, and others, and at a few minutes before seven o'clock took a seat in his own pinnace, which speedily conveyed him to the Indomitable.

CANNON BOOMED.

As he left the citadel on his way to the wharf the guns from the fortress belched out the royal salute, and as he neared the Indomitable the first gun in the royal salute was fired from the Kinnouth. A second later the United States ship began to fire, the French warships following suit, until from all the warships in the harbor, with the exception of the Indomitable and Minotaur, there was a continual roar until each one had fired the last of twenty-one guns in homage to the heir to the throne of the great Empire.

The crowds on the wharves, Dufferin Terrace and the citadel slopes, who had cheered the Prince as he embarked, lingered a few minutes after they had assured themselves that he was aboard the Indomitable, and then slowly dispersed.

ENVIABLE THANKS.

The Prince marked the afternoon preceding his departure by several gracious acts, which proved his appreciation of services rendered by those who were immediately responsible for his safety or his convenience. Inspector Cuddy, in command of the Toronto contingent of policemen, was summoned to the Citadel and taken to the Prince's presence His Royal Highness shook him heartily by the hand, and, after thanking him for the good work done by the Toronto officers and congratulating him on the efficiency of his little command, handed him a box containing the medal of the Royal Victoria Order. Sergt. Godin, for thirty years a member of the Dominion police force at Ottawa, and in command of the Ottawa contingent of policemen at Quebec, was similarly honored.

Seymour Butler, superintendent of the Parkerton forces, and for the second time one of the Prince's personal guard, was presented with a beautiful scarf pin, showing garter, blue enamel and gold, surmounted by the Royal crown in red enamel and gold, with the Prince's crest of three feathers in diamonds.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, marked on the envelope "Tender for Construction," will be received at the office of the Commissioners of the Transcontinental Railway, at Ottawa, until twelve o'clock noon of Thursday, the 20th day of August, 1908, for the work and specifications of the Commissioners, required for the construction, in accordance with the plans, profiles and of the following sections of the Transcontinental Railway, viz;—

(1) District "A."—From a point designated on the plans of the Commissioners near Weymontachingue, in the province of Quebec, 180.48 miles west of the north abutment of the Quebec bridge, (such point being on the boundary between Districts "C" and "D") westerly for a distance of about 107 miles. Date of completion, 31st December, 1910.

(2) District "C."—From a point designated on the plans of the Commissioners, about 107 miles west of Weymontachingue, in the Province of Quebec, westerly to the end of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company's contract, a distance of about 114.97 miles. Date of completion, 31st December, 1910.

(3) Districts "D" and "E."—From a point designated on the plans to the Commissioners, being at the western end of Esquaw Bros' Abitibi contract, in the Province of Ontario, in a westerly direction for a distance of about 160.24 miles. Date of completion, 31st December, 1910.

(4) District "E."—From a point designated on the plans of the Commissioners, about sixty miles west of the easterly boundary of District "E," in the Province of Ontario, easterly to the end of Esquaw Bros' contract, north of Lake Nepigon, a distance of about 100 miles. Date of completion, 31st December, 1910

(5) Districts "E" and "F."—From a point designated on the plans of the Commissioners, at the western end of Esquaw Bros' contract north of Lake Nepigon, in the Province of Ontario, westerly to a point at or near Dog Lake, a distance of about 125 miles. Date of completion, 1st September, 1910.

(6) District "F."—From a point designated on the plans of the Commissioners at or near Dog Lake in the Province of Ontario, to a point at or about mile 26 west of what is known as Peninsula Crossing, by alternative routes as shown on the plans, a distance of about 236 miles by the northerly route, and 241 miles by the southerly route, the selection of the route to be at the option of the Commissioners. Date of completion, 1st September, 1910.

Plans, profiles and specifications may be seen at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Commissioners at Ottawa; also at the offices of the following District Engineers, viz; —John Aylen, Acting District Engineer, North Bay, Ont.; T. S. Armstrong, Nepigon, Ont.; and S. R. Poulin, St. Boniface, Man

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made in duplicate, and on the printed forms supplied by the Commissioners.

A separate tender must be submitted for each section.

Tenderers shall not be in any way entitled to rely upon the classification, or any other information given by any person on behalf of the Commissioners; and before submitting any tender, bidders should make a careful examination of the plans, profiles, drawings and specifications, and read the forms to be executed, and fully inform themselves as to the quantity and quality of materials and character of workmanship required; and are understood to accept, and agree to be bound by, the terms and conditions in the form of contract, specifications, etc., annexed to the form of tenders.

Each tender must be signed and sealed by all the parties to the tender, and witnessed, and be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank of the Dominion of Canada, payable to the order of the Commissioners of the Transcontinental Railway as follows;—

Sec. No 1.,	District "C"	$150,000
Sec. No. 2,	District "C"	150,000
Sec No. 3.	District "D & F"	150,000
Sec No. 4.	District "E"	150,000
Sec. No. 5.	District "E & F"	200,000
Sec. No. 6,	District "F"	100,000

Any person whose tender is accepted shall within ten days after the acceptance thereof furnish such additional approved security as may be required by the Commissioners; sign the contract, specifications, and other documents required to be signed by the said Commissioners; and, in any case of refusal or failure on the part of the party whose tender is accepted to complete and execute a contract with the said Commissioners, and to furnish additional sureties, and to furnish the additional approved security within ten days after the acceptance of the tender, the said cheque shall be forfeited to the Commissioners as liquidated damages for such refusal or failure and all contract rights acquired by the acceptance of the tender shall be forfeited. The cheques deposited by parties whose tenders are accepted will be deposited to the credit of the Receiver General of Canada as part of the security for the due and faithful performance of the contract according to its terms. Cheques deposited by parties whose tenders are rejected will be returned within ten days after the signing of the contract.

Attention is called to the following clauses in the form of contract;—

"All mechanics, laborers, or other persons who perform labor for the purpose of the construction of the works hereby contracted for, shall be paid such wages as are generally accepted as current for competent workmen in the district in which the work is being performed, and if there are no current rates in such district, then a fair and reasonable rate; and, in the event of a dispute arising as to what is the current or a fair and reasonable rate, it shall be determined by the Commissioners, whose decision shall be final."

"This agreement is subjected to the regulations now in force, or which may at any time hereafter be in force during the construction of the works hereby contracted for, made under the authority of the Department of Labor, and which are, or shall be, applicable to such works." (The schedule of minimum wages determined upon by said Department will form part of the contract).

"The contractor shall in connection with the whole of the said work, as far as practicable, use only material, machinery, plant, supplies and rolling stock manufactured or produced in Canada, providing the same can be obtained as cheaply, and upon as good terms, in Canada as elsewhere, having regard to quality and price."

The contractor shall conform to the safety regulations adopted by the Commissioners, and also to the laws and regulations respecting fires in the different provinces wherein the work is being performed.

The right is reserved to reject any or all tenders.

SAILORS' UNIFORMS.

Copied From England and Representative of America

All are familiar with the man-of-war sailor's suit, but no one ever stopped to reckon how it comes by it and what the stripes mean? With the exception of the collar and the stars in the corner of the flag the whole suit is copied from the British. One would have thought that this time the American nation would have taken upon some original costume for its navy, in some way more representative of America.

In the early days of the British navy it was still the custom to tie the hair in a cue after well greasing it to the much annoyance was felt by the men in consequence of the oil getting on through serge of their jumpers or blouses. This caused the blue collar of the same material as the jumper to be added, but without much success, as the collar looked quite as unruly, so length the idea of putting the big drill one over the serge was adopted the drill collar being a separate appendage and therefore easily washed and kept clean. The inward V worn to represent the ropes and rigging of the ship, and the jackknife indicated that (to be paradoxical) the bluejacket's object in life was death to his enemy.

In those days the neck was exposed but as time went on and more thought was given to the welfare of the men this was found to be injurious to the health; hence the substitute of the white neck flannel, white being used to give the effect of the uncovered neck.

The two rows of white braid at the top of the cuff represent England and Ireland, the one row at the bottom showing that Scotland had not become annexed. The rows of braid on the collar represent wholly and solely the victories of Nelson.

At the opening of Lord Nelson's grand career and his first great victory at Aboukir the first row of braid was put on the collar, and Jack was a proud and happy man, and he became still prouder and happier when Aboukir was followed by Nelson's greater victory at Copenhagen and the second row was added. But he became the proudest and happiest man and alas, also the most sorrowful and grief stricken when that great hero and magnificent example of naval courage lost his life in his last victory at Trafalgar, and so the third row of braid went on but there was no more to come after it, for "the last pipe" had sounded for the valiant sailor, his last fight fought, his last victory won. To signify the mourning which filled the hearts of all English sailors the black scarf was added. This was the origin of the British tar's uniform, which is both historical and blue-coated and dear to the heart of all English people.

No Hitch.

"How did the wedding come off to-day?"

"Without a hitch."

"Glad to hear it."

"I said without a hitch. The bride backed out at the last minute."

Not Written.

"How do you write 'horn?'" asked the teacher of a small boy at the blackboard.

"A horn isn't written at all," answered the little fellow. "It's blowed."—Exchange.

Like a Bicycle.

"What does the doctor say is the matter with Mirandy?"

"He says she has pneumatic tendencies and that she is threatened with spiral trouble."—Baltimore American

The undersigned has received an allotment of unsold portion of $100,000 of

7 Per Cent. First Mortgage Five-Year Gold Bonds

dated January 11, 1908, and maturing January 11, 1913. These Bonds are offered at par and accrued interest by Metropolitan Trust & Savings Bank, Chicago, trustees.

SECURITY—The Entire Property and Improvements Owned THE URES CONSOLIDATED MINING COMPANY in the District of Ures, State of Sonora Mexico, Free from Mortgage of Bonded Indebtedness except this present Bond Issue.

An Unusual Opportunity for Investment in Sound Security

The Ures Consolidated Mining Company offers $100,000.00 of First Mortgage Gold Bonds. This issue of bonds is the only mortgage or bonded indebtedness ever placed on the company's properties.

These bonds are in the denomination of $100.00, and bear interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, July and January, and are redeemable on or before five years from date at the company's option at $110.00 and accrued interest.

$100,000 Stock Bonus Given with Every $100.00 Bond

With each bond issued there will be given $100.00 par value of the capital stock of the company as a bonus, and in addition thereto there will be placed in escrow with the Trustee additional stock which will be available to the bondholders at their option any time within a period of three years, the bondholder being entitled to surrender his bond any time within said period and receive in lieu thereof stock for every dollar of indebtedness so given on account of said bonds.

The Security Back of these Bonds

The company owns twelve claims situated in the district of Ures, State of Sonora, Mexico, free from mortgage or bonded indebtedness, except the present bond issue

On one of these properties (The Ramona Mine) 5,000 feet of underground development work has been done, consisting of an inclined shaft to the depth of 400 feet with drifts in three levels to the North and South of the shaft.

An average value of ore worth $11.67 per ton is exposed throughout the mine, from the collar of the shaft to the extreme parts in the drifts, all of which is above water level.

The company has made surface improvements and mine improvements to the extent of $80,000.00 in the way of machinery, skids, trams, steam hoists, mill and nearly everything necessary to make the mining camp complete.

In addition to the absolute ownership of these twelve valuable claims, the company has a lease on the San Jose Mine, adjoining its property, in which the company has been operating in high grade ore.

During the past sixty days the company has extracted and delivered to ore buyers and the bank at Hermosillo, $3,000.00 worth of ore and bullion, the ore having been reduced to bullion through the company's mill, with the exception of 1,464 pounds, which was sold to an ore buyer for $662.80.

The Money Derived from the Sale of these Bonds

This issue of bonds is made for the purpose of securing money at once in order to extend the development work more quickly than the company's present means will permit.

With the high grade ore in sight to the distance of 80 feet to the South of the shaft, the management is assured that within six months from date of making the improvements now necessary the company's properties will be on a self-sustaining and dividend-paying basis.

The Stock which is Given with these bonds will be as valuable as the bonds when the Company has the ready capital to push operations

Men who invest in these bonds will have no cause or reason to regret their action, for the bonds afford an investment in a security which is absolutely safe—much better than ordinary city or country real estate, which is considered perfectly safe if the property put up to secure a mortgage is double the face of the loan. The security given on these bonds is better than 7 to 1, for the Ures Consolidated Mining Company has refused an offer of $750,000.00 for the property upon which this $100,000.00 worth of bonds is issued.

These bonds are an investment with all speculative risk eliminated —an investment with absolute security.

Make your reservation at once. This is small and promises to be quickly sold,

To whom it may concern:—

We hereby beg to state that The Ures Consolidated Mining Company has during the past five years made several deliveries of bullion to this bank, and it is the opinion of mining men here that they have the making of a fair mine, and further, that the properties owned and controlled by them bid promise of becoming paying properties.

From our knowledge of the men connected, we believe they are doing all in their power to bring about the results above mentioned.

1 CENT A 2 SHARE

Send us your name as a member in this new company, with your remittance for as many thousand shares as you can take at 55 per thousand.

This is a short-time offer on a hurry-up proposition. Our vice president is up at Rawhide now putting the miners at work. We want to raise the necessary funds for development as quickly as possible, Therefore, we offer the first block of stock at 55 a thousand shares. This subscription must be all cash. We want the money in hand. We mean to work without letup, and we have made it an ironclad rule not to run in debt. Cash counts now.

Our prospectuses are out. Send for one.

Make reservation of stock. If you do no more. But, remember, this present offer of stock at Half a Cent a Share is now open, and will be closed as soon as enough cash subscriptions are in hand. Don't wait, or you will get left.

The gold mining property owned outright by the company consists of 7 claims, 5 in the Rawhide district of Nevada, and 4 in the Dulzura district of Southern California.

The Rawhide district to-day is more famous than Goldfield, Tonapah, Bullfrog, or Searchlight were at the same stage of exploration and development. The Dulzura discovery is one of the most sensational in the history of California.

Ten samples of ore which were among the first assayed, run as high as $7,461.87 to the ton, and all ten averaged over $1,500 a ton.

In both camps we located early, and our locations are choice. Our own officers will superintend the mining.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the Northwest Provinces, excepting 8 and 26 reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) is a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father or mother.

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

Says This Medicine Has Mystic Powers

Will Assist Anyone in Weak, Pale, Nervous Condition to Robust, Hearty, Health.

It's in the spring that health gives out—that folks begin to feel draggy, weary, restless,—hate to eat, look pale, feel discouraged.

If you've reached this state, read what J. W. Jervell, well known in Morristown, has to say about the medicine that cured him. "Last winter I caught a heavy cold that settled in my back. My kidneys and liver were affected and my health failed. By spring I was in bad shape—couldn't sleep like I used to—felt tired in the morning—ate very little—was terribly depressed, pale and anxious looking. Twinges of rheumatism, frequent neuralgia attacks over the temples, made matters worse. The doctor prescribed three times, but didn't help. Then I heard of Dr. Hamilton's Pills.—They possess mystic power surely, for I gained and improved day by day and now am in perfect health again. I will praise and use Dr. Hamilton's Pills till I die."

The ingredients in Dr. Hamilton's Pills are pure and wholesome—come right from the storehouse of Nature in the form of vegetable juices and extracts.—consequently this gentle invigorating laxative tonic and blood purifier is safe for old and young alike. We assure you of enormous benefit from Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which revitalize delicate glands, search out the seat of hidden disease, flood the body with vigor and health that has caused thousands of broken-down, despairing men and women to join in a mighty song of praise for the beneficient aid that comes from this king of all tonics. Get Dr. Hamilton's Pills today. 25c at all dealers.

Chewed Tumbler, Ate Fly Paper

Toronto, Aug. 1.—Driven partially crazed by ill-health and the extreme heat, Benjamin Brown, who boards at 137 Spadina avenue, swallowed portions of two poisonous fly pads at 6.30 yesterday evening, and Dr. J. McCormack had hard work to save his life.

Brown came to Canada with his wife about three years ago, and has been in poor health ever since. He went to work as usual last evening, but after an hour returned home, and when his wife came in later she found the doctor working might and main to save her husband from the effect of the poison.

Mrs. Thomas Drury, with whom the Browns board, heard groans, and going to his room, found him writhing on the floor, with a piece of poison-soaked fly pad in his hand. He was violent, and resisted the doctor's efforts to save him with all his might. The doctor had to call in the aid of four other men before he could overcome Brown's resistance.

"Last Christmas my husband had another attack of the same kind," said Mrs. Brown to a reporter this morning. "When he is that way he knows nothing of what is happening. I found a tumbler in his room last night which was bitten all to pieces, and my husband's mouth was terribly cut.

He is now there. We are comfortably settled. We are comfortably settled. We are comfortably settled. We are comfortably settled.

"I am sure he had no idea of suicide whatever. It is a sort of frenzy, and he would bite anything off, and have a very happy life, but he has never been well since we came to Canada."

An ambulance took Brown to St. Michael's Hospital, where he is considered out of danger this morning.

Lord Roberts will Not Visit Peterborough

The citizens of Peterborough will not have the honor of seeing Lord Roberts today, as an answer to a letter written by Mayor Bunn, asking him to stop here. Lord Roberts' secretary stated that they had too many engagements. The following is the letter received by Mayor Bunn.

Montreal, July. 31.

Sir,—I am directed by Field Marshal Lord Roberts to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 30th inst., and in reply to convey to you and the people of the city of Peterborough his warm thanks for offering him the honor of receiving their greetings.

Lord Roberts much regrets that he cannot accept your kind invitation. The short time at his disposal in the country is already so completely filled up that he fears it is quite impossible for him to add to his very numerous engagements.

Yours faithfully,

H. DAWNAY, A.D.C.

The footprints of Dyspepsia have been directly traced to the Stomach nerves. When these "inside nerves" fail, indigestion and stomach distress must surely result. For this druggists everywhere are supplying a prescription known as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. First, these tiny inside Stomach, Heart, and Kidney nerves fail. Then gas bubbling, Heart palpitation, or failing Kidneys follow. Don't drug the Stomach, or stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. That is wrong. Strengthen these failing nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative. It is the nerves, not the organs that are calling for help. Within 48 hours after starting the Restorative treatment, you will realize the gain. A test will tell. Sold by all dealers.

Thousands Made Homeless By Forest Fires--Fernie and Other Towns Destroyed

Winnipeg, Aug. 3.—The most dreadful conflagration in the history of Canada has swept the Elk River Valley in East Kootenay.

For 40 miles a tremendous bush fire has burned everything before it. It has held full and terrible sway since four o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Estimates are that perhaps 150 people have met death in the flames.

The following places have been destroyed:

Fernie, with a population of 3,500.

Coal Creek, with a population of 1500.

Michel, with 50 inhabitants.

Hosmer, with 50 inhabitants.

And other Crow's Nest Pass towns. Fernie is gone, but one despatch says that Hosmer and Michel are still fighting.

The homeless will number over 6000.

The fatalities are growing hourly. In one case alone two families at Fernie were besieged in and every soul perished. At least 70 lives are lost in Fernie.

The property damage is between four and five million dollars, at least. The Crow's Nest Pass Coal Company have $1,000,000 in property at Coal Creek, which is reported destroyed.

The disaster is unique in the history of Western Canada, for in the entire section of country the railways and bridges are swept away.

Tonight at dusk the fire was still burning.

An earnest appeal for help has been sent out by the mayor of Fernie, and it is only right that all Canada should know that help is badly needed at once.

"Fernie, B.C., Aug. 2.

"Mayor, City of Toronto;

"Our city entirely burned out. Six thousand people homeless. We appeal to you for relief.

"W. W TUTTLE, Mayor."

The above message was received in Toronto last evening. The mayor at once got into communication with his colleagues of the Board of Control, and it was agreed that $5000 should be sent, if necessary, today.

Hamilton, in response to a similar message, will send an instalment of $500 today.

STORIES OF GREAT HAVOC.

Winnipeg, Aug. 2—Reports received here indicate that the fiercest forest fires on record have devastated the Crow's Nest Pass country between Fernie and Cranbrook, B.C., sweeping both towns, and doing enormous damage to property, leaving but one house standing in Fernie.

At Whyte, both the Canadian Pacific and Great Northern Railways have suffered severely, losing rolling stock depots, freight sheds and bridges. The Canadian Pacific has not yet handed out a statement, and as telegraphic communication is almost entirely interrupted, it is very difficult to get details of losses or news through as to whether there is any loss of life.

At Fernie it is known the C.P.R. lost its station, freight sheds, coal chute and water tank with about fifty cars, including one or more sleepers.

The fire raged fiercely at Hosmer, the coal mine centre, but by great efforts the town was saved.

So many bridges and culverts have been destroyed and have been warped and twisted by the great heat to such an extent that it must be a considerable time before traffic through the Crow's Nest can be resumed.

The Great Northern are just as badly if not worse crippled, having lost their big wooden bridge between Fernie and Michel with two or three trains loads of coal and a large number of empty cars.

So far as can be learned Fernie is wiped off the map and Cranbrook is in little better shape, while other towns suffered to lesser extent.

Grave fears are entertained for the prospectors or lumbermen who may have been caught.

Canadian Woman's Piteous Plea Gains Brother His Liberty

Was Serving a Life Term in Minneapolis Prison for Manslaughter, Served 2 Years

Kicked Man To Death

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 2.—The State Board of Pardons has granted a pardon to Alexander McKwan, sentenced to life imprisonment from Minneapolis in 1905 for manslaughter. He kicked Frank O'Gram to death in a resort following a quarrel. A sister's plea was responsible for McKwan's release and the eloquence of the impressed the members of the board that they announced assuance of pardon almost immediately.

Three times had Mrs. J. E. Hill travelled from Toronto to intercede for her wayward brother, and when the announcement came that her efforts had been rewarded she almost swooned. In tones, eloquent and pleading, she told of how her father, hearing of his son's crime, had suffered a stroke of paralysis and died and his mother was now bedridden and wishing for one last look at her boy.

"Pardon him," she asked the board, "and he will never bother you again. He will leave the State." On condition he leaves the State the board granted the pardon.

McEwan served with credit in the English army, but falling in with evil companions, resigned his commission and came to the United States. He was a magnificent specimen of manhood and an excellent musician. Considerable mystery surrounded the killing and McEwan was sent to prison more because of his record than from any actual knowledge that he was fully responsible for the victim's death. The trial judge petitioned the board for clemency.

Seriously Injured in Gasoline Explosion

Yesterday afternoon a serious explosion of a gasoline tank occurred at Hagersville, when a brother of Mr. Chas. Banks of this city, was seriously burned. A telegram was received late in the afternoon, stating that the doctors in attendance did not expect him to live. Mr. Banks left on the 4.48 C.P.R. for Hagersville.

REASON FOR HIS SURRENDER.

Retaliation Proposed

Yankee Firm Asks Germans to Join in Patent War on England

New York, August 4.—A German-American patent alliance will apparently be the outcom eof the hardships which Germany and America complain of from the new English patent law which goes into effect on August 28. This law requires that an article patented in England must be manufactured in that country. The German Industrial Union, which recently presented a petition to the imperial chancellor asking that diplomatic measures be taken to secure a modification of the law, has received inquiries from an influential American firm asking whether German manufacturers are prepared to join forces with their American colleagues in a retaliatory patent campaign against England.

The German Industrial Union is not averse to this suggestion, since it is realized that a war of reprisals waged by Germany alone would stand a small chance of being effective, because the number of German patents registered in England far exceeds the number of English patents registered in Germany. The relentless cancelling of unexploited English patents in Germany and America simultaneously would, it is felt, prove a more adequate weapon against the Englishs.

Nerves Unstrung

You Feel Limp
Loaded With Worry
Unable to Sleep
Tired and Excitable.

You'll Grow Steadily Worse Unless the System is Better Nourished.

Nothing will build you up with the certainty of Ferrozone. Thousands it has cured who never hoped to be well—and here is ample proof—substantiated by one of Nova Scotia's prominent clerics.

"Before taking the first box of Ferrozone," writes Mrs. Annie Jeffry of Sandy Cove, N.S., "my condition was deplorable. Though I employed the most skilful medical aid, I grew steadily weaker. In fact, I was in such a low condition that it was impossible for me to walk across the room. My heart was very weak, and I suffered from terrible palpitations, which the doctors said were from trouble peculiar to women. Friends urged me to try Ferrozone, and I bought six boxes. When I had used the third box my old-time vigor and strength returned. The palpitation ceased, my appetite increased, and I got a good rosy color in my cheeks. It would be impossible to speak too highly of Ferrozone. All weak women should use it. I hope many suffering sisters will use Ferrozone, for it will surely cure them."

Rev. J. C. Morse, D.D., pastor of the Baptist Church, Sandy Cove, bears witness to the recovery of Mrs. Jeffry, and writes: "This is to certify that Mrs. Annie Jeffry is a lady upon whose word you can depend. I have known her since childhood, and believe her to be a truthful, honest woman." This adds additional force to the testimony of Mrs. Jeffry, and gives assurance to other sufferers that Ferrozone does what is claimed for it. Three weeks' treatment costs 50c., or six boxes for $2.50 at all druggists.

Miss M. Watt Meets with an Accident

What might have been a serious accident occurred yesterday afternoon about five o'clock in front of T. C. Cubitt's book store. Miss Mary Watt, an employe of the local post office, was riding a bicycle down George street when she collided with a horse and rig. Miss Watt was thrown under the rig, one of the wheels passing over her leg. She was picked up without having received any serious injuries and placed in a large auto which was close by and was taken to the home of Mrs. Nelson where her injuries were attended to.

Disappearance of A. N. Armstrong

Mr. A. N. Armstrong, an agent for Diamond Polish, husband of Mrs. Armstrong, 544 Donegal street, has mysteriously disappeared. He was last heard of on June 29th. It was his custom to send twelve letters a week to his wife, one containing a money order for the maintenance of his family. Since 29th of June nothing has been heard of him. He was then at Smith's Falls. The police of that town have been notified, but no clue to his whereabouts can be found.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

CITY FATHERS IN REGULAR SESSION

Purchasers of Coal May Have same Weighed on Market Scales if so Desired

Last night at the council chamber the City Council met in Committee of the Whole. Those present were, Mayor Rush, Alderman Phelan, McIntyre, Morrow, Turner, Buller, Morgan, Elliott, Tovey and Johnston.

Mr. J. Sullivan awaited upon the the council in regards to a drain which is being constructed on Park street south, near Parnell street. He stated that every spring this drain overflowed, and the water made its way into his cellar. He also said the men were now constructing it in such a way that it cannot pass the G.T.R. track, and will therefore be of little use. The mayor told Mr. Sullivan that the matter would receive their attention, and instructed Ald. Phelan to look into the matter.

Word was received from the Railway Commission and it ordered the city to see that a man was placed at Reid street crossing near William Hamilton's, and that they also pay one-third the cost of maintaining the watch. Ald. Buller thought that the Railway Commissioners should not have power to order such things, and in that way they were a hindrance to the country.

A discussion arose between Aldermen Morrow and Johnston, as to the number of lights that should be placed on Wilber street. Ald. Johnston stated that they would have only five placed there, but Ald. Morrow thought that that was not enough and said about nine would be right.

An argument took place, and to settle it Ald. Morgan stated that a couple of lights were needed on Robson street between Mark and Roger streets, and he thought it would be fair to divide up and place two on Robson street and seven on Weller. This was moved by Ald. Morgan, and seconded by Ald. Elliott.

It was decided to build a sewer on London street, between Park and Downie, but Ald. Turner thought this was not needed yet, as there was no water supply on the street, and would not be there for a year and they would make good use of the money they would have to spend in the meantime. It was moved by Ald. Turner, and seconded by Ald. Elliott, that this be left with the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

The question was brought up in regard to the isolation hospital. Ald. Morgan thought it was not needed, but Ald. Morrow thought it was and it was left to the council. They decided to refer it back to the Property Committee for reconsideration. The following was the report;

PROPERTY COMMITTEE REPORT.

Gentlemen.—Your Property Committee beg leave to report as follows;

1. We recommend that the salary of Robert Wilson, car taker, be increased to $525 a year, to date from July 1st, 1908.

2. Your committee has been unable to obtain information in regard to the matter of a public abattoir as they have no information that there is one operated in Canada, and are not in a position to make a recommendation as to the establishing of such an abattoir in Peterborough.

3. We instructed the chief constable to take such action as may be necessary to have the old raceway on the east side of the river immediately cleaned and put in a proper sanitary condition.

4. In view of the heavy expenditures at the present time and the also rise of contagious diseases your committee does not deem it advisable to erect an isolation hospital at present, and recommend that the Board of Health be advised to have the hospital tent ready to put up for use should the necessity arise.

5. We recommend that Ald. Johnston and Morgan be a sub-committee to procure options on property for a site for a public library.

Ald. Morrow brought up the question of another outfall sewer, and thought it wise to have the city engineer consult an expert on the matter, and it was then moved by Ald. Morrow and seconded by Ald. McIntyre that the city engineer consult a sanitary inspector in regard to an outfall sewer.

The following is the report to the committee of the whole which was adopted:

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE.

Gentlemen.—Your Committee of the Whole Council beg leave to report and recommend as follows,

1. That the matter of the Peterborough Light & Power Company opening streets for laying and repairing gas mains be referred to a committee composed of Aldermen Phelan, Bradburn and Gill spic, and the city solicitor, to confer with the company in regard to an arrangement and to draft an agreement.

2. That so much of section 4 of the report of the Finance Committee adopted by the City Council on July 8th, 1908, as provided that the assessments of park lots Nos. 1, 2, and 3 be reduced only when deeds of the lands taken for the extension of George street are given to the city be rescinded.

Ald. Morrow read the report of the Finance Committee which was also adopted as read.

FINANCE REPORT

Gentlemen.—Your Finance Committee beg leave to report and recommend as follows;

1. That arrears of taxes of $111, sewer taxes charged to the North Ward school, and 90 cents, sewer tax and $1.47 sid walk taxes charged to a lane on Burnham street, which is a public lane, be written off, and that these taxes be remitted for this and subsequent years.

2. That the usual grant of $500 be made to the 57th Regt. Band on the usual terms.

3. That in view of the increased amount of taxes it will be necessary to look after, we recommend that the council pay the cost of the guarantee bond of the collector of taxes.

4. That the mayor represent the city at the luncheon in Toronto, to Lord Roberts on the kind invitation of the mayor of Toronto, and that his expenses be paid.

5. That hereafter for the purpose of paying wages on the weekly pay lists one cheque be issued to the city treasurer for the amount of the pay lists, and that the men be paid in cash each Friday evening between five and seven o'clock and their receipts taken.

6. That Ald. Phelan and the city clerk attend the annual meeting of the Ontario Municipal Association at Toronto in the interests of the city and that their expenses be paid.

7. That a charge of $1 for flushing pavement sewer connections be approved, and that of the sum $2 be awarded to the Board of Works and $2 be paid to the Water Commissioners for the water.

A number of accounts were passed.

The chairman of the Legal Committee then read his report and it was adopted.

WILL PAY HALF COST.

Gentlemen.—Your Legal Committee beg leave to report that they have arranged a settlement of the claim of W. D. Morris, and that the Peterborough Radial Railway Company has agreed to pay half the cost, and we recommend that the city treasurer be authorized to issue a cheque to carry out the settlement on the order of the chairman of this committee.

STREET WATERING.

Ald. Turner moved, seconded by Ald. McIntyre.—That the Board of Works be requested to consider having the streets in the central portion of the city watered late on each Saturday night when needed in the summer.—Carried.

BYLAWS.

A bylaw providing a grant of $500 to the 57th Regt. Band, passed its several readings.

A bylaw approving of the registration of a plan for the extension of Bethune street to Aberdeen avenue passed its several readings.

Alderman Morgan fathered a bylaw providing for the weighing of coal on the market scales, free of charge, at any time the chief of police or the purchaser of said coal desires such action to be taken. This bylaw carried. The measure was seconded by Ald. Johnston.

City Clerk Armstrong was granted two weeks' holidays to commence this week.

The council then adjourned.

On motion of Ald. Johnston, seconded by Ald. Phelan.—The Finance Committee were authorized to exercise their judgment in contributing towards the sufferers from the big Fernie, B.C., fire.

$100 Reward, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh, being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

John Powers was the only one in the dock at police court yesterday morning. He was charged with vagrancy, and was given three months on this bill by City Clerk Armstrong.

Wm. Hamilton Co. Foundry May Resume Operations

A report was circulated throughout the city yesterday to the effect that a syndicate composed of Toronto and local gentlemen will take over the Wm. Hamilton Co. foundry, and will employ a large number of hands, and that operations would be commenced in the near future. A Chicago company have also been seeking information about the plant, and the inducements Peterborough will offer.

Drink-Crazed Farm-Hand Shot Two Then Killed Himself

Sat with Dying Victims Four Hours, Then Snuffed His Life Out

Aged Mother Escaped

Chicago, Aug. 4.—A tragedy of suicide and attempted murder, as a result of which one person is dead and two are dying, occurred today at Blackberry Center, a village near Batavia, Ill., and will leave a blind woman, 90 years old, as the sole survivor of a wealthy farmer's household. The probable fatal shooting of J. A. Morrill, well known as a philanthropist, was swiftly followed by the attempted murder of his housekeeper, Miss May Balcolm. After the shooting, John Larson, the maniacal assailant, held the wounded pair sitting upright in their chairs talk to her Larson, too, seated himself with the gun across his knee. He said nothing to his victims, merely muttering to himself.

Thus four long hours were dragged out, the wounded pair groaning feebly at times. At the end of the fourth hour, Larson said;

"Well, nobody is coming to shoot me, after all. I believe I will shoot myself."

The next second he suited the action to the word, and the blind woman groped her way from the house.

BLIND MOTHER GIVES ALARM

The pathos of the grisly drama was supplied by Morrill's aged mother, totally blind, whose life had been spared by a whim of the madman. When the final explosion, followed by a fresh scent of gunpowder and blood told her that Larson was no more a menace, she groped for a quarter of a mile along a country road to the nearest dwelling, where she fainted, after gasping out her fearful message.

"I WON'T KILL YOU."

Larson, who had been eight years on the Morrill farm, was treated as one of the family. His resentment toward Morrill is believed to have grown out of recent disagreements resulting from drinking on the part of Larson.

After Larson had placed his bleeding and unconscious victims in two chairs, his murderous mood seemed to change to one of pity. He began to bind their wounds with handkerchiefs.

He heard a rustling at the door and on turning saw that it was Morrill's feeble old mother.

"I won't kill you, old lady," he said with a peculiar effort at courtesy. "Sit down and make yourself at home; I'm going to watch over the two here; they need guarding."

SAT BY DYING SON

The blind woman took a chair near that of her wounded son. She realized only dimly what had happened and her son, still conscious, dared not talk to her. Larson, too, seated himself with the gun across his knee. He said nothing to his victims, merely muttering to himself.

Thus four long hours were dragged out, the wounded pair groaning feebly at times. At the end of the fourth hour, Larson said;

"Well, nobody is coming to shoot me, after all. I believe I will shoot myself."

The next second he suited the action to the word, and the blind woman groped her way from the house.

In The Realm of Sport

The Chieftain Baseball team succeeded in defeating Bowmanville yesterday afternoon by a score of 9—8. There was a fairly large crowd of rooters present, and they witnessed one of the best games of the season. The visitors are the leaders in the Central Ontario League, and came up here to play the winners of the church league. They should have been playing the winners of the Midland League. The youngsters played snappy ball and had their big opponents always guessing. Bill Fallon the little centar fielder of the Chieftains, practically won the game by a nice single in the last of the eighth. He drove a three bagger in the fifth and also made a sensational catch.

Frank Kennally umpired satisfactorily.

Splendid Prospects for Duck Shooting Season

Gore's Landing, Aug. 3.—The lovers of the grand sport of duck shooting state that present prospects for the coming autumn are fine, and that the opening of the season will find game plentiful in Rice Lake and the Otonabee. From Hale's Bridge down the young birds may be seen flying along the shores and feeding on the banks, and the fact has filled many a sportsman's heart with pleasure.

Mr. Frank Taylor and family and Mr. A. Vass and family, Peterborough, have gone home, after spending two weeks at the G.G.E. Anglers' cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. Bellamy, Toronto, are with friends in the vicinity.

Mr. Eugene McNeboll, of the Bank of Toronto staff, Berlin, is holidaying with his mother, Mrs. (Dr.) McNeboll, Cobourg, and his sister here.

Mrs. Williams and Miss Viola Crank, Toronto, are at Keene, staying with Mrs. Wm. Kent.

Mrs. D. B. Shepard, Toronto, is staying with her daughter, Mrs. (Dr.) McWilliams, of Keene.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams entertained a party of friends on the steam yacht "Marmada," on Saturday, calling at Harwood, Idyl Wyld, Gore's Landing and Wilbrock's.

A well known banker was fishing in the Otonabee the other morning along with some other anglers. Getting an unusually vigorous bite he began to play it in a professional way. The rod swayed with the struggle and suddenly there appeared a big eel. The angler appeared satisfied, however, and stuck to it, and it was gamer than a dozen lungers.

Mr. T. R. Carman, organist of St. Peter's church, Cobourg, Mr. M. D. G. Purser, and party from Cobourg are holidaying on Grape Island.

History is Made

And Science Added by the Work of Missionaries

New York, August 4.—The fact that a missionary from an American board has just reduced to a written science the language of the Chamorras, who constitute four-fifths of the inhabitants of this Island of Guam, now an American possession, calls to mind the fact that missionaries have been important contributors to science for more than a century.

Livingstone was conspicuous in this work. He gave to civilization the first knowledge of the now famous Lake Tanganyika copper mines, and added 25 different fruits and several dyes and oils to the hitherto known list.

The late Dr. Fairbank, of the American Board Mission, made the finest collection of birds and shells in the British museum, while his scientific knowledge greatly aided the Indian government in its combat with plague and famine.

Charles Darwin, in his book on Patagonia, gave credit for his knowledge to the intrepid missionary. Titus Coan; missionaries furnished the first map of Hawaii, and have supplied many of the charts of the Pacific now in use, and it was from such sources that America received its first seeds of some of the most important cereals, vegetables and flowers, while in the realm of archeology they have held foremost rank.

Is Disease a Crime?

Not very long ago, a popular magazine published an editorial article in which the writer asserted, in substance, that all disease should be regarded as criminal. Certain it is, that much of the sickness and suffering of mankind is due to the violation of certain of Nature's laws. But to say that all sickness should be regarded as criminal, must appeal to every reasonable individual as radically wrong.

It would be harsh, unsympathetic, cruel, yes criminal, to condemn the poor, weak, over-worked housewife who sinks under the heavy load of household cares and burdens, and suffers from weaknesses, various displacements of pelvic organs and other derangements peculiar to her sex.

Frequent bearing of children, with its exacting demands upon the system, coupled with the care, worry and labor of rearing a large family, is often the cause of weaknesses, derangements and debility which are aggravated by the many household cares, and the hard, and never-ending work which the mother is called upon to perform. Dr. Pierce, the maker of that world-famed remedy for woman's peculiar weaknesses and ills—Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—says that one of the greatest obstacles to the cure of this class of maladies is the fact that the poor, over-worked housewife can not get the needed rest from her many household cares and labor to enable her to secure from the use of his "Prescription" its full benefits. It is a matter of frequent experience, he says, in his extensive practice in these cases, to meet with those in which his treatment fails by reason of the patient's inability to obtain from hard work long enough to be cured. With those suffering from prolapsus, anteversion and retroversion of the uterus or other displacement of the womanly organs, it is very necessary that, in addition to taking his "Favorite Prescription" they abstain from being very much, or for long periods, on their feet. All heavy lifting or straining of any kind should also be avoided. As much out-door air as possible, with moderate, light exercises is also very important. Let the patient observe these rules and the "Favorite Prescription" will do the rest.

IMPLY AND IMPORTANT

The question of forest preservation and forest renewal is one of wide and earnest discussion on both sides of the boundary. For twenty-six years there has been talk of a probable timber famine, but the fact is that this famine is not in the future—it is here. When prices rise continuously at a rapid rate there must be a famine. Not an absolute absence of material, but an increase of prices makes a famine; and the prices have risen very steadily since about 1899.

Experts estimate that this rise will go on steadily. Every year purchasers pay about eight per cent. more for wood than the year before. For this reason the general public have a vital interest in the forestry question because it touches the individual pocket.

It has been noted that while before 1899 prices went up and down from year to year, but on the whole remained level, from the year 1899 prices of all grades of wood began an upward course. The explanation is that in 1899 the data collected by the United States census regarding supply and demand of forest products became known, which showed that in predicting this timber famine experts were not so very far out of the way.

Not supply and demand, but knowledge of supply and demand makes prices, and the trouble has been in the past the absence of knowledge as to the country's timber resources, and his lack of knowledge still militates against the work of reform. During the last few years the knowledge has increased and this result has been, that prices have risen as it became known that the supply was less than had been supposed.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Those who imagine that the German emperor and his military chiefs are constantly planning attacks on England or France and thinking of war in the near future will be rather puzzled by a bulletin that has just been issued by the general staff of the kaiser's army. The document is the work of an authority, General Blume, and it is full of interest. Exactly why it is issued just at this time has not been explained, but perhaps the intention is to give the jingoes and fire-eaters food for reflection.

The bulletin declares that the next European war would be a veritable orgy of blood; that each of the powers concerned would lose 900,000 men, killed and wounded, if the war lasted as long as the Russo-Japanese conflict; that the cost in treasure would amount, in Germany's case, to $1,540,000,000 a year, and that the indirect cost, through financial depression and the paralysis of industry, would be far greater.

General Blume adds that in view of existing alliances and understandings any war in Europe would involve four or even more powers. For the triple alliance is now opposed by a "triple understanding, and to all intents and purposes France and England are allies. Hence the cost to one nation ,just be multiplied by four at least, and when that is done the result is too appalling to contemplate.

Finally the expert suggests that such a war could only benefit the United States in its capacity as a world power and industrial competitor. The paralysis of others would prove its opportunity to invade and capture markets, to acquire supremacy in many directions, and so on.

If France or England had authorized the publication of such a bulletin by its general staff the military party would have accused the government of fear, cowardice and weakness. Germany is so powerful and so "military" that nothing of the sort can or will be said. What the bulletin sets forth is as true, doubtless, as it is terrible, and the terrible truth should make for sanity, for peace, for care in diplomacy and international dealings.

After Russia and Persia, Turkey. The circumstances under which the "sick man" of the near East has granted a constitution to his heterogeneous subjects—or has revived the constitution which had a brief and troubled career in the late '70s of the last century—plainly resemble in many respects those under which the czar was "stampeded" by [illegible] and a few other liberal advisers into giving Russia a measure of representative and parliamentary government. The Muscovite bureaucracy and court clique were driven to make concessions to progressive sentiment by the disasters and disgrace of the Manchurian war and the insurrections in many parts of the empire; the sultan was compelled to grant constitutional government by mutiny, assassination, disaffection among troops long considered absolutely "safe", conspiracies in the highest circles, and complications in Macedonia that threatened the intervention of the powers.

For weeks dispatches from Constantinople, from Albanian and Macedonian centres, from Paris, the headquarters of the Young Turk movement, had foreshadowed some momentous developments in Turkey. But not even the most hopeful and bold of the conspirators could have expected so sudden and apparently so complete a surrender on the part of the obstinate, crafty and treacherous Abdul Hamid. The very completeness of the success of the reform movement suggests the need of the wisdom of the serpent. The sultan knows what reaction has done in Russia and Persia; he would not hesitate to play the same game in an even more ruthless way. A long spell is needed in supping with him, and the leaders of the Young Turks, according to report are fully aware of that and, while ready to rejoice and hopeful, will be in no hurry to disarm.

Yet there are grounds for a more optimistic view of the situation than at first blush one is disposed to take. After all, neither Russia nor Persia has gone all the way back to autocracy and tyranny. The duma is functioning in the former country and extending its power gradually. The shah has had to promise an early election and another parliament, and to disavow all desire to wipe out the constitutional experiment. In Turkey, also, the constitution may "stick" this time, for Europe will support the reformers morally, and the troops are weary of serving without pay and without honor. Things have changed since 1876, and Turkey has had plenty of trouble and worry. Possibly the time for real advance is ripe, and she has joined the procession "for good".

News in Brief

London, July 31.—Colonel Crawford Lewis Allan, late of the Durham Light Infantry, [illegible] at Colchester Station just after exchanging some books at the railway book stall. Death attributed to heart disease.

FAMOUS OLD MILL DESTROYED.

Dedham mill, Essex, the old flour mill on the River Stour, immortalized in the paintings of Constable, has been almost totally destroyed by fire. The occupiers are Messrs. Elsom & Clover & Co.

PUBLIC CLOCK DESTROYED.

The premises occupied by Messrs. Carr, Austin and Co., provision merchants, Bexhill, were completely gutted by fire recently. The public clock erected to commemorate the Jubilee of Queen Victoria was destroyed.

SIXTEEN NEW CARDINALS.

A telegram from Rome states that on the celebration of his jubilee in September next, the Pope will hold an important consistory, at which sixteen new cardinals will be made, including six Italians, two French, one English, two Americans, two Austrians, one German, one Portuguese and one Spanish.

DR. CLIFFORD'S RATES.

After arrival at the Westbourne Park Chapel, Dr. Clifford announced that he had been summoned for the seventeenth time for his rates, and was to appear before the magistrates on Thursday. He asked all those present who could do so to be there. Dr. Talmage, of Chicago, who was the preacher, called out, "May I go, too?" Dr. Clifford replied, "Certainly."

London, July 30.—"Ruined by a ghost" in this way two Birkdale builders, Thomas Brown and John Bond, explained at the public examination how the plaid became bankrupt.

The debtors, who had been in business for upwards of twenty years said that the principal cause of their failure was their inability to get tenants for some houses they built. One of the houses, it was stated, had rarely been occupied twelve months out of eight and a half years, and another was empty for five years within the same period.

Pressed for a fuller explanation, Mr. Brown said the property had suffered from a ghost story.

"No, I never saw it", replied Mr. Brown, when asked if he had seen the ghost, "but there was an old house built a good many years ago, which stood by itself in a field in front of ours, and there was some bother with some ventriloquists there at one time."

The Official Receiver: And that old house was said to be haunted? Yes.

Mr. Bond (the other debtor): There were hundreds of people went one night to overthrow it.

The Official Receiver: Did you ever see anything of the ghost?

Digby, N. S., August 1—The session of public session of the Fisheries commission commenced yesterday in the Court House in Digby. Professor Prince announced that in addition to the shad, Hon. Mr. Brodeur desired the Gaspereau and salmon fisheries of the Bay of Fundy to be included in the commission's investigation.

Valuable information was laid before the commission by fishermen from Barton, Plympton, and Digby. Further sittings will be held here to-morrow, after which Commissioners Prince and Morrison will proceed to hold public meetings in the fishing districts of the province.

New York, July 28.—Tom, the old feline that has been the pet of seven mayors, couldn't stand the heat of the last few days. He dragged himself out of his favorite corner of the city hall, crawled out to a grass plot north of the building and collapsed. A short time later agents of the Humane Society carted him away and put him to death along with a dozen or more stray cats and dogs.

Such was the end of probably the best known cat in the city.

It was twenty years ago, during the administration of Mayor Hewitt, when Tom, a kitten, and a very lonely one, blew into the city hall. It came in the trail of a terrific storm in midwinter, and he refused to be put out. Kicks and forced flights from second story windows had no effect on him, and his persistence at last won the admiration of Mary Kyan. He grew to be a fairly good looking cat, and he numbered among his friends during his residence in the city hall, Mayors Hewitt, Grant, Gilroy, Strong, Van Wyck, Low and Mc[illegible]Clellan.

Jealous of his handsome home, Tom never let any other cat stop there even for a brief period. Two or three years ago he killed a rat which insisted on sleeping in the corridors.

For the last five years he had been deaf. For two years he had been half blind. But he always spent at least half of each day in his favorite corner, and seemed to wait for the caresses and kind words of the hundred or more persons who made it a daily practice to speak to him.

Toronto, July 31.—Mr. George Taylor, the Conservative whip, expresses the opinion that the general election for the Dominion House will be held in October, on or about the 15th. There would be no use, said Mr. Taylor, in calling Parliament under the same conditions as existed during the past session, with the Opposition in the humor it has been in for some little back, the Laurier Government cannot hope to accomplish anything under those condition, and must go to the people in order to bring about a change.

Winnipeg, July 31.—It was learned that at a meeting of the C. P. R. Trades Council last evening all of the interested mechanical unions voted practically to a man to reject the majority report of the Board of Conciliation. The leaders counselled delay and negotiations, but the men were of opinion that delay would be dangerous to their interests. They believe they hold the whip hand now with the unusually busy season opening. To this makers were practically unanimous in the report, claiming that it means a cut in wages of practically London, July 25.—For trifling with the affections of two young men, a nineteen-year-old girl named Lucie Panton, living near Paris, has just been shot dead. The two men, Leon Charret and Alfred Millet, had been friends from childhood. Recently they met in the street after having lost sight of each other for some time. They had both the same story to tell—namely, that they were about to be married. Finally they parted after arranging a meeting between their respective financées.

The next day as Charret was walking with a sweetheart's house to keep the appointment, he met her walking arm in arm with Millet. He was too surprised to speak, but Millet joyfully introduced his companion as his future wife.

The girl then upon explained that she had only been amusing herself, and would really marry neither of them. Charret, white with rage, drew a revolver and fired at them. The girl was mortally injured, and Millet had his shoulder fractured. The murderer was arrested.

Victoria, B. C., August 1.—The news of murders and cannibalism in the Bismarck Archipelago, followed by a German punitive expedition, in which some villages were burned, and the capture of a trading schooner and the murder of Oliver Burns, a Sydney trader, in the Solomon Group, was brought by the steamer Aorangi, which arrived from Australia via Honolulu. Three mission boys were victims of the cannibalistic affair. The three boys were killed and their bodies carried to the hills, where a feast was held. The same mission was the scene of a massacre in 1901, when it was rushed an d five missionaries and brothers, and five sisters were massacred.

The repatriated islanders from Australia have reverted to savagery, having taken back the vices of the white man, without his redeeming points, and settlers in the South Seas have had to arm themselves for protection in consequence.

It is estimated that a thousand lives have been secured by the blacks within a short time.

London, July 30.—In a brochure published in Leipzig, under the title "Banzai" the author, who conceals his identity, paints a lurid picture of a coming Japanese-American war.

The American fleet is on its homeward voyage when the cables are cut to Manila. This is explained by a steamer which arrives with a Hong-Kong newspaper describing how a typhoon has interrupted telegraphic communication. Not till two days later do the American garrison discover that war has broken out, and simultaneously the American naval [illegible] is blown up by a Japanese tramp. The Philippines are attacked and San Francisco is seized by an army of Japanese, who have been mysteriously from various shops."

Fearful financial panic in the United States follows, and yellow men are generally massacred when they show themselves. The American fleet while maneuvering is attacked by a Japanese force, which sinks every ship, Admiral Sperry going down last with his flagship. Finally, the Americans assemble a great army and expel the Japanese. England is represented as treacherously aiding Japan, while the final victory of the United States is declared to be due to German officers.

Heat prostrates the nerves. In the summer one needs a tonic to off-set the customary hot weather. Nerve and Strength is a tonic. You will feel better within 48 hours after beginning to take such a remedy as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Its prompt action in restoring the weak and nerve is surprising. Of course, you won't get entirely strong in a few days, but each day you can actually feel the improvement. That tired, lifeless, spiritless, feeling will quickly depart when using the Restorative. Dr. Shoop's Restorative will sharpen a failing appetite; it aids digestion; it will strengthen the weakened Kidneys and Heart by simply rebuilding the worn-out nerves that those organs depend upon. Test it a few days and be convinced. Sold by all dealers

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, marked on the envelope "Tenders for Construction," will be received at the office of the Commissioners of the Transcontinental Railway, at Ottawa, until twelve o'clock noon of Tuesday, the 20th day of August, 1908, for the works required for the construction of the Transcontinental Railway, between Quebec and Winnipeg, as follows:—

(a) District "C"—From a point about 107 miles east of Winnipeg, to a point on the plains of the Commissioners near Wyatt, about 16 miles west of Qu'Appelle Station, a distance of about 107 miles. Date of completion, 31st December, 1910.

(b) District "D"—From a point on the plains of the Commissioners near Wyatt, about 16 miles west of Qu'Appelle Station, to a point on the plains of the Commissioners, about 107 miles west of Wyatt, a distance of about 107 miles. Date of completion, 31st December, 1910.

(c) District "E"—From a point on the plains of the Commissioners, being at the western end of Farquar Bros' Contract in the Province of Ontario, in a westerly direction for a distance of about 101.24 miles. Date of completion, 31st December, 1910.

(d) District "F"—From a point also on the plains of the Commissioners, about sixty miles west of the easterly boundary of District "E" in the Province of Ontario, easterly to the end of Farquar Bros' contract, north of Lake Nipigon, a distance of about 100 miles. Date of completion, 31st December, 1910.

(e) Districts "G" and "H"—From a point on the plains of the Commissioners, at the western end of Farquar Bros' contract, north of Lake Nipigon, in the Province of Ontario, westerly to a point at or near Dog Lake, a distance of about 125 miles. Date of completion, 1st September, 1910.

(f) District "I"—From a point on the plains of the Commissioners at or near Dog Lake, in the Province of Ontario, to a point at or about mile 236 west of what is known as Pinard's Crossing, by the most convenient routes as shown on the plans, a distance of about 236 miles by the northerly route, and 214 miles by the southerly route, the portion of the route to be at the option of the Commissioners. Date of completion, 1st September, 1910.

Plans, profiles and specifications may be seen at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Commissioners at Ottawa; also at the offices of the following District Engineers, viz;—John Ayles, Acting District Engineer, North Bay, Ont; F. S. Armstrong, Nipigon, Ont; and S. R. Poulin, St Boniface, Man

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made in duplicate, and on the printed forms supplied by the Commissioners.

A separate tender must be submitted for each section.

Tenderers shall not in any way entitled to rely upon the classification, or any other information given by any person on behalf of the Commissioners; and before submitting any tender, bidders should make a careful examination of the plans, profiles, drawings and specifications, and read the forms to be executed, and fully inform themselves as to the quantity and quality of materials and character of workmanship required, and are understood to accept, and agree to be bound by, the terms and conditions of the form of contract, specifications, etc., annexed to the form of tenders.

Each tender must be sealed and sealed by all the parties to the tender, and witnessed, and be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank of the Dominion of Canada, payable to the order of the Commissioners of the Transcontinental Railway as follows:—

Sec No 1, District "C" ... $150,000
Sec No 2, District "C" ... 150,000
Sec No 3, District "D & F" ... 150,000
Sec No 4, District "E" ... 150,000
Sec No 5, District "E & F" ... 200,000
Sec No 6, District "F" 100,000

Any person whose tender is accepted shall within ten days after the acceptance thereof furnish such additional approved security as may be required by the Commissioners, sign the contract, specifications, and other documents required to be signed by the said Commissioners; and, in any case of refusal or failure on the part of the party whose tender is accepted to complete and execute a contract with the said Commissioners, and to furnish additional sureties, and to furnish the additional approved security within ten days after the acceptance of the tender, the said cheque shall be forfeited to the Commissioners as liquidated damages for such refusal or failure, and all contract rights acquired by the acceptance of the tender shall be forfeited. The cheques deposited by persons whose tenders are not accepted will be returned to them within ten days after the signing of the contract.

Attention is called to the following clauses in the form of contract:—

"All mechanics, Labourers or other persons who perform labor for the purposes of the construction of the works by the contractor, shall be paid such wages as are generally accepted as current for competent workmen in the district in which the work is being performed, and if there is no current rate in such district, then fair and reasonable rates; and in the event of a dispute as to what is the current or a fair and reasonable rate, it shall be determined by the Commissioners, whose decision shall be final."

"This agreement is subjected to the regulations now in force, or which may at any time hereafter be in force during the construction of the works hereby contracted for, made under the authority of the Department of Labor, and which are or shall be applicable to such work." (The schedule of minimum wages determined upon by said Department will form part of the contract).

"The contractor will in connection with the whole of the said work, (as far as practicable) use only such local machinery, plant, supplies and skilled or unskilled labour or products of Canada, as may be the most economical and upon equal terms as to quality and price, as may be obtained in open market, or by tender or contract, and in the employment of labour, preference shall be given, other things being equal, to bona fide residents of Canada, and in the purchase of supplies, preference shall be given to those which are the growth, produce or manufacture of Canada, other things being equal."

The contractor will also conform to the regulations adopted by the Commissioners, and also with laws and regulations respecting labour in the different provinces wherein the work is being performed.

By order,
P. E. RYAN,
Secretary.

The Adored One.

He is a confirmed bachelor. In fact, his attitude toward women is almost that of a misogynist. His particular bete noire is a new acquaintance of his sister, Miss Blank.

He met her in the street the other day and, seeing no way out of it, stopped and spoke to her. She saw how he was fidgeting to get away and said:

"You seem very preoccupied. Ah, I know! You are thinking of the one you adore."

"I adore no one," was his stiff rejoinder.

"You can't deceive me. I know you are deeply in love. Besides, your sister showed me a photo of the object of your devotion only last night. It isn't a type I admire. But, there, every one to his taste. I won't tell any one. Goodby."

And before he could reply she was gone.

When he reached home he said to his sister:

Then it dawned upon him what Miss Blank was driving at.—London Scraps.

Automatic Salt Works.

About a hundred miles north of Lima, near the town of Huacho, is one of the great curiosities of nature, a salt factory on an automatic plan. When the tide comes in it fills a lot of shallow basins, and the water is prevented from flowing back into the sea by closing the gates. The atmosphere is so dry that the water evaporates rapidly and leaves a sediment of salt in an almost pure state, which is scraped up, packed into sacks and shipped to market. Within the coast a little farther the percolation of sea water through the porous rocks into pits and hollows has caused immense deposits of salt to accumulate. The salt is taken out in blocks six or eight inches square and sold in that form. As soon as the salt is excavated the water comes in again and in a year or two has solidified and is ready for the market. Wells driven into the sand disclose strongly impregnated water at a depth of twenty-five feet, which seems to be a great deal heavier than the sea water, and is drawn off into vats for evaporation.

London, July 31.—The appeal in the case of the Attorney-General of Ontario vs. Woodruff was allowed, and the cross appeal dismissed, the Attorney-General to pay all costs of both appeals.

Cough Caution

Never, positively never poison your lungs. If you cough—even from a simple cold only—you should always heal, soothe, and ease the irritated bronchial tubes. Don't blindly suppress it with a stupefying poison. It's strange how some things finally come about. For twenty years Dr. Shoop has constantly warned people not to take cough mixtures of prescriptions containing Opium, Chloroform, or similar poisons And now—a little late though—Congress says "Put it on the label, if poisons are in your Cough Mixture." (and) Very good! Hats off for this very reasonable law. And others, should imitation having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison marks on Dr. Shoop's labels—and none in the medicine, else it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but is said to be by those that know it best, a truly reliable cough remedy. Take no chances then, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and note the difference. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding

In the early days of [illegible] was the custom to [illegible] a sailor who was [illegible] in consequence of the [illegible] rough verge of the [illegible] This caused the blue collar of the [illegible] material to the proper [illegible] added, but without much success. [illegible] collar looked quite as untidy, and though the idea of putting the blue frill over the verge was adopted, the drill collar being superior in [illegible] and keeping clean. The lanyard was worn to represent the cross marking of the ship and the tackle was declared that to be paraded over the quarter-deck's object in life was death to his enemy.

In those days the neck was exposed, but as time went on more thought was given to the welfare of the men, this was found to be injurious to the health; hence the substitute of the white neck tassel while being used to give the effect of the uncovered neck.

The two rows of white braid at the top of the cuff represent England and Ireland, the one row at the bottom showing that Scotland had not become annexed. The rows of braid on the collar represent wholly and solely the victories of Nelson

At the opening of Lord Nelson's grand career and his first great victory at Aboukir the first row of braid was put on the collar, and Jack was a proud and happy man, and he became still prouder and happier when Aboukir was followed by Nelson's greater victory at Copenhagen and the second row was added. But he became the proudest and happiest man and, alas, also the most sorrowful and grief stricken when that great hero and magnificent [illegible] of naval conquest lost his life [illegible] victory at Trafalgar, and so the third row of braid went on, but there was no more to come after it, for "the last place" had sounded for the gallant sailor, his last fight fought, his last victory won. To signify the mourning which filled the hearts of all English sailors the black scarf was added. This was the origin of the British tar's uniform, which is both historical and theographical and dear to the heart of all English people.

Heat prostrates the nerves. In the summer one needs a tonic to offset the customary hot weather Nerve and Strength depression. You will feel better within 48 hours after beginning to take such a remedy as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Its prompt action in restoring the weakened nerves is surprising. Of course, you won't get entirely strong in a few days, but each day you can actually feel the improvement. That tired, lifeless, spiritless, feeling will quickly depart when using the Restorative. Dr. Shoop's Restorative will sharpen a failing appetite, help digestion, it will strengthen the weakened Kidneys and Heart by simply rebuilding the worn-out nerves that these organs depend upon. Test it a few days and be convinced. Sold by all dealers.

7 Per Cent. First Mortgage Five-Year Gold Bonds

dated January 11, 1908, and maturing January 11, 1913. These Bonds are offered at par and accrued interest by Metropolitan Trust & Savings Bank, Chicago, trustees.

SECURITY—The Entire Property and Improvements Owned THE URES CONSOLIDATED MINING COMPANY in the District of Ures, State of Sonora Mexico, Free from Mortgage of Bonded Indebtedness except this present Bond Issue.

An Unusual Opportunity for Investment in Sound Security

The Ures Consolidated Mining Company offers $100,000.00 of First Mortgage Gold Bonds. This issue of bonds is the only mortgage or bonded indebtedness ever placed on the company's properties.

These bonds are in the denomination of $100.00, and bear interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, July and January, and are redeemable on or before five years from date at the company's option at $110.00 and accrued interest.

$100.00 Stock Bonus Given with Every $100.00 Bond

With each bond issued there will be given $100.00 par value of the capital stock of the company as a bonus, and in addition thereto there will be placed in escrow with the Trustee additional stock which will be available to the bondholders at their option any time within a period of three years, the bondholder being entitled to surrender his bond any time within said period and receive in lieu thereof stock for every dollar of indebtedness to him on account of said bonds.

The Security Back of these Bonds.

The company owns twelve claims situated in the district of Ures, State of Sonora, Mexico, free from mortgage or bonded indebtedness, except the present bond issue

On one of these properties (The Ramona Mine) 5,000 feet of underground development work has been done, consisting of an inclined shaft to the depth of 440 feet with drifts in three levels to the North and South of the shaft.

An average value of ore worth $11.47 per ton is exposed throughout the mine, from the collar of the shaft to the extreme parts in the drifts, all of which is above water level.

The company has made surface improvements and mine improvements to the extent of $50,000.00 in the way of machinery, skids, trams, steam hoists, mill and nearly everything necessary to make the mining camp complete.

In addition to the absolute ownership of these twelve valuable claims, the company has a lease on the San Jose Mine, adjoining its property, in which the company has been operating in high grade ore.

During the past sixty days the company has extracted and delivered to ore buyers and the bank at Hermosillo, $7,050.00 worth of ore and bullion, the ore having been reduced to bullion through the company's mill, with the exception of 1,485 pounds, which was sold to an ore buyer for $562.50.

The Money Derived from the Sale of These Bonds

This issue of bonds is made for the purpose of securing money at once in order to extend the development work more quickly than the company's present income will permit.

With the high grade ore in sight in the distance of 50 feet to the South of the shaft, the management is assured that within six months from date of making the improvements now necessary the company's properties will be on a self-sustaining and dividend-paying basis.

The Stock which is Given with these bonds will be as valuable as the bonds when the Company has the ready capital to push operations

Men who invest in these bonds will have no cause or reason to regret their action, for the bonds afford an investment in a security which is absolutely safe—much better than ordinary city or country real estate, which is considered perfectly safe if the property put up to secure a mortgage is double the face of the loan. The security given on these bonds is better than 7 to 1, for the Ures Consolidated Mining Company has refused an offer of $750,000.00 for the property upon which this $100,000.00 worth of bonds is issued.

These bonds are an investment with all speculative risk eliminated—an investment with absolute security.

Make your reservation at once. This is small and promises to be quickly sold.

To whom it may concern:—

We hereby beg to state that The Ures Consolidated Mining Company has during the past five years made several deliveries of bullion to this bank, and it is the opinion of mining men here that they have the making of a fair mine, and further, that the properties owned and controlled by them bid promise of becoming paying properties.

From our knowledge of the men connected, we believe they are doing all in their power to bring about the results above mentioned.

RAWHIDE-DULZURA

1 CENT A 2 SHARE

Send us your name as a member in this new company, with your remittance for as many thousand shares as you can take at 35 per thousand.

This is a short-time offer on a hurry-up proposition. Our vice president is up at Rawhide now putting the miners at work. We want to raise the necessary funds for development as quickly as possible. Therefore, we offer the first block of stock at 35 a thousand shares. This subscription must be all cash. We want the money in hand. We mean to work without let-up, and we have made it an ironclad rule not to run in debt. Cash counts now.

Our prospectuses are out. Send for one.

Make reservation of stock, if you do no more. But, remember, this present offer of stock at Half a Cent a Share is now open, and will be closed as soon as enough cash subscriptions are in hand. Don't wait, or you will get left.

The gold mining property owned outright by the company consists of 7 claims, 5 in the Rawhide district of Nevada, and 2 in the Dulzura district of Southern California.

The Rawhide district to-day is more famous than Goldfield, Tonopah, Bullfrog, or Searchlight were at the same stage of exploration and development. The Dulzura discovery is one of the most sensational in the history of California.

Ten samples of ore which were among the first assayed, ran as high as $7,403.87 to the ton, and all ten averaged over $1,500 a ton.

In both camps we located early, and our locations are choice. Our own officers will superintend the mining.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the Northwest Provinces, excepting 8 and 26 reserved may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at any Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or since a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father or mother.

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

Clean Up Inside

Blood and System Cleansing in the Spring Makes Good Health all Summer.

In spite of all your careful habits, we safe to say that in the spring you feel poorly—have a throbbing sensation in the head—skin is pale or yellow, with dark rings under the eyes. If not absolutely bilious the system is so full of bile that you feel heavy and tired all day long.

Clean up, work off the winter's accumulation of waste, purify your blood. Do this and you'll feel fresh as a prize-fighter. "For ten years, says W. B. Bangster, of Concord, "I suffered greatly from impure blood, which made me feel debilitated and unfit for work. I had no appetite, suffered from indigestion and gas, had some pains in the back, caused by poor kidney action. Spring was the hardest time of all, and many a time I felt despondent and languid enough to throw up the sponge. I was impressed by the marvellous work done by Dr. Hamilton's Pills and tried them. They suited me exactly. In one week I felt like new. I was braced up, got rid of blood weakness, gained in flesh, got back my old time appearance and spirits. Dr. Hamilton's Pills will clean all the sickness out of a man in short order and I urge young and old to use this grand tonic medicine."

Dr. Hamilton's Pills are a perfect system medicine; they destroy germs and poisons of every description and strength whereby the system rallies and the patient quickly enjoys the blessings of Perfect Health. Get Dr. Hamilton's Pills—to-day—25c at all dealers.

Chief Black Cloud's

medicines—roots, herbs and barks—are all manufactured by himself.

Mr. F. Darcy Local Representative

Mr. Fred Darcy has been appointed local representative of the Canadian Jack Company of Wadsar, Ont. He will make his headquarters in Peterborough, his field of labor extending over Peterborough county. Representatives of this company have been in this vicinity for the past few weeks introducing their goods to the farmers, and they have met with good success.

August time, it is on the nerves. But that sparitless, no ambition feeling can be easily and quickly altered by taking what is known by druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Within 48 hours after beginning to use the Restorative, improvement will be noticed. Of course, full health will not immediately return. The gain, however, will surely follow. And best of all, you will realize and feel your strength and ambition as it is returning. Outside influences depress first the "inside nerves" then the stomach, Heart and Kidneys will usually fail. Strengthen these failing nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative and see how quickly health will be yours again. Sold by all dealers.

Narrow Escape from Drowning

Mr. Ed. Pugh of the Dominion Bank, had a narrow escape from drowning Saturday. He was paddling near Yankee Bonnett, when the canoe upset. Mr. Pugh could not swim, and had it not been for Harry Huffman, his companion, who is a good swimmer, he would no doubt have been drowned.

EMANCIPATION OF THE FAT FOLKS

To have to sit through the hot weather as quiet as a log, scarcely daring to breathe simply because one is so fat the least exertion will start the perspiration in a stream, is not a very lively prospect. But it has been the lot of the fat since time began until now.

Fat folks have been emancipated from hot weather misery at last, by a home mixture; 1-2 ounce Marmola, 3-4 ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, and 4 3-4 ounce Syrup Nimplex, of which they take a teaspoonful after meals, and at bedtime until—which won't be very long time—have lost all the fat they care to.

Simple and inexpensive (any druggist will fill it for a small sum) as the receipt is, the results it obtains are unexcelled. Some folks have lost as much as a pound a day within a week after starting. Yet, radical and delightful as such an effect is, there is no aftermath of wrinkles or stomach troubling, the mixture is harmless except to the fat itself.

Dream Troubles.

"Once when I was blue," said a business man, "a friend told me I was worrying over imaginary troubles. He cheered me up with a yarn about his little nephew. This little fellow's sister said one morning:

"'Oh, Gussie, I had such a lovely dream last night! I dreamed I was at a cake shop, and I had such loads of good things—ice cream, pie, strawberry shortcake, chocolates, jelly macaroons, kisses and lots of other things besides.'

"The little boy's eyes glistened. He smiled with delight.

"'And what was I eating?' he asked eagerly.

"'Oh, you wasn't there, Gussie.'

"Then, overwhelmed with sorrow, little Gussie hid his face in his hands and wept bitterly."

If the Earth Should Stop.

The stopping of a projectile always results in the generation of heat. The velocity and weight of a projectile being known, the amount of heat developed by its stoppage can be calculated. In the case of large bodies moving rapidly the result of the calculation is something astounding. For example, the earth weighs 6,000,000,000,000 tons and travels in its orbits at the rate of over eighteen miles a second. Should it strike a target strong enough to stop its motion the heat developed by the shock would be sufficient not merely to fuse the earth, but also to reduce a large portion of it to vapor. It has been calculated that the amount of heat generated by a collision so colossal would equal that obtained from the burning of fourteen globes of coal each equal to the earth in size. And should the earth after its stoppage fall into the sun, as it certainly would do, the amount of heat developed by its impact on the sun would be equal to that generated by the combustion of 5,000 earths of solid carbon.

The footprints of Dyspepsia have been directly traced to the Stomach nerves. When these "inside nerves" fail, indigestion and stomach distress must surely result. For these druggists everywhere are supplying a prescription known as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. First, these tiny inside Stomach, Heart, and Kidney nerves fail. Then gas bloating, Heart palpitation, or failing Kidneys follow. Don't drug the Stomach, or stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. That is wrong. Strengthen these failing nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative. It is the nerves, not the organs that are calling for help. Within 48 hours after starting the Restorative treatment, you will realize the gain. A test will tell. Sold by all dealers.

Only Ten Weddings for Month of July

There were only ten marriages in Peterborough during July, as compared with twenty for same month last year. What's wrong? Leap year does not seem to be living up to its reputation in Peterborough at any rate.

The vital statistics issued at the city hall yesterday for the month of July with comparison for the same month last year are as follows:—

Mr. Freeburn Meets an Awful Death

While driving a load of milk to the North Smith cheese factory Andrew Freeburn met a tragic death as a result of a runaway. While passing a buggy near the factory his team took fright and upset the wagon. The unfortunate man got the lines twisted around his arms in such a way that he was unable to get free. He was dragged by the horses nearly a mile when the lines broke and the unfortunate man set free, but being terribly injured, he only lived about 15 minutes. Dr. Fraser of Lakefield, was sent for but Mr. Freeburn had succumbed.

He was 50 years of age and lived half a mile from Young's Point. Mr. Freeburn is survived by a wife and nine daughters.

JAPANESE MAY CAUSE TROUBLE, YELLOW PERIL TALK DANGEROUS

Says W. T. R. Preston, If Western Nations Fail to Recognize Them as Equals

No Longer a Servant

London, Aug. 4.—In the August number of the National Review, W. T. R. Preston, Canadian Trade Commissioner to Japan, has a lengthy article on fair play for Japan. "The sooner," says Preston, "we dismiss the idea that Japan may possibly be a hewer of wood and a drawer of water for the western nations, the better. There could be no greater illusion as to the actual situation. It should be frankly and fairly faced. It may startle some stay-at-homes to realize that the Japanese regard themselves as the equal of any western nation.

The continual reference in the west to the so-called yellow peril is bound to create popular indignation which may have far-reaching results in the near future.

London, Aug. 4.—The Rt. Rev. William Awdry, Bishop of South Tokio, who is now on a visit to his old home in England, publishes a letter in the Times, in which he says:

"During the last two or three years inquisitive persons have been busy with the questions whether The Japanese might not go to war with America or invade Australia or covet the Philippine Islands. A few words from someone who has lived in Japan may be useful in helping to remove misapprehensions. I may say at the outset that, while in the Western newspapers there have been rumors of such things, which, of course, were reproduced more or less in Japan's newspapers, we in Japan have never had the slightest fear of a disturbance of the public from any of these causes.

"As regards the American question, the Japanese government has been so perfectly steady, has distinguished so clearly throughout between the local labor troubles of the West coast and the unmistakable attitude of President Roosevelt and his government, that I should really have thought it quite needless to say anything had I not personally met with the governor of the Bank of England, who was seriously anxious and full of questions on the subject. When there was the case, it is obvious that such rumors of wars must have had some financial influence detrimental to Japan and indirectly to the world.

THE ONE COMPLAINT.

"The one thing about which Japan cares in this matter, so far as I can make out, is not that the Japanese should be differentiated against, as a nation on a lower level than other nations of the world. If these exclusion rules on principle applicable to all other nations, or if Japan is recognized as entirely at liberty to do exactly the same to America, England, or any other nation as is done to her, no dangerous situation would arise. Suffice, it to say that though there are of course, some hot bloods in Japan as elsewhere, there never has been even an infinitesimal war party on the subject. One reads the anxieties of the yellow press in the West with nothing but amusement.

NO WAR WITH AUSTRALIA.

"Still more absolute has been the calm of the Japanese mind on the subject of Australia. Not a ripple has appeared to disturb it. Whence then comes the forebodings that certainly Japan does not want Australia, which have appeared largely in the Australian papers and have been echoed to some extent elsewhere? I think the answer is more or less complex. The Japanese are a rapidly increasing nation with a island empire; the Australians are a small white people less than two to the square mile of the land which they occupy, not rapidly increasing, but bent on keeping to themselves a whole continent, of which a large part cannot be turned to account with white labor. Now recent wars in the East have not infrequently been made on the theory, which may be right or wrong, that even a densely peopled country like China has no right to exclude altogether those who would at all further develop its resources in a progressive manner. A fortiori, advancing nations cannot be excluded from the countries of barbarous tribes, where the wealth of the world is quite undeveloped, and Maori or North American Indian races cannot claim all that as nomads they might like to spread over in the districts where they live. Still more plain is it that, if vast tracts of lands are almost wholly unoccupied, the people that occupy other districts of the same country cannot claim to keep them so.

"So far as I can see the rumors of Japanese designs on Australia rest on absolutely nothing but this rather unsavory consciences of those who are keeping them out of lands which they cannot use themselves. In Japan itself there is not a thought upon the subject, but no doubt it is desirable that the Australians wish to keep Australia to themselves, that they should be as quick as they can in making it useful to the world. Lands cannot remain unoccupied forever when many nations are requiring an outlet for their surplus population. The Australian conscience will be comforted and their fears allayed when they are using their continent as much a way as to be entitled to say that it is to the good of the world that it should be left to them.

"There has, of course, been more talk in regard to the Philippines, which has originated chiefly, it would seem, from the party in America that is opposed to annexation to anything beyond the continent of America, or at most the continent and its adjacent islands. Here again, I have never met with any expression of desire on the part of the Japanese for the possession of the Philippines. That has been a matter of imagination, but under certain circumstances it is obviously more likely to arise than any desire for Australia. I feel quite sure that at least for many years to come the Japanese sincerely hope that America will keep tight hold of the islands. The financial situation is not such as to lead Japan to desire fresh burdens and responsibilities. What with railway nationalization at home and developments in Korea and Manchuria, there is enough to do to last for a good many years. Yet I suppose that if America were to give up the islands, Japan would rather take the burden than see any European power established there which might hereafter be hostile and would involve the necessity of a great increase in the Japanese fleet for the protection of its interests in the Pacific.

"I write this not as having any special political knowledge, but simply from the point of view of common sense, coupled with the perfect quiescence of public opinion in Japan on all these matters, so far as a foreigner living in that country can judge. I think that a good deal of harm has probably been unjustly done to Japanese interests, especially in financial matters, by the constant recurrence in the newspapers of the West of these subjects, which are regarded as smoke indicating there must be fire to account for it.

Theory vs. Experience.

The telephone situation in Peterborough contains a lesson which it is well to revert to occasionally "lest we forget" and as a reminder to our neighbors, who may benefit by the example we have set.

In the early days Peterborough had its differences with the Bell Telephone Company, and in a spasm of resentment a number of prominent and public-spirited citizens sought relief in organizing a competing company. History records the absolute failure of that enterprise, though it had everything in its favor which any such undertaking could have. The Company had local capital, and plenty of it, subscribed by practically every business man in the place, giving the best possible influence for securing control of the situation; also experienced management and an up-to-date system. After one year's experience of a competing service, the unanimous conclusion was that the Bell Company wasn't so bad after all.

A few years later another proposition was presented, not based as before upon dissatisfaction with the existing service, but upon an aroused curiosity over the claims of an automatic machine, which makes every telephone user his own operator. People have seen such wonders in electrical development that they seem prepared to accept anything, and to invest their money in anything that has the claim of novelty. The automatic has a particular attraction for the inexperienced, especially when shown in small exhibition plants, where it is operated as a novelty rather than for practical business purposes, under the stress of every day usage and conditions.

Backed by prominent local business men, who had invested their money in the patents and in the promotion of this machine, our city Council granted the new company a liberal franchise, and the system was installed and put into operation. No money was spared in making the plant as perfect as possible, but nearly four years' operation has demonstrated that the automatic machine is by no means equal, either as a time-saver or in efficiency of service, to the system employed by the Bell Telephone Company. That the advantages claimed for the automatic telephones are a theoretical myth, and that after the novelty wore off the disadvantages of every one being his own operator were many, with the result that practically all business has been done over the Bell system. Hence, while the Automatic Machine Company, giving service without charge to its patrons, has been able to secure only about two hundred connections and has made little or no progress in three years, the Bell Company in the same period has increased its subscribers more than one hundred per cent., having now over one thousand subscribers connected with its Peterborough Exchange.

Such is Peterborough's experience, and therein is contained a lesson for other towns and cities, and for those who without practical knowledge may be tempted to invest their money in an attractive but practically inefficient telephone machine.

The Fruit Outlook IS Very Promising

Weather conditions in Canada have been favourable during the month of July for the fruit industry.

Apples are estimated somewhat lower for July than for June. Early and fall apples are estimated as slightly above medium. Winter apples at less than a medium crop. Quality good.

Pears are reported a light crop, except in British Columbia and Southern Ontario where a medium crop is expected.

Early peaches are reported a full crop.

Late peaches are reported light to medium.

Cherries have proved a medium crop and have sold at fair prices.

Plums are reported light generally. In British Columbia certain sections report a medium crop. In the Georgian Bay District three quarter varieties promise well.

Grapes are reported a full crop.

Strawberries and Raspberries have been reduced by dry weather, but the average has been very good.

Small fruits, other than the above, are yielding or promise a full crop.

Tomatoes are a medium crop, ripening early.

Insects and Fungous diseases are not as prevalent as usual.

The United States report prospects for a medium crop of apples, evenly distributed in seasons and territory. Peaches are a full crop. Other fruits good.

Great Britain has prospects for a medium crop of apples, other fruits being good.

Twenty-Two Dead Have Been Recovered at Fernie

THE DEAD

John Cupk, engineer, Hosmer.
Walter Ford, aged 60, miner, West Fernie.
Mrs. Walter Ford.
Daughter, aged 8.
Son, aged 2.
Miss Turner, an aged cripple.
Two children, names unknown.
Man, unknown, in ruins of Waldorf.
Man, unknown, found near Sparwood.
J. Anderson, stationary engineer, Pacific Coal Company.
Lena Bell, colored woman, Red Light district.
Two other women in same house.
Boy, unidentified.
Lumberjack, aged 30, in ruins.
Skeleton, unidentified.
Body of middle aged man.
Two men on track, near Wardner, supposed to be lumber jacks.
"Scotty" Miller, Michel.
Two railway men at Michel.
Several drowned in trying to swim Elk River.

Fernie, B.C., Aug. 4.—Communication by wire and railway with the outside world has been established and vigorous efforts to identify and bury the dead and prevent the seven thousand homeless people from starving are vigorously under way in the stricken region today.

A public safety committee of fifty is directing affairs. The patrol of Mounted Police is assisting in the efforts to restore order and relief.

Twenty-two dead bodies have been recovered and while this is not supposed to be all the victims it is known that the death list is very much smaller than at first supposed while the missing list contains nearly 100. This is now thought to be due to the separation of various families, for during the rush to escape the sea of flame the inhabitants of Fernie and surrounding coal towns scattered in all directions, some following the streams into the isolated regions and others following the track.

TABULATION OF LOSSES

The tabulation of business men's losses began today, and it is planned that a special session of the British Columbia Legislature or Order-in-Council will be passed supplying credit, where it is absolutely necessary.

Telegrams have been received in vast quantity from all parts of Canada, United States, and England offering aid. The wholesalers of Winnipeg, Toronto, Montreal and Spokane doing business here have promised all credit necessary to those business men who required extended credits to restore their business. This will probably be necessary, as in a large number of cases the losses are complete. As a rule in Fernie even those insured have lost their policies and all records, and will have much trouble in settling their claims, all notes of their debtors, as well as books showing who their creditors are, being destroyed.

Fernie was founded in 1898 and has had a most distressing history. In 1902 it got its first setback, when, on May 22nd, the great explosion at Coal Creek killed 128 men, and badly wrecked No. 2 mine. A strike followed and the mines were closed for three months. The following spring a second strike tied up the mines for another three months, but on April 1st, 1903, a permanent agreement was reached between miners and company, which has insured industrial peace ever since.

Fernie was a town of wooden buildings, and its business center was purged by fire on April 29th, 1904, and in four hours six blocks constituting the center of the town were in ashes, and over half a million dollars' worth of property had vanished. Within a year after the fire the Fernieites had rebuilt the blocks, this time with brick and cement, supposedly fireproof, but once more they are in ashes. A booklet published by the Fernie Free Press speaks with pride of these fireproof structures as a credit to the city.

Fernie was incorporated as a city in 1904.

Some of the most expensive buildings erected in Fernie are: Trites-Wood Co. $40,000; Crow's Nest Trading Co. Building, $18,000; Coal Company offices, $50,000.

The total wage payroll in Fernie and vicinity ammounted to about one and three-quarter million dollars. This does not include the Carbonado and Michel collieries and mills, more than two miles distant, which would swell the payroll to upwards of $2,000,000.

FIGHTING TO SAVE HOSMER.

A despatch from Cranbrook to the Nelson News stated that four p.m. Sunday, a bush fire at Fernie, got beyond control and spread to the town, making its way through the place with an incredibly short time. With the exception of some seventeen dwelling houses, everything was destroyed, the loss being estimated at two and a half million dollars, of which the C.P.R.'s loss approximated half a million. Two hundred men were fighting to save Hosmer, B.C., the message stated, but with little hope of success.

A relief train left Cranbrook at eight o'clock Sunday night with doctors, nurses and supplies, and a second train at midnight.

At Cranbrook the assistant superintendent of the Great Northern arrived from Fernie, having traversed several miles of the burning district on foot and on his handcar. When he left Fernie, he said, the whole place had been destroyed with the exception of the fireproof warehouse of the Western Canada Coal Company. One thousand refugees and people had been taken out of Fernie on Great Northern cars to a large clear space three miles from town.

Three men were brought to Michel badly burned by Peter Campbell. They had been endeavoring to save the Sparwood Lumber Company's mill, half way between Michel and Fernie. They were taken to the hospital. Four bodies were also brought in by the Great Northern yard engine, and were believed to be those of men who lost their lives trying to save the Great Northern bridge over the Elk River.

George Banks Succumbs to Injuries

Ingersoll, Ont., Aug. 4.—George Banks, expert mechanic, of Brantford, and manager for J. H. Head, burned yesterday in the disastrous gasoline explosion at Head's shop, died last night at eight o'clock. He was conscious to the last. He said he made a mistake and turned the gasoline instead of the water on the red hot iron. His body will be taken to Brantford for burial tomorrow. He leaves a sister in Brantford and a brother in Peterborough to mourn his loss.

Towns Destroyed by Fire

Fernie was a post village in the District of East Kootenay, B.C., on the Elk River, and on the Canadian Pacific Railway. It contained six churches, twenty-six stores, eleven hotels, one sawmill, agencies of the Bank of Commerce, Hamilton and Home banks, two planing offices, issued two newspapers, had telegraph and express offices. Coal mining and lumbering were extensively carried on. There was also a large coke industry.

Michel is a station on the Crow's Nest Pass section of the C.P.R., twelve miles west of Crow's Nest, and twenty-four miles northeast of Fernie, with a post office. East of the Elk River, in the East Kootenay District.

Hosmer is a settlement with a population of sixty, in East Kootenay District, B.C., on the Elk River, and a flag station on the Crow's Nest branch of the C.P.R., eight miles north of Fernie and twenty-eight miles southeast of Crow's Nest. It has one hotel and a sawmill. The C.P.R. have 12,000 acres of coal lands there, and it is confidently expected that in the course of two years the settlement will have developed into an important mining center.

Coal Creek is a mining town, with a population of 1,200, in the Kootenay District, B.C., on the Coal Creek stream, five miles from Fernie, on the C.P.R. Crow's Nest division. It is the site of the Fernie Mines of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Company. It has one Union Church and a general store.

A TABLE OF DISTANCES.

Fernie to Nelson—198 miles.
Fernie to Medicine Hat—248 miles.
Fernie to Winnipeg—1,108 miles.
Fernie to Vancouver—736 miles.

This table of distances serves to show the location of Fernie with reference to cities of the West in more or less direct communication. Fernie is on the main line of the Crow's Nest section of the Canadian Pacific, but away from the Transcontinental main line, and is one of the headquarters for the rich coal areas there about.

Nelson got on a direct railroad line from it. Freight from the large town has to wend down the Kootenay lakes on car ferries to Kootenay.

Heroic Mother Walked Through Twelve Miles of Flames

Saved Her Five Children--Often Had to Lie Down in Stream to Escape Suffocation--Clothes Burnt Off Her and Little Ones

Fernie, B.C., Aug. 4.—Among the many heroic cases revealed is that of Mrs. Henry Morris, wife of a miner, caught in the edge of brush with her five little children. Her husband had been caught in their burning home and perished. The woman carried and led her children, the youngest four years old, along a small stream into the interior, twelve miles, fighting for their lives every inch of the way. Frequently the whole family had to lie down in the stream to avoid suffocation. Their clothes were literally burnt from their bodies, their bodies being blistered, and they were nearly thirty hours without food.

The heroic mother fought her way through a pall of smoke and flame, and finally reached the railway track, where she was picked up with her children by a relief train. The whole family had been listed as dead.

THE BLACK HAND THEORY.

The theory that the Black Hand started the fires in revenge for imprisonment of their members is being followed by the Mounted Police, and, while the story is not generally credited, it is to be sifted to the bottom.

Relief trains have poured enormous quantities of supplies into Fernie and surrounding towns. It is largely now a question of organization. The committee of public safety proposes later to make a list of those worthy of the Carnegie medals for heroic conduct during the great conflagration.

The quick responses of American towns along the border has created the liveliest feeling of cordiality among all the towns of Crow's Nest Pass region.

Are You a Woman Needing Strength?

Not long ago you were able to enjoy life.

You had vigor, strength, ambition — did everything with zest and pleasure.

Upon your cheeks was the hue of health, in your eyes the sparkle of vim and animation.

To-day—all is a drudge.

Not actually sick, but if your work were less imperative, how gladly you would rest.

You are breaking down.

Nervous system is out of gear.

Digestive powers are weak.

Blood lacks nourishment.

Just one thing to do—BUILD UP—Win back your health with Ferrozone.

No remedy restores so fast, builds up so permanently, instills such vigor or surplus strength like Ferrozone.

A case showing how Ferrozone acts is illustrated by the following from Mrs. H. Wright, of Enfield, N.S. "Six months ago I experienced a serious illness. It commenced with splitting headaches, dull pains through my chest and shoulders. I found it hard to get satisfying sleep—would roll and toss and on the morning felt tired all over. Then I grew nervous, lost flesh, got pale and had heavy dark circles under my eyes. My strength got so low I couldn't do housework. I was worried and unable to eat and feared I would not get well. Ferrozone braced me up in a few weeks. It seemed to supply wonderful strength. I gained in flesh, looked better and was able to sleep. In all I took twelve boxes of Ferrozone and my cure was complete."

If Ferrozone doesn't help and cure you—then nothing ever will; your druggist sells it in 50c boxes—Better try Ferrozone.

Death of Mrs. W. G. Yelland at Burleigh

The death occurred yesterday of Mrs. W. G. Yelland at the cottage of Mr. B. C. Yelland, Burleigh. Her death was due to paralysis. On Friday Mr. W. G. Yelland, of the Land Titles office, Osgoode Hall, Toronto, accompanied by his wife, came to Peterborough on their way to spend their holidays at Stony Lake, the guests of Mr. Yelland's brother, at his cottage near Burleigh. They spent Saturday in Peterborough, Saturday night and Sunday on Lakefield, and went on Monday to Burleigh, arriving safely. Yesterday morning at six o'clock, Mr. Wm. Yelland, city, received a telephone message stating that Mrs. W. G. Yelland, was stricken with paralysis, and soon passed away. The deceased lady, whose maiden title was Miss Spence, was fifty years of age. Beyond a slight trouble with rheumatism, she was in good health while in the city on Saturday, and the intelligence of her sudden death comes as a shock to her friends and acquaintances in Peterborough.

Joseph E. Gould

Word was received yesterday from Uxbridge of the death of Mr. Joseph E. Gould, in his 67th year. Mr. Gould was the father of Mrs. J. S. Knapman, of Peterborough. The funeral will be held on Thursday afternoon at two o'clock to Uxbridge.

Paul Philips

The death occurred yesterday of Paul Phillips, aged ten months. The funeral will take place this afternoon at two o'clock from the family residence, 168 1-2 Charlotte St.

Death of Mrs. M. S. Kennedy

The death occurred Monday at the Sarnia General Hospital of Mrs. M. S. Kennedy, the wife of Mr. Marvin Kennedy. She resided in this city for some time and was well known here. Mr. H. P. Kennedy left for Sarnia yesterday to attend the funeral.

R. R. Telegrapher

Increases Ability on Right Food

Anything that will help the R.R. Telegraph operator to keep a clear head and steady nerves is of interest to operators particularly and to the public generally.

As the waste of brain and nerve cells in active work of this kind is great, it is important that the right kind of food be regularly used to repair the waste.

"I have used Grape-Nuts," writes a B. R. & P. operator, "for the past six or eight years, daily, buying it by the dozen pkgs.

"A friend of mine, a doctor, who had been treating me for stomach trouble and nervous exhaustion, recommended me to leave off so much meat and use fruit and vegetables, with Grape-Nuts as the cereal part of each meal.

"I did so with fine results and have continued Grape-Nuts from that time to the present. I find in my work as R.R. Telegrapher that I can do more work and far easier than I ever could on the old diet.

"To any man who is working his brain and who needs a cool, level head and quick action, I recommend Grape-Nuts, from long experience." "There's a Reason."

Brockville Nurse Made A Fatal Mistake

Brockville, Aug. 4.—A sad accident occurred here this morning when Carl Lee, a young man eighteen years of age, died as the result of a fatal mistake made by a trained nurse.

He had been ill, threatened with typhoid, since coming from Quebec, where he had gone as a member of the Forty-First Regiment of this town.

This morning at ten o'clock the nurse is giving him medicine by mistake administered carbolic acid. He died in three minutes.

Funeral of the Late Dr. Burrows

The funeral of the late Dr. Burrows took place yesterday afternoon to Riverside cemetery. There was a large number of the citizens of Lindsay present to pay their last tribute of respect to one who had done so much for the town, and many were the words of regret at the sudden departure of the doctor.

Service was held at the late residence of deceased and at the grave by Rev. Mr. Collier of St. Paul's church. A large number of floral tributes had been sent and the casket was covered with wreaths forwarded by friends. The pall bearers were Messrs. Richard Sylvester, Thomas Stewart, F. C. Taylor, C. D. Barr, J. R. McNeilly, and Judge McMillan, acting as honorary pall bearers were Messrs. A. Lindsay.

Friends from a distance were Mr. Frank Matthews, of Ottawa, and Mr. William Matthews of Peterborough, and Mr. Geo. Needler, of Millbrook.—Lindsay Post.

A Valuable Agent.

The glycerine employed in Dr. Pierce's medicines greatly enhances the medicinal properties which it extracts and holds in solution much better than alcohol would. It also possesses medicinal properties of its own, being a valuable demulcent, nutritive, antiseptic and antiferment. It adds greatly to the efficacy of the Black Cherrybark, Golden Seal root, Stone root and Queen's root, contained in "Golden Medical Discovery" in subduing chronic, or lingering coughs, bronchial, throat and lung affections, for all of which these agents are recommended by standard medical authorities.

In all cases where there is a wasting away of flesh, loss of appetite, with weak stomach, as in the early stages of consumption, there can be no doubt that glycerine acts as a valuable nutritive and aids the Golden Seal root, Stone root, Queen's root and Black Cherrybark in promoting digestion and building up the flesh and strength, controlling the cough and bringing about a healthy condition of the whole system. Of course, it must not be expected to work miracles. It will not cure consumption except in its earlier stages. It will cure very severe, obstinate, chronic coughs, bronchial and laryngeal troubles, and chronic sore throat with hoarseness. In acute coughs it is not so effective. It is in the lingering coughs, or those of long standing, even when accompanied by bleeding from lungs, that it has performed its most marvelous cures. Send for and read the little book of extracts, treating of the properties and uses of the several medicinal roots that enter into Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and learn why this medicine has such a wide range of application in the cure of diseases. It is sent free. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. The "Discovery" contains no alcohol or harmful, habit-forming drug. Ingredients all printed on each bottle wrapper in plain English.

Sick people, especially those suffering from diseases of long standing, are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expenses of customs and mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for paper-covered, or 50 stamps for cloth-bound copy.

THE IMMIGRATION PROBLEM

In the Supplementary Estimates brought down in the Dominion House of Commons there was a considerable sum appropriated for immigration purposes. We had hoped that the Government had decided to abandon a policy which has certainly not been justified by its results in the past, and does not seem to indicate that better things will be achieved in the future by a continuance on the same lines. The immigration from the United States and those from Great Britain are of a class that neither asks nor requires financial assistance from the Government in order to enable them to come into Canada. The class of immigrants that are brought hear under the system of assisted immigration is, in too many instances, just the sort of people that we can well afford not to have added to our population. The unsavory history of the North Atlantic Trading Company and the details of the methods of its representatives and agents, together with the records of many of the immigrants which were brought here by its operations, should be sufficient to cause every impartial person to oppose a repetition of such things.

THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK

The news about the prospects of the crops continues to be favourable and this is the most important news at this or any time. Good crops mean more money, and, if in great volume, it means renewed prosperity. Assuming that the Western harvest is an abundant one, there are two other details that will require attention. These are the transportation facilities that will be available for the rapid movement of the grain to the seaboard, and the volume of money necessary to finance that movement. In some years in the past the position in regard to the former was unsatisfactory, while only last year there were complaints that the banks could not provide the money necessary to finance the business until the purchase price was received. This year things seem to be better in both respects. The three railways traversing Central and Western Canada will all be in better shape to move the grain while the banks are in a stronger position with more ample resources available for the purpose. Instead of their funds being already largely occupied in the ordinary channels of trade, the banks will be glad to secure more profitable employment for them, than they can find in call loans in New York, at one per cent. per annum, which is about the current rate. In any case the banks can avail themselves of the permission given by Parliament to make special additions to their note-issues, but we do not think that this will be found to be necessary this year.

Although the business outlook is on the whole favourable, the returns of the bank clearings and other sources of information also what the general trade of the country has not yet fully recovered from the adverse circumstances of a year ago. Nor do we look for any great activity in the leading lines of business before next year. The revival must depend greatly on general economy and the gradual accumulation of money that will result therefrom furnishing the funds for a fresh start in new enterprises.

A SPLENDID RECORD

The mineral output of British Columbia in 1907 was the largest in the history of that portion of His Majesty's dominions, either as a separate colony or as a province of Canada, says the London Advertiser. Less is heard nowadays of the mining company promoter in that province, and more of actual mining.

From the report of the Minister of Mines for last year, recently issued, it is seen that the mining industry of British Columbia is steadily growing. Between forty and fifty years ago there was much excitement over gold discoveries there, and there was a rush in that direction of fortune-makers from all parts of Canada and the United States. The placer diggings in 1862 yielded close on to $4,000,000 worth of gold. But development was slow in those days, and though coal deposits were discovered and worked to some extent, the annual mineral output subsequently declined until 1885 it dropped to $1,000,000, the lowest point on record. Then came a revival, and in 1897 the output amounted to $10,456,000. That amount was nearly doubled four years later. Then followed a drop to be a trifle $15,000,000. The figures for the past five years are:—

1903	$11,695,000
1904	12,977,000
1905	22,461,000
1906	34,000,000
1907	35,522,000

A recent optimistic places the total mineral production of the Dominion last year at $36,152,000, of which it will be seen British Columbia contributed thirty per cent.

Greater still is the Pacific Province's proportion of metal production, minerals of the other provinces being chiefly non-metallic. British Columbia's products for last year are thus classified:—

Copper	$3,105,000
Coal	P 6,000,000
Gold	4,633,000
Lead	2,291,000
Silver	1,768,000
Coke	1,977,000
Other products	1,300,000

During the past two years both the silver and lead outputs have shown a falling off, and it is with a view of stimulating their production, that the government offers a bounty on those metals. Of much importance to the whole of Canada is the increase of coal production. Last year the total was 1,800,000 tons—an increase of 416,000 tons over the coal output in 1905, and the indications are that it will continue to grow.

THANKSGIVING DAY

The announcement by Sir Wilfrid Laurier that Thanksgiving Day will be changed from Thursday to Monday does not seem to meet with approval from all quarters. The Toronto News says that the practice both in Canada and the United States has been to have it fall in the middle of the week "so that the tendency might be for the people to attend Thanksgiving services in the churches and to make it in some measure a holy day instead of a mere holiday." The News fears that by the proposed arrangement the day will be converted into a portion of a glorified "week-end" and sight be lost of the object for which the day was first appointed. There may be something in our contemporary's contention, we are inclined to think there is. But the new arrangement, whereby Sunday and Monday are, as it were, bracketed together, may be found to give an annual National festival embracing both a holy day and a holiday. Undoubtedly from an industrial and commercial standpoint the change has economic advantages which have probably been the reason for its adoption.
